Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, thanked the committee for the splendid work they had been doing in his absence during the week. He thought that if the people of the province were satisfied with the flapdoodle being doled out nightly by the leaders of the Conservative party, they were easily satisfied indeed. There was nothing elevated or proud in their speeches, and they showed their lack of grasp of political affairs by their inability to offer the people anything worthy of the great interests a Provincial Government was required to serve and promote.

An assertion very frequently made by the Conservative press and on the Opposition platform was that the Government was unprogressive, that the legislation of the province had not kept pace with the demands of a growing community or with the advances made elsewhere. No more absurd or unfounded charge could be brought than this in view of the fact that the legislation of Ontario had been widely copied not only by the other provinces but by many of the most progressive states of the American Union. Ontario was in fact the pioneer in lawmaking and in methods of administration. This was true in connection with every department. In the important matter of agriculture, Ontario had set the example in the collection of statistics. Manitoba had adopted the system and the other provinces were considering the advisability of doing so. Our system of Farmers' Institutes, which had done so much to raise the standard of farming, had been adopted by Manitoba and New Brunswick and the Dominion Government was sending Ontario Institute lecturers into the other Provinces. The Ontario Live Stock Associations, which had been liberally aided and encouraged by the Government had furnished the model for similar institutions in all the other provinces. The Dominion Government had followed the precedent set by Ontario in starting a winter live stock fair. The Ontario dairy school system had led the way in dairy instruction, and there were now institutions established on the same line in Manitoba, Quebec and New Brunswick. The Agricultural College, at one time derided and decried by the Opposition, was so much appreciated by the people of other sections that the three Maritime Provinces were about to adopt our system, and the Manitobans were considering the question. The marked success of one of its notable features, the Dairy Department, has induced the Dominion Government to take up the work of dairy instruction, putting Ontario dairymen in charge. Ontario instructors in this line were also engaged in the other provinces, in New Zealand and in Scotland, which was certainly a high tribute to the thoroughness of the training secured at the Agricultural College. The bulletins of that institution were everywhere widely sought after. Prof. W. L. Amoss, Director of Maryland Farmers' Institutes, characterized the College as "the best of the twelve I have visited in the United States and Canada for educating the farmer's son for the farm." (Applause.)

Another department in which Ontario was notably in advance of other communities was the Board of Health. Our Public Health Act has been copied by Quebec, Manitoba, British Columbia, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and many of the American States had drawn fully upon its provisions. The Act respecting sanitary regulations for unorganized territories, passed in 1900, had formed a precedent for legislation by the States of Minnesota, Michigan, Maine and Pennsylvania, and had been practically adopted by Quebec. The provisions of our law giving the Board of Health supervision over waterworks and drainage systems had been copied by Ohio. Ontario was far ahead of any province or state in the registration of vital statistics. Our plan had been highly commended at the Washington conference two years ago, and had been copied to a slight extent by the other provinces and adopted by many Canadian cities. The uniting of the registration and public health branches had been found highly effective in the prevention of disease. The Sanatoria for Consumptives Act adopted in 1901 was in advance of any legislation elsewhere. So far no European Government or American State had undertaken to deal with the question, but doubtless before long our initiative would be followed in this as in other matters.

Mr. Stratton concluded by urging his supporters to keep up the good work for the rest of the month and they would be rewarded by a splendid victory (applause).

Mr. G. K. Martin referred to the fact that the local political temperance movement originated in and was propagated by a certain room in the Bank of Commerce buildings. It was purely political and he hoped no supporters of the Government would be deceived by the actions of this clique.

Mr. Wm. Eyres followed in a similar strain showing that party animus was the moving spirit of the movement and bringing out a supporter of an anti-temperance leader as the supporter of temperance in the House. He had been a temperance man all his life but he had never witnessed any movement calculated to do more injury to temperance than the course of a clique who chiefly desired to secure a party gain.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams referred to the excellent progress of the campaign in East Peterborough and predicted a splendid victory for Mr. Anderson.

Mr. James Garrow, of the William Hamilton Company, said the best interests of Peterborough would be served by the election of Mr. Stratton, who was a member of a Government that had a splendid policy in relation to development, especially of the farming and mining industries. The working men desired to see such developments as would promote industrial enterprise and give employment to both capital and labor.

The meeting closed with cheers for the king and the candidate.

Canadian Horses

In 1891 the exports of horses from the United States to all countries amounted to less than $1,000,000. During the single year ending with June, 1901, England received from thence the record-breaking total of 76,000 horses, and the entire exports of United States horses for that year amounted to nearly $8,000,000. These exportations began on a large scale in 1895, when over 10,000 horses were sent to England. From that time on the shipments increased until in 1901, the record was as follows:—South Africa, 57,485; Great Britain, 22,000; Canada, 3,435; Cuba, 4,455; China, 2,217; Philippines, 1,603; Japan, 1,545; British Columbia, 395; and the British West Indies, 190. Since 1895 Great Britain alone has received from the United States an average of 50,000 horses annually. All this in the face of the scare felt everywhere that horses were soon to be superseded by mechanical motors. Has Canada become so infected with this fear that the comparatively small number of horses for export is to be thus accounted for? During March, 4,946 horses were bought for the British army in Fiume, Austria; 5,000 from the United States, and 751 from Canada. The Canadian Gazette, of London, which reports these figures, well remarks that the last mentioned is "a miserable total. Canadians have the remedy in their own hands; either they must use more English or Irish thoroughbred hunting or coaching stallions, or the British Government and London horse dealers will, for obvious reasons, continue to make their purchases in foreign countries." The Gazette observes that "some Canadians are taking exception to Col. Dent's selections of cavalry horses in Canada, but there are defects not discernible to inexperienced Canadians, which would [illegible] a valuable soldier's life in South Africa—perhaps that of the Canadian farmer's own son." A horse that may appear perfect to the inexperienced eye may to the expert have a defect, such as cataract only discernible by the candle test, that is, examining the eye in a dark stable. Such horse, worth [illegible] otherwise, would not be taken at a gift.

LORD STRATHCONA ON CANADA'S CHANCE

The Opportunity of the Dominion at the Present Day

FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE NEEDED

Would give Canadian Ports and Railways Control of Vast Traffic

London, May 5.—Whatever may be the outcome of the steamship Merger, Canada is likely to be a great gainer. This view is shared by Lord Strathcona, the High Commissioner, who was seen on the subject the other day by a London Chronicle representative. While anxious not to be represented as giving any opinion on the Morgan combination, His Lordship said that any such movement was likely to draw wider attention in Great Britain to the possibilities of Canadian ports. Those possibilities, he thinks, have up to the present only been faintly realized by the British public.

His Lordship then explained how much nearer than New York the principal Canadian ports were to England. Quebec was 500 miles nearer, and for eight of the best months of the year was open to the largest vessels afloat. But it was no use considering a port unless it was open all the year round, and this could be found at Cape Breton, which was a whole day's journey shorter than New York. Louisburg, at Cape Breton, had 36 feet of water at low tide, and the harbor was always ice free. Halifax, also, was a good port, always ice free, and as Nova Scotia and Cape Breton were well served by the Government railway, passengers and mails could be conveyed to Montreal in a few hours, and dispatched by the grand trunk lines to any part of the United States and Canada. A passenger could land at Cape Breton twenty-four hours before he could reach New York by steamer from England and if he took train to New York as soon as he landed, he would still reach that city, so His Lordship explained, "a business day ahead of his friend in the New York-bound vessel—no inconsiderable thing in these days of keen commercial rivalry."

The distances from Liverpool are—to Louisburg, 2,576 miles; to Halifax, 2,734; to Boston, 3,160, and to New York, 3,286.

Of course the first step to be taken, as Lord Strathcona explained, is to secure a fast mail service and that at first would have to be subsidized. The Canadian Government is very much in earnest over the matter and is now considering more seriously than ever this question of subsidizing a fast service. The subject is to be brought forward at the conference of Colonial Premiers in London next July, and it is considered certain that before long a fast service will be established between the two countries.

Once the boats begin running, His Lordship believes, they will not only draw away the Canadian mails that now go to New York, but all passengers for Canada and a good number of people bound for the United States. "In fact," said the High Commissioner, "I hope to see the present state of affairs reversed, and instead of people for Canada passing first through the United States I look forward with confidence to the time when people for the United States will first pass through Canada."

Some Results of Impure Blood

A blotched, pimply, disfigured face, feeling of exhaustion, wracked nerves, headache and a dull brain. The proper cure is one Ferrozone Tablet after each meal. Ferrozone clears and beautifies the complexion by making rich, pure blood. It restores the enfeebled brain and unstrung nerves to a healthy vigorous condition. It invigorates all the physical and mental powers, and brings strength and ambition to the depressed. Refuse a substitute for Ferrozone—it's the best tonic, rebuilder and invigorator known. MUCH C. P. R. STOCK GOES TO CONTINENT.

London, New York and Montreal Take New $19,500,000 Issue

WHOLE NOW DISPOSED OF

$2,000,000 Has Been Set Aside for Construction of Shops at Hochelaga

Montreal, May 5.—Although the detailed returns showing where the new issue of Canadian Pacific stock amounting to $19,500,000 was subscribed for, is not yet to hand, it is known that about 40 per cent. in New York, and 30 per cent. in Montreal It is believed that a large portion of the New York subscriptions were for European shareholders and that the Dutch German and other continental subscribers made application in London. The full issue was taken up at par and had to be absorbed by the original shareholders, who were allotted at the rate of 30 per cent. of their stock, which was $65,000,000.

Of this, there will be expended for locomotives, cars and other equipments, $10,000,000; new shops at Hochelaga and improvement of repair shops, $2,000,000; reduction of grades, improvement of alignment, second tracks, 3,000,000; additional grain elevators, terminals, business and passing siding and other facilities as may be required from month to month, $4,500,000.

Of the $10,000,000 for new locomotives and cars $4,500,000 has already been appropriated as follows: 80 locomotives, which in round figures will cost $1,600,000 and the following car equipment, which will run the total figures up to about $4,500,000 a box car costing about $900: 1500 box cars; 200 stock; 500 coal; 50 ore; 50 refrigerator; 5 baggage and 3 diners.

CANADIAN HORSES.

In 1902 the exports of horses from the United States to all countries amounted to less than $1,000,000. During the single year ending with June, 1901, England received from thence the record-breaking total of 75,000 horses, and the entire exports of United States horses for that year amounted to nearly $9,000,000. These exportations began on a large scale in 1895, when over 10,000 horses were sent to England. From that time on the shipments increased until in 1901, the record was as follows:—South Africa, 37,-465; Great Britain, 22,000; Canada, 3,418; Cuba, 4,436; China, 2,217; Philippines, 1,-572; Japan, 1,585; British Columbia, 791; and 120 British West Indies, 190. Since 1895 Great Britain alone has received from the United States an average of 50,000 horses annually. All this in the face of the scare felt everywhere that horses were soon to be superseded by mechanical motors. Has Canada become so infected with this fear that the comparatively small number of horses for export is to be thus accounted for? During March, 6,546 horses were bought for the British army in Fiume, Austria; 6,365 from the United States, and 161 from Canada. The Canadian Gazette, of London, which reports these figures, well remarks that the last mentioned is "a miserable total. Canadians have the remedy in their own hands; either they must use more English or Irish thoroughbred hunting or coaching stallions, or the British Government and London horse dealers will, for obvious reasons, continue to make their purchases in foreign countries." The Gazette observes that "some Canadians are taking exception to Col. Dent's selections of cavalry horses in Canada, but there are defects not discernible to inexperienced Canadians which might risk a valuable soldier's life in South Africa,—perhaps that of the Canadian farmer's own son." A horse that may appear perfect to the inexperienced eye may to the expert have a defect, such as embryo cataract only discernible by the candle test, that is, examining the eyes in a dark stable. Such horse, worth 30 guineas otherwise, would not be taken as a gift.

One serious discouragement to Canadian horse-breeding is the low tariff under which so large a number of animals as above reported have been brought in from the States. No doubt a very considerable if not the most of these 3,418 horses exported from the United States to Canada were of the class recently objected to in Parliament, viz., the western ranch ponies. These inferior animals have been laid down here at $14 each, paying only twenty per cent. duty, while a horse of no more value than a goat is taxed $30 duty on going into the United States. This should be remedied.

In the Jaws of the Fire.

THE risks that firemen take are an everlasting wonder, even though almost every paper contains stories of their bravery. But the man behind the fire-engine—apparently he has only to keep his machine going, and is as safe as the boy who pulls the lever of an upright "slammer." The story of Bill Brown, as told by Mr. Cleveland Moffett in "Careers of Daring and Danger," shows that the engineer's bravery is sometimes put to tests as severe as those which the hoseman or the ladderman ever has to endure.

What happened was this: Engine 33, pumping her prettiest, stood at the corner so near the drug-house that the driver thought it wasn't safe for the horses, and led them away. That left Brown alone, against the shock of the fire, watching his boiler and keeping the steam-gauge at seventy-five.

As the fire gained, chunks of red-hot sandstone began to smash down on the engine. Brown ran his pressure up to eighty, and watched the door anxiously where the four firemen from his squad had gone into the furnace.

Then an explosion of chemicals in the building sent a flame wide as a house curling across the street, enwrapping engine and man, and setting fire to the elevated railway station overhead. Bill Brown stood by his engine with a sheet of fire above him. He heard footsteps on the pavement and voices that grew fainter, crying, "Run for your lives!" He was alone, and the skin on his hands, face and neck was blistered.

Brown knew why everyone was running. There would be another explosion. It was tolerably certain that he must die if he stayed. But his four chums were in the fire and needed the water. If he quit his engine the water would fail.

He stoked in coal and ran the gauge up another notch, easing the running parts with the oiler. He was offering his life for his friends.

In a few minutes the four firemen came out of the building. Then Bill Brown ran for his life with his comrades. A second or two later Engine 33 was crushed by the falling walls.

PATIENT ENDURANCE.

SERMON BY

REV. GEO. H. HEPWORTH.

But let patience have her perfect work.—St. James., i., 4.

Patience is generally classed among the minor virtues, but so much of life's happiness and usefulness depends on it that we ought to give it a more prominent place. To patiently endure an environment which includes suffering and hardship is nothing less than heroism, and there are unseen and unrecorded instances in which men and women have shown the courage of the martyr.

Patience is always yoked with other high qualities of character. Its nearest ally is self-control, and self-control is as important when you are building a character as a rudder is when a ship is launched. It is literally the steering apparatus which keeps us clear of the rocks and shoals of an impetuous and reckless temper. I would rather have patience with perfect self-control than to have genius, for while genius is erratic and often unbalanced, these other qualities give us poise and equilibrium. Patience is grounded on resignation to the inevitable, which results in a calm endurance under exasperating circumstances, and in the conviction that it is safer to bear the ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of. When a man cultivates patience, therefore, he becomes master of himself and master of whatever may possibly happen. It is a kingly, a royal virtue, and more depends on its possession than we are apt to think.

You can reckon its value by considering its opposite. Impatience is a dangerous quality. It constantly places your self-respect and your relations to your dearest friends in peril. Moreover, it makes unhappy circumstances more unhappy still. You can't rebel against your surroundings with a complaining heart without rendering yourself weak to oppose or change them. Look your life over calmly and impartially and you will find that where you have been at odds with your lot you have made the lot so much the worse and more difficult to get away from, whereas if you had accepted the bitter experience and made the best of it you would have reaped a benefit otherwise impossible. It is equally true that where you have been impetuous of speech you have had cause for regret, while a curbed tongue has been cause for rejoicing. When you have been silent you have done better than when you have spoken. A bitter word suppressed strengthens the character, while a reckless utterance is like a bomb, which is sure to injure, if it does not kill, a friendship.

It is an inexorable law that three-quarters of the world must drudge in order to live. You may wonder why this should be so, but you will find no solution for the puzzle. The simple, stubborn fact faces you, and it ends all controversy. Moreover, all the world, without exception, must sooner or later bear heavy burdens of sorrow and bereavement. The normal condition of man is to be a burden-bearer, and I had almost said it is the only healthy condition. There is no smooth road laid down on the chart of life. We all trudge through storm and sunshine. Poverty, sickness, trouble, death, are to be found everywhere. Kings and peasants alike have their sorrows. It is the common lot.

There is only one question to be asked and answered: How shall we make these experiences contribute to strength of character, and possibly to our welfare? Not, surely, by a restless controversy with the inevitable and inexorable. That state of mind only aggravates the evil without even the shadow of a good result. It is your attitude of mind and heart which decides your happiness or misery.

Fight fate and you will surely be defeated; not only defeated, but soured. On the other hand, make the best of the worst, calmly and patiently use events and extract from them whatever of good they may contain, and your days will swing along with a smoothness that will surprise you. More and better than that, your calmness and patience will have a tendency to draw to you the help of the other world, and if you and the other world come to a harmonious understanding the very complexion of your adverse circumstances will change.

In a word, the soul which follows in the footsteps of the Christ and in poverty and hard work and misfortune bravely meets and nobly endures will find light in unexpected places, and joys where only fears were looked for. There is a subtle law here, and if we can discover it and be guided by it the clouds will have a silver lining, and even our sorrows will prove a blessing.

God is still with us, and so are the angels of God. With patience and courage we may fit ourselves for their kind services, and so make good use of the roughest places over which we must travel to the rest and reward of the glorious future.

UNCHARITY.

SERMON BY

GEORGE H. HEPWORTH.

And to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity.—II. Peter, i., 7.

There is one form of vice which is to me especially offensive and repellant, namely, habitual uncharity in the judgment of others. It is twice cursed, for it curseth him who gratifies his morbid appetite and him who is unconsciously the victim of it.

It is always safe to be generous in criticism, and seldom safe to be severe. If the Christ's rule, the "measure you mete, it shall be measured to you again," should be literally enforced, many a man and woman would be wrecked by the consequences. If it is always possible to say something kind it is well to be in the frame of mind to do it. The middle course is to be silent unless there is a good word to say, and the heroic course is to rebuke the harsh and unnecessary criticism.

Many a life has been seriously wounded, many a heart well-nigh broken by thoughtless talk which perhaps had no foundation in fact, or was based on facts misunderstood. It is so much better to be sweet than sour. The juicy plum filled with sunshine hangs on the branches in abundance, and so does the lemon, and it is a more gracious taste which chooses the plum and leaves the lemon for others to pluck. Life contains so many disagreeable things that if we can avoid coming into contact with any one of them we do ourselves a distinct benefit. A smile helps the world more than a frown, and the good nature which ignores the unpleasant and dwells only on the agreeable is a Christian virtue, which is as charming as it is rare.

The clear injunction of religion is to find the good in our neighbors and not to magnify their failings. We may laugh at their follies or look with scorn on their weaknesses, but who knows what we ourselves would do under like circumstances? We are not so strong that we can thank God, as the poor Pharisee did, that we are not like other men. If we are really strong the best way to show our strength is to help those who have fallen by the way rather than spread the news of their failure, as though we stood on a higher and safer level. True religion, the only kind worth having, not only prays that "from all uncharitableness, good Lord, deliver us," but co-operates with the Lord in the accomplishment of the task.

A legend is told of Jesus which illustrates my point. He was standing in a group who were looking at a dead dog. Each spectator had something hard and cruel on his lips, but at last a gentle voice was heard, saying, "He had very white teeth!" It was perhaps the only thing that could be said of a favorable nature, and it was the only thing He cared to say. It was a rebuke not to be easily forgotten, and the men in the group silently stole away, wondering at themselves and at Him.

You deceive yourself if you think you are religious and still indulge in uncharity. I would rather be poor Abou Ben Adhem, who cared nothing for Christ, but wanted to be classed as one "who loves his fellow-men," than so wretched a Christian that he could cherish a secret delight in the faults of others. Religion is either the most practical and useful thing in the world, or it counts for nothing—the theory of a day, to be abandoned on the morrow. And it proves its mettle when it demands a generous and charitable judgment, and will accept no excuse if you have it not. There never yet was human soul so debased that the angels could not kindle a divine and purging flame in it. In the basest creature that lives there are possibilities of excellence which cannot be calculated, and your word of censure, your scorn and disdain, your repetition of an evil rumor may quench that flame in its feeble beginnings.

There is but one wholesome rule to follow. It is the dictate of honor and of the consciousness that even you need to be judged kindly. It is never to spread an injurious story, for your own sake, for his sake, for the sake of all concerned. No bitterness of spirit and no bitterness of criticism. Look for the good and speak of it freely, but be blind to the faults of others as you would have them blind to yours. The Christ loved justice, but He was always merciful. So you may love the truth, but if you cannot help, see to it that you do not hurt. A silent tongue sometimes shows a consecrated heart.

Northern Pines.

I passed where the pines for Christmas
  Stood thick in the crowded street,
Where the groves of dream and silence
  Were walked by feverish feet.

And far through the rain and street cries
  My home-sick heart went forth
To its pine-clad hills of childhood,
  To its dark and tender North.

And I saw the glooming pine lands,
  And I thrilled to the storied cold,
Where the sunset fell in silence
  On the hills of gloom and gold.

And the dusk, still woods lay round me,
  And I knew that the patient eyes
Of my North as a child's were tender,
  As a sorrowing mother's, wise.

Little Dorothy had been intently watching her brother, an amateur artist, blocking out a landscape in his sketchbook. Suddenly she exclaimed, "I know what drawing is."

"Well, Dot, what is it?"

"Drawing is thinking, and then marking round the think."

Pretty

is an adjective which seems to have become monopolized by the young lady at the typewriter. It is astonishing what an array of beautiful women are found in stores and offices. In fact, the typical American beauty will be found sitting at the typewriter rather than lolling in a carriage in the park.

And yet this pretty young girl needs always to be reminded that "beauty is only skin deep," unless it roots in health. When the health is undermined by womanly diseases, the luster soon passes from the eyes, the cheeks grow thin, the body loses its plumpness.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures diseases which weaken women and which destroy their strength and beauty. It establishes regularity, stops weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"Several years ago I suffered severely from female weakness, prolapsus and menorrhagia, and used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with splendid effect," writes Fannie Shelton, of Washington, Iowa. "Glad I have not needed it for a few years past, but if I should ever have any return of the old trouble would surely try 'Favorite Prescription.' I have recommended it to a number of my lady friends. I always tell them to try a bottle, and if they are not benefited by it I will pay for the medicine. In every case they have spoken in praise of it."

Relics in Jerusalem.

The Greek Catholic monks, who are in possession of the chief portions of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, are now going to build a bazaar opposite it, where pilgrims may purchase souvenirs of their visit to Jerusalem. During the process of clearing the site the foundations of an old mediaeval church, forty meters long and thirty wide, with three apses, were discovered. A number of fine capitals, fragments of basalt pillars, and bas-reliefs, with symbolic animals, were found, all these remains having doubtless belonged to the choir of the church. Last year a valuable silver shrine, containing a piece of the holy cross and relics of the Apostles Peter and Paul—according, at least, to the inscriptions on them—was discovered at the same place.

The Patriarch of Jerusalem, it is said, is keeping other discoveries secret, owing to his dislike of the Roman Catholic Church. Those mentioned above are all the more important, as it can be ascertained to what church they belonged. According to the statement of a mediaeval traveller, the hospice and the monastery which the citizens of Amalfi founded about the year 640, as a refuge for western pilgrims, was situated due south of the Holy Sepulchre, about a stone's throw away. The first church was built in honor of St. Mary de Latinis, and the second, the ruins of which have now been found, in honor of St. John the Baptist. The French monk Bernard, who lived there in 870, highly praised the hospitality and the large library of the hospice. A Mohammedan historian says it was destroyed by the Khalif Hakem, and rebuilt shortly afterwards, while, according to another account, it prospered down to the time of King Baldwin of Jerusalem, from 1100 to 1118, when the two communities of St. Mary and St. John adopted the latter as their joint protector. This was the origin of the Knights of St. John. The remains now discovered, therefore, are the ruins of the cradle of this order. It is most unfortunate that the preservation of these very interesting remains seems impossible, owing to the ill-feeling which exists between the Greek and Roman Catholics in Jerusalem.—London Standard.

A Defence of the "Old Maid."

A toast is offered to the spinster! We meet a great many pleasant people in the world, but nowhere do we find a more satisfactory person than that elderly unmarried woman generally and somewhat disrespectfully known as the "old maid," and supposed to be afflicted with "nerves" and a cantankerous disposition. As a matter of fact, she is frequently the sweetest, most self-forgetful of her sex. She usually walks, with tact and a loving heart, in other women's paths, lives in other women's homes, and rejoices in other women's joys, making them her own. The children adore her, for she becomes to them a sort of fairy godmother, one who possesses all the tenderness of a mother without the extremes of maternal discipline. She loves to give children a "good time," and does it with extraordinary success. In household details, what a treasure! How many dinners owe their success to her, who reaps no glory except the glory of doing! And in the ultimate trials of life, what a prop and solace she becomes! But it is to the young boy-lovers of the family that she exhibits the finest flower of her capacity for friendship. What a gift of understanding she seems to have! There is no difficulty she cannot dissipate, no fear she cannot lessen, no tender little half-owned hope that she does not encourage to bloom for the other woman. It is always for somebody else that she is working, and perhaps it is this which gives to her eyes the look that even the wisest among us unconsciously associates with all that is best and fairest in life. Let them make fun of her if they will, but could we do without her?—Harper's Weekly.

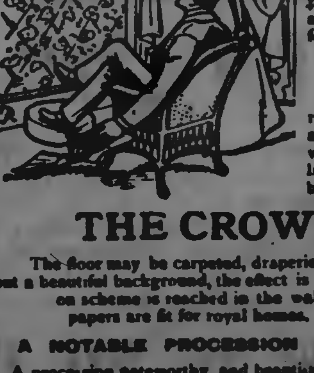
PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE,

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices.

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.



WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

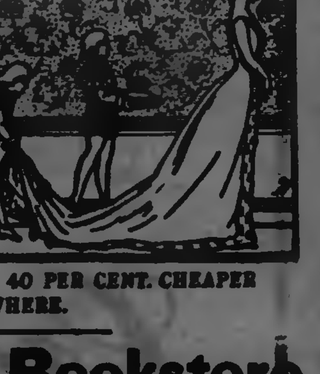
Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the color scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!



IN DAYS OF OLD
WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

Huxley and the Reporters.

ON his arrival in Baltimore, Professor Huxley was driven to the country seat of Mr. Garrett, who had offered him hospitality and had invited a large company to meet him in an afternoon party. There was but one intervening day between his arrival, tired out by a long journey in the interior, and his delivery of the address. He had hardly reached the residence of his host before the reporters discovered him and asked for the manuscript of his speech. "Manuscript?" he said. "I have none. I shall speak freely on a theme with which I am quite familiar." "Well, professor," said the interlocutor, "that is all right, but our instructions are to send the speech to the papers in New York, and if you cannot give us the copy we must take it down as well as we can and telegraph it, for the Associated Press is bound to print it the morning after it is spoken." This was appalling, for in view of the possible inaccuracy of the shorthand, and the possible condensation of the wirehand, the lecturer was afraid that technical and scientific terms might not be rightly reproduced. "You can have your choice, professor," said the urbane reporter, "to give us the copy or to let us do the best we can, for report the speech we shall." The professor yielded, and the next day he walked up and down his room at Mr. Garrett's dictating to a stenographer, in cold and irresponsive seclusion, the speech which he expected to make before a receptive and hospitable assembly.

I sat very near the orator as he delivered the address in the Academy of Music, and noticed that, although he kept looking at the pile of manuscript on the desk before him, he did not turn the pages over. The speech was appropriate and well received, but it had no glow, and the orator did not equal his reputation for charm and persuasiveness. When the applause was over I said to Mr. Huxley: "I noticed that you did not read your address; I am afraid the light was insufficient." "Oh," said he, "that was not the matter. I have been in distress. The reporters brought me, according to their promise, the copy of their notes. It was on thin translucent paper, and to make it legible they put clean white sheets between the leaves. That made such bulk that I removed the intermediate leaves, and when I stood up at the desk I found I could not read a sentence. So I have been in a dilemma—not daring to speak freely, and trying to recall what I dictated yesterday and allowed the reporters to send to New York." If he used an epithet before the word "reporters" I am sure he was justified, but I forget what it was.—Dr. D. C. Gilman in "Scribner's Magazine."

Man as an Incarnation.

PEOPLE of a materialistic frame of mind, to whom man is but a machine, says an editorial writer in the "Hospital," are apt to put on one side all that cannot be weighed and measured as not only inexplicable or unthinkable, but as quite beyond the range of reasonable discussion. Such people are advised to attend a meeting of the Society for Psychical Research for "a change of scene." What they will see is thus described:

"There they will find people, quite as convinced as they are of their own sanity, and quite as content as they can possibly be with the correctness of their own interpretation of things, asserting the most astounding propositions without turning a hair. To those who are so self-centered as to think that there is something cranky about all who do not see as they do, it is a wholesome awakening to find good, solid, comfortable, and respectable people believing in telepathy as a thing indisputable, and holding that man, as we see him engaged in his various more or less ignoble pursuits, in the city and elsewhere, is but the incarnation of one little bit of himself as he exists in an intangible and ethereal form. At the last meeting of the Psychical Research Society, Dr. Oliver Lodge, F.R.S., said that he did not hold that the whole of any one of us was incarnated in their terrestrial bodies; certainly not in childhood; more, but perhaps not so very much more, in adult life. What was manifest was only a definite portion of a much larger whole. What the rest was doing during the years spent here he did not know. Perhaps it was asleep; but probably, he said, it was not entirely asleep with men of genius, nor perhaps was it all completely inactive with people called mediums. Now to the modern materialist all this is absolute 'rot.' Yet Dr. Lodge is not exactly a man to pooh-pooh. Indeed, may not the immaterialists retort that this is a Christian country and that our very religion teaches us not to weigh and measure too exactly? Again, Roentgen, Tesla, and Marconi have of late been giving many shocks to old ideas. At any rate, this is clear, that we must not too rigidly put outside the bounds of sanity belief in the unthinkable. It is a queer world, and which half of it is sane appears still undecided."

Little Georgie was taken by his aunt to see the newcomer, aged one day. He was duly and profoundly impressed with the specimen, and asked where the little brother came from. "God sent it," answered the aunt, reverently. The answer made a deep impression on Little Georgie, for that afternoon he was seen out in the backyard gazing up into the deep blue sky and spreading his diminutive apron expectantly as he said: "Dear God, please throw me one down, too."—Troy "Press."

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leaby, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

"I solemnly swear to you, Daisy, I am not his bride!" she went on excitedly. "Some young girl who resembles me closely must have passed herself off for me. It is an infamous plot to gain possession of my fortune."

"Since the world began no young girl was ever called upon to face so bitter a trial. The shock—the torture of it would have killed anyone else. I have often wondered since that I did not go mad; but heaven is kind—I live in hopes that there is some brightness in store for me yet.

"He has written me that he is coming for me to claim me on the twenty-fifth. This is the fifteenth. If he does, remember my words, Daisy, I shall not be accountable for whatever may happen. There is such a thing as goading a person too far."

"Coming here? Do you say this man is coming here?" asked Daisy, and her voice sounded like nothing human.

"Yes! he is coming here!" repeated Lillian Ruthven, with the calm of despair; "and I shall settle the future with him once and for all."

"Promise me, for the love of heaven, that you will do nothing rash," said Daisy, looking up into Lillian's face with terrified eyes. "If you do it would kill me!"

"I thank you for taking so much interest in me," said Lillian, gratefully. "I have grown cynical, I am afraid; but it touches my heart strangely when any one expresses such true deep sorrow as you seem to evince for me. You are indeed my true friend, Daisy."

Her true friend; ah, had Lillian Ruthven but known the truth!

"No wonder I have grown cynical, Daisy," she said, with a dry hard sob. "That cruel affair has blighted my life in more ways than one. The bitterest blow of all was, it parted me forever from the only man I ever cared for, and what is life without the one we love. Think how desolate your future would be if you were to be parted from Aleck, whom you love so much; by looking at it in this way you will understand.

"Ah, here is your sister Olive coming."

Daisy was glad indeed to see her sister approaching. She felt that she must die if she listened to Lillian Ruthven another moment.

Every word she uttered struck like a death-knell into her heart. She knew why—heaven help her.

She could not endure to hear Olive and Lillian discuss that terrible topic. She rose hurriedly from the garden chair.

"I will leave you with Olive for a little while, Miss Ruthven," she said. "The perfume of the roses overpowers me."

She walked steadily enough away from them. When she reached the lime grove out of the sound of their voices, she gave full vent to her grief.

"I am driven at bay in one way or another," she moaned. "How can I let this villain claim poor Lillian Ruthven and blast her life; and yet, how can I tell the world why he should not?" she moaned, bitterly.

She had often wondered how a criminal could see an innocent man hang for a crime which he himself had committed—stand quietly by uttering no word; now she could understand the terrible position.

Ah! how cruelly God had punished her for losing the world for love's sake; even Aleck's love could not compensate her, for in love's cup lay the bitterest of dregs.

Twice before the volcano had nearly burst beneath her feet—the sword which was suspended by a single thread had nearly fallen on that guilty, golden head.

If she could have but made a confidante of Olive; but these two sisters had never agreed. Olive would turn from her in horror in a moment of that kind.

She longed with all her soul for Hetty. Ah, if Hetty would but come to her; but she could not reach there by the twenty-fifth, and that was the day on which Harold St. John had told Lillian Ruthven he was coming to claim her.

If by some strategem she could but save Lillian, and at the same time keep her own terrible secret intact; but she saw no hope—whichever way she turned the precipice yawned beneath her feet.

There is but one way, she told herself desperately, for the last time, and that is to end it all before the twenty-fifth.

There would be ten days still, of life, of pleasure, and Aleck's love.

She rose slowly from her knees, pushing back the heavy masses of long, golden hair from her face; every moment was precious—the ten days would pass soon enough.

As she hurried back to the gay throng, she did not see the tall, motionless figure standing among the dense shadows of the trees.

As she stepped out into the broad clearing, the moonbeams fell full upon her face. He started back with a suppressed imprecation.

"By all that is wonderful, if it isn't—Daisy!"

For a moment he stood irresolute; should he, Harold St. John, stride after her, face her before all that gay company and claim her?

She was by far more beautiful than ever—or was Lillian Ruthven, the heiress, fairer game?

"I will ponder the matter over," he muttered, laughing softly beneath his dark, curling mustache.

"More beautiful than ever," he repeated, gazing after the slender, girlish form; "and she could be mine if I so willed it. I was greatly in love with her pretty face and childish ways in those days. It was a terrible blow to me to find out she was not Lillian Ruthven, the heiress, but only Daisy Gordon, a farmer's daughter. If Daisy had had any money we might have had a tolerably happy life of it.

"I wonder, by the way, what she is doing off here, and in such grand company.

"I must find out!" And that is how the tragedy began.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Who is That Beautiful Woman?

Harold St. John's love for pretty Daisy had been little more than a passing fancy.

True, he had resented it bitterly in his own heart, when he had come to the farm and found she had gone—none knew whither.

He had sworn that he would find her, if he had to search the whole wide world for her, but as time passed his love cooled.

Another idea had occurred to his fertile brain. Why not make [illegible]

Not Getting Everything.

An English correspondent writes:—Apropos of the frequent announcements going the rounds of the newspaper press regarding the capture of machinery orders by American firms in markets which the British manufacturers had previously dominated (certain identical reports being frequently repeated "ad nauseam" in the same journals in different forms), it is refreshing to get a glimpse of the other side of the question, and to find that one, at least, of the representatives of our chief staple industry requires not the admonition to "wake up."

An old-established firm of English flour mill engineers have just secured the contract for the supply and erection of a large flour mill on the most modern system in North China. More than one firm of American makers were competing for the work, and, although they claimed to produce by their process better qualities and higher percentages of flour, the English firm in question was able to satisfy the buyers as to the superiority of their machinery and its ability to produce qualities and percentages equal, or superior to, the Americans.

This English house takes the contract at a price below any of the American houses, and has undertaken to ship the whole plant in ten weeks from date of acceptance of order. The firm in question is an Ipswich concern, which some months since shipped a similar complete flour mill to China, the order for which was also secured in competition with America.

About Britain's Food Supply.

To the discussion on the food supply of Great Britain in war time Mr. J. Holland Rose has lately made a contribution, which involves a curious point in the history of the Napoleonic war. Mr. Rose, it may be stated, is a competent historical critic, and the author of several works upon modern history. Recently he published a life of Napoleon, which has attracted a good deal of attention. In this work he examined at length Napoleon's commercial war with Britain, and in the current issue of The Monthly Review he places before the public in concise form some of the results of his investigations. The remarkable fact is set forth by Mr. Rose that Napoleon never attempted to starve England out, and that his famous continental system was directed to checking British exports to, but not to checking British imports from, the countries to which it was applied.

At that time Great Britain had a population of about 12 millions. In ordinary years the home harvest yielded grain enough for 49 weeks' supply of this population, and a quantity of wheat amounting to three weeks' supply, or about 5 per cent. of the total consumption, had to be imported. The Baltic countries, more particularly East Prussia and Russia, and New York were the sources from which Great Britain drew this 5 or 6 per cent. of her wheat supply. From 1800 to 1812 the harvests were bad, and the quantity of grain needed amounted to twenty weeks' supply, or about 40 per cent. of the total amount consumed. The chief grain route was from the Baltic through the North Sea, and French privateers to get at it had to slip through the Straits of Dover; the British navy always had a heavy preponderance, and after Trafalgar was the only navy on the sea.

In 1799 the fact that war with France—which was not a source of grain supply—had not affected the price of wheat caused some comment, and William Pitt drew from this the conclusion that war in general did not affect the price of food. Almost immediately afterwards the Armed Neutrality League of the Baltic powers was formed, and 1801 found Great Britain at war with the countries which constituted her European grain supply. By March the price of wheat was $4.75 a bushel! But Nelson won the battle of Copenhagen, and the Tsar Paul was murdered; the Armed Neutrality fell to pieces, peace was restored, trade was resumed—and in June wheat was down to $3.85 a bushel, and in December it was $2.25 a bushel.

In 1809 two things happened. The harvest was bad, and Napoleon had gained virtual control of the Prussian and Russian grainfields, the Baltic counties entering the continental blockade. The close of the year found wheat at 103 shillings a quarter, or about $3.10 a bushel. But in this and the following year an extraordinary turn was given to the situation. Napoleon allowed, and even encouraged, the export of wheat from France and Italy to England. In 1810 sixteen million bushels of wheat were shipped from that part of Europe to England. Yet the price of bread in England was thirty cents a four-pound loaf, and nearly half of the traders of England made compositions with their creditors.

In 1812 the harvests were bad all over Europe, so that the strange windfall from France and Italy was cut off, Napoleon finding it necessary to import wheat into France. Simultaneously war broke out with the United States, the other source of grain supply for England. Wheat rose to $4.50 a bushel, and the best Dantzig wheat fetched $5.45 a bushel. But at the end of 1812 Napoleon's Russian campaign collapsed; in 1813 the eastern Europe granary was open to English ships; there was at last a good harvest at home, and by August, 1813, the price was down to $3.35 a bushel. There had been a fearful social crisis, and the Luddite riots had shown signs of passing into a conflict between the industrial and agricultural portions of the population. The extraordinary price of wheat had greatly increased the area devoted to wheat-growing in England, and this probably furnished the margin which enabled the country to get through the lean years. On the high seas British warships seized neutral ships laden with grain, and forced them to go into British ports.

Why did Napoleon send wheat to his bitterest enemy, which at the moment was, for want of bread, on the brink of a civil war? His idea of crippling England's commerce was to prevent her from exporting, and to encourage her to import. He seems to have believed that the loss of the gold she would pay for the wheat would hurt her more than its incoming would benefit her. His definite, precise instructions to Eugene, Viceroy of Italy, to encourage the export of food to England and elsewhere are quoted by Mr. Rose. A more singular passage of history could scarcely be conceived—the arch-conqueror feeding the starving foe who confronted him!

For Farmers.

The fact that last year some crop did not bring good prices is often an indication that this year prices may be high, for the reason that such a crop is liable to be dropped [illegible] by [illegible] else. A successful [illegible] grower once stated that whenever he found his neighbors discarding a crop he immediately planted it for himself, as he expected a scarcity of the crop in market by reason of less land being devoted to it.

Honor for a Canadian.

Canadians generally will be interested in learning that Dr. J. Beattie Crozier, author of the famous work, "History of Intellectual Development," has been selected as one of the 300 representatives of the empire in the splendid ten-guinea volume of portraits and biographies which the Grosvenor Press are bringing out. The work consists of representative men of every class outside of the military and civil services, who will have a volume to themselves. Dr. Crozier will be one of the representatives of the department of philosophy. Also, of course, he will stand as one of the representatives of Canada, a distinction he has well earned, and on which I am sure his countrymen will warmly congratulate him.

An Outspoken Journal.

It is refreshing, and even entertaining, to turn occasionally to that ultra-Radical English journal, Reynolds' Newspaper, and see the use which is still made of that right of free speech which is sometimes supposed to have been menaced by the developments of late years. Reynolds' does not take much stock in the colonies of the empire, nor, for that matter, in the mother country either, and in an article dealing with the war the other day made the following amiable reference to the progressive colony of New Zealand, the advanced radicalism of which might have been expected to meet with sympathy in its columns:—"Amid all this scene of woe and desperation, one sinister figure emerges—the ogre of Capitalism. Seddon, the frozen meat 'patriot,' with the hostile tariff against British goods, and his bankrupt colony living on borrowed money, rages about the contracts for supplying the army. The foreign Jewish 'patriots'—who used to sing 'God Shave the Queen'—domiciled here, have secured most of those contracts, as they secured the astounding contracts for the supply of horses. And behind this section of old Jewry is that other section of Judaism with which Rhodes the Raider is connected. Fine patriots, indeed, making their millions out of the war, while the Government refuses to pay poor Tommy Atkins his back wages, leaving him to starve in the street, or to die in the workhouse."

Here, too, is Reynolds' pleasantly frank way of dealing with the Anglo-Japanese alliance:—"We are going the way of all nations given up, on the one hand, to the most sensual luxury, on the other to the most immoral and criminal seizure of their neighbors' territory. The latest sign of our feebleness, under a Government composed of rich men and land monopolists, whom the international Jewish capitalists have by the throat, is the treaty with Japan. Only a couple of months ago that vulgar self-advertiser Chamberlain was hurling insults at Germany—a country that had previously rejected his cringing appeal for an alliance—and boasting of our 'splendid isolation.' To-day our Government, composed of fools and knaves, recognizing the gravity of the position of affairs in South Africa, is obliged to beg little Japan, a semi-savage nation, with a veneer of western culture among its more prosperous classes, to enter into an alliance with decaying England. The humiliation of it! The danger of it!"

Presbyterian Lenten Service.

A regular Lenten service in a Presbyterian church is not heard of often, but Dr. Hunter of the King's Weigh House Church, London, has begun this innovation during the present season of Lent. In the course of a conversation with a representative of a London newspaper, Dr. Hunter expressed himself as strongly in favor of the observance of all the seasons of the "Christian year." "It belongs," he said, "to the whole of Christendom and not to any one section only. Nonconformists have lost much through their non-observance of these special seasons. For instance, Lent arose originally out of a deep necessity of the inner life, and, more even than men long ago, we require such a pause amid the rush of business and pleasure. It is well for us to have such a season, it is better still if we seek to profit by it. It is wise and good that so many in our day, and in so many of our churches, are returning to the old paths of meditation and prayer and are seeking to fill the best of the old forms and observances with a truer and better meaning and spirit."

Dr. Hunter has always been an advocate of the observance by Free Churchmen of the feasts and fasts of the church. When he began his ministry in York twenty-eight years ago he introduced the custom of a service on Good Friday, and in his church at Glasgow he had for two years daily prayer. At King's Weigh House Church on the Sunday evenings in Lent, Dr. Hunter is delivering a course of sermons on "Self-discipline," and he has announced a "class for young persons wishing to be prepared for the Communion of the Lord's Supper," which is presumably on the lines of a confirmation class in the Church of England. The service book in use at King's Weigh House is one compiled by Dr. Hunter, and used by him at Glasgow, and, while based mainly on liturgical lines, it provides for the exercise of extempore prayer.

To Make Colts Shy.

Nearly every colt, when first driven away from home, will shy and scare more or less at objects along the roadside. After he has been driven a few times the common practice is to strike him with the whip every time he does this. It is provoking to feed a horse hay three times a day and then see him scare at a little pile of hay in the road. The first thing that comes into the mind is to give him a cut with the whip.

Nothing worse than this could be done. The next time he will not only be afraid of the object, but of the whip also, and by a little [illegible] pile of hay or rock, or whatever startles, is connected with the whip, as it soon will be, the habit is fixed for life. You cannot lick horses into good habits, you can establish them very easily by [illegible]—[illegible]

Tragedies of the Arctic.

AN extraordinary coincidence has been developed by a recent Arctic tragedy brought about by the expedition of the Duke of the Abruzzi.

When this navigator went on his journey to the North Pole he took with him among others Lieutenant Querini, a Venetian gentleman of an old and noble family. His work over, the Duke returned, but the lieutenant was not with him, for he had lost his life through an accident in the Arctic regions.

Now, at the very time when this accident occurred a professor in the technical school in Trieste, while rummaging in the archives of that city, discovered a manuscript bearing the date 1601, and containing an account of a journey made by one Pietro Querini, in 1431, to the Arctic regions. Querini is not a common name, and a little investigation showed that Pietro Querini was a direct ancestor of the other Pietro Querini who lost his life in the Arctic seas a few months ago.

"Querini," says the old manuscript, "sailed from Candia for Flanders on board a vessel loaded with merchandise and precious stones. When he arrived in Flanders he sold his cargo and started for the Arctic regions. A storm forced him to abandon his ship and to take refuge with his crew in two barks. The wind then carried them to the coast of Norway, but on January 3, 1432, Querini was again shipwrecked near the Lofoden Islands in seventy degrees north latitude, and almost all his companions were drowned."

For some time it was supposed that he, too, had been drowned, but in January, 1433, he appeared in Venice with ten companions, the only survivors of his original crew of seventy-eight men. It seems that he succeeded in gaining the shore after the others had been drowned, and then slowly made his way home through Denmark and Germany.

"Although these two Pietro Querinis," says a French writer, "are separated from each other by five centuries, we find the same destiny at work in the case of each." And he continues, with a dash of playfulness: "Is it not possible that the adventurer of the fifteenth century, desiring to enjoy once more the exciting days of his youth, actually became incarnated as a hero of the twentieth century?"

A Feat of Memory.

DURING a debate in the House, between Gladstone and Disraeli, when the latter in the course of his remarks had occasion to quote from a recent speech made by his rival upon some platform in the country, a dramatic scene was enacted, and is described by Harry Furniss in his recent book, "Confessions of a Caricaturist."

Suddenly Mr. Gladstone started up and exclaimed: "I never said that in my life!"

Disraeli was silent, and putting his hands behind his back, gazed apparently in blank astonishment at the box in front of him. Several seconds went by, but he never moved. The members in the crowded House looked from one to the other, and many imagined that Disraeli was merely waiting for his opponent to apologize. But Mr. Gladstone, who had a habit, which he developed in later years, of chatting volubly to his neighbor during any interruption of this kind in which he was concerned, made no sign. A minute passed, but the sphinx did not move.

A minute and a quarter, but he was still motionless.

A minute and a half of this silence seemed as if it was an hour.

When the second minute was completed the excitement in the House began to grow intense. Disraeli seemed to be transfixed. Was he ill? Was the great man sulking? What could this strange silence portend?

Two minutes and a half!

Some members rose and approached him, but Disraeli raised his hands as if to deprecate their interference, and they stole back to their places, conscious that they were forbidden to interrupt. Then at last, when the minute-hand of the clock had passed three times round its course, the most remarkable silence which the House had ever experienced within living memory was broken as the Tory leader slowly began once more to speak.

"Mr. Chairman," he said, "and gentlemen," and then word for word he repeated the whole speech of Mr. Gladstone from which he had made his quotation, duly introducing the particular passage which the Liberal leader had denied. Then he paused and looked across at his rival. The challenge was not to be avoided, and Mr. Gladstone bowed—he would have raised his hat did he wear one in the House, which, in the phraseology of the ring, was equivalent to throwing up the sponge. Mr. Disraeli afterward informed a friend that, working backward, he had recalled the whole of Mr. Gladstone's speech to his mind. Beginning at the disputed quotation, he recovered the context which led up to it, and so, step by step, the entire oration. Then he was enabled to repeat it from the outset exactly as he had read it.

Here is a little gem clipped from a small boy's essay on parents:—"Parents are things which boys have to look after them. Most girls also have parents. Parents consist of pas and mas. Pas talk a good deal about what they are going to do, but mostly it's the mas that make you mind."—[illegible]

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our constitutional treatment in curing Cancer is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the Breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggravated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, its cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper, on receipt of two stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to the columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published.—Ed. Times.

—Go to Whiten when you want the best quality of photographs.

—During the summer months the police court will open at 9 o'clock.

—The steamer Rainbow made her first trip from Rice Lake on Saturday.

—Late despatches state that Michael Murphy, who was wounded in South Africa, is still dangerously ill.

—We have 50 good-sized second hand packing cases for sale cheap at The Times Bookstore.

—A citizen was fined $2 and costs on Saturday for permitting cows to run at large.

—The general meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held this afternoon at half past three, in the Y.M.C.A. building.

—The choir of George street church have announced a concert to take place on Friday, May 9th. A splendid programme is promised.

—The hull of the burned steamer Columbian, purchased last year by the Kennedy, Davis Co., Lindsay, from Dr. McCamus, Bobcaygeon, is to be transformed into an excursion barge.

—The statement which recently appeared in the Toronto papers that Matilda Smith, who was arrested for stealing a bicycle, was a native of Peterborough, is not correct. The woman does not belong to this place.

—Mr. G. M. Whiten, the up-to-date photographer, has had his splendid studio thoroughly overhauled and improved. Painters and paper hangers have been at work, and everything is now in first class order. Mr. Whiten's reputation for doing only first class work is known far and near.

—Over 200 members of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society attended Mass and received Holy Communion in a body yesterday morning, marching afterwards from the cathedral to the assembly hall on George street. At a subsequent meeting some thirty new members received the pledge.

—Dates for registration are Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 12th, 13th and 14th. There is an evening session on Tuesday. Every patriotic citizen, who desires to see Peterborough progress, should see that every young man favorable to Mr. Stratton is registered.

—Lindsay Post: The body of Fred Brown, the eleven year old son of Mr. Bert Brown, hotel keeper, Lindsay street, who was accidentally drowned on Monday, March 31st last, while playing with several small boys at the dam, near the locks, was found this morning at 8 o'clock floating near a crib of logs a little below the Wellington street bridge, by Jas. Hutton, an employee of the Kennedy & Davis Co. Word was immediately sent to Mr. Brown and Coroner Burrows, but as an inquest was unnecessary Undertaker Tangney took charge of the body. The funeral took place at 10 o'clock to the R.C. cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Brown's many friends will sympathize with them in their great bereavement.

Married in Rochester

The wedding took place in Rochester on Wednesday last of Miss Olive G. Hayward, daughter of the late Stewart Francis Goode Hayward of [illegible], to Dr. J. Walter Fitz-Gerald, of [illegible], N.Y. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. S. Lippitt, at St. Andrew's Episcopal church, Rochester. The bride and groom are well known to Peterborough people, all of whom will join in extending heartiest congratulations.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The Agonizing Pains of Rheumatism

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

Monday, May 12

The programme to be given in St. Paul's church on the 12th inst., by the Jarvis street Baptist choir, of Toronto, is without question a program of the good things in music. The choir is assisted by Miss McMurtry, soprano, Mr. A. L. E. Davies, bass, Mr. Victor Hutchison, tenor, Mr. G. E. McClellan, baritone, and Mr. Arthur Alvin, solo organist. As an evidence of the interest this choir has caused in church circles, it may be stated that they have had six or seven invitations to visit as far east as Perth. That Mr. Vogt and his choir has chosen to visit Peterborough is a matter for congratulation to the choir of St. Paul's and the public generally.

A WIDE REPUTATION

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons Now Widely Known

J. J. Turner & Son received from North Wales the following letter, which speaks for itself:

Dear Sirs,—A party of Englishmen are going out to Canada on a hunting and fishing trip. We want to know if you can supply with an outfit of tents, canoes, etc. Please send us your catalogue. We hope eventually to make a party of about thirty.

M. G. RAWSON, Harris.

DEEPENING THE CHANNEL

The Town to Provide a Quarter of the Total Cost

It is estimated that about $60,000 will be required to dredge and crib the river between the C.P.R. bridge and London street. Of this sum the Government will provide half, and the balance it is proposed to provide between the Cereal Company and the town. This means that the ratepayers will be asked for $15,000 or $20,000.

We are not quite sure as to the benefits to accrue to the town by the construction of a deeper waterway between the points named. It is not proposed to put in a swing at the C.P. R. bridge or at the Hunter street crossing, so that the channel will be of use only for scows and unmasted vessels.

The Times will have more to say on the subject when the scheme fully develops.

AN HONEST FRIEND

Cleared Away the Family Troubles

There is not one thing on earth that could enter a family and do as much honest good and bring as much happiness as in certain cases where coffee drinking is left off and Postum Food Coffee used in its place.

A family in Iowa Park, Texas furnishes a good illustration. The mother says, "I want to tell you what happened in our family when we left off coffee and took up Postum. About eight months ago we made the change. I had been, for quite a while, troubled with rheumatism in my right hip and shoulder, swimming of the head, and fluttering of the heart, so I thought I had heart trouble.

Sometimes in walking my head would swim so that I would be obliged to sit down. I had other disagreeable feelings I cannot describe but they will be readily understood by coffee drinkers if they will confess it.

My family were also more or less ill and were all coffee drinkers. Well we gave up the coffee and started in on Postum Food Coffee; husband, myself and four children. Even the two year old baby (who had been puny since having the grip) had her coffee along with the rest of the family. When we made the change to Postum she began to fatten and now is perfectly healthy and fat as a pig.

My boys, ten and twelve years of age, are so stout and muscular that people remark about them and ask what makes them so. I do not have any more trouble with rheumatism or with my head, neither does my husband, who was troubled much in the same way. We are all in better health every way than we have been before in years and we are always glad of an opportunity to recommend Postum. I hope what I have said will lead others to make the change." A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Latest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $10 will be paid for any case they will not permanently cure.

WELLAND CANAL

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for substructure of Bridge," will be delivered at this office until 16 o'clock on Monday 5th May, 1902, for the substructure of the new Bridge at Marlatt's Crossing of the old Welland Canal.

Plans and specifications of the work may be seen on and after Wednesday, 23rd, April, 1902, at the office of the Superintending Engineer of the Welland Canal, St. Catharines where forms of tender may be obtained.

In the case of firms there must be attached to the tender the actual signature of the full name, of the nature of the occupation, and residence of each member of the same, and further, an accepted bank check for the sum of $300 must accompany the tender. This accepted check must be endorsed over to the Honorable the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into contract for the work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The accepted check thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

SITUATION OF RUSSIA GROWING DESPERATE

The Army is Said to be Thoroughly Permeated With Sedition

THE CZAR'S PLAN FOR A CONSTITUTION

Which May Relieve the Pressure and Prevent a Revolution—A Change or Rebellion Must Come

Special to The Times.

St. Petersburg, May 5.—The outlook throughout Russia is just now exceedingly ominous. Rebellion has broken out in various parts of the great Empire, and sedition is everywhere rife. Therefore, there is nothing improbable in the report that the Emperor Nicholas has decided to endow Russia with a Constitution. His experience of the weight of government [illegible] such [illegible] him to relieve himself of some of the [illegible] to any [illegible] of its dangers.

The [illegible] of the peasantry has [illegible] little [illegible] the condition of the individual moujik, who was thrown upon the world without having [illegible] or [illegible] habits of self-reliance. Congregating as they have for several years past in the new centres of industry, the Russian working classes have received the international ideas and socialist organizations, and to some extent of the revolutionary political party in Russia itself which has evolved from the old Nihilist conspiracy against any form of government.

The assassination of Alexander II. took place at the moment of transition, when the revolutionary political party was in process of formation, its leaders looking on the Nihilist methods of dagger and dynamite as futile and reactionary. Their idea was to revolutionize Russia by Constitutional means, and with that purpose they formed centres of propaganda in several of the Continental cities of Europe and in England.

From these they sent out quantities of educational literature in the Russian and Polish languages, strongly tinged with socialism, which found its way not only among the working classes but also among the students in the colleges and universities. It is this which explains the cooperation between students and workmen which has been one of the remarkable features of the recent disturbances in Russia and Russian Poland.

The army has also been evidently more or less permeated with the revolutionary ideas. There would be nothing singular in this, for long before the materials for socialist agitation existed in Russia, the Nihilist party was working actively in the ranks of the officers and soldiers. The Russo-Turkish War was a period of particular activity, the Naredaia Volia and other nihilistic publications being extensively distributed in the army in Bulgaria and Roumania.

The affect on the mind of the Emperor Alexander II. was seen immediately after that war, when he called the Armenian General, Loris Melikoff, from the Caucasus to St. Petersburg, and installed him as Minister of the Interior. Between them they elaborated a political Constitution, which, when it became known, was as satisfactory to the revolutionary political party as it was the reverse to the old Conservative Russians. The assassination of the Emperor, which took place after he had withdrawn his assent to the promulgation of the newly elaborated Constitution, has been variously ascribed to the Nihilists and to the Conservative party which was said to have used the former instruments. However that may be his death was always looked on as a misfortune for Russia by the revolutionary political party, who had hoped to profit by the liberalizing tendencies of the Emperor, and work out their ends by Constitutional methods.

The reign of the Emperor Alexander III. was always described by the leaders of that party as a pall that had fallen over Russia and those who had not gone into exile on his accession to the throne, kept their own counsel and bided their time at home. The well-known humanitarian views of the present Emperor raised great hopes at first among the party of progress in Russia, but the influence of the Procurator of the Holy Synod, Mr. Pobiedonostzeff, seemed to neutralize the benevolent intentions of the departments under his control, some having been successful. It is little to be wondered at, therefore, if the social disturbances, defection among the troops and the murders of officers have not contributed in great part of the reported intention of the Emperor Nicholas to give Russia some form of Constitutional government.

It is very unlikely that it will be a full fledged Constitution such as that of Gen Loris Melikoff is believed to have been. It is more probable that the first stage will be something in the form of a deliberative assembly of notables and leading men from all over the empire, to decide on what shape the new National Assembly should take, and what would be its functions.

PRO-BOER RESOLUTION

Requests the President to Declare Horses and Mules Contraband of War

Washington, May 6.—Mr. Burk (Rep. Pa.) to-day introduced a joint resolution requesting the President to issue a proclamation declaring the shipment of horses and mules contraband of war, and that neither of the belligerents now at war in South Africa, Great Britain and the South African republics, their officers or agents, or any other persons within the jurisdiction of the United States shall use the ports or waters of the United States for the shipment of horses or mules or other military supplies.

He also introduced a joint resolution extending, in the name of the people of the United States, a cordial welcome to Madame J. P. Kruger.

The Hollywood Paint Company, Hamilton

A visit to their factory reveals the fact that they are now actively engaged manufacturing and are securing their share of spring business. Their factory is equipped with the very latest improved machinery driven by electric power, so that their methods of producing are most economical and places them on a par with their competitors. Their principal product is Hollywood Mixed Paint in semi paste form, in connection with which their manager, Mr. Norman S. Jones, says: "The painters throughout Canada have so often been induced to believe that the various brands of liquid paints submitted to their use were pure and made with the very best linseed oil, only to find out later, that they had been grossly deceived, we have decided to put on the market a semi paste product of the very best lead and zinc so that the buyer could purchase his own linseed oil and be satisfied that he is getting the very best. In this way the house-holder and practical painter knows beyond any question or doubt that he is getting the very best material for his money." Their proposition to the consumer says, "one gallon of Pure Raw Linseed Oil added to one gallon of Hollywood Mixed Paint will give two gallons of 'Pure Mixed Paint,'" a proposition never before offered to the buying public. With their paints, the Hollywood Paint Company give a five-year guarantee of durability and satisfaction, so that their offer to painters and consumers is certainly an attractive one. The trade have asked the company to put their paint up in a form ready for the brush and they are also putting it up in this way so that the small consumer may not have the trouble of mixing. The company are also making a floor paint which has been very favorably received by the trade, and will dry hard enough to walk on and have a high gloss in seven hours. In addition to mixed paints they will also manufacture colors in oil, dryers, varnishes and everything that is used in the decoration of a house, except wall paper, glass and brushes.

Mr. Jones reports that he has secured from one of the principal producers of turpentine in the Southern States, the Canadian Agency for Turpentine Spirits, besides which their company has been appointed the exclusive Agent for a number of American products greatly in demand by paint consumers.

Items of Interest

New York, May 6.—Alfonzo XIII's coronation is booked to take place on Saturday, and, of course, the United States will be represented at the affair. It is known to the world that the relations between this country and the little King's are especially cordial at the present time. In fact, no since the close of the American war of independence, in which, for a time, Spain was a quasi-ally of the United States, has there been such a complete absence of elements of disturbance between the two nations as there is at this moment. First, it was the navigation of the Mississippi, which was controlled at the New Orleans end by Spain, which caused the friction. Then, after the purchase of Louisiana, the two countries were in trouble about the Florida boundary, and when Florida was ceded in 1821 Cuba came up to menace the peace of the two nations. But ever since Spain left the continent in 1898 there has been nothing to cause the slightest friction between us and the former occupant of that island. The United States' well wishes for Spain on the occasion of the coronation of its new monarch will be especially sincere.

New York, May 6.—Justice Giegrich has issued a warrant charging Arthur L. Meyer, alleged to be a partner in the Webb-Meyer syndicate, whose operations on the stock market have boosted certain securities, with fraud in connection with the market transactions. It is alleged that 60 banks scattered throughout the country are out more than a million dollars, while the total loss at stake was from five to ten millions.

One of the charges is the "wash" sale of stocks or a bogus sale from one member of the company to another. No money passes in a "wash" sale, nor are the securities taken out of the company. Dr. Seward Webb is not implicated in any way with Meyers in the transactions complained of by the affidavits though he is reported to be a member of the partnership. Maurice L. Muriemann, controller of the Hackensack Meadows Company, in a statement, regarding the syndicate properties, says that among others the North American Lumber and Pulp Company has acquired 200,000 acres of lumber and pulp wood lands in Nova Scotia, and has 60,000 more under contract. The Dominion Security Company, another alleged Meyer-Webb concern, is, Mr. Muriemann, says, capitalized at $3,000,000 and has acquired bonds and sixty per cent, of the outstanding capital stock of the North American Lumber and Pulp Company. The original capital of the corporation was used to acquire the franchises and securities of the Cape Breton Railway Company of Nova Scotia, which the company is now building. The Dominion Company has also acquired fifty miles of harbor front property for the terminal purposes at Louisburg, Cape Breton. Last September it bought and sold the South Shore Railway of Canada, acquired an interest in the new Montreal Bridge, and for that purpose secured one hundred acres of land opposite Montreal, to be used for the terminals; it has an interest in the Canada Atlantic Railway sale to the Rutland Railway Company, and a controlling interest in the stock, together with $300,000 of the bonds of the North American Lumber and Pulp Company.

GIVE THE BOY LONG TROUSERS

If his legs deserve them. But spare the mother's feelings.—Give him long trousers that won't make him "A LITTLE OLD MAN." Trousers cut to grace the most ungainly age.

Dress him RIGHT and don't say, "Be careful of your clothes." If he is a lively boy, he will forget your instructions; if he is inclined to be quiet, or if he is not well, he will be in constant fear of soiling or tearing his suit, and he will lose the benefit of the healthful exercise.

DRESS HIM RIGHT AND GIVE HIM HIS FREEDOM

If you want to know how to dress him right, bring him to GOUGH'S and we will show you suits that will not show the dirt; suits that are stronger in the seams than the boy; suits that will wear "like iron" and every one of them handsome and stylish. BRITAIN'S NEW WAR CAR A FORT ON WHEELS

An Armoured Motor Car to Fight on Land

EQUIPPED WITH RAPID GUNS.

May Revolutionize the Present Mode of Fighting—Ships on Land May Yet Become as Formidable as Ships on Sea

Special to The Times.

London, May 6.—The latest departure in automobilism, according to the London Engineer, as will be seen, consists of the combination of offensive weapons with an armored motor wagon, the whole forming a novel appliance, the scope and utility of which may prove of farreaching character. The machine is the invention of Mr. R. F. Simms, and has been built to the order of Vickers, Sons & Maxim, Limited. Its principal object is to act on the defensive on the coast of Great Britain, but if successful in this departure there are many other obvious uses on warfare to which the car can be applied. For instance, it is suggested that for quelling street mobs it might be adopted. It weighs complete about five and one-half tons, and the six millimetre Vickers steel armor completely encircles the car frame. The wheels are of wood, with iron tires. The armor is of crinoline shape, flattened longitudinally, and having a ram fore and aft. The extreme length is 28 feet, the beam 8 feet and the height 10 feet. One of the chief difficulties which was encountered in the armor plating was the method of securing it to the frame of the car, as it was found that the constant vibration due to running over ordinary road surfaces loosened the rivetings. This has, however, been remedied by attaching the armour to the frame by means of semi-elliptical springs onto which it is hung by means of brackets. The four semi-elliptical springs are mounted on steel trestles, suitably braced and stayed to the main frame. By this it will be seen that armor is not rigidly fixed to the frame. It is claimed, moreover, that this system of mounting increases the impenetrability of the armor by allowing a certain amount of lateral movement when hit by projectiles. This movement is limited by distance links. The armament on the car includes two automatic quick-firing Maxim guns and a pom-pom, with their turret mountings. The ammunition is carried in boxed-in stores situated at the extreme ends of the armor.

The frame of the vehicle is rectangular, and is built up of heavy steel channels of U section, tied, stayed and braced so as to be perfectly rigid. The motive power is supplied by a 16 horse-power four-cylinder hydro-carbon engine of the Daimler type, with Simms-Bosch magneto-electric ignition. The transmission of power is effected by friction cone direct through a short length of shafting to the speed-changing gear. The speed gear has four definite speeds—one and one-half, three, five and nine miles per hour. With the accelerator, however, the speed of the car may be increased by 25 per cent. By means of the speed gear which is controlled by two levers, each commanding two speeds, the friction clutch is automatically released before the change of speed is effected. The third lever controls the forward or backward movement, the gear being so arranged as to give all four speeds, either forward or backward, which is attained by means of a shifting double-bevel pinion. The transmission of power to the driving wheels is by means of a countershaft, on which is fitted the differential gear; at either end of this shaft is fixed a sprocket wheel, and these sprocket wheels drive by means of chains the road wheels.

Four persons are said to be sufficient to man the machine, but there is ample platform area for a further number of riflemen.

NATURE SMILING WHILE THOUSANDS SUFFER

Paine's Celery Compound

THE GREAT SPRING HEALTH GIVER MAKES SICK PEOPLE WELL.

When spring comes with its gentle showers, its balmy airs, its bright sunshine and bursting buds, it too often brings but famous scenes of suffering and physical decay.

The seeds of disease which were imperceptible germinating during the winter months, have developed and planted in the system dangers that now demand our instant care and attention. Neglect and only deepen existing perils and lead to death.

Before the advent of spring, you must have noted symptoms, perhaps of rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, kidney disease, liver complaint, functional irregularities or nervous disorders.

If you have experienced pains in the joints, muscles or limbs, lacerating pains in face or head, stomach derangements, bile, dislike of food, pains in back and loins, swelling of hands or feet, frequent urinating, with highly colored urine, loss of energy, torpid liver, vomiting or impure blood—any of these are warnings of disease.

Take warning sufferers! Delay not another day; hesitation and indecision on your part may forever seal your fate. If you have already made efforts to banish your troubles by the use of other medicines and the treatment of physicians, and these have failed, we counsel you to put your full trust in that never-failing disease banisher, Paine's Celery Compound. Its use for a week or two will convince you that you have truly commenced a new existence; it will assuredly give you the health you need for the enjoyment of true life. Mr. A. Daignault, St., Hyacinthe, Que., writes as follows:

"I desire to say, that had it not been for Paine's Celery Compound I would not be living to-day. Five years ago I was taken sick, and suffered from dyspepsia and [illegible]. For three years I was unable to work, and would loose consciousness several times a day. I was tired of life, and could realize that death was my only deliverer from suffering. At that time one of my friends urged me to use Paine's Celery Compound, as all other medicines had failed. After the use of six bottles I got as well as ever before in my life, and can do a full day's work. My friends say my cure is a miracle, as I [illegible] condemned to die. I thank you for your wonderful life-giving medicine."

BRITISH EDISON COMPANY

Formed to Extract Iron Ore by Inventor's Patent

London, May 6.—Herman Dick of Chicago will sail for New York on May 7 after an eight months' sojourn here, where here presented Thomas Edison in forming a company to utilize Mr. Edison's patent for extracting iron ore and profitably working the vast deposits on the west coast of Norway.

The company has a capital of £2,000,000. Its stockholders include all the principal British ironmasters.

Mr. Dick says the application of Mr. Edison's discovery will be one of the greatest boons possible to Great Britain. Eighty million tons of crude ore are already available for quarrying.

This will render Great Britain practically independent of American supplies, and will not affect the United States, which is unable to supply its own requirements in this direction.

BOOKS TO CLOSE ON MAY 7

A Bonus of One Share of Common Stock Given with Every Two Shares of Preferred Stock

The subscription books of the Atlantic Pulp and Paper Company, Limited, will close at 4 p.m. to-morrow. The brokers, Messrs Sutherland & Cameron, Ottawa, have been offering $250,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative preference stock for sale at par. From the prospectus which has been published in these columns, it will be seen that they are offering as a bonus to preferred stockholders one share of fully paid common stock with every two shares of preferred stock subscribed and paid for. Further information and application forms may be had from the National Trust Company, Limited, Toronto, Montreal, or Winnipeg, or from Sutherland & Cameron, Ottawa, Canada.

A LUXURY FOR DYSPEPTICS

Malt Breakfast Food

A BANISHER OF INDIGESTION

Malt Breakfast Food possesses special and very important advantages over all other grain foods. While it has become the chosen breakfast dish of hale and strong people, keeping digestion perfect and the brain clear, it has become the popular food with thousands who suffer from dyspepsia and indigestion. Dyspeptic subjects find Malt Breakfast Food is an infallible cure for their stomach troubles. Weak stomachs relish the popular health food; it is easily digested; soothes the weary and inflamed organs, and furnishes true nourishment for the building of flesh, bone and muscle. Malt Breakfast Food is a true banisher of all digestive troubles. Dyspeptics are urged to give Malt Breakfast Food a month's trial; it will give them happy and lasting results. All grocers sell Malt Breakfast Food.

A 30 YEARS' FRANCHISE FOR THE ST. RAILWAY CO.

Approved of Last Night by the Town Council in Regular Session

13TH REGT. OF HAMILTON MAY COME HERE 24TH

But They Ask a Grant of $500 and Permission to Give a Band Concert to Meet Their Expenses

The Town Council met in regular session last night, when there were present Mayor T. H. G. Denne and Aldermen Edgecumbe, Shortly, H. Rush, McGregor, Turner, Morrison, [illegible], Bethune, Corkery and Best.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

HISTORICAL CONVENTION.

T. A. S. Hay, Secretary Peterborough Historical Society, wrote that the Provincial Historical Society of Ontario have arranged to hold their annual meeting in Peterborough on the 5th, 6th and 7th June, and the local society, being desirous of showing them some attention, for the credit of the town, would like co-operation of the Mayor and Council. The business meeting will be held on the 5th, and it is the intention to take carriages and boats to convey the delegates to different points of interest in the city. We therefore respectfully request that you will make a grant of $50 to assist in entertaining our visitors, who will come from all parts of the province, and also allow us the use of the Council Chamber to hold meetings in. This was referred to the Finance Committee.

FOR THE 24TH.

Messrs. R. M. Dennistoun, R. Fair, Peter Campbell and W. H. Meldrum, on behalf of a delegation from the citizens of Peterborough, and the 57th Regiment, addressed the Council, and asked for a grant of $500 toward entertaining the 13th Regiment and band, of Hamilton, on their proposed visit to Peterborough on the 24th May next. The colonel of the 13th Regiment had some time ago intimated a desire on the part of his officers and men to visit here, but had originally stipulated for a grant of at least $900 to defray expenses. This of course was out of the question. Latterly, however, Col. E. B. Edwards had received word that the regiment now saw its way clear to come, on an appropriation of $500, and permission for the famous 13th band to give a concert. The deputation urged an acceptance of their terms, and particularly as fully the amount granted would be expended in town by the regiment. Mr. Meldrum thought a grand military review on the coming 24th, the first anniversary since our late beloved Queen's death, would be a very fitting way in which to celebrate the occasion. He did not think any ratepayer would object to paying his or her share toward making this event one to be long remembered. Mr. Peter Campbell remarked that a balance of $125 remained on hand from the appropriation of last year's 1st July celebration which would help to make up the $500 asked for.

This matter was referred to the Finance committee with power to act. Their decision will be handed to Mr. Fair on Wednesday morning, when the colonel of the 13th regiment will be at once communicated with.

Mr. Fair estimates that such an attraction as this will mean a saving of several thousand dollars to the town by keeping its citizens home on the coming holiday in question. The 57th Regiment and officers are perfectly willing to heartily co-operate in the day's proceedings.

FINANCE REPORT.

Ald. Rush submitted the following:

Gentlemen:—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the payment of the expenses of the Chairman of this Committee and Mr. Crane to Montreal to deliver the Waterworks Debentures to the purchasers be confirmed.

2. That, after deducting the expenses incurred in the measuring stone obtained by the Dixon Company in 1899, the Company be paid the balance of their accounts.

3. That a grant of $50.00 be made to the Salvation Army Band.

4. That a grant of $450 be made to the 57th Regiment Band on the usual conditions and also on the condition that the new instruments, as well as the old ones, be the property of the Town and that the Chairman of the Property Committee procure a list of all the Band instruments for insurance purposes.

5. That a grant of $100 be made to the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society on condition that the said Society care for Victoria and Central Parks during the season.

6. That the payment of an account for $34.73 of the late G. H. Noble be confirmed.

7. That the Treasurer be authorized to pay electric light and gas accounts for lighting the Town Building, fire hall, etc. when they are certified by James English.

LEGAL COM. REPORT.

Ald. Edgecumbe submitted the following:

Gentlemen,—Your Legal Committee beg leave to report as follows:

1. That the Town Solicitor was instructed to take such steps by disclaimer of any interest of the Town in Mercer Avenue or otherwise as he might consider advisable in the suit of Lynch v Mercer in view of the facts reported by him, in his letter of April 5th, 1902.

2. The letter from Messrs. Edmison and Dixon on behalf of Mr. W. H. Roberts in regard to obstructions on Bethune street between Murray and McDonnell streets, was referred to the Town Solicitor to report and to protect the Town's interests in the mean time.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read;

PROPERTY COM. REPORT.

Ald. Batten submitted the following:

Gentlemen,—Your Property Committee beg leave to report as follows:

We recommend that a new iron roof be put on the stable at the fire hall, and that the chairman be authorized to purchase ice for the drinking fountain.

The report was adopted as read;

RESOLUTION OF THANKS.

Moved by Ald. Morrison, seconded by Ald. J. J. Turner,—That the thanks of this council be given to the Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Minister of Public Works, for the very courteous manner in which he received the deputation in regard to the dredging of the Otonabee River, and the business like way in which he discussed the matter with them, and the prompt manner in which he has taken it up,—Carried.

STREET RAILWAY FRANCHISE.

The Council went into Committee of the whole on the proposed agreement between the Peterborough Radial Railway Company and the Town. Amongst other Amendments the following important ones were added:

On street within the area bounded by Wolfe street in the south, Bethune street in the west, McDonald street in the north, and the river to the east, the company shall remove the snow from the streets from curb to curb so that the level of the surface between the rails shall in no case be more than sixteen inches where the company has a single track, or one foot where it has a double track, below the level of the snow on the remainder of the said streets, and the snow left on the said streets shall be evenly spread over the same.

The Company shall keep in repairs all street crossings between its rails of a similar character to those adopted by the council, the corporation providing material for same at edge of track.

Unchecked baggage going out of town to be carried free. Baggage checked to be charged for at the rate of ten cents per 100 lbs., and under, and five cents for each additional 50 lbs.

The agreement being amended to the satisfaction of the committee and Wm. Bain, the company's representative, council resumed.

Ald. Shortly reported that the Committee of the whole recommended that a 30 year's franchise be granted the Peterborough Radial Railway Company upon the terms set out in annexed draft agreement, and that a by-law be prepared for that purpose after the proper notices have been given and published, provided the same is approved of by the Railway Committee of the Executive Council for Ontario in case of appeal to them by any person claiming to be prejudicially affected, and providing such agreement is properly executed by the Peterborough Radial Company. And they further recommend that such notices be given and published on deposit of cost of publication by the said company.

The report was adopted as read, and Council adjourned to meet in Committee of the Whole to-night.

True Economy in Well Regulated Homes

In well regulated homes in city and country there are many avenues open for the practice of economy, but none so simple and satisfactory as the use of the Diamond Dyes in renewing for wear old and faded dresses, skirts, blouses, capes, jackets, ribbons, shawls, yarns and feathers. The husband's or boy's suit now off color and apparently worthless, can be dyed a rich and fast black, navy blue or dark seal brown, making practically new and stylish garments.

The Diamond Dyes are the easiest to use; a child can successfully dye with them. No failures or disappointments when the very simple directions are followed.

Thousands of ladies are now making up pretty Mats and Rugs from the Diamond Dye Mat and Rug Patterns. These patterns are favorites all over Canada. Sheets of designs showing the various sizes may be obtained from The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, 200 Mountain st., Montreal, P.Q. Send your address.

Must Keep Before the Public

There are certain facts about advertising which experienced business men keep in mind. Among a number which appear in an advertising periodical is this: "To succeed, one must keep himself before the public. When a man ceases to work his deterioration [illegible]; when a business man ceases to advertise his sales [illegible] steadily." Everybody [illegible] [illegible].

TOBACCO, LIQUOR AND DRUGS

Dr. McTaggart's Tobacco remedy removes all desire for the weed in a few weeks. A vegetable medicine, and only requires touching the tongue with it occasionally. Price $2.

Simply marvellous are the results from taking his remedy for the liquor, morphine and other drug habits. Is a safe and inexpensive home treatment; no hypodermic injections; no publicity; no loss of time from business, and a certainty of cure.

THE MEAT QUESTION.

Just now the press all over the continent are discussing the recent rise in the price of meat. Some United States newspapers are now clamoring not only for the import duty on cattle to be taken off, which is the right and righteous remedy for the evil, but for an export duty to be put on cattle and meat stuffs. The constitution of the United States expressly provides that no export duties shall be imposed, but what does that matter, urge the complainants, "let's change the constitution." Some Canadian writers go further and would pass a law prohibiting the export of cattle, so long as the retail price was forced up by an alleged shortage. There are immense herds on the ranges in the Northwest, and hundreds of thousands of fine cattle are shipped out of this country to England, and yet there is talk of a meat famine in Canada. Such is the plaint, and, if the supply is short, as the butchers allege when they put up prices twenty or twenty-five per cent, why should the home market be neglected, and the meat shipped out of the country? Why, it is pathetically urged, should the poor people of this country be denied necessary food, or have to pay famine prices for it, while the London hotels and restaurants are furnishing prime Canadian beef to portly foreigners? The plea is not sentimentally attractive from one point of view, but it "won't hold water" economically. Even sentimentally, it is one-sided, for while depriving the portly foreigner from another source, anyhow, we should so force up prices in England that our much-loved poor brother Briton would have a fine chance to starve. But the person who would be directly hit would be the Canadian farmer and rancher. The farmer has been the country's great burden bearer. He has been patient and docile in enduring import taxes whose incidence upon him is indirect and often remote. But such a direct hit at his means of living as this he certainly would not stand. Such a prohibition, moreover, would dislocate all our business with Britain, and when we wanted to come into the British market again we should find that we were not wanted. Most of the cattle raisers have nothing to do with the combine at all and the innocent would be punished instead of the guilty. The proposition is, indeed, preposterous from all points of view.

Recognised Their Old Friend.

THE love which English people, especially British soldiers, feel for Florence Nightingale has been shown at many times and in many places. A new and striking instance of it was recently given by the "Sunday Magazine."

The late Sir John Steell, sculptor to Queen Victoria, was modelling a bust of Miss Nightingale, when an officer of one of the Highland regiments which had suffered so cruelly in the Crimea heard that the bust had just been completed, and went to Sir John's studio. Many of the men in his company had passed through the hospital at Scutari, and he obtained permission from the sculptor to bring some of them to see it. Accordingly a squad of men one day marched into the big studio and stood in line.

They had no idea why they had been marched in to so strange a place. Without a word of warning the bust was uncovered, and then, as by one impulse, the men broke rank, and with cries of "Miss Nightingale! Miss Nightingale!" surrounding the model, and with hats off cheered the figure of their devoted nurse until the roof rang.

So spontaneous and hearty and so inspiring was the whole scene that in after days Sir John Steell declared it to be the greatest compliment of his life.

Proof Positive.

A convict at a French penal settlement, who was undergoing a life sentence, desired to marry a female convict, such marriages being of common occurrence. The governor of the colony offered no objection, but the priest proceeded to cross-examine the groom.

"Did you not marry in France?" he asked.

"Yes."

"And your wife is dead?"

"She is."

"Have you any document to show that she is dead?"

"No."

"Then I must decline to marry you. You must produce some proof that your wife is dead."

There was a pause, and the bride prospective looked at the would-be groom.

Finally he said: "I can prove that my former wife is dead."

"How will you do so?"

"I was sent here for killing her."

The bride accepted him notwithstanding.—Exchange.

"Darling," said Mrs. Kallyps, "you must quit associating with that Parker child. Don't ever permit yourself to be seen with her anywhere in her company again."

"Why, mamma," the child asked, "what is the matter?"

"A dreadful thing has happened. Her father called here this afternoon and [illegible]

Turning Smoke Into Gold.

QUEEN ELIZABETH of England was not a thoroughgoing spinster, for she had so little prejudice against the practice of smoking that she permitted Sir Walter Raleigh his pipe in the royal presence. She was sufficiently a woman, however, to twit him openly on his devotion to the weed, and it was on one of these occasions—or so the author of "The Soverane Herbe" shrewdly surmises—that the knight replied:

"I can assure Your Majesty that I have so well experienced the nature of it that I can tell even the weight of the smoke in any quantity I consume."

"I doubt it much, Sir Walter," replied Elizabeth, holding it was impossible to weigh smoke, and mayhap scenting a joke, "and I will wager you twenty gold angels that you do not solve my doubt."

Gallantly accepting the wager, Raleigh filled his pipe with a weighed quantity of tobacco, smoked it out, and then, weighing the resultant ashes, announced the weight he had smoked away.

"Your Majesty cannot deny that the difference has disappeared in smoke."

"Truly, I cannot," answered the Queen. Ordering the wager to be paid, she turned to the courtiers around her and said: "Many alchemists have I heard of who turned gold into smoke, but Raleigh is the first who has turned smoke into gold."

There Was One.

"Is there a man in all this audience," fiercely exclaimed a female lecturer, "that has ever done anything to lighten the burden resting on his wife's shoulders? What do you know of woman's work?"

"Is there a man here," she continued, folding her arms and looking over her audience with superb scorn, "that has ever got up in the morning, leaving his tired, worn-out wife to enjoy her slumbers, gone quietly downstairs, made the fire, cooked his own breakfast, sewed the missing buttons on the children's clothes, darned the family stockings, scoured the pots and kettles, cleaned and filled the lamps, swept the kitchen, and done all this, if necessary, day after day, uncomplainingly? If there is such a man in this audience, let him rise up! I should like to see him!"

And in the rear of the hall a mild-looking man in spectacles, in obedience to the summons, timidly arose. He was the husband of the eloquent speaker. It was the first time he had ever had a chance to assert himself.

For the Farmer.

Sheep are the only animals which do not really exhaust the land on which they feed. They distribute manure evenly on the field and tramp it into the soil, feeding upon plants that other animals will not consume.

It is claimed that if tobacco stems or refuse be placed around the base of a peach tree the borer will not attack the tree. The mode of applying is to put the stems around the trees, on the ground, and fasten them to the trees higher up. It is worthy of a trial.

Another remedy suggested for the curculio is to spray just before the trees blossom with a mixture of a pound of Paris green in sixty gallons of water. Two weeks later use kerosene emulsion, giving a third spraying about June 1st. This method, it is said, will destroy the curculio, leaf lice and other enemies of the plum.

Heat, moisture and occasionally cooling are the factors at work in the production of chickens. Heat is of course supplied by the hen, who, also, if she be a good setter, will see to the cooling, though as a rule it is better not to trust entirely to her for this. But moisture is beyond her control if the place of setting is allotted to her. In some districts there is no trouble whatever on this score, as the atmosphere is charged with sufficient for the needs of the eggs. But in others very great care has to be taken or dryness of the atmosphere was be fatal to successful hatching. Seasons also differ.

How to Spray.

The agricultural station of the University of Illinois has issued bulletin No. 68, prepared by Professor Arnold V. Stubenrauch, on "Important Details of Spraying." In the chapter describing the proper method of spraying, we read:

Having the mixtures properly prepared and thoroughly agitated cannot alone insure success. Unless the spray is properly applied, all preliminary effort is lost. To spray properly is more difficult than is usually supposed, especially where materials in suspension are used. It will not do to go out with a determination "to do a thorough job and give them an everlasting soaking" until everything is dripping. If this is done there will be less material on the trees in the end than if less were applied in a proper manner. This to some may seem paradoxical. Nevertheless, it is a fact, and an attempt will be made to show just how it takes place. In order to do this it will be necessary to consider the globules of water as they come from the nozzle, carrying with them suspended particles of Paris green or Bordeaux mixture, or both, as the case may be. The settling which takes place. The only way this can be avoided is the globules of water after they become fixed to the fruit and leaves. Hence the larger the globule, the more settling will take place, and consequently the more material will be deposited at one place in the spray tank goes on with. ed is to have the globules very small and fine as they leave the nozzle, and to keep them intact as separate, fine globules after they become attached to the fruit or leaf. Hence the importance of the injunction: "Use only a fine nozzle; use force enough to keep the liquid issuing as a fine mist, and spray only until the foliage and fruit are completely bedewed."

It requires considerable skill to do this properly and cover the surface fully. If it cannot be done with one spraying it would pay better to go over the trees twice, allowing the first application to dry before giving the second, than to try to accomplish it all at one time, and thus run the risk of going further than the simple bedewing of the fruit or leaves. If the spray is continued too long the fine globules will "run together" to form one or several large ones, which, instead of remaining fixed and drying just where they strike, will run down to the lowest place and drip. Of course, the suspended material settles to the lowest point of the globule, which is, in that case, spread over a considerable surface of the fruit. Some of the upper portions are thus left completely bare. At the lower edge the material will drip [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Anecdotal.

Shortly after Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass" made its appearance, J. T. Trowbridge was walking with Lowell in Cambridge, when the latter pointed out a doorway sign, "Groceries," with the letters set zigzag, to produce a bizarre effect. "That," said he, "is Walt Whitman—with very common goods inside."

A Philadelphia paper declares that Archbishop Ryan was recently about to take a train for Baltimore at the Broad Street Station, when a young man accosted him, saying: "Your face is familiar, where in hell have I seen you?" "I really don't know," replied the archbishop, blandly; "what part of hell do you come from?"

Many years ago, when Senator Ingalls was in the Senate, oleomargarine was a bone of contention. The debate led Ingalls to utter one of those epigrammatic sentences which made him famous. "I have never, to my knowledge, tasted oleomargarine," said Ingalls, "but I have stood in the presence of genuine butter with awe for its strength and reverence for its antiquity."

A lady carrying on mission work in the slums was teaching a little colored girl to spell. She used a pictorial primer, and over each word was its accompanying picture. Polly glibly spelled "c-a-t, cat," and "b-o-x, box," etc. But the teacher thought that she was making "right rapid progress." So she put her hand over the picture, and said, "Polly, what does 'o-x' spell?" "Ox," answered Polly, nimbly. "How do you know that it spells 'ox,' Polly?" "Seed his tail," replied the apt Polly.

A very popular Oxford dean, crossing the quadrangle of Christ's College one day, was met by a number of undergraduates who passed him without "capping." The reverend gentleman felt annoyed. "Do you know who I am?" he asked. "No, sir." "Then how long have you been at the college?" "Eight days, sir." "Indeed!" replied the dean, sarcastically. "Well, in that case, you stand excused. I know that puppies do not open their eyes until the ninth day." And then he resumed his walk.

While he was in England, Mark Twain says his head was once taxed as gas works. He wrote Queen Victoria a friendly letter of protest, saying: "I don't know you, but I've met your son. He was at the head of a procession in the Strand, and I was on a 'bus." Years afterward he met the Prince of Wales, now King Edward VII., at Homberg. They had a long walk and talk together. When bidding him good-by, the Prince said: "I am glad to have met you again." This remark troubled Twain, who feared that he had been mistaken for someone else. He communicated this suspicion to the Prince, who replied: "Why, don't you remember when you met me in the Strand and I was at the head of a procession, and you were on a 'bus?"

Simeon Thompson says that the late Eugene Field was fond of relating the following story of James Whitcomb Riley: "To beguile the tediousness of the return voyage from Europe, it was proposed to give a concert in the saloon of the ship—an entertainment to which all capable of amusing their fellow-voyagers should contribute. Mr. Riley was asked to recite some of his original poems, and, of course, he cheerfully agreed to do so. Among the number present at this mid-ocean entertainment, over which the Rev. Myron Reed presided, were two Scotchmen, very worthy gentlemen, en route from the land o' cakes to the land of biscuits, upon a tour of investigation. These twain shared the enthusiasm with which the auditors applauded Mr. Riley's charming recitations. They marveled that so versatile a genius could have lived in a land reputed for uncouthness and savagery. "Is it no wonderfu', Donal," remarked one of these Scots, "that a tradesman suld be sic a bonnie poet?" "And is he indeed a tradesman?" asked the one. "Indeed he is," answered the other; "did ye no hear the dominie intryjuce him as the hoosier poet? Just think of it, mon!—just think of sic a gude poet dividing his time making hoosiery!"

A Prophecy Fulfilled.

ON no less authority than that of Mr. Justin McCarthy it is stated that, with the exception of the King of Sweden, a descendant of Bernadotte, whom Napoleon raised from the ranks and later made king, there is not a single important ruler in Europe who is not descended from Mary, Queen of Scots. In "Macbeth," which was evidently written with the idea of courting the favor of James I., the first Stuart ruler of England, Shakespeare puts into the mouth of the witches this prophecy to Banquo, from whom the Stuarts are by legend descended: "Your children shall be kings." Even the most obsequious of courtiers could not have anticipated how literally true this compliment to the Stuarts through King James was to prove. It is certainly a curious historical fact that the dynasty of the Stuarts, "in many ways the worst dynasty," as Mr. McCarthy says, "that ever ruled over England, should have left so many descendants among the reigning houses of Europe.

Meantime there is for the student of medical anthropology the spectacle of a series of inbreeding intermarriages that demonstrates the dangers and effects of marital consanguinity. Perhaps the lesson of the necessity for exercising more care as regards the relationship and other qualities of marital partners may thus be taught by example, if it cannot be enforced by the legal measures that are now so commonly suggested. In a word, the history of the present reigning families of Europe is an open book in which he who runs may read the evils of marriage where new blood is not constantly introduced to modify the degenerative tendencies of the original stock. The lesson may be learned better from a "horrible example" than from the cold logic of statistics on the subject.

Faith vs. Works.

A piece of bright class-room repartee comes from a Western college. The professor had been annoyed by the tardy entrance of a student into the lecture-room, and pointedly stopped talking until the man took his seat.

After class the student went to the desk and apologized.

"My watch was fifteen minutes out of the way, sir. It's bothered me a good deal lately, but after this I shall put no more faith in it."

"It's not faith you want in it," replied the professor; "it's works."

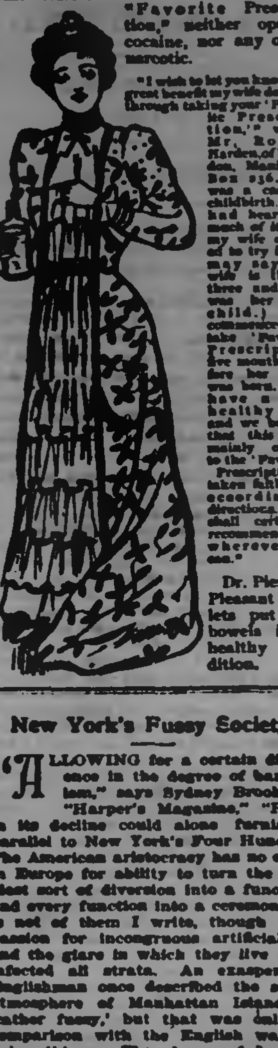
When Judge Barnard was on the bench and holding court in Poughkeepsie a lawyer who did not like him chanced to see a one-cent coin lying on the floor. Picking it up and holding it forth in ostentatious display, he said:

"I imagine, your Honor, from the value of this coin, that it must belong to the court."

"And I imagine," replied Judge Barnard, "that if it was not such a small coin the court never would have seen it."—New York Times.

Young Mothers

Stand in special need of help while the baby is being nursed. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only strengthens the woman for motherhood and makes the birth hour practically painless, but it increases the nutritive secretions on which the child is fed. It soothes the nerves, encourages the appetite and rapidly restores the mother to robust health. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," neither opium, cocaine, nor any other narcotic.



"I wish to let you know the great benefit my wife derived through taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mr. Robert Harden, of Brandon, Manitoba, Box 236. "It was a case of childbirth. We had heard so much of it that my wife decided to try it. (I may say my wife is thirty-three and this was her first child.) She commenced to take 'Favorite Prescription' five months before her child was born. We have a fine, healthy girl, and we believe that this was mainly owing to the 'Favorite Prescription' taken faithfully according to directions. We shall certainly recommend it wherever we can."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets put the bowels in a healthy condition.

New York's Fussy Society.

"ALLOWING for a certain difference in the degree of barbarism," says Sydney Brooks in "Harper's Magazine," "Rome in its decline could alone furnish a parallel to New York's Four Hundred. The American aristocracy has no equal in Europe for ability to turn the simplest sort of diversion into a function, and every function into a ceremony. It is not of them I write, though their passion for incongruous artificialities and the glare in which they live have infected all strata. An exasperated Englishman once described the social atmosphere of Manhattan Island as 'rather fussy,' but that was only in comparison with the English way of doing things. The charm of London hospitality is that there is never the slightest strain put upon either host or guest. The American hostess, like the French hostess, feels that she must be continually 'entertaining' her guest; she considers it a reflection on her hospitality if the guest is left a moment alone; she looks upon it as her duty to be continually providing fresh amusements, and is constantly troubled by doubts as to whether the visitor is really 'enjoying' himself. That is one of the reasons why Americans, after the pampering they get at home, are apt to feel themselves neglected in London, and left out in the cold."

A Spider's Genius.

"I HAVE considerable respect for the female spider, notwithstanding the fact that she does not treat the male very considerately," says a correspondent. "I had an opportunity last summer to watch a large one that had a web in the top of a decaying peach tree with a few leaves that it was in plain view. I caught sight of her first when watching some birds with my glass. She seemed to be climbing from the top of the tree on nothing to a telephone wire some fifteen feet away and somewhat higher than her web. When she reached the wire she went around it and then back. In studying the situation, I found the web was so located that it required a cable to hold it up and the spider had in some way got one over the wire so far away. This cable was, of course, a slender silken thread which evidently she had thrown out, and on account of its lightness it had floated to the right place and become attached there by its glutinous properties. It seems remarkable that it should have adhered to the wire firmly enough to allow so large an insect to climb over it, which she did every day as long as I watched her, evidently to mend or strengthen it. The spider must have brains in which the ability to construct its web and adapt it to conditions is highly developed."

In an article in "Chambers' Journal" the following account of how the spider forms its silken threads is given:

"One of the most interesting features in the economy of spiders is their power of emitting slender threads of a silk-like substance called gossamer, with which most of them construct mesh-like nets, and a few long, dangling cables, by which they are buoyed through the air with nearly as much facility as though they had been furnished with wings. The apparatus provided by nature for elaborating and emitting this gossamer is a beautiful piece of mechanism. Within the animal there are several little bags or vesicles of a gummy matter; and these vesicles are connected with a circular orifice situated at the abdomen. Within this orifice are five little teats or spinnerets, through which the gossamer is drawn. It must not be concluded, however, that there is only one film of gossamer produced by each spinneret; the fact is, these teats are studded with thousands of minute tubes too small for the naked eye to perceive, and each of these emits a thread of inconceivable fineness. These minute tubes are known as spinnerules, and the films which proceed from them unite like so many strands of a rope to form the thread of gossamer by which a spider suspends itself. The finest thread which human mechanism can produce is like a ship's cable compared with the delicate films which flow from the spinnerules of the largest spider. The films are all distinctly separate on coming from the spinneret, but unite, not by any twisting process, but merely by their own glutinous or gummy nature. Thus the spinning apparatus of the disdained spider, when viewed by the eye of science, becomes one of the most wonderful pieces of animated mechanism known to man. The animal has great command over this apparatus, and can apply it at will so long as the receptacle within are replenished with the gummy fluid, but as soon as this gum is exhausted all its efforts to spin are fruitless, and it must wait till nature, by her inscrutable chemistry, has secreted it from the food which is devoured."—Waverley Magazine.

THE CHEAPEST BOOKSTORE IN TOWN | THE TIMES BOOK-STORE MARKET BLOCK. | NEW SPRING NOVELTIES JUST RECEIVED

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE.

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices.

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.

WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive now.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the decoration scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are enrolled by hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD
WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

My lady, the chatelaine, wove in beautiful designs and embroideries the tapestries from which we have borrowed some beautiful ideas in our wall paper.

My lady of 1902 will find many things in our stock to her liking.

OUR PRICES ARE FROM 10 TO 40 PER CENT. CHEAPER THAN ELSEWHERE.

Anecdotal.

When the English barrister, Richard Eve, desired to "take silk"—or, in other words, to become a Queen's Counsel—he sent the usual note to the senior members on the circuit to see whether anyone objected, according to custom. Mr. Adam Walker, one of the senior members, replied as follows:—"My dear Eve,—You may take silk or a fig leaf. I don't care.—Adam."

Shortly after Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, R.A., was knighted, he and Lady Alma-Tadema gave an At Home at St. John's Wood. Everybody present was congratulating them, and one lady was very profuse. "Oh, dear Sir Lawrence," she said, "I am awfully glad to hear of the honor you have received. I suppose now that you are knighted you will give up painting and live like a gentleman."

In an Ohio town last fall, the African Methodist-Episcopal Church of that district held a conference, and for a week the town was filled with colored pulpit orators. A few days after the conference closed its sessions, one of the leading colored women of the town drove out to Pea Ridge to purchase chickens of an old mammy who had supplied the family for years. Aunt Hanna, coming to the gate, said: "I'm sorry, Miss Allie. I ain't got a chicken left. Dey all done enter de ministry.

A story is going the rounds about a prominent Nova Scotia lawyer who is noted for his carelessness in dress, which fact annoys the members of the Bar exceedingly. Entering the courtroom one day minus a cravat, the judge reproved him, saying the law required him to wear one. "Oh, yes, your honor. I know it," he answered; "but it does not say where he shall wear it," and as he spoke he pulled it out of his trousers pocket. The matter then dropped.

General William T. Sherman was fond of relating the following story: "When I was with the army in Georgia, a slave-owner about Christmas time missed a fine fat turkey. He suspected a good-looking mulatto, and ordered the man brought before him. 'You have stolen my turkey and eaten it,' said the irate planter. 'I'se not gwine to say I didn't, when you says I did, massa.' 'I ought to have you flogged. What have you to say why I should not punish you?' 'Well, massa, you hain't lost anything particular. You see, you has a little less turkey and a good deal more nigger.' And the master was compelled to acknowledge the philosophy of the slave, and let him go unwhipped."

As a young man Paul Kruger was regarded as an authority on psalm singing, and the farmers used to come to him to learn the keynote for starting the psalms at the next Sunday's service. Kruger, even in those days, was no believer in the policy of giving anything away—not even a note of music—so he had a uniform charge of a double handful of dried peaches for his instruction. Even the fact that the work was in the service of religion did not deter him from resorting to strategy, for he made a point of giving each applicant a different note. The result when the pious Doppers attempted to raise their voices in sacred harmony next Sunday may be imagined. The result was that each man concluded he had lost the key, and had to return for a further lesson. "I nearly bankrupted them of their dried peaches," said the president.

Ford Madox Brown, the artist, once had to be smuggled into his own exhibition. The occasion was a private view in Bond street of the Manchester fresco, "John Kay." The artist being unwell at the time was accompanied in his carriage to the gallery by his doctor and old friend, William Gill. The time passed pleasantly enough en route in conversation, when suddenly Madox Brown's talk came to an abrupt full stop; he started as though struck by some very disquieting thought, and wildly plunged round in his various pockets, blank dismay depicted on his countenance the while. "Good heavens, Gill!" he exclaimed, "I have forgotten my card of admission! What am I to do?" "Your card of admission!" replied his amused friend, "surely you can get in without that?" "No, no," answered Madox Brown in despair, "they will never let me in—they don't know me!" Fortunately, however, Mr. Gill was provided with the necessary passport, and he thus played the distinctly original role of getting an artist admission into his own show.

School Humor.

An English paper gives some further examples of children's unconscious humor in answering examination questions:

Alexander the Great was born in absence of his parents.

The chief clause in Magna Charta was that no free man should be put to death or imprisoned without his own consent.

Where were the kings of England crowned? On their heads.

What were the three most important Feudal dues? Friendship, courtship, marriage.

What do you know of Dryden and Buckingham? Dryden and Buckingham were at first friends, but soon became contemporaries.

What is Milton's chief work? Milton wrote a sensible poem called the "Canterbury Tails."

Give the names of five Shakespearian plays? Macbeth, Mikado, Quo Vadis, San Toy, Sign of the Cross.

An optimist is a man who looks after your eyes, and a pessimist is a man who looks after your feet.

A man who looks on the bright side of things is called an optimist, and the one who looks on the dull side is called a pianist.

Good News!

Stage Manager—Mr. Heavy, you will take the part of Alonzo. Mr. Heavy—I have never seen this play. Do you think I can please the audience in that part? "Immensely. You die in the first act."—"Tit-Bits."

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leaby, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

ital out of the strange mistake which had occurred, and claim Lillian Ruthven the heiress!

It was a bold and mighty stroke for a fortune, but he was just desperate enough to make it.

She was pretty enough to please any man, and then there was a certain piquancy in claiming an unwilling bride.

While his life lasted, he vowed to himself he should never forget his first interview with Miss Ruthven.

If anger and scorn, flashed from a pair of blue eyes, could have struck him dead, he would have died then and there.

Since the world began, she protested, she had never heard of a case like this.

She wondered how God could let a man live to blast a fair young life, and glory in it.

"You know as well as I do," she added, "that I am not your wife; and, up to the time you were brought before me, surrounded with officers, I had never even looked upon your face."

He had thrown back his dark, handsome head with a laugh not pleasant to hear.

"I can claim you," he said; "that settles the matter. You shall be mine by fair means or foul Lillian Ruthven. If I thought it possible that I could win your liking, I would go through a whole course of wooing. Should you like that?"

Lillian Ruthven was quick-witted. She saw here a chance of respite from the horrible doom that awaited her.

If she had time she might see some way out of the trap fate had set for her.

"Yes, give me time," she answered, with a piteous quiver in her voice.

The words choked her; she could say no more.

Feeling so sure of his beautiful, hapless victim, Harold St. John acquiesced very gallantly.

"You will not exclude me from your presence under this arrangement?" he said. "I will be a constant visitor.

It was gall and wormwood to the girl's sensitive soul to allow this man to clasp her white hand, and raise it to his lips, looking ardently in her eyes the while, as he bade her au revoir, but what could she do? Was ever a woman more completely in a man's power?

Her case was all the more deplorable, because she had a lover whom she loved with all the strength of her heart.

The startling news of her marriage to Harold St. John had been a fearful blow to him.

There was a terrible scene between them.

He accused her of playing with his heart and breaking it, tossing it away like a useless toy; still keeping him near her, even up to the very hour almost that she had wedded another.

He turned on his heel and left her, praying heaven he might never look upon her fair, false face again —left her standing before him like a statue carved in marble, and as cold as death.

On coming into the drawing room an hour later, her aunt found her lying on her face like one dead.

"Is this terrible thing true? —are you indeed the wife of the man who came here and claimed you?" asked Mrs. Colonel Ruthven, when the girl regained consciousness.

"On my honor, no," answered Lillian, frantically. "Oh, God! cannot you, who have known me all my life, believe me when I say it is all terribly false?"

Mrs. Ruthven took Lillian abroad, but with cruel pertinacity, Harold St. John followed them, declaring he had entered upon his privileges as an accepted suitor.

At length he became convinced of the fact Lillian hated him beyond all doubt. Then he came boldly forward, saying he should claim her on the twenty-fifth.

He had followed Lillian Ruthven to Sacramento, but it was not so easy to gain access to the exclusive society in which she moved.

She was visiting at the villa of Mrs. Elford, and in her honor the grand garden party was given.

Harold St. John had recourse to spying upon her actions through one of the pretty young serving-maids of the villa.

He made the acquaintance of pretty Katy, madame's maid, in a very romantic fashion. She had gone to one of the shops to purchase some few things for herself, and on leaving the place she passed on the threshold the handsomest young man she had ever beheld in all her life.

She saw the glance of admiration he gave her—Katy was always alive to that—and in her confusion she dropped one of the little parcels she carried.

He picked it up and gave it to her with a bow such as Katy had never received in all her life before; her face flushed with delight.

The next time she came to do some shopping for her mistress she saw him again, and this time he spoke to her.

The third time he insisted on seeing her home or at least as far as the park gate.

He said it was neither right nor safe for a beautiful young lady like herself to be wandering about alone.

Katy was enchanted, for a new element had crept into her life.

She had made a conquest at last that she considered worthy of her charms; not one of the grooms or gardeners, but a gentleman —a perfect gentleman, who wore a suit of fine black clothes and glossy linen as white as snow and who wore a gold watch and a fine signet ring on his finger.

He learned from Katy all he wished to know concerning the movements of the guests of the house.

All the young gentlemen were in love with Miss Ruthven the heiress, but she was like an icicle to one and all.

She did not know why the slow smile crept up under the dark mustache when he heard that.

On the night of the garden party, after he had seen Daisy, he hurried to the rear entrance of the villa, and succeeded in getting one of the other maids to smuggle a note to Katy.

"Of course it is from Mr. Smith," she thought, with a blush, (that was the name Harold St. John had given her). "He wants to see me, of course," she murmured, "but he should know how busy I am on an evening like this."

She hid the note in the pocket of her coquettish little apron, intending to read it later on.

Nature's Flying Machines.

It is an extraordinary thing that the places where people think that they can invent flying machines are the capitals of Europe. Paris, Vienna, London, Brussels, each takes its turn, in paragraphs in the morning papers and illustrated interviews in the weeklies, at producing flying machine inventors; but the man who will succeed must be more familiar than any townsman or laboratory savant seems to be with the way in which Nature's flying machines, the birds, work. To this the townsman will reply that everybody knows how birds fly. They flap their wings; and what we have to do is to invent a machine which will flap its wings like a bird.

Yes; but which bird? In every one of our undulating Norfolk stubbles there are two birds, among many, that you cannot help observing on the wing. One is the partridge and the other the gull. Let us take the gull first. It is a bird with a very light body in proportion to its expanse of wing; and when it wishes to rise from the ground it raises its wings aloft, back to back, and then with one quick stroke—whiff!—wafts itself aloft. Three or four more similar strokes follow, each one visibly raising the bird higher in the air, and then it sails off. Now it is "coasting" down an inclined plane; now its widespread wings catch the wind like a sail and it curves upwards; then it wheels and "coasts" again, and at the turn one vigorous flap of its wings shoots it up into the wind again. Another sail, another "coast," another flap, and so the gull could go on through the livelong afternoon. The albatross, spreading as much wing-sail as Shamrock II., so very nearly equalizes its sailing power with its coasting momentum that it remains in the air alongside a steamer for, perhaps, half an hour together, without occasion for a flap of the wing. This is the very highest development of one kind of Nature's flying machines.

Now let us look at the partridge. This is a heavy, substantial bird, with great running power, necessitating a muscular development essentially different from the gull's. The object of the partridge's flight is not to loaf about in the air, always ready to descend at any inclined plane that the chance of snatching food from the restless waves may offer, but to put as large a distance as possible in the shortest space of time between itself and the danger which compelled it to take wing. With the partridge flying is, in fact, merely an urgent improvement upon terrestrial locomotion, whereas with the gull it is the highest development of the art of remaining in the air at the poise most suitable for descending like an arrow in any desired direction.

From this contrast it is evident that the model which human inventors of flying machines should set before themselves is that of the partridge and not of the gull. We need aerial locomotion as an improvement upon our existing means of terrestrial progress. Our flying machine must be a weight-carrier because it has to bear up a terrestrial mechanism—i.e., a man; and the partridge gives us a very good idea of the means whereby this can be achieved. In common with all ground-birds—and if man is destined to be a bird at all it is as a ground-bird that he will have to commence his aerial evolutions—the partridge goes off whirring like clockwork. This is because enormous power, comparatively speaking, is needed to raise so heavy a bird from the ground. But when it has once reached an altitude of, say, ten feet, it goes on at a tremendous pace, gliding for twenty yards, then whirring violently again for ten, gliding for twenty, and so on. Thus the partridge can, taking into consideration all kinds of wind and weather, travel between two fixed points faster than a gull, provided that the point of departure is higher than that of destination. This is not generally understood; and it is common to talk of the amazing power of flight of such long-winged birds as gulls and swifts, although their "power" of flight is small compared with that of partridge or pheasant.

A New Vocabulary.

"I SEE," said the wise person, "that some eminent philologist is again monkeying with the language of the world in the effort to combine them in one tongue that no one will want to learn, but everybody can understand. It has always been a matter of surprise to me that none of these word-arrangers has ever grasped the amazing possibilities of baby-talk as a universal, time-saving method of conversation. Instead of delving into the dusty dimness of antiquity for Saxon and Sanskrit roots, and making it necessary for one to master ten languages to learn one, why do they not go into the nursery with an open mind and a notebook and compile a new mother-tongue that will catch everybody?"

Here he paused for a question, but, as none was forthcoming, he went on:

"What I mean is this: You take any baby that has an intelligent, quick-witted mother, and it can make its wants known with less expenditure of breath than a deaf-and-dumb man. If it says "Wow" she knows that a pin is sticking it, or that it wants its dinner, or that it wants to turn over, or that it has colic. If it says "Ah-goo" she makes a rapid-fire translation which proves that the child has said that it wants to see papa or that it feels good. If it says "Gup" she will at once tell you that it means "look at the horse." If it says "Boo" she can tell you without a moment's hesitation that it desires a peep at its picture-book. And so on ad infinitum, and ad infantum, for that matter. By jing! We don't want Volapuk or any other old universal language, but as a time and tongue saver and word-condenser we need the adoption of baby-talk."

Then, with a sarcastic glance at the young father, he concluded:

"Besides, it would keep a lot of people from telling us what their children had tried to say."—W. D. Nesbit in "Judge."

To Detect Bad Notes.

There will be no doubt an unusually large number of visitors in England this summer in connection with the coronation festivities. The recent announcement that several hundred £5 notes have been lately stopped by the Bank of England and other London banks will be specially interesting to them, and may cause some feelings of apprehension, for the visitor, unused to handling the English money, is naturally more easily victimized than those accustomed to it. The Daily Express gives some interesting information as to how you may tell whether your £5 notes are genuine or forged.

Chief cashiers in banks can tell at a glance, for in the freemasonry of the profession they have learned some of the secret marks by which the Bank of England absolutely safeguards itself against deception.

The whole of the secret marks, some dozen in all, are only known to the man whose signature appears on each note.

The best test for the average man to apply is the rough and ready one of looking at the water-mark. If that is very plain, when held up to the light or laid down on a table, you may be pretty certain that your fiver is genuine.

The water-mark of the Bank of England is one of those things that no forger has yet been able to imitate successfully.

Now for the forged notes. If you would detect them look out for any of the following defects, which were discovered after long examination by the chief cashier of a West End business house:—

(1) The water-mark is very light, and not made in the note.

(2) The paper is slightly greasy to the touch.

(3) The printing is lighter; the ink not as black as it should be. This is particularly noticeable in the medallion of Britannia in the top left-hand corner.

(4) The top and bottom of the note are very ragged, as if carried in the pocket, and nicked as if torn away, while the sides are quite clean cut.

"I had never handled a forged Bank of England note," said this cashier, "until this came into my possession, and I naturally examined it very carefully.

"I understand that the notes have different dates and numbers, making their detection more difficult, and I should say that the dates were added after the body of the note had been printed."

From the head of a large banking concern in the city The Express representative received an opinion regarding the forged notes closely corresponding with the one given above. He was of opinion that the note might best be detected by three of its features: —

(1) Not quite so crisp as the genuine note.

(2) Faint water-mark.

(3) Faulty engraving and printing of the Britannia medal.

Forgers of bank notes have always two prime difficulties to contend with—to imitate the water-mark, and to get the notes in circulation.

The Duke of Gloucester.

The proposal to revive the old English title of Duke of Gloucester has set newspaper writers at work, hunting up the records of former bearers of the title, which appear to be mournful enough to give it an aspect of ill-omen even in the present materialistic age. The title was last revived by George I., who created his grandson, Frederick Lewis, Duke of Gloucester in 1714. This Prince was not, if his father, George II., may be believed, an ornament to the Peerage. "My dear firstborn," said that unamiable Sovereign, "is the greatest ass and the greatest liar and the greatest canaille and the greatest beast in the whole world, and I heartily wish he was out of it." His unhappy relations with his parents were a public scandal, but a fairer estimate of his character is that given by Horace Walpole. "His best quality was generosity, his worst insincerity, and indifference to truth, which appeared so early that Earl Stanhope wrote to Lord Sunderland what I shall conclude his character with:—'He has his father's head and his mother's heart.' His character with the people is probably best summed up in the lines beginning

Here lies Fred,
Who was alive and is dead.
and ending with
There's no more to be said."

The title became dormant again in 1834, when the second Duke of this creation, third son of "Fred," died without children. If the story of the present revival has any basis, the title is presumably intended for one of the young sons of the Prince of Wales.

Helping Reciprocity Along.

Force of circumstances is compelling us to reckon with western Canada. The Journal has often spoken of the great agricultural resources of that region, and has predicted that within ten years it will be the greatest hard wheat raising region in the world. The enormous crop raised there last year and bound for the export market, almost entirely, has called the attention of Minneapolis grain men and millers to the importance of Canadian competition. Canadian wheat is now selling so cheaply abroad that the Minneapolis export flour trade is in danger of suffering thereby, as foreign millers can buy Canadian wheat and undersell the Minneapolis exporters.

To remedy partially this unfortunate state of affairs the local millers are thinking of buying Canadian wheat and milling it in bond for their export trade. If they do this they will be able to meet the foreign millers on equal terms as to the price of Canadian wheat, since the duty on Canadian wheat will be refunded when the flour made from it is exported. So, then, we are already confronted with the desirability of using Canadian wheat in the manufacture of flour designed for export. The time is approaching when we shall need it for flour intended for domestic consumption. Already, regardless of the tariff, it is competing with American wheat and forcing down the price of the latter. If the tariff on wheat were taken off and Canadian wheat were merged in American wheat in the markets, the chances are that it would affect the price less than now.

Truly, the development of the Canadian west is making the question of reciprocity with Canada a very live one for the people of the American northwest.—Minneapolis Journal.

They Staked Their Lives.

NOT long ago, among the varied pictures of human life which go to make up the daily newspaper, appeared a story as thrilling as fiction, although it was only a part of the plain news of the day. It had to do with the life-savers at the Chatham station which guards the end of Cape Cod. For thirty-six hours Captain Eldredge and his crew, who patrol this point of land projecting far out into the Atlantic, went through as hard an experience as brave men are often called upon to endure. The story is outlined by the "Youth's Companion:"

During a freezing hurricane they saw a schooner in distress off Pollock Rip. Ordinarily there could have been no question as to whether or not they should go to her assistance; for although every drop of water froze as fast as it fell, and the sea was mad, and Pollock Rip is a treacherous place, yet life-savers are used to riotous weather and do not hesitate. But this time there was a special element of danger; a northwest wind tearing down past the edge of the land at sixty miles an hour made it impossible for any boat that should set out for Pollock Rip to return against the gale.

But the men of the Chatham station did not stop to reckon their chances of return. Trusting that the schooner might hold out through the storm if manned and pumped by a fresh crew, they struck out in their life-boat toward the Rip.

Although the wind was with them, it was a hard pull. Three times they were nearly swamped, and when they reached the schooner, they dared not pull alongside of her. It took an hour of hard work to get aboard, and even then the crew of the schooner had to pull them up one by one with ropes, as if they, the life-savers, were the rescued, not the rescuers.

They had won their goal, but it might still be nothing but a goal of death; they knew that when they started. One pump was broken, the crew of the vessel was half exhausted, and the water was pouring into the schooner at the rate of nine hundred pump-strokes an hour.

Sending most of the ship's crew to their bunks, Captain Eldredge and his men manned the two good pumps and fought the invading water. After thirty hours of fighting they won. That is how the schooner "Emma D. Endicott," Captain Rogers of New York, lived to be towed up to Boston.

If she had not lived, the men of the Chatham life-saving station, who staked their lives on the chance that they could reach her and keep her afloat, who went to her aid knowing they could not return until the wind abated—well, they would not have lived to hear people tell them how brave they are.

Humor of the Hour.

"Night falls, but it doesn't break," observed the Simple Mug.

"What of it?" queried the Wise Guy.

"Oh, nothing," chuckled the Simple Mug, "except that day breaks, but it doesn't fall."—Philadelphia Record.

"At Plevna, Kan.," says The Kansas City Journal, "A 'joint' keeper cornered the Rev. W. H. Houston in the postoffice and informed the reverend gentleman that he must take a licking on account of a temperance sermon which he had preached the day before. 'All right,' responded the parson, cheerfully, and two minutes later the friends of the 'joint' keeper were taking him down to the butcher shop for the application of beefsteak to a pair of beautiful black eyes. Showing again the low down, deceptive wickedness of our theological seminaries in maintaining physical culture departments."

Imperial Weather.

SOMEBODY is about to publish a vindication of the character of English weather. It appears that it has been most unfairly misrepresented. What we stupidly call its fickleness is really nothing in the world but a perfectly laudable effort to reproduce in our midst the imperial nature of our climate, remarks "Outlook." When it presents us with primroses in November, that is to remind us of the pleasant picnic weather they are having on the veldt; the same laudable intention accounts for June snowstorms. Nor do we have to wait for complete reversals of the seasons. A week of imperial weather—sometimes, like a cheap trip, it is all crammed into one day—runs somewhat as follows: Monday, fog (home produce); Tuesday, cricketing weather (Australia); Wednesday, skating (Canada); Thursday, waterspouts (various ocean territories); Friday, steaming (West Coast); Saturday, general imperial representation; Sunday—but the British Sunday.

The hospitality of Scotland is quite as well established as the hospitality of Ireland, but the canniness of the Scot, which has passed into a proverb, is likely to assert itself at any stage. As The Scotsman tells this story, it cannot be suspected of proving false to its own countrymen:—

An Irish friend insisted that a Scotchman should stay at his house instead of a hotel, and kept him there for a month, playing the host in detail, even to treating him to all places of amusement, paying all the cab fares and the rest. When the visitor was returning to Dunedin, the Irishman saw him down to the steamer, and they went together to have a last drink.

"Now, look here," said the man from Dunedin, "I'll hae nae mair o' this. Here ye've been keepin' me at your house for a month, an' payin' for a' the amusements and cabs and so on—I tell you I'll stan' nae mair o' it! We'll just hae a toss for this one!"

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our constitutional treatment in curing Cancer is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the Breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggravated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper, on receipt of two stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

(NOTE—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to its columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published.—Ed. Times.)

—New map of the County of Peterborough, mounted on rollers, only $2.50. Times Bookstore.

—We have 50 good-sized second hand packing cases for sale cheap at The Times Bookstore.

—The Ashburnham village council met last night. Reports will appear to-morrow.

—A regular meeting of the Board of Education will be held this evening at the Board Room at 7 o'clock.

—Want a nice hammock? New lot, of the very best make, just in, at Times Bookstore.

—The Cordage Works are now in operation, and admission to the interior is refused to everybody.

—The first march out of the season will take place to-night from the regimental headquarters.

—Magazines will be sold while they last at two for five cents. Prices of cloth and paper books and novels less than half regular price.

—Capt. M. Lane, who takes command of the Steamer City of Peterborough, is now at work preparing the vessel for the season.

—It is proposed by the congregation of All Saints' Church to erect a new and larger edifice. The matter is now under consideration of the Churchwardens.

—Dr. J. H. Eastwood has removed his office from Brook street to 467 Water street, the residence formerly occupied by Mr. R. R. Hall, opposite Victoria Park.

—Mr. G. M. Whiten, the up-to-date photographer, has had his splendid studio thoroughly overhauled and improved. Painters and paper hangers have been at work, an everything is now in first class order. Mr. Whiten's reputation for doing only first class work is known far and near.

—For those seeking cheap reading, a call at The Times Bookstore will be of special interest. We are having a rummage sale of cloth-bound and paper novels and books. Also, a very large variety of back numbers of magazines, consisting of some of the choice journals of the day.

—Rev. Dr. O'Brien on Sunday pinned on the breast of Mr. T. Meade a gold T.A.U. pin, as a reward for increasing the membership of the Society. Mr. T. J. Begley, who arranged the production of the comedy drama, presented on the evening of 17th March, was also presented with a gold pin. Both recipients suitably acknowledged the presentation.

—"If you want to down the beef combination," said a man to The Times, who is engaged in the fruit trade, "don't eat meat. Eat bananas instead. I'm not joking; I'm serious. The banana as a staple article of food has been too long neglected by the people of our zone. I traveled in the south once, and I practically lived on bananas prepared in the various ways for which the natives are famous. It may surprise you to know that the banana is the king-pin of the vegetable world, so far as nutrition is concerned. It is 25 times as nutritious as wheat of the same weight, has 45 times the nutriment of potatoes and 20 times that of rice, the three staple vegetable products of the world. These figures are the result of scientific investigation. It is time that we turned our attention to the banana. We might profitably take a few lessons in preparing the fruit for the table from our southern neighbors."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Events Under This Head Transpiring in and around Peterborough.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to furnish the paper with items of a personal and social nature either by phone or in writing.—Ed. Times.)

—Mr. J. D. Eck, representing the International Correspondence School, is in town.

—Miss Emeline Muller, of Toronto, is a guest of Mrs. Roland Johnson, Water street.

—Mr. R. R. Bone, president of the syndicate which is purchasing the Peterborough Street Railway, is in town.

—Miss Gibney, of Toronto, returned home last evening, after spending a few days with her niece, Mrs. Vanderwater.

—Mr. Charlie Whiten's many friends will be pleased to learn that he is convalescing at the Nicholl's Hospital, having successfully passed through a critical operation.

—Mr. Jas. T. Canniff, for eleven years foreman of The Napanee Beaver, and his son, a typograph machine operator, have accepted positions in The Times. Mr. Canniff will look after the advertising department of the paper.

—The Globe says:—Miss Theodora Kirkpatrick, of Coolmine, who has been staying at Ottawa with the Postmaster-General and Mrs. Mulock, and with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keefer, of Buena Vista, left on Thursday for Peterborough, where she will pay a visit to friends before returning to her home.

Ashburnham

The supporters of Mr. Anderson in Ashburnham will meet again on Wednesday evening, May 7th, when a good attendance is asked.

I. O. O. F. Notes

The attendance of Oddfellows at St. Andrew's Church Sunday, April 27th, in commemoration of the eighty-third anniversary of the order, was the largest turnout for some years in Peterboro.

Decoration Day has been fixed for Thursday, June 19. The fixing of the date in advance gives all the community a chance to arrange to be present, and join in decorating the graves.

The District Committee of Peterborough District, No. 26, will meet in the Oddfellow's Hall, Friday evening, June 6, at 8 o'clock, to discuss the affairs of the district, to nominate a D. D. G. M., to arrange for the July installations, some of which will be public &c.

The Grand Lodge of Ontario will meet in Toronto in August. The representatives will be elected at the last meeting in May.

—Rev. James Livingstone, president of the London Methodist conference, intends to begin a movement to have the Methodist church adopt the Roman Catholic Church rule, which provides that no man at death shall receive a Christian burial if he has not been a member of the church. It is time, said Mr. Livingstone, that the Church stopped pandering to the irreligious element, which encourages people to remain out of the church. He said, further, that it was not right that a man who had led a bad life and given no support to the church should be given a Christian burial. This great family journal is in accord with Mr. Livingstone. It is positively sickening to be forced so often to listen to the eulogies which preachers deliver over the dead sinners.

PUZZLED

Hard Work Sometimes to Raise Children

Children's taste is ofttimes more accurate in selecting the right kind of food to fit the body than that of adults. Nature works more accurately through the children.

A Brooklyn lady says, "Our little boy has long been troubled with weak digestion. We could never persuade him to take more than one taste of any kind of cereal food. He was a weak little chap and we were puzzled to know what to feed him on. One lucky day we tried Grape-Nuts. Well you never saw a child eat with such a relish, and it did me good to see him. From that day on it seemed as though we could almost see him grow. He would eat Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper and I think he would have liked the food for dinner.

The difference in his appearance is something wonderful.

My husband has never been known to fancy cereal foods of any kind, but he became very fond of Grape-Nuts and has been much improved in health since using it.

A friend has two children who were formerly afflicted with the rickets. I was satisfied that the disease was caused by lack of proper nourishment. They showed it. So I urged her to use Grape-Nuts as an experiment and the result was almost magical. They contained the food and to-day both children are well and strong as any children in this City, and, of course, my friend is a firm believer in the right kind of food, for she has the evidence before her eyes every day.

When I have some task to perform about the house and don't feel very strong, a saucer of Grape-Nuts and cream stimulates me and I am able to do the task at hand with ease.

We are now a healthy family and naturally believe in Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

MRS. MORROW'S RECITAL

IN THE OPERA HOUSE LAST NIGHT A GRAND SUCCESS

Thoroughly Appreciative Audience Gather to Hear the Musical Treat

The consummation of several weeks' pleasant anticipation on the part of the elite of our musical circles was reached last evening, in the Opera House, when a most refined and thoroughly appreciative audience gathered to take advantage of the treat which Mrs. Morrow's concert has more than proved to be.

Mrs. Morrow is well known in Peterborough as one of Canada's most versatile artistes, and the thanks of the music-loving public are due her for providing so high-class an entertainment in every respect.

It should be indeed gratifying to her to witness the success of the pupils, each of whom gave marked evidence of most careful and thorough training.

The stage was prettily draped for the occasion and ornamented with flags and palms and together with the white robed ladies in Greek costumes, which gave them a most ethereal and sylph-like appearance, constituted a fairy-like scene that will not soon be forgotten.

The opening number, Marchetti's "O Divine Redeemer" given as a chorus by the pupils was well-sustained and expressive and was followed by Miss Rush, rendering "Good-Night Sweet Dreams" (Bischoff) with splendid effect, and proving that she is the possessor of a voice of remarkable compass and power.

Miss Miller's piano solos were most artistic and sympathetic and were enthusiastically applauded after which Miss M. Routley's vocal solo "Happy Days" with flute obligato, was given with remarkable sweetness and splendid expression.

Mr. J. Legg, who gave "Queen of the Earth" made himself so popular with the audience that he had to respond to an encore and give "Come back to Erin."

Mrs. C. B. McAllister gave that most charming selection "Night of Nights" in her usual good voice and responded to the encore which followed by giving the Scotch song, "O where, tell me where is my Highland Laddie gone?" very sweetly.

Mr. Gilbert Mackie, of Toronto, proved himself a thorough violinist, having excellent style and broad interpretation.

A vocal duet, "O Salutaris," by Miss M. Rush and Rev. W. L. Armitage, was the next number which was thoroughly appreciated, after which Miss F. Miller and Miss M. Routley gave a vocal duet, "Love shall Guide," which captivated the audience by its expressive rendition.

Mrs. Morrow was in excellent form and gave a piano solo, which proved her a most correct interpreter of Chopin, and a most fluent and rapid executant.

Miss F. Miller, who gave "I dreamed of a Lover Tall and Fair," and "A May Morning," was most heartily applauded and established her as a prime favorite. Her enunciation is remarkably distinct and her vocalization accurate.

Rev. W. L. Armitage contributed much to the enjoyment of the evening by his well rendered solo, "The King of the Winds."

Miss Miller and Mr. Legg again favored the audience with a duet which evoked much applause and was enthusiastically encored.

Mrs. Morrow whose vocal talent always has been so much appreciated in town, gave, "O dry those tears" and "A song of thanks giving" with good effect.

Mr. Gilbert again favored the audience with a sweet and thrilling violin solo, which was followed by the concluding number on the programme, the pupils' chorus "Waltz Rondo" and the National Anthem.

The accompanists of the evening were Mrs. Morrow and Miss Miller (Toronto). The piano used for the occasion was a Heintzman and Co.

An Old Churchwarden of Otonabee Honored on Sunday Last

On Sunday last Mr. Mark Greystock, who has retired from his office as Church Warden of St. Mark's, which office he held for 35 years, was presented with a beautifully illuminated address. Rev. R. A. Langfeldt, after his sermon, addressed Mr. Greystock from the chancel steps in a few well-chosen words, after which Mr. Anthony Taylor, the Churchwarden, presented Mr. Greystock with the address. The address was artistically executed by Mr. Pringle, principal of the Peterborough Business College, as follows:

The Congregation of St. Mark's Church,
Otonabee.
1867 — Easter — 1902.

To Mark Greystock, Esq.,—

Dear Sir,—Speaking on behalf of the congregation, we wish on the occasion of your much regretted retirement from the Church Wardenship of St. Mark's church, after thirty-five years' service, to express our keen appreciation of your sincere loyalty to the Great Founder of the Church Militant, and to this branch of it in particular, for so long a period.

Your kindly advice, earnest zeal and liberality have been important factors in the work of St. Mark's, and judging by your past devoted relations and work, we are all sure that your interest will continue unabated.

We pray that Almighty God will continue to shower material and spiritual blessings upon you.

News Items

London, May 6.—The London Times says "The most elementary and undeniable of these facts is that it is we, and not the Boers, who are the visitors in the struggle they challenged. Obvious though that fact is, it is habitually ignored by most of the Continental amateurs who are good enough to favor us with their opinions on the situation. These writers like the persons who profess to speak for the Boer fugitives in Holland, discuss the settlement of the colonies we have annexed, and are quietly administering in the principal districts, as though the contest had ended in a drawn battle, if not indeed in a victory for the Boers. Mr. Schalkburger and Mr. Steyn and their generals know how complete our success in the field has been. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's statement as to the actual and prospective economic condition of the annexed colonies ought to enlighten foreigners who are not wilfully blind as to the progress actually accomplished in the work of resettlement under the British flag. The revenue of the Transvaal for the year which began on July 1 last had reached £[illegible] in March, and is expected to reach £1,[illegible] by the end of June. That single fact shows how assured is our grip upon the country and how idle it is to talk as though we were under any constraint to put off the guerilla still in arms."

One Common Cause o' Headache

Perhaps the most general cause of headache and pain across the eyes is nasal catarrh. The simplest cure is to inhale the medicated vapor of Catarrhozone which traverses every air cell and air passage of the throat, lungs and nose. It kills myriads of germs at every breath, clears away mucous discharges, preserves and heals the membrane. Catarrhozone is just a splendid remedy for headache, and its action is certain and unfailing in diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Deafness, Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh. A trial will convince the most sceptical that Catarrhozone is all right. Large size, $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

PAUL KRUGER FIGHTING HARD WITH HIS MOUTH

Attempts Being Made to Inflame Continental Powers Against Great Britain

But the Powers are too Busy at Home at the Present Time —Boer Kaffirs are Keeping Busy

Special to The Times.

London, May 7.—A telegram from The Hague to Neue Wiener Tageblatt inquoted by the Vienna correspondent of the Times. It says Paul Kruger, in addressing the Belgian pro-Boer deputation declared peace would not be concluded without his approval. Kruger added that the English reports representing peace prospects as favorable were mere manoeuvres to hoodwink the British people in view of the coronation of King Edward.

A Brussels despatch to Neue Freie Presse states that the chairman of the committee of the league of peace has drawn up a project for reconciliation between Great Britain and Boers, which will be submitted to the Council of International Union at Berne early this month.

The correspondent says these attempts to mislead Continental opinion on the part of Boer press agencies in Holland and Belgium, as well as other attempts to revive anglophobia, are fruitless. The great powers are sufficiently occupied with the economic crisis and their own profound dissensions and mutual suspicions.

A STARTLING PHOTO OF CHRIST'S BODY

Portrait Alleged to Have Been Made from Shroud of Savior

SOME SCIENTISTS CREDIT IT.

Pictures Look Like Alphonse Daudet, and Church Authorities Declare They Bear Evidence of Retouching

Special to The Times.

Paris May 6.—The sensational story that portraits of the dead body of Christ have been obtained at Turin by photographing the holy shroud preserved in the Cathedral there has been revived by the Figaro and is causing a huge stir.

The famous relic, which belongs to the royal house of Savoy and has long been recognized as authentic, shows numerous blood stains which are faint ordinarily, but, it is alleged, that they turn a vivid scarlet on Holy Friday.

Nearly two years ago a Turin photographer asserted that negatives of the shroud revealed a perfect resemblance to Jesus. The plates were examined by church authorities, who found that they bore evidence of clever retouching and, therefore, a sensation was nipped in th bud.

LOOKS LIKE ALPHONSE DAUDET.

Now the photos are exhibited in the lobby of the Figaro's Building, and thousands are thronging the place every day to see them. A good idea of what they look like may be had from any of the later and bearded portraits of Alphonse Daudet.

Concurrently with the exhibiting of the photographs two eminent physicians, Drs. Delage and Vignon, have communicated to the Academy of Sciences theories explaining the miracle, basing their argument on M. Gautier's discovery that the body of a dying man emits an alkaline perspiration, and M. Colson's previous discovery that certain chemicals could impress sensitized plates in absolute darkness or leave traces invisible to the human eye but capable of being photographed.

Delage and Vignon believe Christ's dying torture emitted a perspiration which enabled the shroud to preserve an invisible likeness which now for the first time has been revealed by the photo negative.

Some prominent scientists ridicule the ingenious theories. M. Berthelot, for instance, said:

"First, the negatives, it has been proved, were doctored. Second, after 19 centuries such chemical forces would have long been evaporated. Third, it is impossible to wrap a shroud in such a manner as to obtain the continuous, perfect imprints shown in these pictures."

DAY'S CRIMES IN UNCLE SAM'S LAND

Foreigners Play the Roles—Highbinders Abduct Chinese Bride

A GOTHAM MAFIA MURDER.

Mob of Italians Crazed by Liquor Terrorize a Town in Wisconsin

Special to The Times.

New York, May 7.—Wee Lung Fong a beautiful Chinese girl, who was brought to New York three weeks ago to become the wife of Ling Foy, a wealthy Ninth street tea merchant, has been kidnapped by highbinders, and intense excitement prevails in Chinatown. The wedding ceremony was to have been preformed at the Joss house in Mott street at midnight, and extensive preparations had been made for the event. The merchant has not yet been told of the disappearance of his finance, and the news will be kept from him until the last moment, in the hope that the girl may be found.

Ling Foy is said to be one of the wealthiest Chinamen in America. Near Hong Kong he had seen a beautiful girl, whom he determined to purchase for a wife. An agent was sent to China, where the girl was purchased from her father for $900. She reached New York three weeks ago in the care of the emissary, and was placed in the hands of a resident of Mott street, who was instructed to allow no person to see her.

Shortly after the news of the approaching marriage was spread through Chinatown Ling Foy was approached by a committee of the highbinders, and asked to contribute $1,000 for a general merry-making among his people. The merchant flatly refused. The next night the girl was carried away in a carriage, and the women in whose care she was also disappeared.

MOB RULED THE STREETS

Racine, Wis., May 7.—A mob of 40 Italians, crazy from liquor, has ruled the town of Corliss, seven miles west of here, terrorizing the people, and driving all citizens from the streets. Two women were wounded slightly by revolver bullets, and two men were cut by knives in the hands of the invaders.

Help was asked from this city, and Sheriff Baumann, with a posse of deputies, drove to Corliss, where order was restored, after a short but exciting encounter in the streets.

VICTIM OF THE MAFIA.

New York, May 7.—Fran Dicenza, a political leader among the naturalized citizens in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, has been shot and instantly killed by two unknown men. The police believe that he was a victim of the Mafia. The motive for the murder is as mysterious as the identity of the assassins.

SAFE ROBBERS GOT $500.

Cleveland, O., May 7.—Three masked and armed men blew open the safe at the Lake Shore freight depot at the foot of Watson street early to-day and secured about $500. The robbers had a violent struggle with the nightwatchman, and after overpowering him, he was bound and gaged. Then the men took from him everything he had before proceeding with the drilling of the safe.

REBELS MARCH ON CAPITAL

Revolutionists in Possession of Almost the Whole Republic

Special to The Times.

Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, May 7—Vice President Horatio Vasquez, leader of the revolution, is in Guerra with his insurgent force. He is now only about four hours' march from the capital.

The Jiminez Government is expected to fall either to-day or to-morrow. The revolutionists are in possession of the whole republic, with the exception of the capital and Puerto Plata.

General Deschamps, Governor of Puerto Plata, is determined to hold out against the revolutionists. There is a large number of Government troops in Puerto Plata, and a Dominican war vessel is in the harbor. Alexander Joseph Gill has been appointed Minister of War.

CORONATION PARADE STANDS

High Prices now Demanded for Seats—Places for 2,000,000 Spectators

London, May 7—Preparations for viewing the coronation procession are proceeding on a great scale. Stands have been planned, and in many cases are already half built, which will accommodate 2,000,000 seated spectators.

Prices for single seats in the best locations in Piccadilly are still absurdly high, twenty guineas being frequently demanded. A huge stand around St. Mary's Strand advertises seats at from ten to three guineas, but it seems safe to prophesy that unless there is a great reduction there will be thousands of empty seats along the route, experience having shown what enormous multitudes can stand along a six [illegible] course.

The demolition of many houses on the Strand, which in the ordinary course would have been deferred for some time, is now being hurried for the sake of erecting stands. The block in front of the Savoy hotel is now half down.

London, May 7—The Spaniards seem to be somewhat discontented over the comparatively small number of foreign princes who will attend the ceremony of the coronation and taking of the oath by Alphonso XIII. They seem to think that there ought to be a few crowned heads to emphasize the dignity of Spain and recall her ancient glories.

The list, however, is a pretty long one: England, the Duke of Connaught, with the Duke of Wellington, who as the Duke Ciudad Rodrigo, is a grandee of Spain; Germany, Prince Albert of Prussia and Prince Joachim Albert of Prussia; Austria, Archduke Eugene; Denmark, Prince Christian Charles; Greece, Prince Nicholas; Italy, the Duke of Genoa; Monaco, the Crown Prince; Portugal, the Infante Dom Alfonso and the Duke of Oporto; Russia, Grand Duke Vladimir; Sweden, the Crown Prince Eugenie; Siam, the Crown Prince. All other countries will be represented by special embassies.

The young King Alfonso will wear fifty different uniforms during the festivities attendant on his accession to the throne, and orders have been distributed among all the leading tailors of Madrid. Several of the uniforms to be worn by the young sovereign are wonderfully picturesque, beautiful and closely copied from the medieval garments which have been kept in the Escurial.

COUNCIL WILL NOT GIVE A GRANT OF $500

TO BRING THE 13TH REGT. OF HAMILTON HERE ON THE 24TH

Resolution of Regret at the Death of the Late Henry Denne, Esq., J.P., and in Sympathy with the Bereaved Family

The Town Council met in special session last night, Alderman Roger, presiding.

THE LATE HENRY DENNE

As a mark of respect to the memory of the late Henry Denne, Council decided to attend his funeral in a body, and passed the following resolution to that effect, and in sincere sympathy with the bereaved family in their sad affliction:

Moved by Ald. Best, seconded by Ald. Clinkscale.—That the Council has learned with deep regret of the death of Henry Denne, Esq., J. P., father of His Worship F. H. G. Denne, Esq., Mayor of the Town. The late Mr. Denne was during his many years' residence in Peterborough a valuable citizen, and gave to the community many years of good service as a member of the Town Council, as a member and Chairman of the Board of Health, as a representative appointed by this Council on the Board of Education, as President of the Little Lake Cemetery Company, and in other responsible positions. His well known honesty of purpose and strict intergrity of character made him respected by the whole community, and along with his natural ability enabled him to serve the people with advantage in the public positions to which he was called, and won for him the esteem of the community and the sincere friendship of those more intimately acquainted with him. As an officer of the Corporation, while he held the position of Collector of Taxes, he was zealous and efficient in the discharge of his duties, and when he was stricken down with disease the Town lost a faithful officer. While expressing our deep regret on account of the death of Mr. Denne, we desire to tender to Mrs. Denne, to His Worship the Mayor and to the other members of the bereaved family our sincere sympathy with them in their affliction.

And that this Council, as a mark of respect, attend the funeral of the late Mr. Denne in a body.—Carried.

Ald. Best in moving the resolution remarked that there was not a word in the resolution but what was strickly true and even more might be said. When Mr. Denne was actively engaged in business he accomplished much for the Town as a leading grain merchant, and did much to keep up prices by his courage and sagacity in business. In his private public capacity Mr. Denne was a man of honor and integrity, and every one who knew him would thoroughly endorse the terms of this resolution.

Ald. Shortly said that he had been on the Board of Managers of the Little Lake Cemetery Co., with Mr. Denne, for many years, during several of which Mr. Denne was president of the company. He gave a great deal of time to the cemetery's business, was a most approachable man and one desirous of administering its affairs to the best advantage in the interests of the public. His character as an honorable man stood high, and all regretted sincerely, the loss of so valuable a citizen.

DID NOT FAVOR A GRANT.

After carefully discussing the grant of $500, asked for by a deputation Monday night, as an inducement for the 13th Regt. and band of Hamilton to visit Peterborough on the 24th of May. Ald Clinkscale moved, seconded by Ald. Best,—That no action be taken in the matter.—Carried.

CHANGE OF MARKET DAY

Robert Fair, President of the Retail Merchants' Assn., wrote, asking that on account of Victoria day falling on Saturday this year, Friday, May 23rd be made market day that week, and that public announcements to this effect be issued.

This request was granted and Friday, May 23rd will be market day instead of Saturday, May 24th.

Council then adjourned.

Paine's Celery Compound

Is The Never-Failing Health Restorer in Springtime

It is now an established fact that nervous prostration, insomnia, rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia and blood diseases are curable, if Paine's Celery Compound is honestly and faithfully used at this season. It is well known that many of our most successful physicians are daily prescribing and recommending Paine's Celery Compound. This fact proves the superiority of the great medicine over all the regular drugs usually prescribed for the troubles mentioned above.

Paine's Celery Compound is pre-eminently adapted for correcting unhealthy nerve action; it feeds the nerve centres with elements needed to strengthen them and build up healthy tissue. It purifies the blood, taking away every trace of poison, and encourages a rapid growth of red corpuscles upon which the vigor of the entire system depends.

Weariness, tired feelings, despondency and unrest, so prevalent in the last days of spring, are banished after a week's use of Paine's Celery Compound, and full vital energy and strength take the place of lassitude and weakness.

Now is the time to strike at the root of your besetting troubles. The work of recuperation begun to-day will save you future weeks, perhaps months, of torture and mental agony.

The immense and unprecedented demand for Paine's Celery Compound—earth's best medicine—is an indication that thousands are throwing off disease and seeking health. Past experience and the happy results given by Paine's Celery Compound, all combine to make clear your path of duty. Begin to-day with Paine's Celery Compound, if you would establish health and vigor for the coming summer months.

HER CAR WENT THROUGH

A Woman the Only Passenger in it from Atlanta to Washington

Washington, May 6 — A plucky woman scored an unusual victory in a contest with the Southern Railway on Friday night. She got on a Pullman car attached to the Southern's train at Birmingham Friday afternoon, and showed a ticket and a Pullman Fur coupon for Washington. When the train arrived at Atlanta on Friday at 11.30 o'clock it was found that the woman was the only passenger on the car ticketed for the north. When she was asked to transfer to another car attached to the northbound train she produced her Pullman coupon from her card case and said:

"This entitles me to a section in this car to Washington."

"That is all right, madam," replied the conductor. "Other arrangements have been made and this car will not go through."

"I think it will," said the lady. "My coupon says I am to ride in this car to Washington, and I don't propose to leave the car."

Efforts of the officials to make the woman leave the Pullman were in vain. She was perfectly cool and determined, and finally the railway officials admitted defeat by attaching the Pullman, with its single passenger, to the northbound train and carrying it through to Washington. The car was without a conductor or porter, and passengers along the way thought it a dead-head car; but Mr. J. M. Culp, traffic manager of the Southern, and J. L. Cox, of Atlanta, a soliciting freight agent for the road, who were on the train, told the story of the occurrence at Atlanta, and admitted defeat for their company. The name of the woman was not given by the Southern officials. She was well dressed and distinguished looking.

Grand Trunk Railway Travelling Picture Exhibit a Strong Factor in Bringing Tourists to Canada. Thousands of People Being Educated to the Beauties of the Northern Resorts

The Grand Trunk Railway's travelling picture exhibit, which is meeting with such a favorable reception in all the cities at which it is being displayed, is also receiving eulogistic words of praise in the press of the southern and middle States. The Springfield (Ohio) "Sun" of April 22nd, in speaking of this collection, says: "The exhibit establishes a precedent in railroad advertising, possessing sufficient merit in itself to justify anyone in taking the time to make an inspection of it." The Springfield "Gazette" in commenting on this exhibit says: "It is one of the finest exhibits of art ever given in this city." While all the newspapers in the other cities visited are profuse in their favorable comments regarding the display.

The collection has been shown this year at fifteen different cities, and up to the present time nearly 40,000 people have viewed the display. It is one of the best advertisements that Canada has ever had for her summer resorts, and it is expected that the results will justify all the good words that have been spoken of it. A heavy influx of tourists into Canada the coming season is assured. The exhibit is composed of over 100 large photographic views 40x50 inches, in addition to one of the finest collections of stuffed and mounted fish, including specimens of the gamey species of the finny tribe native to the Canadian waters, and including maskinonge, black bass, pike-perch (Dore) brook trout, land locked salmon and other specimens; as well as reproductions of many of the wonderful engineering feats that are located on the Grand Trunk System in the way of tunnels and bridges.

METAL FELL UPON THEM.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 7. — Four men were killed, two were fatally injured, and two others were terribly burned by being caught in a torrent of molten metal last night in an open hearth pit at the Pennsylvania Steel Works, at Steelton, near here. All of the men were Austrians.

The men were at work in a pit behind the "checkers" when the iron either boiled over or the furnace burned out, and the entire pit was turned into a pool of fire. The pit boss, Charles F. Lockett, gave a cry of warning as the iron commenced to flow into the pit, and three of the laborers heeded his cry, and escaped fatal injury. The others, thinking evidently that the overflow was a slight one similar to those, which occur frequently at the furnaces, pressed against the side of the pit, and were caught in the awful flood.

London, May 6.—Herman Dick of Chicago will sail for New York on May 7 after an eight months' sojourn here, where here promoted Thomas Edison in forming a company to utilize Mr. Edison's patent for extracting iron ore and profitably working the vast deposits on the west coast of Norway.

The company has a capital of £2,000,000. Its stockholders include all the principal British ironmasters.

Mr. Dick says the application of Mr. Edison's discovery will be one of the greatest boons possible to Great Britain. Eighty million tons of crude ore are already available for quarrying.

This will render Great Britain practically independent of American supplies, and will not affect the United States, which is unable to supply its own requirements in this direction.

Nervous and sleepless

There is just one cure and that is plenty of food for the blood and nerves, which is best supplied in Ferrozone, than which no blood builder, nerve tonic or strength producer is better. Ferrozone promotes healthy digestion, which results in improved nutrition. The blood grows rich and red, furnishes stability to the entire system, and the store of nerve force and energy increases daily. A rebuilding of the constitution, new spirits, health and strength, all come from the use of Ferrozone. This marvellous renovator is sold by druggists for 50c. a box, or two boxes for $2.50, or by Ormond & Walsh.

TERRIBLE SLAUGHTER BY CHINESE REBELS

Fugitives From Kwangsi Province Tell of the Killing of Thousands

The Earlier Stories of Bloodshed Have not Been Exaggerated—The Anti-Foreign Element Supreme

Special to The Times.

Victoria, B.C., May 6 — News was brought by the steamer Olympia, which arrived to-day from the Orient, of further success by the Kwangsi rebels. Fugitives who arrived at Canton reported that when Ching Shang Fui was captured more than one thousand people were slaughtered, and that the rebels burned and looted the stores and houses. Terrible slaughter is also reported from other captured towns.

After the capture of Lung Chau, an important point on the Annam border, messengers from the rebels went to the camp of Gen. Ma's Imperial troops and urged them to join the rebels. The messengers stated that the rising was caused in consequence of the oppression of missionaries and converts and also because of the unbearable burden caused by the indemnity. The fugitives say several thousands of the Imperial troops deserted.

It was thought that the stories of bloodshed were exaggerated by panic stricken peasants, who have been running in hundreds from their farms to the walled cities. Investigation showed, however, that the mortality was very great. For days the people of Nanning on the West River have been bringing mutilated corpses of soldiers and villagers ashore and giving them burial. Nearly a thousand bodies have been taken from the river by the boatmen, and still others are floating down the river. The bodies were those of soldiers, rebels and country folks.

The rebellion is strongly anti-foreign, and much hatred is being shown against foreigners because of reports emanating from Canton that the cholera there has been caused by foreigners having poisoned the salt. Big placards have been posted on the walls of that port stating that foreigners have poisoned the rivers and wells as revenge for the Boxer rebellion.

The rebels have an agency at Canton through which a steady supply of arms is being imported into the western part of Kwangsi, the rifles and ammunition being taken up the West River. One large shipment of rifles and ammunition, which was said to have been forwarded from San Francisco, was seized at Canton and confiscated.

Some Chinese of Taichow extracted a boy's eyes, it being given out that Roman Catholic missionaries of the vicinity had offered a large price for them. The report fired the Chinese and they rebelled. Stones were thrown at the British Consulate, and the houses of the foreigners were surrounded by crowds who pelted them with stones. The houses were barricaded by the owners and the rioters kept at a distance with rifles. The British cruiser Arethusa and the German gunboats Luchs and Geier were sent to the scene, and, on their arrival, the rioters dispersed. Those who spread the rumor were arrested by the Tao Tai, when the British Consul asked for explanations, and at once executed. The warships then left and the Chinese began rioting again immediately after their departure. The situation was considered serious.

KITCHENER'S WORK IS STILL PUSHING FORWARD

Peace Negotiations Have not Caused Any Cessation in Slaying and Capture of Boers

London, May 7.—Lord Kitchener's weekly report, dated from Pretoria yesterday, shows that the peace movement is not allowed to interfere with military operations, except so far as to permit of unrestrained meetings between the leaders and their various commands. The week's Boer casualties were ten men killed and 123 made prisoners.

General Bruce Hamilton's columns captured 87 men on the Heilbron Orange River Colony line. Colonel Colenbrander has resumed operations in the northern part of the Transvaal against Commandant Beyers, whose forces have been considerably reduced, and General Ian Hamilton has cleared a large area west of Klerksdorp, South-western Transvaal.

RELIEF FORCE HAS FIGHTING.

Cape Town, May 7.—The O'Kiep, Western Cape Colony, relief column has occupied to the north of O'Okiep, which was strongly held by the Boers, after fighting. April 27 and April 28. The British lost six men killed, and had eight wounded. The Boer losses are said to have been heavy. The Boers asked for British medical assistance.

STAMPS WITH KINGS HEAD.

The first Transvaal stamps bearing the portrait of King Edward were issued on April 1st, and the first to arrive in Toronto was received yesterday. They are very handsome in appearance and bear the head of King Edward in vignette as on the new English stamps, on a black background, with an ornamental frame postage and revenue at the sides, and the value in each corner, with a crown at the top of the vignette and beneath the word "Transvaal," with a black background. The colors are as follows:—1-2 green; 1d, carmine; 3d, mauve; 2 1-2, blue; 6d, orange; 1s, olive green; 5s, brown. Local philatelists are much pleased with them.

BLADED GRASS THEIR SHELTER.

Montreal, May 7.—A letter was received in the city this morning from Lieut.-Col. Cameron, D.S.O., of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, written the day after the fight at Kleinhart's River, in which the Canadians so distinguished themselves. He says—

"Easter Sunday morning, about 3 o'clock we left Harmonifontein with 2,000 mounted men. We covered fully thirty miles before coming in contact with the enemy who numbering over 2,000. We gave chase for at least ten miles more, to where we expected to camp for the night, a point we reached about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. We had hardly taken off our saddles before the enemy was seen surrounding our camp at a distance of 2,000 yards, completely hemming us in. Two troops of one of my squadrons (I was in command of three) had not yet come into camp, and were cut off by the Boers and lost heavily.

FOUGHT VICIOUSLY.

They fought viciously, with only the bladed grass as shelter, their courage was of the veritable bulldog type, and under no circumstances could they be compelled to surrender. They held their ground until almost every man had been killed or wounded.

The few survivors were stripped and sent in to us naked. We fought hard for two hours and managed at last to beat off the Boers, who greatly outnumbered us. Our men at once began extending themselves, fearing a night attack, and they did their work so well that no living force could have dislodged them from the position they held. The British loss in the engagement was about 150 killed and wounded, while the Boers, it is estimated, lost over three hundred. Our green men did splendid work and proved themselves to be wonderfully adapted for the conditions under which the battle was fought. As a veteran of the early stages of the war, I can say, that in severity, in the number of skirmishes, in hard fighting, and in privations, the campaign I am now passing through greatly exceeds my past experience.

FOOT SOLDIERS NOW MOUNTED

London, May 7.—Reuter's special correspondent at Klerksdorp, who accompanied Colonel Rawlinson's column in the last big drive of Delarey, writes in high terms of the splendid conduct of the men engaged, and especially of the Regular Mounted Infantry. He says—

The great feature of the drive was the magnificent spirit and endurance of the men. It is a most pleasing trait in the character of our soldiers that the bigger the call that is made on them, the readier the response. Take them an ordinary twenty miles' march with no fighting and they will grumble. Give them a heavy fight or ask them to beat a record, and they are as cheery as schoolboys. It is a wonderful thing to me to see the same men whom I saw at infantry drill not long ago do cavalry work almost as well as the most experienced cavalrymen.

It is different to leave the subject without a reference to the work of the Regular Mounted Infantry. There seems to be an idea abroad that the army is composed of small units of infantry thrown into a lump together with a horse and a bandolier, and dubbed a mounted infantry battalion. There may have been a time when this was partly true, but it no longer holds good. We have now in the field battalions of mounted infantry which have made for themselves a tradition, and possess an esprit de corps unsurpassed by any of our crack regiments. They are proud to a degree of their mounted infantry badge, and can never return to the humdrum of infantry work. There is a great feeling both among the men and the officers that at least the first eight original battalions should become permanent. A great percentage of the men are willing to serve the twelve years if they can remain mounted, but will leave the army the moment the war is over if their time is up, and they are expected to return to their regiment. These battalions have made themselves a name and to disband them back into their different infantry regiments would be a loss to the army which only those who have served out here can properly appreciate.

TWO WARS.

There may have been design on the part of some leading men in the United States in directing the attention of humane and emotional people to the unbearable hardships imposed by war on the Boers. While the attention of the American public was fastened on South Africa, the work of conquering the Filipinos was being pushed vigorously along, and those engaged in this task were not hampered by any such powerful criticism as was directed constantly against the British operating in South Africa.

When both wars are concluded it will be found that the truth cannot be corked in a bottle. Truth confined will burst forth with a loud report, and crimes, cruelties, deeds of injustice done in either war will come to the knowledge of the world.

The alert sympathy of various nations has been given to the Boers, and the war in South Africa has been fought under the watchful eyes of all the jealous powers of Europe, so that it is very unlikely that much that was discreditable to the British remains to be exposed.

But the nations of Europe did not keep watchful eyes on the Filipino war. Even the restraining influence of American public opinion failed to operate on the troops in the field, because this influence was turned in another direction, was enlisted in behalf of the Boers, while the conquest of the Filipinos was proceeded with unwatched and uncriticised.

More than a year ago this paper called attention to some of the letters sent home from the Philippines by Canadians serving in Uncle Sam's army, which undoubtedly revealed the fact that the American troops were doing about whatever they liked in the country they passed through. In one case a lieutenant, angered by resistance, destroyed a town by fire. One Canadian related approvingly how a native, suspected of stealing a rifle, was taken into the woods by the soldiers, stripped, and made to run the gauntlet, the men using their belts on him with such effect that he was scarcely able to crawl over the ground when they had done with him. There are later revelations more repulsive by far, but all going to show that there has been little discipline enforced by the army of occupation in the [illegible] respect for the lives, persons, or property of the Filipinos. All this will come out in time. When the heavy hand of militarism is lifted the natives will find their chronicler. Europeans will venture to tell what they know, and even American witnesses will stand forward and speak in the cause of mankind.

A certain pompous and officious judge in a western town had just fined a young lawyer $10 for contempt of court. After it had been paid a grave old attorney walked up to the bench and laid down a $10 gold piece.

"What is that for?" asked the Judge.

"For contempt, your Honor," was the reply.

"But I didn't fine you for contempt," answered the Judge. "There must be some mistake."

"Oh, no, there isn't," replied the old man. "I have cherished a secret contempt for this court for a long time, and I'm willing to pay for it."—[illegible]

Must be There Early.

The chosen few who will find seats in the Abbey on Coronation Day are planning their arrangements for this day far ahead of time, and with the greatest precision. One lady, according to The Daily Mail, has already given orders to her hairdresser to be with her at 6 o'clock on the morning of the eventful day. When Queen Victoria was crowned many of those in attendance at the Abbey were compelled to leave their homes at 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning. London is more than twice as large now as it was 65 years ago, and the difficulties of locomotion on such an occasion will be proportionately greater. Moreover, there are few now who will remember witnessing a previous coronation, none who are well past the three score and ten mark. While in 1838 middle-aged people would easily recollect the coronations of Victoria's two immediate predecessors, Wm. IV. and George IV. The King himself is said to be paying great attention to the details of the coronation procession, and it will doubtless prove a pageant worthy of comparison with the gorgeous scenes that have marked the most notable coronations of the past. One of the most famous of these was the coronation procession of Elizabeth, when England dared once more to breathe freely after the horrors of Mary's reign, and the young and charming Queen—charming at least by comparison—was received by her people with a spontaneity of enthusiasm that had been absent at the costly pageantry that attended her melancholy middle-aged sister. Elizabeth herself had been present at Mary's coronation procession, and had sat in her litter, clad in "a goune of purple velvet, furred with powdered ermine, having on her head a kale of cloth of tinsell beset with pearl and stone, and above the same upon her head a round circle of gold beset so richly with pretius stones that the value thereof was inestimable, the same kale and circle being so massie and ponderous that she was fain to beare up her head with her hand." Five years later, at her own coronation in 1558, Elizabeth made her progress from the Tower to Westminster "richly furnished and most honourably accompanied, as well, with the nobilitie of the realme, as also with a notable trayne of goodly and bewtifull ladies richly appoynted." On her entry into the city she was "of the people received marveylous entirely, as appeared by the assemblie, prayers, wishes, welcomings, cryes, tender woordes, and all other signs which argue a wonderfull earnest love"; to all of which tokens of good-will Elizabeth responded "by holding up her handes and merie countenance to such as stoode farre off, and most tender and gentle language to those that stoode nigh to her Grace did declare herself no lesse thankfullye to receive her people's good wyll than they lovingly offered it unto her." Her graciousness was extended to the humblest of the people. "If the baser personages had offered her Grace any flowers or such like as a signification of their good wyll, or moved to her any suit, she most gently, to the common rejoysing of all the lookers on, staid her chariot and heard theyr requests." Thus she passed on amid pageants innumerable through the city, "whiche withoute any forreyne persone of itself beautifyed itself."

The Soldier's Paper.

I was handed the other day some copies of a queer little South African paper, "The Northern Post and Border News," printed at Aliwal North, in Cape Colony. It is printed chiefly for circulation among the soldiers, and Tommy Atkins is only too glad, they say, to buy them at the rate of sixpence each. They are somewhat high at the price, for there is very little news in them. The papers are printed only on one side, and the whole of the matter is contained in one or two columns, and in large type at that. The only news printed, apart from rigidly censored Reuter's despatches relating either to military operations in South Africa or to proceedings in England immediately associated with the war, are the latest prices of Rand shares, and the result of the English-Australian cricket matches in England. So are the three incongruous elements of war, commerce and sport brought under the soldier's eye in the same column. Yet the first place and the biggest type are given to the statement that "when stumps were drawn for the day only four wickets were disposed of, and the score stood at 650 runs. Evidently Kipling's attack on cricketers finds little sympathy in the army, in whose behalf it was in a sense written. "The Islanders" are still islanders, and Kipling will hardly succeed in changing their nature. In the biggest type in the little paper of Feb. 6 last the words, "Bad News! Bad News!" in letters an inch and a half high, catch the eye, and give a momentary impression that the censorship cannot be so rigid after all, when headlines like this are put over British reverses. The second line, "Slaughter of the Innocents," suggests a somewhat flippant view of a presumably serious situation, but that is only what we have been taught to expect of Tommy. Reading on, however, we find the old, familiar phrases: "We must evacuate our present premises. Now's your chance," etc., etc. "Come early and do not miss this last and only opportunity." It is only a dry goods merchants' slaughter, after all. But the name at the foot of the advertisement is instructive. It is not Saxon or Celtic, but good sound Dutch, two of them, in fact, viz., Rascher, Kount & Co. These burghers are not so slow after all at improving their opportunities or copying our own most advanced business methods. One of the advertisements, printed in both English and Dutch, is signed by S. R. French, Postmaster-General of Cape Colony, and calls for tenders for posts between Aliwal North and Jamestown. Apparently there is no great rush for the work, the advertisement starting "No satisfactory tender having been received," etc. Driving a mail cart in this region just now is probably a line of work that presents unusually favorable opportunities for being potted by some odd member of a stray commando.

A Classification.

Henry Thomas Buckle's thoughts and conversation were always on a high level. Once he remarked: "Men and women range themselves into three classes, or orders, of intelligence; you can tell the lowest class by their habit of always talking about persons; the next by the fact that their habit is always to converse about things; the highest by their preference for the discussion of ideas."

⁂

"What is a Captain of Industry?" asked the boy who is going to be very wise some day.

"It is a term that is applied to the head of a great monopoly when he is at a banquet."

"And what is a robber Baron?"

"It's the same thing when he is in politics."—Washington Star.

Struggles of a Newspaper.

The Pall Mall Gazette gives the following interesting sketch of the ups and downs of The London Daily News, which is being run under its new proprietors without the usual betting column, and which will also refuse to report all sports other than those of a clean and healthy character:—

"Mr. Cadbury's programme for his new 'Daily News' has reminded me of the introductory article of that journal's first editor, which appeared in its first number on Wednesday, January 21, 1846. 'We seek at once,' Dickens wrote, 'to preserve our own self-respect, and to be respected, for ourselves, and for it, by our readers.' Interesting, too, is the list of original proprietors of the 'D.N.' It comprised Bradbury & Evans, Sir William Jackson, Sir Joshua Walmsley, and Sir Joseph Paxton. They had at their back a capital of £100,000, paid up and underwritten. They were to pay Dickens £2,000 a year, and the salaries of the staff were liberal in proportion.

"Many, too, were the earlier occupants of the editorial chair. After Dickens, who sat there for seventeen days, came Forster, Eyre Evans Crowe, Knight Hunt, William Weir, Thomas Walker, F. H. Hill, H. W. Lucy. Mr. Lucy's first year of office was his last. The names of those who have succeeded him are more familiar."

Best Breed of Fowls.

There is no best breed of fowls. That claim is chiefly made by sellers and secretaries of specialty clubs for every breed that exists. "Best on earth" blasts can always be found in a certain class of poultry journals. Then there are honest but mistaken opinions expressed by those who, having kept one breed under conditions unfitting that breed, have discarded it and substituted another breed for which the conditions were fitting, and, consequently, better results were obtained. Strains vary much; individuals vary more than any intrinsic differences between breeds.

Some breeders have bred and selected their birds of one breed for many years, with due regard to utility; other breeders have bred and selected the same breed for many years with no regard to anything save feathers, markings, combs and color of shanks and eyes.

To a certain small extent housing must be different for different breeds. For small, lean, active, lightly-feathered birds the houses need to be somewhat warmer in winter than is necessary for large, phlegmatic, heavily-feathered birds.

To a somewhat greater extent, freedom to forage must be greater for one breed than is necessary for another. The small, nervous, active birds do not thrive well under close confinement, and generally the possibility of thrift under confinement is directly proportional to the size of the breed.

It must be admitted that birds, even of largest breeds, that have been reared in freedom will not do well in close confinement; also that fertility of eggs for any breed largely depends on fresh air and exercise in fresh air.

But it is in feeding that the greatest changes are required. All fowls should be compelled to make full use of any foraging opportunities. The full day's rations for fowls of one size and equal activity need to be, in amount and proportion of nutriments, such as fit the climatic conditions of the time or place. And the amount of total food, proportions of proteins, carbon-hydrates and fats must be different for birds of other sizes and degrees of activity.

Young Canada Grain Culture.

The last annual report of the Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion is remarkably interesting reading generally, but more especially where it refers to the progress that is being made by young Canadians along the lines of practical grain culture. With a view to stimulating increased interest in the growing and systematic selection of seed grain, a competition among boys and girls living on Canadian farms was started in the spring of 1900. To encourage them in this work, Sir William C. Macdonald of Montreal donated the sum of $10,000 to be given in cash prizes, according to plans which were arranged by Professor Robinson. These prizes are distributed under the supervision of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The competitors in the seed grain competition are growing seed grain on specially prepared plots of land, one-quarter of an acre in each plot, selecting seed each year from these plots to sow on the plot for the succeeding year. They gather large, well-filled heads from vigorous plants before the grain is cut and after all the conditions of growth have been observed, and then thresh these heads. By screening and hand-picking the large, well-developed grain, from these selected heads, the seed for next year's seed-grain plot is secured. This came and manner of selecting seed has now been conducted for two years on over eight hundred Canadian farms, which are fairly well distributed throughout the Dominion.

The expressions of appreciation which have been received from the parents and teachers of many of the boys and girls who have undertaken the work of managing a seed grain plot have been most gratifying. The nature study connected with the selection of seed-grain, according to the system followed, is as helpful as it is interesting. There can be no doubt, as Professor Robertson has stated elsewhere, that a systematic continued selection of seed-grain from the most vigorous and productive plants in the plots will lead to great improvement in the crops throughout the whole of the country. The educational influence of the seed-grain competition is exerting a wholesome effect upon boys and girls whose school years are nearly ended, and who may never again be offered an inducement sufficient to awaken and to develop a liking for a careful and educational study of nature and nature's methods. This "Progressive agriculture" branch of the Macdonald Manual Training fund is growing in influence and usefulness; and there is good reason to anticipate with confidence that it will prove of perpetual advantage to Canada, not only through the improvement of seed-grain, but also through the increased intelligence and enlarged abilities of the boys and girls who have taken part in the competitions.

The Veal Age.

This is assuredly the Veal Age in literature. People no longer ask about an author, How old is he? but How young is he—or she, as is usually the case. Of the writers on the staff of Josh, Gosh & Co. 65 per cent. are under the age of twenty-one, and 25 per cent. are under sixteen years. Sixty-eight per cent. of these write historical romances and 32 per cent. write in the colonial style.—"Book Reader."

"Don't Speak

To the motorman," is a sign to be seen on the front platform of many cars. It requires all his thought, all his energy and all his strength to pilot his car through crowded streets. The strain tells on him, and some when he gets "rattled" and has an accident. The surest way to sustain the physical strength and nervous force required by the motorman or railroad man is to keep the stomach in a condition of sound health. When the stomach becomes "weak," food is imperfectly digested and the body is deprived of its necessary nourishment. The nerves are "unstrung" and the body is weakened.

The timely use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery when the stomach is "weak" will re-establish the body in vigorous health. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, nourishes the nerves and purifies the blood.

"I suffered for four years with pain in my stomach so that at times I couldn't work nor eat," writes Mr. Frank Smith, of Granite, Chaffee Co., Colo. "I wrote to you about my sickness and was told to use your medicine, which I did with good results. I only used four bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and must say that I am entirely cured, and feel like a new man, and I can highly recommend your medicine to any sufferer."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

In the Jaws of the Fire.

THE risks that firemen take are an everlasting wonder, even though almost every paper contains stories of their bravery. But the man behind the fire-engine—apparently he has only to keep his machine going, and is as safe as the man who pulls the lever of an upright "donkey." The story of Bill Brown, as told by Mr. Cleveland Moffett in "Careers of Daring and Danger," shows that the engineer's bravery is sometimes put to tests as severe as those which the hoseman or the ladderman ever has to endure.

What happened was this: Engine 33, pumping her prettiest, stood at the corner so near the drug-house that the driver thought it wasn't safe for the horses, and led them away. That left Brown alone, against the cheek of the fire, watching his boiler and keeping his steam-gage at seventy-five.

As the fire gained, chunks of red-hot sandstone began to crash down on the engine. Brown ran his pressure up to eighty, and watched the door anxiously where the four firemen from his squad had gone into the furnace.

Then an explosion of chemicals in the building sent a flame wide as a house curling across the street, enwrapping engine and man, and setting fire to the elevated railway station overhead. Bill Brown stood by his engine with a sheet of fire above him. He heard footsteps on the pavement and voices that grew fainter, crying, "Run for your lives!" He was alone, and the skin on his hands, face and neck was blistered.

Brown knew why everyone was running. There would be another explosion. It was tolerably certain that he must die if he stayed. But his four chums were in the fire and needed the water. If he quit his engine the water would fail.

He stoked in coal and ran the gage up another notch, easing the running parts with the oiler. He was offering his life for his friends.

In a few minutes the four firemen came out of the building. Then Bill Brown ran for his life with his comrades. A second or two later Engine 33 was crushed by the falling walls.

Afraid to Repeat the Dose.

A local clergyman was engaged in conversation with a number of friends the other day, says the Duluth "News Tribune," when each started telling stories of weddings he had performed. One of the party had this to offer:

Some time ago a great big fellow, roughly dressed, and a wee mite of a young woman came to him. They had no witnesses, and, in fact, did not care to have any. Nevertheless a bridesmaid and groomsman were selected from the household, and the ceremony began. They had promised to love and obey and all the rest of the service, when the preacher announced: "Kiss the bride."

The groom, on bended knee, hesitated a little, tried to say something and couldn't.

"Kiss the bride," said the pastor.

"Why, parson, I did, afore I come here at all," replied the groom, whose face had taken the color of a June sun.

An English Departure in Insurance.

A CORRESPONDENT writing from London under date of February 13 says: "One queer phase of the present smallpox scare is the smallpox insurance department opened at Lloyd's. The current rates are 3 1-2 per cent. if recently vaccinated, and 5 1-2 if not vaccinated since infancy. The insurance becomes due on the doctor's certificate that the policy-holder has smallpox." He adds: "After jogging along comfortably with smallpox in its midst for six months, London is now beginning to get worried, and a large contributing cause of that worry is that if the plague spreads much more it is going to frighten away the profitable American cousin, who is expected to come over in unprecedented shoals for the coronation season and scatter dollars right and left. Trouble began away back in August, and has been slowly growing, off and on, ever since, until the average lately has been about 50 new cases a day. One day last week it ran up to 81. There were 105 new cases in September, 300 in October, 473 in November, 804 in December and 1,335 in January. Yet, according to previous experience, smallpox reaches its height in London from January to May. Consequently it would be well for readers planning a trip to see King Edward's crown put on to watch the smallpox returns from London for the next four or five weeks. At present the plague can be said to be well under control, but a big sudden increase would tax London's resources to the utmost and might cause a panic."

"What are you going to paint on this dazzling white canvas, may I ask?"

"That is a finished painting, miss. It is entitled, 'The Snow Storm.'"

"Why, so it is! How stupid of me! Isn't it beautiful?"—Chicago Tribune.

THE CHEAPEST BOOKSTORE IN TOWN | THE TIMES BOOK-STORE MARKET BLOCK. | NEW SPRING NOVELTIES JUST RECEIVED

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE.

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices.

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.

WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive [illegible].

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the [illegible] scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD
WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

My lady, the chatelaine, wove in beautiful designs and embroideries the tapestries from which we have borrowed some beautiful ideas in our wall paper.

My lady of 1902 will find many things in our stock to her liking.

OUR PRICES ARE FROM 10 TO 40 PER CENT. CHEAPER THAN ELSEWHERE.

A Visit to a Saint Factory.

WHAT lends a peculiar interest to a visit to such a factory, writes a contributor to "Pearson's Magazine," is the curious suggestion of humor which, in one's conversation with the workmen and employees, comes to relieve the deep sense of awe and reverence which at all times weighs upon one.

I remember that, having contemplated, not without a painful feeling in my breast, the most lamentable figure of an old man in monk's attire, whose hands were pierced, whose side was pierced, and from whose furrowed brow large drops of blood were trickling down, I asked a passing workman to tell me whom the statue represented. And he called to a fellow-workman: "Who is that old gent up there?" It was St. Francis d'Assisi. The painful feeling was for a while dispelled. This was but a figure after all, an article of trade. And so also, when one hears the clerks calling through the telephones: "When is that St. Maurice coming down?" "Five St. Anthonys, with their pigs, wanted at once." And so on. There is not a vestige of irreverence in these remarks, but, as I say, they are not without a most welcome suggestion of humor.

For, indeed, the terrible realism of many of these statues must impress even the most indifferent. I could not refrain from asking the maker of saints why he allowed his artists to carry the horrible to such extremes. Here was a St. Jean de Dieu succoring a leper, on whose body the modeller had not omitted one of the horrid signs of that most foul of maladies. Here was a writhing St. Sebastian streaming with blood. Here a chained woman in the flames of purgatory extended her anguished hands.

"We export very largely to South America," said Monsieur Pacheu, "and it is necessary that, to impress the imaginations of the people there—who are indifferent, as a rule, to suffering—we should strike hard. Yet in none of our figures is truth surpassed. That leper is studied from life. These horrid bruises were copied from a corpse."

A Cheerful Prophecy.

THE animal that cannot be trained to keep its wits about it on the approach of a motor car must disappear. Its stupidity, filth, sloth, fear of everything and useless size prove to the most conservative that it must go. The horse that will not stand a motor car may be the delight of its owner, but it is a public nuisance and a public danger, and ought to be shot like a mad dog. Horsemen have no right to bring unmanageable brutes into the public highways, to the public danger, and it is time this elementary justice should be recognized. The motor is going to become the means of locomotion for all light transit, and by the ordinary roads as they exist to-day. It is the pedestrian and the horse that have got to give way. The horse in traffic, if he chooses to bolt, is uncontrollable. The motor, from the lightest bicycle to the heaviest car, is perfectly controllable, occupies half the space, and travels now through the congested streets at double and treble the speed of any horse-drawn vehicle. The only thing the two have in common is that at times they both refuse to go.

The unobservant talk of the accidents that would happen. The accidents will be a great deal fewer in number. A conclusive proof of this, to any one with any sense, is the fact that in the thousand miles tour no one, I believe, was hurt, though the roads were lined with spectators. In the race from Paris to Berlin, three days, and the tour around Italy, ten days, but two children were killed, the result entirely of their own carelessness or that of their parents. Suppose, for a moment, that in France a hundred and ten teams, or, rather, droves, of horses—there were a hundred and ten motors—ranging from fifty in a bunch down to two—this was the horse-power of the machines—had been let loose and driven at top speed for three days on the public roads. Will anyone tell me that thousands of people would not have been killed, that hundreds of drivers would not have lost their lives as well? But that would have been described as sport. . . . The only danger to be feared from the motor car is to its own driver, the only drawback is its own imperfection. Read the reports of automobile accidents: proportionately, there are far fewer than from any other form of locomotion, and in nine cases out of ten the accident occurs to the driver or the occupant of the car; in the tenth case it is owing to the stupidity or the carelessness of the person who gets in front. The average pedestrian has simply got to learn to keep out of the way, and that is the end of it.—Joseph Pennell in "Contemporary Review."

The caller had a grievance.

"That communication I sent you yesterday," he said, "was signed 'Hero Ance' as plainly as the words could be written. You printed it in your paper this morning 'Onean.'"

"I know it," replied the editor. "We didn't intend there should be any more onean."

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty, Willful Gaynell, Little Leafy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

It was after the garden- party was over that Katy found time to slip down to the old oak tree on the lawn for a moment —that was the request made in the note.

Charlie Smith was already there, pacing impatiently up and down with a quick, nervous tread.

Katy stole up to him, placing a little white hand on his arm. He started back with a fierce oath, that made the girl recoil with a cry of terror.

"Oh, is it you, Katy?" he cried angry enough with himself for his awkward mistake. "I—I— thought it was one of your blue-coated police— come to arrest me for being found prowling about the grounds. I really beg your pardon."

Katy's anger was easily appeased.

Very adroitly he brought the conversation around to the subject uppermost in his mind —the grand guests at the garden party — commenting on the different styles of beauty, the elaborate costumes, and the jewels that would have purchased a king's ransom which were worn.

"You would look like a princess if you were dressed like one young girl I saw there, Katy," he said, eagerly; "she was fair —marvelously fair with curling hair like spun gold, and eyes like blue hyacinths; she wore a pale azure-blue silk dress dotted with silver stars, and over all was a cloud of tulle, caught here and there with diamond sprays. Diamonds glowed on her breast and ran like a river of fire around the firm white throat, and gleamed in the shell-like ears."

Katy interrupted him with a petulant little laugh, full of malice and jealousy, declaring he must have watched the lady very closely indeed to have noticed all that.

"She was so much like you I could not help it Katy," he said, humbly. "I was thinking how true it is that 'fine feathers make fine birds.'"

"I know who it is you mean," replied Katy, easily flattered; "pretty Mrs. Hamilton, they call her — she lives in that large villa on the corner of the avenue."

"Mrs.— she is married then?" said her companion, abruptly, his face darkening with wrath.

"Why, of course she is!" said Katy, thinking this a fine opportunity to spur this laggard lover on; "pretty women do not remain long in the market, I can tell you."

But his thoughts were elsewhere— he had not even heard this deft speech.

"Who is she married to, did you say?" he asked abruptly.

"They call her husband Mr. Alexander Hamilton," she replied. "She was only a poor girl when he married her—so he married her for love, for he was quite rich himself. Afterward a fortune was left to her by the death of an uncle, they say. So she is a great heiress now in her own right —worth nearly a million of money."

"Worth nearly a million of money in her own right!" he repeated, with a gasp; "are you quite sure of this, girl?"

"Why, one would think the subject of interest to you," pouted Katy.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"An Heiress —What a mad Fool I was to Desert Her!"

Harold St. Johns face whitened. Ah, how little the girl knew how vitally the subject interested him.

An heiress in her own right, and the knowledge that she had wedded Alexander Hamilton, his bitterest foe, nearly overpowered him.

"How dared she do it?" he asked himself, his wrath rising higher and higher at the very thought.

The idea came to him that no doubt she had heard of his claiming Miss Ruthven as the bride of that weird marriage, and had taken advantage of it; thinking, in the face of that, he would never dare claim her.

He bade Katy a hasty good night— he had found out all he cared to know —and had hurriedly taken his leave.

The girl watched him out of sight with tears of mortification in her eyes.

"What made him so cold to me?" she mused. "Is he tiring of me? I almost think he fell in love with that grand young lady at the garden party, young Mrs. Hamilton, and he is put out to find that she is married."

Her brows darkened and her eyes flashed fire.

"I will follow him about, myself unseen, and find out for myself," she muttered, with bitter jealousy. "He shall see that he cannot make love to Katy Barrett and whistle her down the wind like that."

Daisy had gone home from the garden party in a tremor of excitement. Harold St. John was in the city, she was liable to meet him at any moment; no wonder the coldness of death struck to her heart at the very thought.

But forewarned is forearmed— she would be on the lookout for him, and he would not cross her path if she saw him first.

"How abstracted you are, my darling," said Aleck, looking at her beautiful face flushing and paling so strangely in the bright white moonlight. "Did you enjoy yourself?"

"No," she answered, leaning wearily back among the velvet cushions, "the great crush was tiresome."

"Who would have thought of meeting Lillian Ruthven away out here— or rather 'Lillian St. John?'" mused Aleck, "and how terribly altered the girl is, yet no one can wonder at that. The only thing I can blame the girl for, is not standing by that fellow in the hour of his adversity. She married him for better or for worse —she should not have deserted him even when she found out his true character."

"But if she did not love him, Aleck? If she married him in a thoughtless moment— repenting it at the very altar after the horrible words were spoken?" she cried, piteously.

"Then that was not love— a sort of infatuation," he replied, adding, "we will not discuss the question, it seems to affect you so; we must not allow other people's troubles to cast a gloom over us. You must make the most of your time here, my dear, I am called away on the twenty-fourth of this month, and you are to accompany me."

She drew a long breath, faint with joy. Aleck would take her away on the twenty-fourth— ah, how good heaven was to her.

But should she go? That was the stern question that reverted to her mind in the dead watches of the night —should she, the only human being on the face of the earth who could set Lillian Ruthven free from the Caught in a Stampede.

TWO years ago, when the cowboys of north-eastern Arizona came together to find out who was the "best man" in various ways, James Evans won the steer-tying championship by roping, throwing and tying a vicious steer in twenty-four seconds. But in a recent round-up the champion did a more remarkable thing, by which, says the Kansas City "Star," he saved his own and another man's life.

While he and some companions were camping for the night on a high tableland, which ended a few miles away in an abrupt drop of two hundred feet, a storm swept through the mountains. Made nervous by the lightning, the herd of fifteen hundred cattle stampeded in the direction of the precipice. Evans and his men mounted hurriedly and, circling to the front of the maddened cattle, tried with whoops and revolver-shots to turn them back.

In the dense blackness of the night Evans's horse missed his footing and went down in a heap, one leg in a gopher-hole. The horse of a cowboy named Davis, running close behind, stumbled over Evans's horse, and Davis, too, came to earth and lay still, unconscious.

Fifty yards away came the herd, and a short flash of lightning showed Evans the situation. The swiftly moving sea of cattle reached one hundred yards each way. Unable to arouse Davis, and never thinking of leaving his disabled comrade, Evans took the only chance of saving both. He emptied his own revolver and his companion's into the center of the herd, cutting a breach in the front of the mass. Then, throwing the inanimate form of Davis over his shoulder, he awaited his opportunity.

As one of the leaders brushed by, Evans, with one movement, put the body of Davis across the shoulders of the steer, and mounted, also. Vainly the animal leaped, bucked and side-jumped. With his legs wrapped tightly around the body of his mount, Evans drove his spurs deep in, and held himself and Davis in place.

The steer, wild with rage, agony and fright, rapidly left the herd in the rear, and, veering to the right in a furious gallop, carried his riders out of danger. Then Evans rolled off the back of his strange rescuer, and a half-hour later, when his cowboys turned the herd at the rim of the canyon, and rode back to look for the foreman and Davis, they found them, both unconscious. The weary steer, with his sides covered with blood, lay exhausted a short distance away.

The outfit ordered a medal for Evans, and the steer has been pensioned for life on the best alfalfa in the valley.

A Revolutionary Age.

Soulless corporations, heartless coquettes and conscienceless rascals of various sorts we have had with us now these many years, and it looks very much now as if a kind of providence was about to even things up a little by providing us with such useful contrivances as wireless telegraphy, heatless light, smokeless powder, boneless shad and seedless oranges. If some genius will rise up now and give us a breed of biteless dogs and stingless mosquitoes, together with some loseless umbrellas and spendless cash, we shall all be happy and content.—"Leslie's Weekly."

When to Get Married.

The astrologers, it is said, have named the following as propitious dates for marriages for 1902: January 2, 4, 11, 19 and 21; February 1, 3, 10, 19 and 21; March 3, 5, 12, 20 and 28; April 2, 4, 12, 20 and 22; May 2, 4, 12, 20 and 28; June 1, 3, 11, 19 and 21; July 1, 3, 12, 19, 21 and 31; August 2, 11, 12, 20 and 30; September 1, 9, 16, 18 and 28; October 1, 8, 16, 17, 27 and 29; November 5, 11, 12, 20 and 25; December 1, 8, 10, 19, 28 and 29.

The Monk's Knowledge of Women.

AN interesting story comes from the French Alps of Dauphiny relating the futile efforts of the Princess of Croy, who desired to enter the monastery of the Grande Chartreuse, a habitation from which women visitors are rigidly excluded.

The story runs that the Princess dressed herself in boy's clothes and accompanied her husband to the institution. The gates were opened to them, and the Prince sent his card to the father superior, with a line to the effect that he was accompanied by a friend.

Just as they were about to make the round of the building the word was received that the father would like to see the Prince and "his friend." Going upstairs they were received by the smiling monk, who cordially invited them to join him in an appetizing luncheon. The Princess endeavored to make the best of the situation, but she was not put any the more at her ease by the fact that the monk kept gazing sharply at her.

At last he exclaimed suddenly: "Catch it, young man!" at the same time throwing at her a large pear. The Princess was startled, and, thrown completely off her guard, made a motion to grab up her skirt, the absence of which she overlooked in her confusion.

Then the father stopped smiling and said with great gravity:

"I beg your pardon, madam, but ladies are not allowed in the monastery. I must ask you to wait outside until the Prince has finished his inspection."

And outside she had to go, the reverend father bowing her from the room with most elaborate politeness.

The Democracy of Children.

ONE amusing trait in children is their unconscious democracy. They are nearly always democratic when permitted any latitude. The desire for playmates levels some of caste, if any exists. On a street through which I often pass there is a coterie of children who blend with the most thorough harmony, although they are of quite different social strata. One of the boys is a "smart" young gentleman in knickerbockers, always well groomed; another is a little Italian; a third, the thin, restless, wide awake son of a housekeeper. One of the little girls is a negress, with her woolly hair standing out from her head in thin curved-up tails. She is quite a belle in this "mixed" company.—Harper's "Bazar."

Forty per cent. of the people of the United States are farmers, or living upon farms. These farmers produce enough to feed and clothe themselves and the other sixty per cent. of the inhabitants, and annually send away one billion dollars' worth of surplus products to other countries. Yet there are people who say farming doesn't pay.

Light Hogs.

A good many farmers in eastern Ontario are still adhering to the very foolish policy of marketing hogs that are too light in weight, and quite unsuitable for packing purposes. The Geo. Matthews Co., Limited, report that during the month of January their receipts of hogs graded as follows:—Selects, 1,296; light, 1,840; light fats, 690; heavy fats, 27; sows, 40; stags, 6; cripples, 21; stores, 123; a total of 4,154 hogs, of which only 1,296, or about 33 per cent., were suitable for the manufacture of first-class export bacon. If the trade in Canadian bacon is to be increased or even maintained, at its present volume, it is absolutely necessary that only hogs of proper weight and quality be sent to the packing houses. F. W. Hodson,
Live Stock Commissioner.

A Test For Good Butter.

The good housewife who said, "The way to test good butter is to smell it," was surely an expert judge of butter. The fact is that a really good judge of butter seldom tastes it but depends rather upon the senses of smell and sight. The dealer who really knows and deals in good butter can at any time when he is testing a crock or roll of butter, be seen to very carefully pass it in review before his olfactory nerve, and to break it and note the appearance of the broken surface.

The true flavor of butter can be quickly tested in the entirety of a package in this manner, while, if the sense of taste alone were depended upon and the package was not of even quality, the fact might go unnoticed. The quantity of salt in the butter can, of course, only be determined by tasting it. The surface exposed when a package or sample of butter is broken should exhibit what is known as a good grain. That means that it should have a clearly defined granular surface, similar to that found on the broken surface of cast iron of good quality. Do not fail to apply these tests when passing judgment on the quality of butter. Their careful observance and a little practice will make you an expert.—Michigan Farmer.

Clover For Egg Producing.

Experience has demonstrated the value of clover for egg producing time and again. Clover has just the material in it to form egg shell, and hence it becomes an essential part of every ration fed to the chickens. It may not be generally understood that there are nearly thirty pounds of lime contained in each thousand pounds of clover. The chickens fed daily with clover will consequently prove better egg layers than those denied it. The clover hay should be given to chickens in winter in quantities sufficient to satisfy them, and to make them eat more it is desirable sometimes to prepare it in various ways. Cook and chop it up, and mix it with meal or other articles. This will sometimes induce the hens to consume a great amount of clover each day. Cut up into short lengths and mixed with warm mash, and then fed only as fast as the chickens will clean it up each day, is probably the most economical way to feed the clover. Some cut the second crop of clover and place it in the poultry yard for the chickens to eat and scratch over at pleasure. This of itself is all right, but it is rather wasteful. More than half the clover will be lost, and the chickens do not actually eat much more than the leaves. The stalks contain most of the lime, and these should be prepared so the chickens will consume them. Of all foods that can be raised on a farm for poultry, clover is not only the best, but probably the cheapest, and a field of it is as essential to success as a pasture field is necessary to the success of dairying.—Annie C. Webster, in Massachusetts Ploughman.

Just What You Ask For.

Outside the drug store—the store of J. Milhau's Son, at No. 183 Broadway—you may read the announcement at the head of this column, "We give you just what you ask for."

We are glad to seize upon this occasion to pay a tribute to this motto, and, incidentally, to point out a dishonest and very common practice among merchants —that of substituting one article for another.

One business man devotes all his energy, his money and his time to building up the reputation of a certain article. He enables the retailer to make a large profit, and he spends his money that customers may be plentiful.

When a customer asks for the article in question it is dishonest to say to him, as many do:—

"Don't buy that. We have something else just as good and much cheaper."

If the merchant has something good and cheap of his own, let him sell it to his customers by all means. But let him not steal the trade of a man whose energy helps to build up his business. Let him not divert to his own pocket all of the profit which he ought to in honesty share with another.

There are wares that are made enormously profitable to the retailer simply because men push their business with intelligence and perseverance. It is ungrateful as well as dishonest for the sake of a little extra profit to cut into the legitimate business of the advertising manufacturer.

Incidentally, the public, as well as the storekeeper and the manufacturer, are interested in this question of substituting one article for another.

That which is represented as "just as good" is usually not just as good, but very far from it.

If a man has spent a million dollars building up the reputation of a certain article, it is to his advantage to keep up the quality of the material which enters into the manufacture of that article. His profit is large if he is honestly treated, and it would be suicide for him to use inferior material for the sake of a little extra money.

The man who makes up an imitation article and announces it as "just as good" has no such sum at stake. He has invested nothing. He has no valuable name to ruin, and it is to his interest to make the "just as good" article just as cheap as he can make it.

The buyer should remember these facts and put his confidence in that retailer who, like the man quoted at the head of this article, gives to the customer just what he asks for, treats the wholesaler honestly, and shows gratitude for the energy which builds up a successful business and makes the retailer prosperous.—From The New York Journal. Issued by the Association of American Advertisers.

Curious Bits of News.

The number of retail liquor dealers in the United States at the close of last year was 205,000. The total vote of the Prohibition party in the election of the same year was 208,000.

In the bottom of a strawberry-box opened at Hutchinson, Kan., the other day, the following note was found written on the smooth wood: "I am Cora Marsh, aged sixteen, of Logan, Mo. Never been kissed."

A man in Ray County, Mo., became convinced recently that he had incipient consumption. Every time he drew a full breath he heard a crackling sound. A doctor discovered that the crackling sound was made by a small buckle on his suspender.

A curious old custom was recently revived at Great Oakley, England, where parish lands were let by "pin in candle." The local clergyman presided. A pin is inserted in a burning candle, and so long as it remains in its tallow resting-place bids are taken. The last bidder before the pin drops is declared the tenant for the year.

A Paris schoolmaster has petitioned the French Chamber against kings still reigning on French playing cards. He suggests kings should be replaced by pictures of Thiers, MacMahon, Grevy, and Carnot; and queens by equally prominent women Republicans. The Parliamentary Commission sitting on the petition has replied that the change is impossible, since it would ruin quite a number of playing-card factories.

What is probably the most extraordinary plant ever discovered has now been found by E. A. Suverkrop, of Philadelphia, who, during trips to South America, has for some years been contributing to the collection of his friend, Professor N. E. Brown, of the Herbarium, Kew Gardens, London. The amazing plant which Mr. Suverkrop has now found is an orchid that takes a drink whenever it feels thirsty by letting down a tube into the water, the tube, when not in use, being coiled up on top of the plant.

Baltimore, Md., had a bulldog until recently, that made a practice of milking cows in the fields. Just how the dog formed the habit is not known, but it is thought he acquired it by following the example of calves. He had often been seen with the many cows in pasture about Mount Washington across a cow's back while she was lying down. His appetite for milk grew so strong that he was not satisfied with part of the supply, but wanted it all, and attacked a dairymaid who went into her barnyard to milk. He was despatched by a policeman with a revolver.

How Long to Keep the Dairy Cow.

The answer is short to the question, "How long should a dairy cow be kept?" Keep the cow only so long as she pays a gratifying profit. If no record is kept of profit and loss on the farm, neither man nor beast will get credit for services rendered. Every animal should have a ledger standing account. Even justice to man and beast alike is honorable. The farmer's methods in bookkeeping are not always commended by expert accountants. Business demands system, and that system must be correct. When the leaf is turned over in correct bookkeeping, the profitless live stock will be got rid of at the earliest possible moment. Profitless stock is the heaviest tax the farmer, dairyman and breeder is imperiously called upon to pay. The tax on real estate in comparison is only a feather weight in the balance. The farmer's son should be sent to a business college, if only for three months. The investment will pay a good interest for life.

It is more than probable that men who keep no profit and loss on stock have mortgages to pay interest on—that perpetual source of annoyance. No man of fine feelings lives as long or is so happy under the strain of interest paying as he who is free from debt. Small incomes pay off debts too slowly for much joy. Possession without debt is ennobling to manhood, and a rich mine of happiness for the home. Milk the cow only so long as she is profitable, then quickly turn her into beef and cash. —H., in New York Tribune.

These days, when the ground in the henyards is too often deep with mud, is almost as likely to cause roup or other disease in the fowl as any season of the year, especially if accompanied with cold winds or a little rain. It is better in such weather to keep the hens in the house most of the time, as the floor in that and the scratching shed should be dry and well covered with a litter of dry chopped straw. Open doors and windows to give them pure air, but keep them out of the mud.

Sunflower Seeds for the Layers.

Dried sunflower seeds are egg-producing, and can be fed sparingly in place of meat scraps, as they contain a goodly supply of oil. The sunflower heads are a fine thing for fowls to peck at on a cold winter's day, to extricate the seeds. Thus they get exercise that gives warmth and health.

When one has spare ground near the henery it is a good plan to plant a plot of sunflowers for the fowls to work at during the fall. It will keep them out of mischief elsewhere. We break down several heads each day for the layers to eat.

These seeds give the fowls a glossy coat, a red comb, activity, and a generous supply of eggs.—[illegible]

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $10 will be paid for any case they will not permanently cure.

Scavenger Work,

Alfred Cooney is prepared to execute all orders for the removal of night soil and other scavenger work, on the most reasonable terms. Orders left at Overend's Hotel, or at my residence, 316 Bethune Street, will have prompt attention.

R·I·P·A·N·S

There is scarcely any condition of ill-health that is not benefited by the occasional use of a R-I-P-A-N-S Tabule. For sale by Druggists. The Five Cent packet is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

Musical M.D.'s of the Future.

A PATIENT having been cured of smallpox by the witching strains of a violin, a contemporary thinks it not at all unlikely that it may ere long be discovered that music has a therapeutic value heretofore undreamed of. Music may in time become a most important branch of medical science, and the doctor of the future may, after diagnosing his case, take a violin or a cornet from his bag, as the case may demand, and render the wedding march from "Lohengrin," or Schubert's "Serenade," according to the progress the malady has made. Different tunes rendered on different instruments, in various tempos, may become necessary at critical moments, and this will naturally develop a new science—that of writing musical prescriptions. Musical boxes and orchestrions may yet be used in hospital-wards, and the shops in which sheet music and musical instruments are now dispensed are likely to be the drug stores of the future. Patent music is a possible successor of patent medicine, and we may yet take a five-minute dose of "Lanigan's Ball" adagio, or a seven-minute-and-a-half dose of Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words" andante, for our neuritis or necrosis. Medical music and medical science will be one, and the scalpel will be supplanted by the mandolin, and the clinical thermometer by the piccolo.

A Very Important Business.

Dairying is a very important business, and a herd of good cows is worth more in every respect than any other kind of stock. The bovine is both meat and milk for the human family, without which existence is almost impossible. Note the capacity of each cow and feed accordingly, as some will be found able to pay for better feeding than others. In order to know this, weigh each cow's product; then, knowing what the feed costs, it is a very easy matter to know whether you are feeding at a profit or loss.

Have a silo if possible; if not, then secure an abundance of corn fodder, well cured, with some roots and a good supply of bran, oil meal and ground oats. Then, with clover or cowpea hay, a good range of [illegible] and, with a warm, well-lighted and properly ventilated stable, with absorbent to save all the manure, both liquid and solid, you are ready to feed your cows for profit. Feed liberally, but not blindly. Weigh and compound a balanced ration.—L. E. Lacy in Agricultural Epitomist.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our constitutional treatment in curing Cancer is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the Breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggravated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, its cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper, on receipt of two stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

Monday May 12

The programme to be given in St. Paul's church on the 12th inst., by the Jarvis street Baptist choir, of Toronto, is without question a program of the good things in music. The choir is assisted by Miss McMurty, soprano, Mr. A. L. E. Davies, bass, Mr. Victor Hutchison, tenor, Mr. G. E. McClellan, baritone, and Mr. Arthur Alvin, solo organist. As an evidence of the interest this choir has caused in church circles, it may be stated that they have had six or seven invitations to visit as far east as Perth. That Mr. Vogt and his choir have chosen to visit Peterborough is a matter for congratulation to the choir of St. Paul's and the public generally.

The Proposed Grant

The 13th Battalion of Hamilton wants to come to Peterborough. By all means let it come—but not at the town's expense. Any money we have to expend we ought to expend upon our parks, our band, our choirs, and other things that find it hard to develope without help and encouragement. The Council has not much to give, and what the town can spare is already placed, or ought to be, to much greater and more permanent advantage. It is no doubt wise to encourage the volunteers, but this should be done through regular channels and at governmental expense. That we should be called upon to give a picnic of such dimensions is, as has been abundantly proven heretofore, unwise, to say the least of it.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Events Under This Head Transpiring in and around Peterborough.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to furnish the paper with items of a personal and social nature either by phone or in writing.—Ed. Times.]

—Mr. Edward Wade has returned to town after an absence of several months.

—Mr. D. Hughes Charles, Manager of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, is in Montreal for a week.

—Mr. W. J. Kearns is down from Sault Ste Marie, spending a few days with his family here.

—Mr. Gus Gough, who has been down from Toronto for a couple of days, looking over this end of their progressive firm's business, returned to Toronto yesterday.

—Mr. H. A. Wood, of Peterborough, who was successful at the recent combined examinations of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, held at Toronto, obtaining the degrees of L.D.S. and D.D.S., in addition to first-class honors in the university of Toronto, has, we believe, decided on locating in town for the practice of his profession.

Ringing in the Ears

This is an unfailing sign of catarrh, and if not checked will ultimately result in deafness. The simplest remedy is Catarrhozone, which if inhaled a few times daily, prevents the catarrhal condition from spreading. Catarrhozone quickly stops the ringing in the ears, head noises, gives permanent relief to catarrhal deafness. For catarrh in any part of the system, bronchitis, asthma, lung or throat troubles, Catarrhozone is a specific, and is guaranteed to permanently cure or your money back. THE LATE HENRY DENNE

Demise of One of Peterborough's Oldest and Most Esteemed Citizens

It is with extreme sorrow that we are forced to chronicle the death of Mr. Henry Denne, who passed quietly away on Monday night last.

About 15 months ago Mr. Denne was stricken with appolexy, and for a time his life was despaired of. His robust constitution, however, came to his aid, and he gradually recovered, but was never so strong as before. He was again stricken a few days ago, and gradually sank until death took place as above.

There is perhaps no one in Peterborough who will be so greatly missed. Of a kindly and genial temperment he possessed a multitude of friends, who respected him for his high integrity of character and pure life.

Mr. Denne was born in Kent, England in 1821. In 1843 he visited Newfoundland shortly afterwards coming to Peterborough. He rented what was known as the Langton flouring mill, on the Otonabee River, which he operated in partnership with Mr. Louis Glover. This mill he named the Blythe Mill. In 1871 Mr. Denne bought the flour mill owned by Mr. Anson Sperry, erected on the sight of Adam Scott's old mill, which was the first building erected in Peterborough, which he operated for several years.

Mr. Denne was twice married. Both his first and second wives, the latter being still living, were daughters of the late Mr. Gerald Fitzgerald, of Smith. The children by his first marriage were Miss Hattie and Mr. T. H. G. Denne, the present Mayor of Peterborough. The issue of the second marriage were Miss Emma Denne, Mrs. A. St. A. Smith, of town, Mrs. W. H. Graham, of Kingston; Miss Gertie, Miss Eva, Mr. Roland, Miss Maggie, Miss May and Miss Helen.

Mr. Denne for several years was a member of the Town Council, and subsequently of the Board of Education, and was ever foremost in promoting the best interests involved.

The deceased was a member of the Church of England, and a regular attendant at St. Luke's. The funeral will take place from the family residence, George street, at three o'clock to-morrow afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery.

By order of Ald. G. M. Roger, Acting Mayor, the town flag is flying at half mast as a tribute of respect to the deceased.

OPPOSED TO THE GRANT.

To the Editor of the Times,

Dear Sir,—I see by the papers that we have a chance of having the 13th Battalion of Hamilton and their fine band here on the 24th of May. It is always pleasant to see the brave soldiers, and it is a pleasure to hear a fine band, for I have heard that it is as fine a band as our own, if not better, and the men probably are as good looking as our own, if not better. And we will have the chance of seeing them march past, keeping fine step, and the band playing the martial airs of England, and sir, on the Sunday will be a grand church parade, and all the people will line the streets and see the soldiers marching, and that Sunday will be a memorable Sunday, because it will not be like other Sundays—the other peaceable, quiet, God-serving days that we will rejoice in. And for this privilege we are asked to pay $300 of our tax money, and to contribute several hundreds of dollars more to hear the concert of the 13th Battalion Band, for it will cost them, they say, $900.00 to come to Peterborough. Now air plebiscites and referendums are the order of the day, and I would just suggest that the question of whether the Council is to vote $300 of the peoples' money for a restless Sunday and an hour's march-out, be submitted to the people. Take my word for it, sir, if the people are asked to settle this question they will settle it so that the Council will never again consider the question of voting away the money for such a purpose. We have this year an extra mill on the dollar, and we will have the chance of having another extra mill on the dollar next year, if we indulge in such 24th of May exploits. I believe in the volunteers, and I believe in a good band, but, sir, when I am afraid to walk at night on our plank side walk, and I am told that until lumber gets cheaper they will be no better; and when I see such hard work to get $300 for the Horticultural Society which keeps up our beautiful little parks a source of pleasure all summer long, and when I know the extension of the Street Railway will add 1000 of dollars to the expenditure of the streets, as it did for the original construction of the Street Railway, then I feel like saying to our good men of the Council, "Go Slow." I am satisfied that an uneasy night in the cars coming, and an uneasy night returning, and the irregularity and dissipation that always follows these outings, is not as good for the soldiers as a good honest march-out, under knapsack and great coat, for fifteen or twenty miles, to some place near Hamilton. Such would be better soldiering, better experience, and altogether more healthful than this trip to Peterborough. Therefore my loyalty suffers not in suggesting that the soldiers do as they do in England, march to their outing grounds, have good, honest military exercises, and return in a like manner to their homes. I therefor suggest that I voice the sentiment of the people when I suggest that the Town of Peterborough cannot afford to vote for the proposed entertainment of our good friends from the City of Hamilton.

Yours Truly,

RATEPAYER.

INS AND OUTS

I see that Mr Schwab, the head of the Yankee billion dollar trust, talks and a Mr. Gompers answers him, and of course there are two sides to every question. It always seemed to me that this great conflict which is just about to be on between Labor and Capital is all nonsense anyhow. A man must labor, no matter if he has but ten cents, or if he has ten millions. And nine times out of ten the man who has the Millions labors harder than the man who has Ten Cents. I have seen men hustle harder for ten cents to buy a drink than they would hustle for ten cents to buy bread. This was not necessarily because they were built that way, but because they wanted a drink. A man can put off most everything until to-morrow except a drink. The Want for a drink is a Sight Draft and protest fees if it isn't met. People sometimes envy the rich when they see 'em loll back in their carriage and their eyes are dazzled by the glitter of their Jewels. But the Rich have their ups and downs, their Sorrows and their Griefs—more of 'em, I dare say, than the man who has nothing but his brawn or brain to depend upon for a livelihood. Were I going to advise Labor, I would tell it to toil on, to keep [illegible], and at the end of the year take an invoice, and it would discover unto itself that Riches were not all, by a blamed sight. The rich roll and tumble. A mosquito bites a rich man harder than it does a poor man—at least he thinks it does. A little cold that a poor man would think nothing of puts a rich man to bed and worries him like Five Hundred—pshaw! the Rich Man is daily and hourly up against the Real Thing, and the history is that Riches, save in a few cases, have not brought Contentment—fact!

ABOUT COOKING

I have received this letter, which is of international importance, and so I give it international publicity:

Dear Idler.—Do you publish recipes in your column? I thought if you did. I am just learning how to cook and bake, and our neighbors say several new dishes I have prepared are just splendid, and I ought to have the recipe printed. MARY S. M.

Oh, yes, once in a while I publish a few of my own. I have just about prepared a new series which I shall print very soon. In the matter of cooking and baking, however, I'll never allow anyone to beat me. I am a cook and a baker if I am anything. I give you a sample:

Egg Muffin.—Take the yolks of 3 eggs and beat them to a finish. Add mustard and salt sufficient to season. Take the whites of the eggs and stir them till they foam. Put in powdered nutmeg, and mix the whole in a [illegible] in a Large [illegible] together. Stir in a half gallon of lard until the stuff is smooth, and then lay on a broad board and cut into squares. Use flour enough to stiffen the stuff, and give it a dash of pepper-sauce. Serve while steaming.

I could go on in this way and write several columns. My opinion is that the Cook Books and Recipes have decreased the population of this country 17 per cent. Happy, hopeful, and Contented Men have become wan, haggard, emaciated wrecks over the Cooking recipe route. Indians never had dyspepsia and they never had a cook book. If they caught a dog they had raw dog for breakfast, stewed dog for dinner and fried dog for lunch, if it lasted that long. Some of the puddings and cakes which cook books would have you make would pierce armor plate at a distance of seven miles if shot out of a thirty-inch gun.

No, Mary S. M., let the secret die with you. There is enough woe and dyspepsia and untimely death already with us. If you love the Boers, and are in favor of their freedom, send your recipes to the English Government and let it get them to the front.

WAS DOING HIM

The "Hold Up" Man, Coffee

Few people know how many persons are made sick and kept sick by coffee drinking. A trained nurse relates her experience with a number of different persons. She says, "Quite a long time ago I discovered that coffee was the cause of the violent palpitation of my heart and frequent sick headaches and attacks of indigestion, so I quit coffee and went onto hot water, not knowing then of Postum Food Coffee.

Quite a while after I quit coffee my husband began to complain of coffee coming up in his mouth more or less during the forenoon, and it made it very disagreeable for him. One day I said, 'Suppose we try that Postum Food Coffee which is advertised so much.' So we did and I prepared it according to directions. The beverage proved delicious, and we liked it so much and it agreed with us so well we have used it for over five years now.

My palpitation of the heart, headaches and indigestion have gone altogether. It is very easy to make the boiling 15 or 20 minutes, with a small piece of butter put in the pot to prevent its boiling over.

My cousin, who is a telegraph operator, had nervous dyspepsia, having to stay from work every few days. He gave up the use of coffee and commenced using Postum, and since that time he has not been troubled with dyspepsia.

One woman told me she had suffered with indigestion for three years. She drank nothing but tea. I made Postum for her and showed her how to make it. She liked it and now uses it in her family regularly and is well and happy.

I could name a dozen or more similar cases." M.N. Clark, 322 Ogden Ave., Chicago, Ill.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Adjourned Last Night in Respect to the Late Henry Denne

The Board of Education met in regular session last night, when there were present Chairman, W. H. Hill and Messrs. R. Fair, W. B. Bamford, J. J. Hartley, Dr. Caldwell, Dr. Burnham, L. M. Hayes, Peter Hamilton and F. J. Jameson.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

THE LATE HENRY DENNE.

In respect to the memory of the late Henry Denne, the Board decided to adjourn, and also arranged for sending a floral wreath and attending the funeral in a body.

Dr. Burnham moved, seconded by J. J. Hartley,—That this Board has learned with regret of the death of the late Henry Denne, who for a period of 20 years and upwards was an active and zealous member of the Peterborough Board of Education. And that a committee, composed of the mover and seconder of this resolution, and Messrs. Hamilton, Wrighton and Stevenson, be appointed to prepare an appropriate resolution, and that the same be engrossed and forwarded to Mrs. Denne. — Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, after this notice has been posted up for one month in six public places in the Municipality and published weekly for four successive weeks in a newspaper published in the Municipality, the Council of the Town of Peterborough propose to pass a by-law authorising the Peterborough Radial Railway Company to lay out, construct and operate its railway on, upon and along any of the streets of the Town of Peterborough (except Crescent street).

The said Council will at its regular meeting to be held on the 2nd day of June, 1902, hear in person or by counsel anyone whose property may be prejudicially affected by such proposed railway, who desires to be heard, and any person so heard may appeal to the Railway Committee of the Executive Council of Ontario against such By-law.

The proposed agreement for such franchise is on file in the office of the Town Clerk and may be examined by anyone interested.

Dated this 6th day of May, 1902.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Town Clerk.

ANOTHER MOVEMENT AGAINST GREAT BRITAIN

German Papers Say There is an Agitation in Egypt--British Capital is More Dangerous than Garrisons

Special to The Times,

London, May 8.—The correspondent of The Times quotes an article in the Deutsch Zeitung on the alleged anti-British movement in Egypt. The article declares there has been a revival of the national feeling in Egypt, that the movement is steadily increasing; that it amounts to an anti-British campaign; that even the silent canal driver feels that British capital which controls trade and industry is a more dangerous enemy than the garrisons of Cairo and Alexandria.

Since the Boer war, says the writer, the Egyptians have ceased to regard the British soldier as invincible. The anti-British movement is carried without fireworks from house to house, pending the distribution of huge sand tracts on the Nile. Egyptians fear that Great Britain will get control of this newly arable land, and cultivate it for her own profit, and that Egyptians, like the Irish, will become bondsmen on their own soil. An association of educated Egyptian agriculturists is reclaiming this land. The writer declares that discontented Egyptians look to France as their natural ally against Great Britain.

DEMONSTRATION OF BOERS BEFORE U. S. CONGRESS

The Boers in Desperation Appear Before a Committee of Congress in Washington

Special to The Times,

Washington, May 8.—A large delegation was present this morning in the room of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, where a sub-committee, to which has been referred all of the Boer resolutions, gave a hearing. The delegation was headed by Representatives Burke of Pennsylvania, Sulzer of New York, William Alden Smith of Michigan, and other members of Congress, some of them connected with the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The plea of the speakers was to the effect that the depots of supplies alleged to be maintained by the British Government in and about New Orleans for the exporting of horses and mules to South Africa should be abolished by this Government, that the neutrality laws should be strictly enforced and that resolutions of sympathy with the Boers should be adopted by Congress.

Charles H. Kayser, chairman of the Boer Legislative Committee, made the opening address, with an appeal for the passage of the resolution of sympathy.

Dr. C. J. Hexamer, President of the National German Alliance, presented a legal argument designed to show that the laws of neutrality were being violated by the British at and about New Orleans and that the United States should, if it wished to fulfil its obligations under the treaty of neutrality, prevent the shipment of any more horses and mules or other contraband of war from the United States to South Africa.

Edward Van Ness of the New York Society of Freedom discussed the legal phase of the neutrality laws and the number of mule camps and supply stations. He said that the Boers have no idea that the present peace negotiations will come to anything and that the Boers expected absolute freedom and would not tolerate suzerainty.

J. C. Williams, Secretary of the American Transvaal League of Chicago, said there was a feeling throughout the country that the Government was pandering to the strong, meaning the British Government. The adoption of resolutions of sympathy, he thought, would result in stimulating the spirit of liberty in this country.

Representative W. A. Smith said the Congress district he represented was of one opinion in favor of doing something of this kind. His people had raised and sent $20,000 to the Boers.

Representative Adams of Pennsylvania chairman of the sub-committee, at the conclusion of the hearing, took exceptions to what he considered an attempt to give a political tinge to the subject. Denying that it was a political question, he said that the sympathy of the present Administration has been shown by its offering its good offices. The facts about the New Orleans camp were now before the Attorney-General, and it was not a question of politics, but of international law.

A large number of Boer sympathizers were present from different parts of the country, among them Commandant W. D. Snyman of New York, formerly of Gen. De Wet's staff.

BOERS STRIPPED THE WOUNDED

Incident Showing Cruelty of the Burghers Towards the British Vancouver, B.C., May 8.—William McCrombie has received a letter from his brother in South Africa giving a graphic description of the manner in which the Boers treat the British wounded. He says: "At daybreak we fell in with a lot of Boers whom we were ordered to charge. We, of course, fired from our saddles and bullets were pouring everywhere. Suddenly my mare fell into a hole and over we rolled. When I was up again the troops had disappeared over the skyline and bullets were raining around me from 12 Boers, who were about 150 yards off. I mounted and made after the troops. Eleven of the Boers dismounted and poured a line of bullets after me — Mausers, Lee-Metfords, Mannlichers, soft-nosed, explosive and dumdum all flew around me. One wounded my mare and another went through my hat. Looking round I found a Boer on a big horse coming up rapidly on me. He it was that put the bullet through my hat. I slewed in my saddle and fired three times; the third was the last in my magazine, and taking as good aim as possible I fired. He rode for a second, reeled forward, then backward and fell in lump to the ground. I rode on and came up with some of my troop, who had halted on a raise. Suddenly a scout came along and told the captain that a large number of Boers were coming. As our party only numbered 12 they had to go. I volunteered to remain with the wounded man. Our men had no sooner gone, taking my rifle and ammunition with them, I putting on a white scarf on my arm, when a Boer commando swept down on me.

RAISED THEIR RIFLES.

They knocked me down, stripped me and nearly broke my ribs in with their rifles. Six of them raised their rifles to shoot me, but the commandant stopped them. They also stripped the wounded man and then rode away, taking my pony, watch, clothes, money, and a small keepsake I had. The day was wet and shiveringly cold, but in about two hours' time a Cape cart came to pick me up. The Boers came again and stripped the orderly (Red Cross, too), who drove it. We put the wounded man in and went on and met our S.A.C. doctor, with a man of our squad with an explosive bullet through his chest. More dying man of his clothes, taking also his horse, saddle, etc., two pack mules and medicines. They only left us the Cape cart after a lot of bother. Then they told us to go, and fired after us to make us go faster. The Cape cart is as big as a wheel barrow, and only held the wounded man doubled up. We had no grub for 22 hours. Being barefooted our feet were all blood, and the cold at night was awful. Our side lost one dead, four wounded, and 15 captured. The Boers lost five dead, 10 wounded and four captured. Such was the fight at Scotland, O.R.C., Feb. 22, 1902.

TWENTY YEARS OF AGE

Crown Prince of Germany Celebrates his Twentieth Birthday

Special to The Times,

Berlin, May 6 — There was a gala time at Potsdam to-day in celebration of the twentieth birthday of the Crown Prince of Germany, Frederick William. Congratulations were received at the palace from all parts of the empire and from the various courts of Europe. Gossip says that an announcement may be expected soon of the engagement of the Crown Prince to Princess Alice of Albany. The report probably owes its origin to the recent visit paid by Princess Alice to Potsdam. It would cause no surprise, however, if the report proved true, for Frederick William's fondness for the young English princess has been the subject of remark ever since he paid his visit to England two years ago.

The two are about the same age, Princess Alice having celebrated her nineteenth birthday last month. She is the daughter of the Duchess of Albany, widow of the Duke of Albany, son of the late Queen Victoria. He died March 28, 1884. The Duchess is a daughter of the late Prince George of Waldeck. Princess Alice has the reputation of being a most sympathetic and sweet-natured girl, and is a great favorite with her aunt, Queen Emma of Holland.

SURRENDER OF SAN DOMINGO

Change of Government in One of the West India Islands

Special to The Times,

San Domingo, Republic of Santo Domingo, West Indies, Friday, May 2,—The Dominican capital capitulated today to the revolutionary forces commanded by General Horatio Vasquez, the Vice-President of the Republic. President Jiminez sought refuge in the French Consulate, and many Government officers obtained shelter in the French and American Consulates. The revolutionary troops entered the capital quietly. There was no enthusiasm shown by the population at the entry of the victorious army. As this despatch is sent no foreign war ships have arrived here.

The approach of the revolutionists to the capital was announced after two day's heavy fighting between the Government troops and the forces of Gen. Vasquez, during which many were killed or wounded on both sides.

President Jiminez consented to the drawing up of a treaty of capitulation, which was to provide a full guarantee for the safety of the officials, employes and defenders of the Government as well as for the security of personal property. The President and the Ministers, it was further aggreed, were not to leave the country before the submission of all the authorities of the different districts of Santo Domingo had been received, and all political prisoners were to be liberated. The revolutionary army entered San Domingo at 11 a.m. the same day (Friday) and took possession of the Government buildings. The form of the new Government of Santo Domingo has not been decided upon.

THE NEWS CONFIRMED.

Monte Christi, Republic of Santo Domingo, May 8.—Further confirmation was received here to-day of the surrender of San Domingo, capital of Santo Domingo, Friday last, to the revolutionary forces commanded by Vice-President Vasquez. The provincial government established there will retain power until new elections have been held.

Peace is completely re-established in the southern part of Santo Domingo.

Advices from Puerto Plata, on the north coast, announce that the crew of the Dominican war vessel at that port has sided with the insurgents and yesterday conveyed to Governor General Deschamps an order to surrender. An agreement providing for a suspension of hostilities with Puerto Plata was signed later in the day, so as to permit the drawing up of the conditions on which the Port will capitulate to the revolutionists.

TO MAKE FAST TIME

C.P.R. to Spend a Million on the Line From Smith's Falls to Toronto

Montreal, May 7—The executive of the C.P.R. has ordered the following construction work for the coming season: A million dollars will be expended for grades on the main line between Smith's Falls and Toronto, by which the grades will be reduced, many curves eliminated, and the hauling capacity of locomotives increased by 70 per cent. West Selkirk extension to Winnipeg 25 miles. Forest extension on Great Northwest Central, 12 miles westward. Wellwood extension to Brookdale, 10 miles. Waskada extension, from Waskada for 20 miles. Snowflake extension, southeasterly to Moberly 10 miles. Yorktown extension 33 miles northwesterly. Pleasant Hills extension, 100 miles northwesterly. From Lauder to Glemboro, 70 miles. From Lauder to western boundary of Manitoba, 24 miles. From Osborne, 36 miles southwesterly. In British Columbia, 35 miles will be constructed on Arrowhead and Kootenay Lake, to Girard to Trout Lake, on the main line from field to Ottertail, 7 miles, thus improving grades.

Exhaustion Of Nerve Force Is Common to Springtime

Paine's Celery Compound

Banishes

Nervous Prostration, Hysteria and Sleeplessness

Any intelligent man or woman can easily detect victims of nervous troubles by taking a ten minute walk on any of the crowded streets of our cities or towns. The observer will note countenances full of feverish anxiety, haggard looks, unsteady hands, faltering steps, twitching muscles, pallid faces, and startled, anxious looks when unusual noises are made. Such people are, without doubt, victims of nervous prostration, hysteria or insomnia. The whole system suffers—the brain, the spinal cord and the sympathetic system.

It is unnecessary to dilate minutely on the causes of nervousness. Business cares and disappointments, haste after riches and honors, social and household worries, sexual and alcoholic excesses, watching and anxiety, and loss of near and dear ones, all contribute to the breaking down of the nervous organism of men and women.

In earnest words we set before this afflicted class the truth that Paine's Celery Compound affords a speedy and sure cure for all forms of nervous disease. The great medicine is a perfect restorer of nerve force and power; a sure builder and strengthener of the weak and debilitated system.

Paine's Celery Compound has enabled thousands in every city and town in our land to renew and invigorate their health and keep their places in business and in society. In all large centres where nervous diseases are common, the best physicians prescribe Paine's Celery Compound with continued success.

A few bottles of nature's health restorer used during the month of May will completely banish all nervous disorders, by giving new nerve force, purer blood, better digestion, normal appetite and refreshing sleep. In a word, Paine's Celery Compound will give you the full powers of robust manhood and true womanhood.

Two of the De Wets Sentenced

Special to The Times,

London, May 8 — A despatch from Aliwal North, Cape Colony, says the Treason Court in session there has sentenced David Dewet to pay a fine of £500 or serve a year's imprisonment. Pieter De Wet has been found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of £1,000 or serve two years in prison. A previous telegram declared that Pieter De Wet had been acquitted.

CHINESE ATTACK JESUITS

Rebels Said to Have Surrounded Their Headquarters at Hsienhsien

Special to the Times,

Pekin, May 7—An unconfirmed report has reached here that rebels have surrounded and fired upon the Jesuit headquarters at Hsienhsien, one of the largest in China.

The Throne has ordered Viceroy Yuan Shih Kai to see that the French priest who was murdered recently by rebels has a suitable burial. The priest's head was carried a hundred miles south of the place where he was killed.

The Board of Foreign Affairs acknowledges the existence of the revolt.

Consul Kahn, representing the French legation, had an interview yesterday with Yuan Shih Kai at Pao-ting-fu. The Viceroy stated that the conditions in the disturbed district are serious, and that more men had revolted than had been reported. He urged M. Kahn not to depart for Cheng-ting-fu without an escort of troops. M. Kahn's mission to Cheng-ting-fu is to investigate the murder of the French priest.

Prince Ching, one of the military governors of Pekin, who holds other high offices, has asked for ten days leave of absence.

NAVY FOR AUSTRIA-HUNGARY

Emperor Francis Asks for Funds for New Warships and More Men and improve it at once.

Budapest, Austria, May 8.—"As in the past, so in the future, the constant endeavor of my Government will be directed to fostering closer relations with our allies, as well as feelings of confidence with all other powers, thus contributing to the maintenance and consolidation of European peace."

This was the most interesting passage from a general international viewpoint in the reply of the Emperor and King, Francis Joseph, to-day to the address of the delegations of Austria-Hungary at the reception held in the castle at Budapest.

The Emperor also made a brief but important reference to the Balkan situation, saying:

"Our unvarying and friendly understanding with the Russian Empire concerning events in the near East is conductive to the continued maintenance of order and tranquility in these regions."

His Majesty remarked that since the last session of the delegations, the general political situation had in no way undergone any material change. He paid a tribute to the Austrian-Hungarian forces employed in the China expedition, and referred to the necessity for increased expenditure for the artillery, for improved naval stations, and for indispensable increases in the personnel of the fleet and for the construction of ships.

"PEACE PROBABLE."

London, May 8.—The wife of General Lucas Meyer, the Commander of the Orange Free State, forces, who is in this country, received a cable message from her husband yesterday saying that peace in South Africa was probable.

CANADIANS' SEATS FOR CORONATION

Ottawa, May 8.—Lord Strathcona wires to the Prime Minister to-day as follows: "Colonial Office have placed six hundred seats at my disposal to view coronation and Royal processions June 26 and 27. Price of tickets about ten shillings each day. Please give publicity to statement, so that persons wishing to have names recorded may write me at once, giving particulars and stating whether tickets desired for one day or both. If applications exceed the number, must resort to ballot. No definite promises yet possible. Seats will be allotted end of month, and any not taken up and paid for by June 20 will be recalled. (Signed), Strathcona."

TROOPER PATON DIED OF FEVER.

Ottawa, May 8—The following casualties have been reported to His Excellency the Governor-General by the Casualty Department in South Africa:

William Brock, South African Constabulary, dangerously ill of enteric fever at Pretoria, May 4. His mother is Mrs. J. Brock, Newmarket, Ont.

Ernest Hugh Paton, South African Constabulary, died of enteric fever May 2 at Pretoria. His father is Mr. Hugh Paton, 153 Bleecher street, Waterworks Department, Toronto.

William G. Shanks, South African Constabulary, leg amputated, dangerously ill at Potchefstroom, May 4. His brother is T. Shanks of Pettypiece, Manitoba.

E. Redswell, 2nd C.M.R., ill of enteric fever Pietermaritzburg, will shortly rejoin his regiment. Redswell belongs to Medicine Hat.

Pte. M. Murphy, Peterborough, and A. Pearson, Toronto, the former wounded at Hart's River, and the latter ill of enteric, are still in hospital.

CLAIM RICE'S MILLIONS.

Winnipeg, Man., May 8.—Mrs. John A. Lee, Mrs. Joseph Thompson, and Amos Sparks, three grandchildren of Lucy Rice (deceased), who married Sparks of Ottawa, and who is mentioned in despatches as next of kin of Millionaire Rice, who was murdered in New York, have filed claims to the latter's immense estate. All reside in High Bluff district, Manitoba, and so good apparently are their claims that all who are now poor will shortly become millionaires.

London, May 8.—Military operations in Cape Colony, says the Cape Town correspondent of the Times, are less affected than in other districts by the Boer meetings on the subject of peace. The enemy are not numerous, but the enormous area of the country and the smallness of each burgher band render it difficult for the British columns to press the Boers when operating at a great distance from the base.

The correspondent says the pick of the enemy are some Transvaalers who accomplished General Smuts in a hurried tour on the Midlands, and there crossed the railway to the western districts. One body, comprising five or six commandos, has for some time been devoting its attention to the railway from Port Alworth to O'Okiep, and is still interrupting traffic. Another has its headquarters in Great Fish River Valley, 200 miles away, watching and occasionally worrying the blockhouse lines. Two or three commandos have headed north. A small party of Boers is again wandering in Camdeboo district, keeping close to the shelter afforded by the mountains.

The correspondent says the chief need is a railway in the open country west and north of the main line. This would

THE BOER OPERATIONS IN CAPE COLONY AREA

Enemy Not Numerous But the Enormous Area of the Country Renders the Campaign a Difficult One to Wage

Special to The Times,

London, May 8.—A despatch to The Times from Cape Town says that normal operations in Cape Colony are less affected than other districts by the Boer meetings for peace. The enemy is not numerous, but the enormous area of the country renders the campaign difficult. The pick of the enemy are some Transvaalers who accompanied General Smuts in his hurried tour of the midlands and then across the railway to the Western district. One body comprising six commandoes has been interrupting traffic on the railway between Port Nolloth and O'Kelp; another has headquarters two hundred miles away in the great Fish River valley watching the block-house line. Three commandoes have headed north; a small party of Boers is again wandering in the Camdeboo district, keeping close to the mountains. The chief need is a railway in the open country west and north of the main lines.

THE QUEEN OF HOLLAND.

The Hague, May 8.—Queen Wilhelmina's physicians issued this morning the following bulletin from Castle Loo:

"Yesterday evening there was a very slight increase in the temperature of her Majesty; but she had a good night, and this morning there is a complete absence of fever. The patient's general condition is satisfactory."

The 2 p.m. bulletin announced that the condition of her Majesty was "satisfactory up to the present."

St. Petersburg, May 8 — Martial law has been proclaimed in five districts in the province of Poltava.

Berlin, May 8 — A despatch from St. Petersburg to the Tageblatt says that peasants in Tomsk have broken open and emptied a State corn depot after a conflict with the police.

A semi-official denial is given to the reports that conflicts have occurred between Moscow and Vladimir, and that Uhlans refused to attack workingmen.

London, May 8 — The Odessa correspondent of the Daily Mail has interviewed a barrister who was present at the trial of Balabascheff, the man who assassinated M. Sipiaguine, Russian Minister of the Interior. The prisoner declared that he had a host of accomplices, but said it was impossible to name them. He added voluntarily that the Czar was safe from the reformers' hands, he being a well-meaning, noble-hearted young man, who was not endowed with the capacities necessary to be an autocrat. Nevertheless, owing to his good qualities of heart and mind his safety would be loyally respected. War against the Ministers, however, would be carried on until liberties were conceded. In conclusion Balabascheff said:

"We ask neither grace nor mercy. We are working for those coming after us, and we expect nothing for ourselves."

SALISBURY IS IN A HAPPY MOOD.

London, May 8.—The Premier, Lord Salisbury, as President of the annual Grand Habitation of the Primrose League, at Albert Hall this afternoon spoke to an immense audience, in a much less pessimistic vein than when he was last time heard in public. He congratulated the League on the staunch support given to Conservative Governments, one result of which was that Great Britain was now supreme in Egypt, while, with regard to Ireland, the country need no longer fear the "insane, suicidal projects of Imperial disruption supported by many of the Opposition statesmen."

THREE BOYS SAIL AWAY.

New Haven, Conn., May 7.— James S. Gray, aged 15 years, George Carding, 14, and John Corbett, 13, are somewhere in a 14-foot, brown-painted sharpie on the waters between their home port, Stony Creek, and the Maine coast, if they haven't been gobbled up by the police or haven't gone to Davy Jones' locker. They had been stocking the charpie for several days with food for a long cruise. Then they sailed away in the dark on Saturday night.

Each knows something about handling sharpies. They left word they would be gone three months. An alarm has been sent out to every port between here and Bar Harbor to hold the young tars.

THE SAILING OF THE CESTRIAN.

Halifax, May 7.—The troopship Cestrian with the Third Regiment, C.M.R., and half of the Fourth Regiment, will probably sail about the end of this week. It was expected that the vessel would cast off about Friday, but this is now conceded to be possible.

DR. GRANT GROWING WORSE.

Kingston May 8.—Principal Grant's condition gives increasing cause for alarm. Yesterday he was attacked by severe chills, accompanied by an almost total suppression of the action of the kidneys. Last night an operation was successfully performed, though little hope of the recovery of the patient is held out. The patient lapses into unconscious spells. It is felt that the end is drawing near, that the Principal will not live to see celebrated the 25th anniversary of his coming to Queen's.

Redmond Says the Irish League Will Have 100,000 Members

SEPARATION FROM ENGLAND.

Is the Object of the Organization—An Independent Ireland would Mean the Downfall of Britain

Special to the Times,

New York, May 7 — William Redmond, M.P., delegate to America with Joseph Devlin, from the United Irish League, has returned to this city after a two months' tour through the west. He has organized branches of the league and addressed large meetings in the principal cities on nearly every night of his trip. Mr. Redmond says that, even in the best days of the Parnell movement, he never saw more encouraging meetings than those which welcomed him and his message to this country.

"The League bids fair to be the strongest organization of its kind that has ever been brought together," he said. "It will have several hundred thousand members in this country alone and it is quite probable that a convention will be had before long, at which my brother and several of the other Irish Nationalist leaders will be present."

Mr. Redmond will return to Ireland in about two weeks, but Joseph Devlin, who is now speaking in the New England States, will remain several months.

Prinsloo Escapes From the Boers

Special to the Times,

London, May 8 — A despatch from Pretoria says that ex-Commandant Prinsloo, who surrendered to the British and was afterward captured by the Boers, has escaped. He arrived at Springfontein yesterday.

WEATHER [illegible]

Probs. To-day—Moderate winds; mostly westerly; fine and moderately warm.

Rain has fallen generally and heavily in Ontario and Quebec, attended by numerous thunderstorms; clearing conditions are now indicated for the lakes, spreading eastward to-night, and more settled weather now promises to prevail.

THE BOER CAPTIVES ARE WELL FED

Windsor Man Speaks of the Treatment of Boers in Bermuda

THEY HAVE NO REGULAR WORK

Repairs to Piers and Other Odds and Ends of Jobs—Idling About in the Sunshine

Special to the Times,

Windsor, May 8.—J. L. Marcourt, the manager of the Windsor branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, has returned from the Bermuda Islands, after spending the winter in that island resort. During his sojourn at Bermuda, Mr. Marcourt had an unusual opportunity to see how the Boer prisoners of war, who are being kept there under British surveillance, are being treated, and his report differs widely from some which have been made concerning the British treatment of the vanquished Boer.

"What do I think of the manner in which the Boer is being treated in Bermuda," said Mr. Marcourt in reply to the question. "Well, I want to say, and I think the United States Consul at Hamilton, will verify my statement, that the prisoners of war who are confined on the islands in the vicinity are treated as well as, or even better than, prisoners of any previous war have ever been by any nation or under any circumstances.

LIBERALLY FED.

"As nearly as I could make out, there are in the neighborhood of 5,000 here. As regards the food the Boers are receiving, from what I was able to learn from observation and inquiry, I believe they are fed on exactly the same food as that given to British soldiers, and in a good many respects superior to some rations served in campaign times. A baker named Thompson, of the city of Hamilton, Bermuda, has the contract for the bread, supplying thousands of loaves every day, which are as sweet and fresh as on your or my table. The other rations are regular army fare, and handed out liberally and no complaint is ever heard from the prisoners as to food.

"The Boers have no labor to perform, that is, no regular work. When a pier is out of repair or little odds and ends of jobs have to be attended to, a small detachment of them is sent to do it, but most of them lie idly about, basking in the sunshine and enjoying themselves. It's a kind of little heaven for them, for they fare better than they would were they on their native veldt. The climate is a delightful one. The prisoners are housed in tents, arranged in long rows, military style, and are very comfortably situated."

GIVE THE BOY LONG TROUSERS

If his legs deserve them. But spare the mother's feelings.—Give him long trousers that won't make him "A LITTLE OLD MAN." Trousers cut to grace the most ungainly age.

Dress him RIGHT and don't say, "Be careful of your clothes" If he is a lively boy, he will forget your instructions; If he is inclined to be quiet, or if he is not well, he will be in constant fear of soiling or tearing his suit, and he will lose the benefit of the healthful exercise.

DRESS HIM RIGHT AND GIVE HIM HIS FREEDOM

If you want to know how to dress him right, bring him to GOUGH'S and we will show you suits that will not show the dirt; suits that are stronger in the seams than the boy; suits that will wear "like iron" and every one of them handsome and stylish. In everything somebody must be first. We choose to be first in BOYS CLOTHING—FIRST IN STYLE—FIRST IN QUALITY—FIRST IN FAVOR. The larger the business, the smaller the cost of doing business.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 8, 1902.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The valiant Major will go away back and sit down after the 29th.

• • • •

See that your name is on the voters' list, or, if not, have it put on.

• • • •

There is no truth in the statement, "A married man lives longer than a single one." Some married men just think they do.

• • • •

Hon. J. R. Stratton has been a good friend to West Peterborough. It was only to satisfy a small clique that he was not accorded the seat by acclamation.

• • • •

It is only a question of majority. It will be to the interests of Peterborough to give Mr. Stratton a large majority, so that his position may be strengthened in the government.

• • •

The Times is not a Grit sheet. It is a paper that has always stood up for anything and everything that was likely to promote the best interests of the town and county. That's why it would like to see Mr. Stratton elected.

• • • •

The Brockville town council will on June 4th submit three by-laws to the ratepayers. One for a bonus of $20,000 to the union factory of St. John's, Que., to remove to Brockville; another for $11,000 to repair Victoria Hall, and a third of $10,000 for the erection of buildings for the Unionville Fair, which it is proposed to remove from Forthton to Brockville.

By the Morgan shipping deal, if alarmist journals in London are to be credited, Mr. Morgan holds Canada by the throat to the extent of prohibiting British emigration to the Dominion, to meet which a joint Anglo-Canadian state steamship service is suggested. Other proposals include British legislation making illegal all secret or postponed steamship rebates, cancelling all differential rates which favor foreigners, and creating a Government veto upon the sale of all British shipping lines.

• • • •

Many persons think of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan as a capitalist of enormous wealth, who finances great enterprises with his own money. The truth appears to be that Mr. Morgan is only a hired broker, and that his extraordinary talent for organizing corporations, whose stock is mainly held by other men, is employed on occasion, like that of any other specialist of great skill. All specialists get high fees, and Mr. Morgan's commissions are not insignificant. He takes them in the form of stock in the enterprise he organizes. Rumor says he got $12,500,000 for managing the steamship merger; $100,000,000 for arranging the United States Steel Corporation; $20,000,000 from the Metropolitan Securities Company; and $15,000,000 each from the Northern Securities Company and the American Bridge Company. Mr. Morgan has acted as manager for various lesser combinations, for which figures are not given. Though he appears to be only a broker on commission, business is pretty good with Mr. Morgan, and, if his services continue to be in the same demand, he may hope to become a rich man himself before he dies.

Peck's Bad Boy.

Professor Harry Thurston Peck, editor of the "Bookman," has written a delightful story for children. It is entitled "The Adventures of Mabel." A few days ago a woman entered one of the Chicago stores to buy a book for her little girl, says the "Record-Herald."

"How old is she?" the clerk asked.

"Five."

"Here is a nice tale for a child of that age," the clerk said, handing out Professor Peck's story about Mabel.

The woman took the book, looked at the title page, and then handed it back, saying:

"Mercy! I don't want that in my house. I've read some of that stuff he wrote about that bad boy, and that's enough for me."

Out of His Province.

A soap-maker and a banker were at a Wagner concert, says the "Christian Register." The programme did not please them, and they began to talk.

"Every man," said the banker, "wants to do something outside of his own work."

"Yes," answered the soap-maker. "I manufacture good soap, and yet I've always wanted to be a banker."

"You wouldn't be a good one. I am a successful banker, but I always wanted to write a book. And now here's this man Wagner tries his hand at music. [illegible] And yet we [illegible] good parlor-game."

The Wiles of Women.

George Akerside "did" the book reviews for the Tolchester "Courier," and wrote the more flippant editorials. He had a smart style, a general, if somewhat superficial, knowledge on a large number of subjects, and was looked upon by many of his brother journalists as a coming man. George himself thought that he was the coming man. His reviews were conceded by all but the authors interested to be quite amusing, and the "Courier" had justly obtained a name for merciless use of the literary pillory. When George Akerside got hold of a really bad book he exulted as a strong man about to run a race, and such was the feeling which possessed him as he turned over the leaves of "Her Heart a Target," by Mona Mulready. The fact that the author was a woman did not weigh with him one iota. The book was trash unadulterated, with an occasional soupçon of mild impropriety, and abounded in opportunities for the exercise of his peculiar gift. Slipshod grammar, ill-constructed sentences, and glaring improbability of plot, he handled with the light and graceful touch of an expert, and when he conned his review over, before consigning it to the hands of the printer, he felt with a glow of satisfaction that he had surpassed himself. He read it to the managing editor, who laughed heartily, and said it was rather a shame to handle a woman's first attempt without gloves.

"Gloves be hanged!" replied George. "There are too many fancying they can write nowadays. Anything that will discourage that sort of people, irrespective of sex, is a positive boon to humanity."

"You wrote a novel yourself, once, George, didn't you?" asked the managing editor, rather unkindly, and the reviewer went away without replying, for his work had proved a painfully slow sale, and he disliked to be reminded of it.

When George Akerside had concluded his Saturday's work by a personal supervision of the make-up of "Timely Book Chat," in which his review of Mona Mulready's novel occupied a leading place, he decided to treat himself to a few hours of recreation, and betook himself to Springfield Park, a summer resort, lying within a few miles of Tolchester. He was not a person of strong gregarious instincts, but was by no means averse to agreeable feminine society at times, and when he encountered an old friend, a Mrs. Walthorpe, accompanied by one extremely pretty girl, and one particularly plain one, he readily accepted an invitation to join the party. Mrs. Walthorpe introduced him to her companions as the literary critic of the "Courier," and George noticed that both girls regarded him with appreciative interest, in which a flattering infusion of alarm at contact with so eminent a literary personage was apparent.

In order to dispel any consciousness of inferiority on the part of the young ladies, George laid himself out to be agreeable, and succeeded so well that before long he found himself tete-a-tete with Miss Katharine Garniture, the pretty one, and conversing on terms of delightful familiarity.

Although she did not say so in so many words, Miss Garniture deftly conveyed the impression that she felt herself highly honored by his attentions, and, being a clever girl, as well as a pretty one, made such good use of her opportunities that George began seriously to doubt whether his frequently-expressed views on the advantages of a bachelor existence were not based upon radically unsound premises. He eagerly accepted Mrs. Walthorpe's suggestion that he should remain for tea at her cottage, and when, at the conclusion of the meal, that lady suggested that Miss Garniture should show him a darling little bit of scenery up the river, he felt that she was a friend worth having.

"It must be a terrible thing to be a literary critic," said Miss Garniture.

They had inspected the scenery, which George, looking hard at Miss Garniture's blushing countenance the while, had pronounced one of the most perfect pieces of God's handiwork he had ever seen, and now they were drifting comfortably down the slow current, the girl idly dabbling her hand in the water and George leaning on his oars watching her.

"Why do you think it is so terrible?" asked George, indulgently. Really this girl was charming.

"You are so horribly severe," she replied. "I always turn to 'Book Chat' the first thing when I get the Sunday paper. I cannot help laughing over the reviews, but I cannot help feeling sorry for the poor authors, and—and I am afraid."

"Why should you fear?" said the young man, laughing. "You are not an authoress, are you?"

Miss Garniture blushed in evident embarrassment. She withdrew her hand from the water, and fell to examining a massive diamond and sapphire ring.

"You ought to feel for me," she said at last, in a low voice. "You are an author yourself. I—I read the 'Throes of a World,' and I liked it so much. I seemed to feel a strong man's life throbbing through it."

"And what did you think of the character of Alan Despard?" asked George, glad to find someone who had read and appreciated his magnum opus.

"I thought he was just too lovely for anything," replied the girl, enthusiastically.

"Oh!" said George, blankly. Alan Despard was the villain of the book, and the author had done his best to paint him in the blackest of color.

"But, tell me," he continued, swallowing his discomfiture, "why are you so interested in the book reviews? Have you tried your hand at authorship?"

Once more the girl blushed divinely, and shot a fleeting, tremulous glance at the young man out of an entrancing pair of violet eyes.

"Have you?" she said, softly, with her gaze once more on the water. "Have you read a book called 'Her Heart a Target,' by Mona Mulready? Good gracious! Why are you beginning to row so fearfully hard?"

"I have just remembered an appointment," cried George, in great agitation. "A most important appointment. I must get to town at once!" He stopped rowing for a moment to look at his watch, and thrust it back into his pocket with a something that sounded very much like an oath.

"If you are in such a desperate hurry," said Miss Garniture, sweetly, "you can save time by landing at that little point and taking a short cut through the wood to the street car line. I don't mind rowing home by myself in the least. I am often out here alone. We can finish our conversation some other time, you know," she added.

"If you wouldn't mind," said George, dubiously, as he headed the boat for the shore. "It is really important, you know."

"I am quite vain enough to believe that it must be," Miss Garniture replied, with a smile that completely [illegible]

"And I may call and see you again?" George asked, as he sprang ashore.

"I shall be delighted. It is so seldom that a girl has the opportunity of talking to a clever man."

"Monday afternoon?" hazarded George, intensely flattered.

"Monday, by all means," Miss Garniture replied, "but hurry. I should never forgive myself if you missed an appointment on my account."

She watched him out of sight, waving her handkerchief as he turned to look back at a bend in the path, and then she pushed the boat off, and rowed leisurely homeward, smiling softly to herself.

"Well," queried Mrs. Walthorpe, as Katharine entered the little sitting-room.

"It is well," replied the girl. Then she burst out laughing, and went up to her own room.

• • •

The foreman of the composing-room was superintending the locking-up of the last form of the supplement when George Akerside made a headlong entrance.

"Is the 'Book Chat' page broken up?" he asked, between gasps.

"No, it ain't," replied the foreman, "but the plate's on the press, and we start running in fifteen minutes."

"Thank God!" cried George. "You'll have to cast a new plate. I've got to make some alterations in one of the reviews. Now, it's no use kicking, old man. We can't let it go the way it stands and hold our jobs."

He snatched a handful of proofs from a hook, and, disregarding the uncomplimentary remarks of the outraged foreman, rushed down to his office.

It is no easy matter to convert curses into blessings at a few minutes' notice, and so George found to his cost, as he ran his eye over the devastating sentences of his review. The beginning was not promising. "While 'Her Heart a Target' can scarcely be called a welcome addition to modern literature, Miss Mulready has undoubtedly deserved the thanks of a large number of literary aspirants. She has demonstrated that there exist publishers who are apparently willing to accept a work on the unsupported recommendation of the author."

With a few scratches of the pen he changed this to read: "'Her Heart a Target' can, without flattery, be called a welcome addition to modern literature, and Miss Mulready has undoubtedly earned the thanks of a large number of intelligent readers." There were certain passages which defied all attempts at remodeling, and had to be eliminated altogether, particularly a collection of paragraphs, carefully culled from the work, and prefaced by an introduction to the effect that "The following extracts, selected at random, may be fairly quoted as examples of the author's style."

By these excisions the review was abbreviated to about one-half its original length, but what was left was crammed so full of effusive commendation that George could not help wondering, in the midst of his relief, what the managing editor would say when he read it. He handed the proofs to the foreman, soothed his irritation with a couple of choice cigars, and a little judiciously administered flattery, and went home to enjoy, in anticipation, his approaching interview with the charming Miss Garniture.

To the managing editor on Monday morning George candidly confessed the reason for his sudden change of front, and that gentleman, who, beneath a matter-of-fact exterior, hid the workings of a romantic soul, cheerfully bade him "Go in and win."

"It's high time you were getting married, George," he said, "and you might drop in to-night and let me know, on the quiet, how things are going."

When George reached the Walthorpe cottage, he found Miss Garniture alone in the sitting-room, with the "Courier" supplement in her hand. She greeted him with charming cordiality.

"How good you are," she said. "I have just been reading over your review for the tenth time. You do put things so nicely. Do you know, I have a strong suspicion that you rushed off in such a hurry on Saturday night on purpose to write that article. Now, confess."

"We were intending to keep it for next Sunday," George replied, disingenuously, "but I felt sure that you would be anxious to see what we had to say about the book. I am glad you are pleased."

"It is just lovely," replied the girl. "If I ever write a book, I hope you will review it."

"If you ever write a book!" echoed George, laughing. "Why, you have written a book, haven't you?"

"I?" replied the girl. "Good gracious, no! What makes you think that? I couldn't write a book to save my life."

"Do you mean to say," cried the young man, gasping in bewilderment, "that you are not Mona Mulready?"

Miss Garniture laughed, a little nervously. "What a ridiculous idea!" she said.

"But you said on Saturday night——"

"I never said that I was the author, surely, Mr. Akerside, but I did want you to know that I was interested in the book. It was written by a—by a very dear friend of mine."

"Then I may still be happy in the thought that I have rendered you a slight service?" said George, somewhat relieved.

"A great service, Mr. Akerside," replied the girl. "You have no idea how anxious he and I both are that his book should be a success."

"He!" cried George. "Do you mean to say that Mona Mulready is a man!"

"Isn't it an absurd nom-de-plume?" replied Miss Garniture, "but Edward insisted that women's books were more popular just now. I don't know that I ought to have told you, but I am sure you will not talk about it."

George laughed bitterly. "I am the last person likely to talk about it," he said. "May I ask when Edward—I don't know his other name—is likely to bring out another book? I should like to have the reviewing of it."

Miss Garniture blushed and smiled, and fell to twisting her diamond and sapphire ring on her finger.

"Not for some little time, I think," she answered. "I made him promise that he wouldn't do any more writing till—till after we are married."

"Oh!" said George Akerside.

A tramp rang the doorbell of Dr. Mary Morrison's house the other day, and when a pleasant-faced woman came to the door he asked her if she would be so kind as to ask the doctor if he had an old pair of trousers to give to a needy man.

"I'm the doctor," said the smiling woman.

The fact that all women suffer during the birth-hour leads a great many women to accept a degree of suffering which is altogether unnecessary. Sometimes it is hours, sometimes days before the struggle is over. No medicine can absolutely eliminate pain from this time of travail, but Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can and does make the baby's advent practically painless. It acts upon the organs of maternity, giving them strength and elasticity. It produces physical comfort and mental cheerfulness. It is an effective tonic, giving the mother abundant nutrition for her child.

"I believe I owe my life to Dr. Pierce's remedies, and have long felt it my duty to acknowledge the benefit I received from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Pleasant Pellets,'" says Mrs. Maria O. Haysel, writing from Brookland, D. C. "Six years ago, after the birth of one of my children, I was left in a weak, run-down condition. My health seemed utterly gone. Life was a burden. I doctored with three different physicians and got no relief. I began to get worse, and to add to the complications, I suffered terribly from constipation. I chanced to see one of your advertisements and concluded to try the above remedies. I commenced to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Pleasant Pellets,' and began to improve right away, and continued improving and gaining in strength. I cannot express the relief, it was so great. Seven months later my little daughter was born without much trouble. I feel that I would never have been able to endure my confinement only for the help due solely to Dr. Pierce's medicines. She was a fine, healthy child, and the only one I have ever been able to nurse."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.

Intellect vs. Morals.

It is the tendency of a sophisticated age like the present to overestimate intellectual as compared with moral and emotional gifts. The material civilization upon which we pride ourselves is almost entirely the achievement of the intellect. Fame and wealth, luxury, cultivation and leisure—all the big prizes of the world, in fact—are obtained by the successful exercise of the intellect. The moral qualities, of themselves, can procure a man nothing but a clear conscience, and the approval, perhaps mixed with contempt, of his neighbors. And yet, when the intellectual qualities are brought to the test of reality; when one's view of them is not clouded by pride, avarice, or passion, how amazingly does their value shrink and shrivel!—Henry Childs Merwin in "Atlantic Monthly."

Fish Stories in the Talmud.

The Talmud of the Hebrews is a depository in which one would seek for many things before looking for huge fish stories and chronicles of the immemorial sea-serpent; yet there are some specimens therein which would put the veriest son of the sea to shame and show that the early rabbis were not devoid of a keen sense of humor. The following are from the latest section of the English translation by Rabbi Rodkinson:

"Rabba b. Hana said again: 'I have seen an alligator as large as the city of Hagrunia, which contained sixty houses. A snake came and swallowed it, and a large-tailed raven came and swallowed the snake, and then the raven sat on a tree!'"

The translation of another is as follows:

"Rabba said again: 'At one time when on board of a ship I saw a fish into whose gills a reptile crept from which it died, the sea throwing it out on land. And sixty streets were destroyed by its fall, and sixty streets consumed its flesh, and sixty other streets salted the flesh that was left; and from one eye they filled three hundred measures of oil; and when I returned thither after twelve months, I saw its bones being sawed to restore the streets that were destroyed by it!'"

Were the speaker other than Rabba b. Hana, who would have believed this?

"He said again: 'At one time I was on board of a ship, which was driven between two fins of a fish; three days and three nights the fish was swimming against the wind and we were sailing with the wind. . . And R. Ashi said that this was one of the smallest fishes of the sea which has two fins!'"

From the same inexhaustible source we have the following also:

"It once happened that I was going on a boat, and saw a fish on which sand was gathered and grass grown thereupon. And we thought it was an island, descended, baked, and cooked upon it. When the back of the fish grew hot, it turned over, and had the ship not been so near we would have been drowned."

It is scarcely to be wondered at that at the close of one of these marvelous rabbinical tales we should find this remark recorded: "R. Papa b. Samuel said: 'If I had not been there, I should not have believed it!'"

"He may mean well," said the young doctor, "but I don't exactly like the tone of his letter."

"What's the matter?" inquired the old practitioner.

"Jones, the undertaker, writes and says that if I send my patients to him he will guarantee to give them satisfaction."—Judge.

"A good man has gone," wrote the editor of The Hickory Ridge Missourian, in winding up his obituary of Col. Wopjaw. "He was honored and respected by all, and a large concourse of sympathizing friends and neighbors followed to the tomb all that was mortal of our distinguished citizen, except a leg he had the misfortune to lose while fighting bravely at Chickamauga thirty-eight years ago."—Chicago Tribune.

A Story of Cecil Rhodes.

Mr. Cecil Rhodes' latest biographer, Mr. Hensman, contradicts the story that Rhodes ever used the phrase "he never met a man whom he could not buy." The germ of this fiction, Mr. Hensman says, "is to be found in the fact that one day, many years ago, when discussing his proposed telegraph wire from one end of Africa to the other, somebody asked him how he proposed to carry it across the Soudan, which was then under the domination of the Khalifa. 'Oh, leave it to me,' Rhodes answered. 'I never met the man yet that I could not come to an agreement with, and I shall be able to fix things up with the Khalifa when the time comes.' This is the true version of a story that in its distorted form has been so widely circulated."

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE.

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices.

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.

WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the on scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD
WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

My lady, the chatelaine, wove in beautiful designs and embroideries the tapestries from which we have borrowed some beautiful ideas in our wall paper.

Observations of John Henry.

"DOWN the Line With John Henry" is the title of an amusing little booklet of sketches in up-to-date slang by the pseudonymous writer, Hugh McHugh, who is disputing with George Ade the right to the particular niche left vacant by the death of the entertaining "Billy Baxter." John Henry is a sporty man-about-town, the very antithesis of Richard Harding Davis's refined Van Bibber. From his account of his experiences at the races with his best girl, we quote a few characteristic extracts:

When we got to the track they were bunching the bones for the first race, so I told Clara Jane I thought I'd crawl down to the ring and plaster two or three thousand around among the needy.

Two or three thousand, and me with nothing but a five-spot in my jeans, and the return ticket money in that!

"Sure!" I said; "I've got a pipe!"

"Well, I hope you won't smoke it near me. I hate pipes!" she said.

"All right; I'll take my pipe down to the betting ring and smoke it there!" I said, and we parted good friends.

(In front of the band stand he met a number of friends ready to give him tips on the winners:

Every Breezy Boy I met had a different bunch, and they called me into the wharf and unloaded.

I figured it out that if I had bet five dollars on each good thing they gave me I would have lost four hundred thousand dollars.

Then I ducked under, sopped up a stein of root beer, and climbed up again to the hurricane deck.

"Did you bet?" enquired Clara Jane.

"Only seven hundred and thirty dollars," I said; "a mere bag o' shells."

I leave a call for 7.30 every morning, and I suppose that's the reason I was so swift with the figures.

"My! what a lot of money!" said the Fair One; "do point out the horse you bet on! I shall be awfully interested in this race!"

(John Henry picked out a horse at random, declaring that the only way it could lose "was for some sore-head to get out and turn the track around.")

Sure enough, the favorite galloped into port and dropped anchor six hours ahead of the other clams.

I win over two thousand two hundred dollars—conversation money—and Bonnie Brighteyes was in a frenzy of delight. . . .

I had a nervous chill for fear she'd declare herself in on the rake-off.

But she didn't, so I excused myself and backed down the ladder to cash in.

(Still the wary John Henry listened to the tips and refrained from betting.)

When I got back to the stand I had a preoccupied air. The five-spot in my jeans was crawling around and begging for a change of scene.

When Clara Jane asked me how much I had bet on the race just about to start, I could only think of nine hundred dollars.

When she wanted to know which horse I pointed my finger at every toad on the track, and said: "That one, over there!"

It won.

At the end of the third race I was $19,218 to the good.

Clara Jane had it down in black and white on the back of an envelope, in figures that couldn't lie.

(John Henry remarked that when Clara begged him to be content with his winnings and not bet any more, he promised, "but she didn't notice that I had my fingers crossed.")

I simply had to have a roll to flash on the way home, so I took my lonely V and went out into the Promised Land after the nuggets Maddy had put me wise to. . . .

(Pretty Boy was his choice, despite the fact that the bookmakers told him he had made a mistake.)

When the horses got away with Pretty Boy in front I started in to stand on my head, but changed my mind and swallowed half the programme.

Pretty Boy at the quarter! Me for Rector's till they put the shutters up!

Pretty Boy at the half! Me down to Tiffany's in the morning dragging tiaras away in a dray!

Pretty Boy at the three-quarter pole! Me doing the free-library gag all over the place!

But just as they came in the stretch Pretty Boy forgot something and went back after it.

The roach quit me cold at the very door of the safety deposit vaults.

(Of course Clara Jane never guessed his plight, for he "rushed down among the ramblers and made a swift touch for the price of a couple of rides home," and on the way back promised Clara Jane that he would be awfully careful of his $19,218—conversation money.)

—OR—

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leafy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter fatal web that had coiled itself around her, go and leave the girl to her doom!

Saving Lillian meant ruin to herself.

For three days and three nights she pondered over the matter; she scarcely ate, and when her eyes closed — if the truth must be told— she drugged herself to sleep with powerful narcotics— yes! it had come to that.

At last her nervousness grew so intense, if sleep for a few moments overtook her, she woke with a cry of alarm.

She had arisen early one morning—sleep was growing terrible to her, her dreams were so full of horrors—and had gone out into the garden.

It was a lovely summer's morning, the dew was shining on the long grass, on the hedges, on the leaves of the tall trees, and on the brilliant flowers.

Daisy thought to herself the flowers were never so fair as at this beautiful home of hers which she must leave.

But Aleck, whom she loved so well, was going with her, there was great comfort for her in that.

"I used to wonder what people meant when they talked of the agony of death," she thought; "now I know."

How fair life was to her as she walked among the flowers.

Oh, the lovely, laughing summer, the golden sun, the fairy flowers, the sweet singing birds, the fragrant air! Daisy stood in the midst of this loveliness, wondering if heaven would be kind to her, or if her sin would ever find her out.

She was safe here in her husband's princely home. Her eyes wandered round; surely her foe could not enter here.

She looked at the green, waving woods, at the beautiful park, at the pleasure grounds.

The sun shone on the square towers and massive turrets, on the oriel windows and the grand old porch.

A fancy came to her that, if Harold St. John had ever found her here and tried to take her away, she could shut herself up in this stronghold, and hold it against him.

But they would never meet—Heaven would not be so cruel, even if she did send poor Lillian to her doom.

So she reasoned with herself as she walked through the leafy glade.

A broad, running brook sung its pretty song winding through one corner of the grounds.

She stooped down and laved her hot hands in it; it was so cool, this sweet water singing under the shade of the trees; she bathed her face in it.

Ah, Heaven! what a fever of fear and unrest she was in.

Should she save Miss Ruthven by confessing all—or should she brave Heaven's anger still further? Listen to the little birds singing such sweet, fleeting music; would Heaven be so good to a little bird—feed it, keep it, fill its little heart with so much gladness that it overflowed in song, yet be cruel to her?

Look at the flowers, they lived, laughed, loved in the sunshine; would there be more compassion for a violet or for a rose than for her?

She thought not.

It is yet more than a week to the twenty-fourth, she told herself —she must take more time to consider.

A step sounded on the green lawn; she turned with a guilty start, that ended in a sigh of relief, when she found it was her father.

She would have avoided him by taking another path back to the house, but he saw her and called to her.

He noticed how cold the little hands were he clasped in his own, and how deep the shadows were in the great violet eyes he loved so well.

"You are not looking well, my child," he said, with deep concern.

"She is trying to keep it from me," he thought. "I am quite sure she is not on good terms with Aleck yet. They give one side of life to the outside world—even to me; but there is quite another in private."

He drew the curly head on his shoulder and kissed the lovely, velvety lips.

"Something is troubling you, pet," he said; "I feel sure. Confide in your father."

"I was just trying to solve the great problem of life, papa," she said, "and was wondering why I was born. Do you believe that an evil destiny guides some lives, and pursues them until death breaks the poor victims chains? I do!"

"I believe nothing of the kind," declared the honest old farmer. "People make or mar their own lives as the case may be. Your mother, God bless her! used to say, if people kept out of bad company, and walked the straight and narrow path heedless of the thorns that beset the way, they would find heaven at the end of the road. She set great store by you, little Daisy, and made heaps of plans for your future.

"Tell me one thing, are you happy with Aleck, or are you not, child?" he asked, anxiously. "I do not understand the look on your face."

"Believe me, Aleck is my world, papa," she sobbed. "He is to me what the sunshine is to the flowers. He is the other half of my soul. I love him with a love so intense, even the angels in heaven might tremble for me, it is so great and so pitiful. And Aleck, poor Aleck, loves me quite as well as I do him, papa, and trusts me."

"Then what in heaven's name do you wear that death-white face around for if your life is going on happily and well?" demanded her father, in astonishment. "You give people the impression that you are heart-broken— that you are nursing some secret sorrow.

"I would give every dollar I have in the world to see you like you were once, Daisy," he sighed. "Why, you were singing as happily as a lark in the clover meadow from morning till night. Now day and night your eyes are heavy with unshed tears which you try in vain to conceal. You have been a different being ever since the day your sisters, Olive and Hetty, started off on that frolic to Briarvale. Why, how you start, child. What is the matter?"

"It was only a quick, sudden pain at my heart, papa," she answered. "I —I am better now. You must not feel alarmed; indeed, you must not, it is nothing, I assure you."

CHAPTER XXIX.

"I am Anything but Pleased."

It had been decided that Mr. Gordon and Olive should accompany Aleck and Daisy east again on the twenty-fourth.

It wanted but two days to that time now, and still Daisy's courage failed

Ping-Pong in Society.

We have no idea on this side of the Atlantic of the extent to which "ping-pong" has affected English society, but the following from a London paper of late date gives an inkling of the popularity—absurd popularity, one is tempted to say—which it has attained:—

"The nice conduct of the celluloid has become a cult. 'Professors' we have already, and now comes the 'school,' where beginners are coached in the subtleties of our latest form of amusement.

"As befits the high rank of 'ping-pong,' the teaching class is an academy, and its location is the balcony at Niagara Hall. There half a dozen tables (9 feet by 5 feet) are open to students. They absorb the rudiments and go forward to excellence under the skilful tuition of Mr. P. Fleming, son of Tom Fleming, known as the father of lawn tennis.

"Around these tables stand, day by day, scores of men, young and middle-aged, maidens and matrons, eager to qualify for proficiency in the dining-room. Half a crown is the fee per lesson, and when the 'ping-pongers' have picked up some mastery of the game a shilling secures the table for a set.

"Frequently a really good player strolls in and takes a turn. It is as if Stevenson descended on a pool-room and casually 'took a cue,' or MacLaren played as 'Mr. A. N. Other' on a village cricket ground.

"Thursday brings its special diversion. Men and women from the ice rink below come up and play 'ping-pong' on skates.

"Of course, there are no sofas nor cosy corners in this academy, and hence no easy hiding-place for the errant ball. Players do not grovel on dusty floors. Ingenuity has evolved a 'scoop' with a long handle to entrap the wanderer in meshes of elastic.

"The game prospers all round. Mr. Fleming has always plenty of calls on his teaching ability from private houses.

"On Thursday week his Majesty is to visit Niagara and watch the skating champions on the ice. It is not beyond the dreams of 'ping-pongers' that the King may ascend the balcony and look on at a game.

"Nay, the fluttering hope is that Edward VII. will himself take a racquet and his first (public) essay in what somebody in 'Measure for Measure' long ago foretold as 'the game of tick-tack.'"

The same paper, The Express, in another issue raises the point as to whether the craze for "ping-pong" is not a sign of national decay, and really, after reading the above, the suggestion does not seem unreasonable. Mr. Kipling might have done his country a real service if he had attacked "ping-pong" instead of cricket and football. Or can it be that the craze is partly due to his bitter lines, for in yet another reference to the new game it is stated that "suburban athletes have forsaken football and golf to foregather in a stuffy club room on Saturday afternoons and trifle with a celluloid ball"; and again "The National Sporting Club has invested in a championship 'ping-pong' table, and amateur boxers have been seen glaring at each other, not across the ring, but over a miniature net." Surely the "flannelled fools," etc., have gone from bad to worse, and the Imperial bard should shortly be heard from again.

Misfortunes of Some Welshmen.

The following extract from an article by Mr. W. L. Griffith, Canadian Government agent for Wales, in The Western Daily News, Cardiff, gives a picturesque sketch of the misfortunes of the Patagonian Welshmen who are likely to come to Canada shortly:—When the idea of a Welsh colony in Patagonia was first mooted Wales was seething with political discontent. But, strong as this feeling undoubtedly was, it required much effort on the part of Professor Michael Jones of Bala and the Rev. Lewis Jones of Festiniog to prevail upon the small band of people which eventually made the venture. The motives of the self-deceived leaders in the movement will always remain open to debate. The attraction to the rank and file was the vision of free land, immunity from taxes, and the self-government so dear to the heart of the Welshman. Fired with these ideas, the imaginative Cymry saw visions of a Cymric Utopia. They not only cherished these ideals, but they were prepared to do all in their power to compass their realization. They were brave, earnest, laborious, ready and willing to sacrifice self. It is pathetic to think of the shock these brave men and women encountered when they finally landed on the desert shores of New Bay, and discovered that the country they had fondly pictured as one of illimitable resource was nothing but a barren desert, and that their leaders, whom they implicitly trusted, had been guilty of carelessness which was, perhaps, worse than inexcusable. In fairness it must here be stated that Professor Michael Jones squandered a private fortune on what had become his pet project. As they were without means the Welsh people were face to face with starvation. There was nothing to do but, to use an Americanism, "scratch for a living." The history of these people during the first years of the settlement entitles them to the greatest credit.

A Story of Prince Henry.

Prince Henry of Prussia, according to a story told by a diplomat who was once attached to the British Embassy in Berlin, was one day chatting with an English friend in a cafe in Bonn, when he became an object of suspicion to one of those meddling minor officials who flourish in such numbers in Germany. The Prince is too discreet a man to discuss affairs of State in a public place, but on this occasion some subject arose which, while not of general interest, related to the Imperial family. The conversation was in English, and the spying official was acquainted with that language. At length Prince Henry remarked:—"Why, my dear fellow, don't you see that the Emperor would be even crazier than some people seem to believe he is if he did anything like that?"

The official leaned toward his Royal Highness and said: "Sir, are you aware that there is a lese majeste law in this country? Let me hear another remark of that kind, and I make a complaint against you."

The Englishman took in the situation, and a moment afterward remarked: "As I was saying to your Royal Highness before we were interrupted——"

The meddler gasped, rose hastily and withdrew.

He Was Better Off Without It.

Selecting Layers.

While in every flock of poultry there are good, bad and indifferent layers, not all poultry-keepers take the trouble to discriminate and set the eggs of only the good layers. The points that distinguish a good from an indifferent layer are the increased activity of the former, and she usually has a small head and extra bright eye, but these latter points want a trained eye to detect. Good layers can be found not only among pure breeds and first crosses, but among the so-called mongrels, but in every case they are the most active in the flock and the hungriest, which is easily explained by the fact that they are often laying when the others are not, and a laying hen is always more eager for food, or at least wants more food, than one not laying. A very good layer seldom, if ever, lays a large egg; it is of medium size only, and for this reason often gets overlooked when eggs are chosen for setting. Some poultry-keepers choose the biggest eggs for this purpose, but the medium sized ones will hatch just as fine chickens as a rule. The eggs of a good layer should always be set, for her progeny are very likely to take after her; a cockerel descended from a good layer is of more value in the breeding-pen than one from a moderate layer only.—C. D. L., in Farm and Home.

Unfertile Eggs.

It is generally best to set several hens at the same time, so that unfertile or addled eggs can be thrown out on the sixth or seventh day, and a redistribution made of the remainder, giving a full supply to each hen as far as they will go, and leaving perhaps one or two birds with none at all. These can be reset again with fresh eggs, and they will be little or none the worse of the extra week's work.

It is always advisable to throw out the useless eggs as soon as their presence can be detected. They are simply taking up space in the nest, and perhaps preventing full justice being done to the others. It is often possible to pick them out on the fifth day, but they can generally be detected with certainty on the seventh. The procedure is extremely simple. Encircle the egg to be tested between the thumb and forefinger, lengthways, and hold up between the eye and a gas jet or candle flame. If it is fertile it will appear to be quite opaque, the air space at the thick end showing clearly against the dark centre; while, if the egg is unfertile, it will show quite clear all over. Such eggs as the latter may at once be thrown out. If the contents seem muddy, and appear to shift as the egg is moved in the hand, very likely it is addled, and may be thrown out also. If there is any doubt as to such an egg, it may be replaced in the nest, and retested a day or two after. Its true condition can then be ascertained with certainty. If such an egg rattles when slightly shaken, it is going rotten fast.—Farmer and Stock Breeder.

Brown Eggs and White Eggs.

Among the many popular fallacies which are prevalent at the present day there is none more common (even to a large extent among educated people) than the belief in the superiority of a brown egg over a white one. It is certainly true that a rich-colored brown egg looks more tempting on the breakfast table than does one of the cream-colored eggs which are most frequently seen. A cream-colored egg in most cases is a stale egg—it is a brown egg that has lost its color to a greater or less extent, and with its color, too, has gone the bloom of freshness which is so characteristic of a new-laid egg. Although, as a rule, the richly-colored brown eggs are first selected at the morning breakfast table, yet at the same time if the white eggs were of that pure white color which is characteristic of the Minorca and Leghorn and the Andalusian—that is to say, if they were always of a pure white color, not a creamy color—I fancy they would be taken up more rapidly. The hotelkeeper who has to display on his breakfast tables a number of eggs would make them look more attractive if he would only place before his guests eggs which are either absolutely white or rich dark-brown intermingled.

But now what is the difference between a brown egg and a white one? Experiments have been tried from time to time with a view to comparing the composition of brown eggs and white eggs, and these experiments have revealed the fact that there is absolutely no difference whatever between a brown egg and a white egg so far as their chemical composition is concerned. It is six of one and half a dozen of the other, and the notion that, because an egg is brown in color, therefore it is richer than one which is white in color, is an absurdity. The same thing applies to the color of the yolk; a dark yolk is no better than a pale yolk so far as nutritive properties are concerned. It is perfectly true that the flavor of yolks varies considerably, but that depends upon the manner in which fowls are fed, and also upon the conditions under which they are kept, and it has no bearing whatever upon the richness or otherwise of the yolks from a dietetic point of view. The reason why some eggs are brown in color while others are white is simply this, that in certain breeds—generally speaking, those which are known as the Asiatic breeds—the carbonate of lime which is deposited through their blood to form the egg shell is pink-colored, whereas in other breeds it is white, and wherever Asiatic blood is present the egg color is dark proportionately—that is to say, that a fowl with only a tincture of Asiatic blood in its veins will lay a slightly tinted egg, whereas one that has more Asiatic blood in her veins will lay a darker egg, and so on. That is not an absolutely fixed rule, but that is the drift of it. The color of the eggs a hen lays depends really upon her pedigree. The same principle applies to the color of the yolk. The color of the yolk is due to a pigment, and is dependent, as I have already said, upon the feeding and general conditions of living, and to some extent upon the hereditary tendency also.

Farmers would find it advantageous (as I have several times previously said in these columns) to aim at producing very white and very dark brown eggs—in preference to the indefinite assortment of colors we usually see in an egg basket. The appearance is so much better.—W. M. Brown, in Farm and Home.

Permanent Cures

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our constitutional treatment in curing Cancer is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the Breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggravated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, its cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper, on receipt of two stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to its columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published.—Ed. Times.]

—The Times is to be enlarged in a few days.

—The Otonabee smallpox case is convalescent.

—Painters and paperhangers complain of dullness of trade.

—We have 50 good-sized second hand packing cases for sale cheap at The Times Bookstore.

—Many of the ratepayers are by no means favorable to spending money in dredging the bed of the river.

—Want a nice hammock? New lot, of the very best make, just in, at Times Bookstore.

—Two young men were each fined $2 an costs yesterday at the Police Court for riding on the sidewalk.

—There is what is called a rummage sale now going on a few doors south of The Times building, under the auspices of All Saints' Church.

—New map of the County of Peterborough, mounted on rollers, only $2.50. Times Bookstore.

—The funeral of the late Henry Dunne will take place this afternoon from the family residence, George st., to the Little Lake cemetery.

—Dr. Ford's committee rooms in Ashburnham are established in a broom factory. Is this suggestive of a cleansweep for the Doctor?

—The Murray Street Separate School grounds are to be improved and levelled. The Council has consented to loan the town road roller to roll the grounds.

—Atsum of the Dickson Company is poor position. This Company has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars amongst the people during the past few years.

—The high tea in St. Paul's Church parlors on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church, was a great success, both financially and otherwise.

—Mr. Dan Foley is getting Jubilee Point Hotel into shape for a big summer's trade, which this popular resort is sure to secure when the season opens.

—The writs for the election for East and West Peterborough have been received by the returning officers here, Sheriff Hall and Mr. B. Morrow.

—The Mayor will issue a proclamation announcing Friday, the 23rd, instant, as a market day, as the 24th will fall on Saturday, and will be observed as a public holiday.

—Mr. G. M. Whiten, the up-to-date photographer, has had his splendid studio thoroughly overhauled and improved. Painters and paper hangers have been at work, an everything is now in first class order. Mr. Whiten's reputation for doing only first class work is known far and near.

—A Belleville paper says:—"An old man, named W. Graham, who claims Peterborough as his home, was arrested on Saturday evening for begging on the street. For two nights previous he had been in the station for protection. Upon promising to leave the city the magistrate allowed him to go."

—The Committee of Management of the P.P. Home gratefully acknowledge the following donations for the month of April: Mrs. Burnham, Toronto papers; Richard Hall & Son, pair of curtains; A. W. Crossman, pair of curtains; Turnbull & Co., window shade; Mr. A. H. Stratton, music book; Chief of Police, 5 lbs. butter; Mrs. D. W. Dumble, milk; Miss Dugar, rhubarb; Huffington, apples.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Events Under This Head Transpiring in and around Peterborough.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to furnish the paper with items of a personal and social nature either by 'phone or in writing.—Ed. Times.]

—Mr. John Craig, Lakefield, was in town yesterday.

—Mr. J. H. Brandon, Fenelon Falls, was in town yesterday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Scott left yesterday for Ottawa, where they will reside heretofore.

—The condition of Mr. Macfarlane Wilson continues to improve. He is now able to sit up a short time each day.

—Mrs. (Rev) D. Martin, of Cannington, has been spending the last few days in town, with Mrs. (Dr.) Greer. Mrs. Martin is on her way to Montreal.

A Gift of Books

Mrs. Wallis, Gilmour street, yesterday shipped by express a case containing 200 books to the South African contingent at Halifax. This generous gift will be much appreciated by the boys on the long voyage to the dark continent.

Gough Bros.' Enterprise

Messrs. Gough Bros. the great clothing house of Peterborough, are just now conducting a large sale in boys' clothing. The firm are offering suits for boys and men at prices that knock the bottom out of all previous records in low figures. It is only necessary to call and inspect the high quality of the goods offered, and the prices asked, to be convinced. Messrs. Tully & Merrill, the Managers of the local branch have shown their ability to successfully cater to the requirements of the trade. Drop in and see them.

Monday May 12

The programme to be given in St. Paul's church on the 12th inst., by the Jarvis street Baptist choir, of Toronto, is without question a program of the good things in music. The choir is assisted by Miss McMurty, soprano, Mr. A. L. E. Davies, bass, Mr. Victor Hutchison, tenor, Mr. G. R. McClellan, baritone, and Mr. Arthur Alvin, solo organist. As an evidence of the interest this choir has caused in church circles, it may be stated that they have had six or seven invitations to visit as far east as Perth. That Mr. Vogt and his choir has chosen to visit Peterborough is a matter for congratulation to the choir of St. Paul's and the public generally.

HERE IS YOUR CHANCE

The Weekly Times and the Weekly Star Until End of Year for 75c

We have much pleasure in being able to announce that we have completed arrangements for supplying the Family Herald and Weekly Star and The Weekly Times, from the present until the end of the year for 75c.

This is a superb offer, and one that should "go." It is a hard combination to beat, for both papers are amongst the best in the land. Send in your order at once, to The Times, Peterborough.

Pimples, Blotches and Skin Eruptions

How unsightly, sometimes even disgusting, and certainly very mortifying to the sufferer. They are merely an evidence of impure, poisoned blood, and lowered vitality of the eliminating organs, which can quickly be changed by taking Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone cleanses the blood of all poisons and eruptions, makes it rich in red corpuscles that manifest themselves in a healthy, ruddy complexion. To have a pure, soft skin and good complexion, simply use Ferrozone regularly. Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at druggists, or Ormond & Walsh.

STONY LAKE IMPROVEMENTS

A Number of New Cottages for the Summer Resort

That Stony Lake is becoming more popular as a summer resort may be seen by the new cottages that are being erected every year. The present year will be no exception to the rule.

Mr. T. H. Darcy, the new and popular proprietor of Burleigh Falls Hotel, is making extensive improvements. A large addition is being made to the house, by which more sleeping accommodation will be afforded, and the house will be otherwise improved. Mr. Darcy and his son Warren are the right men in the right place. They will assuredly do a big business. Mrs. Darcy, who will also lend her assistance in the management of this popular resort, is also well known, and will see that the guests are well cared for.

Mr. John Kinrald, our local contractor and builder, whose reputation for artistic work is seen in many of the beautiful cottages on the lake, has just completed a new cottage, for Mr. Joshua Collins. The cottage has a comfortable verandah, with two sleeping rooms.

Mr. George Morrow is also erecting a fine two-storey boat house.

Mr. Dodsworth, a resident of the neighboring republic, is erecting an addition to his cottage of a dining room, kitchen and three bedrooms.

Mr. David Brown is also overhauling and greatly improving his place.

Mr. Gus Loch contemplates building a verandah this year.

Mr. Morgan, at McCracken's Landing, is also doing some improving.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall will make an addition to his cottage.

Grape Nuts Food Give the Strength

It is a good thing to know of food that will add volumes to one's strength, for the strong can do things and accomplish work in this world while the weak must stand to one side.

A woman in Toronto writes, "I was in very poor health a long time and got so weak and run down that I would often stop at the foot of the stairs and wonder how I could get to the top.

I began using Grape-Nuts and in a very short time that weak, broken down feeling entirely disappeared. I had formerly been forced to give up my breakfasts in order to give my stomach a rest, but when I got hold of Grape-Nuts I could eat breakfast for the food seemed to help digest other foods, and soon I began to gain in weight and strength.

I regularly use fruit and Grape-Nuts for breakfast and can work harder and for a longer time than ever before." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE BIG MEETING TO-NIGHT

IT WILL BE THE PRINCIPAL GATHERING OF THE ELECTORS

During the Campaign and will be Addressed by Hon. J. R. Stratton, Hon. Richard Harcourt and Hon. F. E. A. Evanturel

The electors of Peterborough are reminded of the public meeting which will be held in Bradburn's opera house this evening, in the interests of the candidature of Hon J R Stratton, who will address the meeting, as well as Hon. R. Harcourt, Minister of Education and Hon. F. E. A. Evanturel, ex-Speaker of the Legislature.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt is a fluent and effective speaker, and is regarded as one of the best in the late Parliament. Hon Mr. Evanturel is also a pleasing speaker. He will address the meeting both in French and English.

The chair will be taken at 8 o'clock so that the speaking may be concluded at a reasonably early hour.

The gallery will be reserved for ladies who are cordially invited to be present

Nursing Mothers and Malt Breakfast Food

As an article of diet, Malt Breakfast Food has brought more health and comfort to the homes of Canada than any other food preparation. Mothers find it an invaluable food during the period of nursing, as it provides the most ample nutrition for keeping up health and strength. It also wonderfully promotes the secretion of milk.

Malt Breakfast Food is recommended every day by physicians to nursing mothers, because of its many advantages as a concentrated nourishment. No other food is so easily and so rapidly digested and assimilated, and no other contributes so much to general health building. If the mother's stomach is weak and capricious, let her try Malt Breakfast Food for a week; it will soon establish perfect digestion, healthful circulation and a well regulated nervous system. Ask your grocer for Malt Breakfast Food.

Valuable Advice to Rheumatics

Eat meat sparingly, and take very little sugar. Avoid intoxicants, keep away from dampness, drink water abundantly, and always rely on Nerviline as a quick reliever of rheumatic pains. Being five times stronger than ordinary remedies, Nerviline's power over pain is simply beyond belief. It cures also sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia and all pain, whether internal or external. Large bottles, price 25c.

—Messrs. James Bogue and John Hayes were unsuccessful tenderers for Lindsay pavements, the contract being given to a Lindsay man, although Mr. Hayes' tender was the lowest. This kind of treatment will hardly be productive of competition on future jobs.

—The Dickson Co's new alligator the Hazlitt, was launched at Lakefield on Monday and made a successful trial trip to Young's Point. The craft is being built along the usual lines, with side wheels and powerful engines. West & Peachy, of Simcoe, are the builders.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed, "Tender for supplying coal for the Dominion Buildings," will be received at this office until Tuesday, 3rd June, 1902, inclusively, for the supply of coal for the Public Buildings throughout the Dominion.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application at this office.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed form supplied, and signed with their actual signatures.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. of amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the party decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or if he fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh, and Dr Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $10 will be paid for any case they will not permanently cure.

THE ONTARIO BANK.

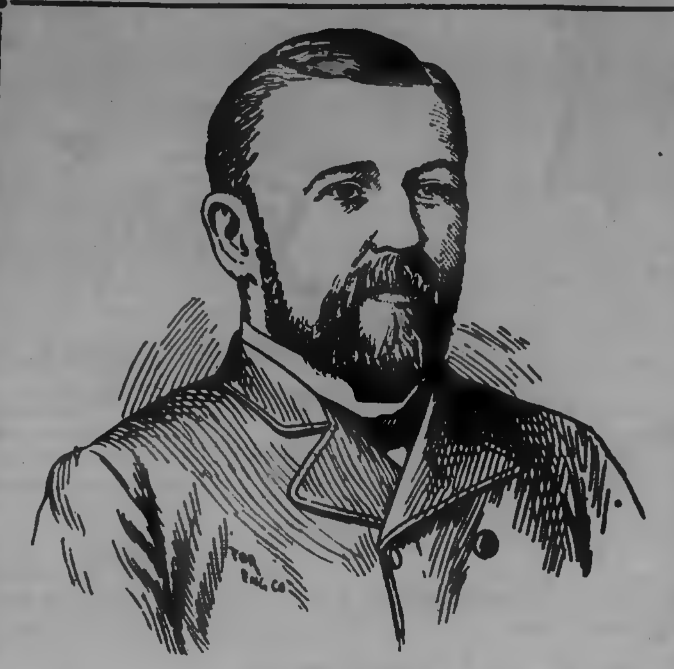
PETERBOROUGH COMES OUT STRONG FOR THE HON. J. R. STRATTON

Eloquent and Impressive Addresses Delivered Last Night by Cabinet Ministers

A Great Meeting Endorses Mr. Stratton and Shows that He is as Popular as Ever

The Opera House Crowded to the Doors, and Great Enthusiasm Shewn.



HON. J. R. STRATTON
Provincial Secretary

What was really the opening gun of the present campaign, so far as the Liberal side is concerned, in West Peterborough, was fired last night at the opera house, when Hon. Richard Harcourt, Minister of Education, Hon. Mr. Evanturel, late speaker of the Legislative Assembly, and Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary and candidate for West Peterborough, addressed a crowded meeting. The chair was occupied by Alderman Rogers, who in a brief and appropriate address called the meeting to order, and introduced the various speakers.

If the immense crowd which came to see and hear the Ministers has any connection with the state of public feeling, it means an overwhelming majority for the Liberal candidate. Last night's demonstration was a spontaneous outburst of the people, who were delighted to show their appreciation and hearty good will for Mr. Stratton, whose appearance was the signal for almost boundless applause. To the young men the magnetism of the Provincial secretary, the amiable manner and the personal regard in which he is held by the electors of West Peterborough, regardless of political ties, was amply manifested throughout the meeting.

The decorations were profuse and appropriate, and were the work of Mr. Alf Kingscote.

HON. J. R. STRATTON

The Provincial Secretary on taking the platform received a perfect ovation. He thought the splendid gathering assembled to greet his colleagues and himself indicative of the interest taken in the live issues of the day. The ladies he thought have always been on his side in Peterborough campaigns, which he attributed as one of the reasons for his hitherto successful political contests. Four years ago he asked for votes as an ordinary member of the local house; since that time a change has occurred in the leadership of the Provincial Legislature, resulting in his occupying to-day the Portfolio of Provincial Secretary, and he had to thank both Liberals and Conservatives alike for their courtesy in returning him by acclamation when his name came before them as a candidate for that proud position (cheers). The Government are appealing for a renewal of that confidence it has enjoyed for so many years, and he did not think the Opposition has shown any justifiable reason for a withdrawal of that confidence.

Continuing, the hon. gentleman showed by figures that the surplus claimed by the Ross Government was a reality, and in comparing Ontario's finances with those of other Provinces, the former stands preeminently ahead of any other Province in the Dominion. An auditing of the books by eminent financiers showed that they had been promptly kept, that the monies had been expended according to appropriations and all business transactions the same as those adopted by all financial institutions. When Parliament dissolved the Government had a cash surplus in the bank of $1,979,050. The assets of the Province on December 31st, 1901, were $7,901,000; liabilities $5,330,000, and after a liquidation of all claims there would remain a surplus of $2,571,000, in round numbers. Of all the Provinces of the Dominion, not one of them occupied the proud position of Ontario, with a surplus in the bank, and Mr. Whitney and his followers have yet to establish the improper disposal of a single dollar of public funds. It is a striking fact that Ontario is the only Province in the Dominion that has been continuously under Liberal rule and has such a splendid financial record, while all the others have fallen behind, Quebec almost continuously under Tory rule, most of all. Turning to his Tory opponent, he said, Mr. Miller complained in the North-West district one will not find a stick of pine lumber which stood 30 years ago. We do not want that pine tune, but the land upon which it stood under cultivation, and to-day we have an intelligent population, where timber once grew. Then since the Liberal Government came into power, it has received for timber $27,730,965. If we have squandered the Province's money it is but fair for the Opposition to prove in what direction it has gone. We have expended it on railways, on colonization roads and public institutions of varied kinds, and still have a surplus. In contrast to this, Quebec since confederation has incurred an indebtedness of $3,000,000, Nova Scotia $3,000,000, British Columbia $6,000,000, Manitoba, $5,000,000. We have increased our expenditure only where it was absolutely necessary, and indispensable, and $20,000,000 has been expended in public institutions, thus lessening the burdens the electors would have had to bear by direct taxation had the Government's policy been different. In Ontario the rate of taxation is about one half mill less than that of many of the States in the American Union. Our average rate is 9.9—10 mills, while the average rate in the Central States reaches 23.1—10 mills.

The distinguished speaker next handled the succession tax, which he considered a move in the right direction, and he was not above telling the Hon. Senator Cox that a reasonable share of his estate should go toward maintaining public institutions and charities. In adopting this measure the Ross Government is simply following a precedent set by Great Britain. An estate under $10,000 does not pay a penny of succession dues; neither does an estate of 100,000, if it be left to widow and family. It is only the estate that is left to those outside these beneficiaries that is subjected to succession dues. The assumption is that a man who has made a million or half a million has made it out of the peopl or out of some public utility, and that it is only fair, he having been protected by our laws in the making of this money, that a small proportion of it should find its way back to the people, out of whom it comes.

Continuing, the hon. gentleman remarked that, the Government contends that large corporations should pay somethin towards the expense of the Province, under whose charters and protection they do business. Railways, telephone companies, insurance companies, telegraph companies, brewers and distillers, and banking and loan corporations were all now subjected to a slight levy, and not one of them had complained. It was necessary to have money wherewith to carry on the Government of the Province, and these were fair bodies to ask to contribute. Last year they contributed something less than a million dollars ($871,000), which went to the maintenance of the schools, the enforcement of the laws, the cost of legislation, and the protecting of the lives and property of the people. Mr. Whitney does not deem it right that these wealthy corporations deriving large dividends from the people should contribute toward the governing of the Province, but the Ross Government takes the opposite view.

Turning to the development of New Ontario, Mr. Stratton saw the Government could not have promoted it earlier because for 18 years this territory was in dispute between the Dominion and Ontario, and thanks is due Sir Oliver Mowat that this Province to-day includes some 100,000 square miles more territory than it would have had the Opposition had its way. This district has become of inestimable value through its minerals, timber and spruce, to say nothing of a million acres of as fine agricultural land as is to be found in any county in the Province. The policy of the Conservatives at Ottawa when they thought they owned this territory was to parcel it out amongst their friends, and limits with enormous quantities of timber upon them were given away at $5 a square mile. To-day the Ross Government is receiving $1,000 a square mile for these very limits, and has received as much for some of them as $2,000 a square mile. This money is all spent for the people of Ontario alone.

The speaker then went on to enumerate the several railways connecting this region with Old Ontario, and the enormous development of raw mineral product which would not have taken place had the Clergue deal matured. The development of the clergue has been rapid. A million dollars has been spent by the company in an iron mine, and already between four and five thousand men are engaged in their various enterprises. The result is that the value of property has advanced enormously. In the vicinity of Sault Ste Marie it has gone up ten and even twenty fold. Imagine what all this means for Old Ontario in the way of supplies, clothing, groceries boots and shoes, implements and machinery, and even farm products. Houses are going up in all directions and villages, and settlements are springing into existence. Regarding the charge of stealing pulp wood, the Government has granted seven concessions on condition that a certain sum of money must be spent in erecting a mill, and a stipulated number of men employed; the pulp wood can be cut at 40c. a cord, and must be manufactured into pulp in the Province—it cannot be exported at 25c. additional per cord, or tied up till doomsday as is the case in Quebec. We reserve the right to all settlers of the pulp wood on their lands. For 288 million cords the Government will receive $115,000,000 for the pulp wood in that country.

As to the license act, the hon gentleman gave figures showing a very appreciable decrease in the number of licenses issued, and in the vice of drunkenness. A comparison with other countries shows that Canada is the most sober and has the best conducted people in the world (cheers). No laws are more stringent than the License laws of Ontario. The Referendum we propose submitting to the people is not for Prohibition such as voted on in Manitoba. That act did not prohibit the manufacture of liquor, while ours will be prohibitory in every sense of the word, and if passed the responsibility must rest upon the people themselves so that they will have a greater interest in its enforcement. But the Government says that Prohibition must be passed by a substantial majority, and unless 212,00 of the people who voted four years ago cast their ballots for it it shall not become law. This is in justice to all parties.

In reply to Mr. Lindsay, Mr. Stratton did not think he carried the key of the whole temperance party of the riding in his pocket. A voice—"I beg to differ." The speaker "And I don't think Mr. Northy does either. He and Mr. Lindsay will make a capital team, but the results will be the same" (laughter. He (the speaker) will not pledge himself to either party, but will do that which he thinks is in the best interests of th Province, and it is our duty to represen the views of all classes and creeds (hear, hear).

Turning to home affairs, the hon gentleman explained that the Ennismore people asked for $3,000 or $3,500 for the Ennismore bridge, and at his request the Premier gave them the overflowing cup—$3,500. As to the $4,000 given by his Government for the Dickson Co's dam at Stony Creek, Mr. Stratton explained that had that company built the dam themselves no person could use it but under the given and streams regulations, which n settler could comply with. Then we by timber limits in that district returning a revenue to the Government in trust for the people. The Government is now building a dam on Squaw River for the Gilmour Co., but as Mr. Gilmour is a conservative we don't hear a word of complaint.

In conclusion Mr. Stratton said he had always endeavored to do that which was in the best interests of this riding and he thought the 29th will show that he has been reasonable with all parties. The 65 or 70,000 appropriated by his Government for West Peterborough had all been spent by its several Reeves and to the satisfaction of the people, and would any sane man have voted for him in past elections had such money not been properly expended. He courted the keenest scrutiny of the uses to which all monies appropriated for this riding were put. The hon. gentleman resumed his seat amid prolonged applause.

HON. RICHARD HARCOURT.

Was enthusiastically received. He reviewed at some length most of the arguments advanced by the Provincial Secretary, and showed the wisdom of the Government in establishing schools of forestry and mines from which graduates are sent out to contribute to a knowledge of what our mineral and forestry wealth is. There are only two places in the world where nickle is found—one New Caledonia (French) and the other in our own Province, near Sudbury. No land in the world has such vast mineral wealth as that of Ontario. As to education, it is the greatest asset any people can have—an asset far exceeding the wealth of mines, forestry or fisheries. While in Ontario we have three Normal Schools, and the promise of a fourth, in England thousands are teaching who never had an hour of professional training. He illustrated the efficiency of Ontario's educational system by naming many of her scholars who have been selected for exceedingly responsible positions abroad, in competition with the best those countries could produce. When a third Normal School was proposed for London, Mr. Whitney opposed it—keep this in mind. There are Colleges in the U.S., the hon gentleman incidently remarked, giving degrees which have not the status of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

HON. T. B. A. EVANTUREL.

Was introduced at eleven o'clock, and regretted that the hour was so late and that he had to follow the Provincial Secretary. The ex-speaker of the house is an exceedingly eloquent speaker, full of French chivalry, and apparently could have held his audience till any hour he pleased. He eulogised Senator Cox as a distinguished business man who had made his mark in the world, and explained that he (the speaker) had come to Peterborough out of respect to the Provincial Secretary. If there is one thing more than another that has made him support the Liberal Government—of Mowat, Ross and Stratton—it is because that Government has always sat upon anything of a racial character. He was proud and grateful in the courtesy shown his race in selecting him, a French Canadian, to the honorable position of speaker of the House. In a riding in Quebec he had been pleased to note that this courtesy of Ontario had been in measure reciprocated; for in spite of the appeals of both Tory and French papers to a nineteenths majority of French Canadian Roman Catholic electorate to elect one of their own race and creed at that by-election, Mr. Bergeron was left at home and Protestant Mr. Roy elected. In conclusion the distinguished speaker urged upon his audience the wisdom of cementing together in friendship people of all races and creeds. Do not let us fool our lives away during the short time at our disposal in petty rivalries of race and religion. (Prolonged applause).

Hon. Senator Cox then in a brief address expressed his confidence in the Provincial Secretary's re-election, after which God save the King, was rendered by the 57th band and the usual cheers given for Mr. Stratton and his distinguished colleagues. Each speaker was presented with a beautiful bouquet.

Future of the British Colonies

New York, May 7—Captain A. T. Mahan, the American author and one of the most luminant writers on international relations of the present day, discusses the present condition of the British empire and the position of the colonies in an able article contributed to a current magazine. Among other things he points out that, in the absence of any federal union, the mother country has entire management of the foreign policy of the empire, and concern for the interests of the colonies, regard to their possible action in case of serious discontent with particular measures, certainly and necessarily modify the decisions of the British cabinet. In this way the colonies possess influence; but influence is different from power, less assured in exercise, and less dignified in recognition. Colonial interests, as affected by foreign relations, not only are not in their own hands, but they have no constitutional voice in their determination. In this chiefly their dependency now consists; and Sir Henry Parks, whose ideal of Australian independence was not severance from the empire, but entrance upon a due share in the government of a united empire, avowed his conviction that there was no possibility of permanent contentment with the status of dependency. Deprecating separate independence, he defined the only alternative to be "sharing on equal terms in all the glory of the empire." The precision of this phrase in one respect is noteworthy. It does not demand an equal share, but a share "on equal terms." This not only admits, but prescribes, that the power constitutionally exercised by each member shall bear some proportion to the strength contributed by it to the whole. Otherwise there is no equality.

Items of Interest

THE MOST FRUITFUL LAND.

Melbourne, May 7.—There is every indication that the New Hebrides problem has reached an acute stage in Australia. Unless prompt action is taken by the Imperial Government to support and supplement the efforts of the Commonwealth Government, the preponderance of French influence in the New Hebrides islands will become as firmly established, and the disgust of the British planters and settlers there with the neglect they experience so marked, that it will be impossible for either London or Melbourne to resist the claim of Quai d'Orsay that open and exclusive French control should take the place of the present loose Anglo-French regime.

In the entire New Hebrides group there are only 146 British subjects, including seventy-seven missionaries and their establishments, and some twenty bona-fide planters. The French population, on the other hand, totals over 500, and includes fifty bona-fide planters. Out of a total acreage of land in the islands of 2,082,083, the French claim 1,661,500—being for practical purposes, more than seventy per cent. of the most fruitful land.

DOMINANCE OF FRENCH.

If the condition of three or four of the best known islands is examined the dominance of French enterprise is even more noticeable than when the entire group is dealt with in a broad generalization. At the central island, known as Sandwich or Efate, there are 130 white inhabitants, of whom only forty are British and 130 French, the former claiming 12,500 acres of land and the latter 25,000 acres out of a total acreage of 274,000. The principal village in the island, Vila, is in all but name a French port. In the island of Espiritu Santo the French allege they possess 384,000 out of a total of 1,535,000 acres, the white population—living amongst 14,000 warlike natives—consisting of twenty-nine Frenchmen and ten Englishmen. At Malekula, the second largest island and one of the most fertile, my informant found fifty-seven Frenchmen, owing 482,000 acres, as fifteen Britishers owing 14,000 acres. A[illegible] he found 4,000 natives, sixty-two Frenchmen, and twenty-six British the Gauls claiming no less than 121,760 acres out of 150,250, and the Anglo-Saxons only 7 20. These facts speak for themselves in unmistakable tones, and must necessarily impress the statesmen in Paris who conduct the negotiations with Lord Lansdowne—especially when they are accompanied by the knowledge that three years ago there were only ninety Frenchmen in the group, with a proportionate ownership of land.

BIG CAPTURE OF BOERS IN ORANGE RIVER COLONY

Military Train was Derailed in Northern Transvaal and an Officer and Ten Men Killed

Special to The Times.

Lord Kitchener telegraphs the War Office from Pretoria as follows: "In Tuesday's operations in the Orange River Colony, Elliot held from Lindley to Liebenberg Vlei, and Barker held the drifts on Liebenberg Vlei to Frankfort in a continuous line. A column left Frankfort on the Heilbron-Vredefort line at dawn without wheels, and went southward rapidly, reaching Kroonstadt, Liebenberg Vlei, and Lindley in the afternoon. Ten Boers were killed and 2[illegible] taken prisoners. We also captured a number of horses and cattle. This force contained a portion of the most irreconcilable of the Boers.

"Barker has not reported the number of his captures."

London, May 9.—Lord Kitchener reports another accident on May 7.— to a train bound from Pretoria to Pietersburg, Northern Transvaal. The cars were derailed at a curve, and an officer and ten men were killed.

HART'S RIVER FIGHT

Graphic Description of the big Battle by a Canadian

Ottawa, May 8—The following letter was received from Stewart Clarke, a well known Ottawa boy, who also served in D Battery, R.C.A., describing the Hart's River fight.

Forty miles west of Klerksdorp,
S.A., April 1 '02

Dear Mother,—By this time you have heard about our terrible fight. We had our first fight on 30th of March, and it was a fierce one. We got sight of the Boers on the road ahead of us and the first thing we knew we were ordered to gallop after them. We started and got within 600 yards of them when they opened fire on us. We had a little fight with them and they moved away. We started after them again and they stopped us. We made preparations for camping and unsaddled our horses. I went over to help some Tommies get a 15-pounder out of some trees, about 200 yards away. We succeeded, and when I looked up I could see the enemy on the sky line. I thought we were in for it so I went back to camp to get ready. I had just got there when they fired their pom-pom. It landed very near us. We started at them and they gave us a hot old time which lasted from 1.30 p.m. to 4 p.m. They gave us a terrible fire. Rube Elliott and I got together and we fired. We had our fun and when it was over we started out to get our wounded and dead. It was a terrible sight to see our horses all over the camp dead, saddles broken, horse lines all broken and a general mixup of horses, waggons and men. We started to build trenches and get ready for them at daybreak but we got no chance at them. We got some sleep and soda crackers. It was a sight to see us get those crackers. You would have had to laugh. We then went over to see the waggons come in. If you saw the sight; hands, legs, all mixed up in a pile! Then the doctor got them spread out and it was a terrible sight to see the dead. We lost eight men. One fellow of ours named West got wounded and we thought he would live, but he died next morning. The next thing we did was to bury the dead. It was a sad sight. We put them in, two and three men on top of each other.

About twelve o'clock General Kitchener came in with some men. As they came over the hill and marched toward the camp, we fired a volley at them, taking them for Boers. Then we found out and were good and glad when they came in. He ordered us to saddle and we marched back here. There are about ten thousand here, so we will get a few days' rest. Then we will get at them again, but this time we will put them out of business for good. I will close for this time. Remember me to all the boys. Goodbye,

CORP. S. A. CLARKE,

RUBE ELLIOTT'S LETTER

On a piece of paper no bigger than the palm of one's hand, written with a lead pencil which apparently had not been sharpened for a long time, came a letter from "Rube" Elliott to his mother, Mrs. Elliott, of 108 O'Connor street, yesterday afternoon. The letter is one descriptive of the ever to be remembered Hart's river engagement and was most welcome both to his parents and friends, of whom he has many in this city.

Hart's River, Apr 2, '02.

Dear Mother,—I now drop you these few lines to let you know that I am well and came out of that fight all O. K. Stewart Clarke and I were together (we still keep together) and we dug a big trench and had a good fight with them. They shelled us too, but the Canadians fought like men and made a good name for themselves. This is the way they had Tommy and us. (Here he draws his diagram). As the mail is closing I will say goodbye to all and may God bless you. I have got no more paper and no more news. All Ottawa boys are well.

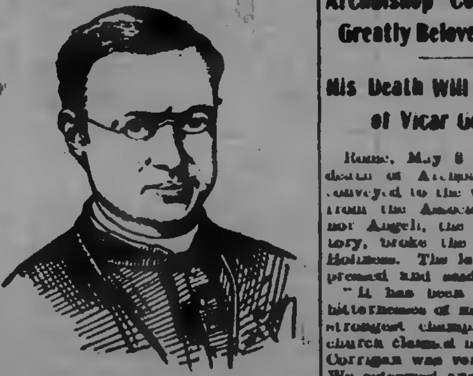
THE POPE MUCH GRIEVED



THE LATE ARCHBISHOP CORRIGAN

Archbishop Corrigan Was Very Greatly Beloved by His Holiness

His Death Will Mean to Elevation of Vicar General Mooney

Rome, May 6 — The news of the death of Archbishop Corrigan was conveyed to the Vatican in a despatch from the Associated Press. Monsignor Angeli, the pope's private secretory, broke the news gently to His Holiness. The latter was greatly depressed and said:—

"It has been one of the greatest bitternesses of my long life to see the strongest champions of the militant church claimed by death. Archbishop Corrigan was very affectionate to us. We esteemed and loved him greatly."

The pope then retired to his private chapel in prayer.

Michael Augustine Corrigan was born in Newark sixty-two years ago and was consecrated bishop of that city in 1873. He was a studious and apt scholar and rose rapidly to eminence in the councils of the church. Only 10 years previous to his consecration as Bishop of Newark he was ordained by Cardinal Patrizi in the Lateran Basilica, a year before the close of his theological studies, which were prosecuted in the North American College at Rome, he being one of the 12 students who entered when the college was opened. In 1864 the degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him. When he returned to his native land a few months later Archbishop James Roosevelt Bayley, then Bishop of Newark, appointed him Professor of Dogmatic Theology and Sacred Scripture at Seton Hall College. He received various honors in rapid succession until in September, 1880, Pope Leo elevated Bishop Corrigan to the office of Coadjutor Archbishop of the archdiocese of New York, with the right of succession in the archiepiscopate to Cardinal McCloskey. Upon the death of the latter prelate in 1885 Dr. Corrigan was installed Archbishop.

In bearing Archbishop Corrigan had no equal in America. He was an earnest worker and wielded a powerful influence in the Catholic Church in America. He could not Brook any interference inside of his jurisdiction as Archbishop of New York. A contest with Dr. McGlynn in a matter of church discipline, therefore, created at one time a considerable excitement in church circles. The affair was amicably adjusted by the final submission of Dr. McGlynn, though the effects were lasting.

When the news of the Archbishop's death becomes known in Rome, the senior ecclesiastical authority in the archdiocese will be designated to act as administrator of the archdiocese pending the appointment by the Pope of a successor to Archbishop Corrigan. In the present case Bishop Farley of the diocese is not in this country and the next in line is Monsignor Joseph F. Mooney vicar general.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 9, 1902.

THE DICKSON COMPANY

It is, we think, poor policy to abuse the Dickson Company. Everybody who is at all familiar with the affairs of Peterborough, knows that the Dickson Company has, for half a century or more, been one of Peterborough's leading industries. There is no concern in this section that has done so much for Peterborough and for this part of the country as this concern has done. Many hundreds of thousands of dollars it has paid out in wages, and it has carried on its extensive operations at all seasons, even when times were bad and money almost unobtainable. Had Peterborough not had the Dickson Company, there would probably be no such progress as at present marks our rising young city. No, it is decidedly wrong to strike the hand that nourished us when we were unable to nourish ourselves. Votes will never be made in this way.

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING

The meeting last night was what might reasonably have been expected. It showed that the people of Peterborough do not regard the present campaign altogether in the light of a political contest. That Peterborough's interests will be best served by the election of Mr. Stratton, we think the people generally believe. Suppose Mr. Whitney became Premier, would not a strong opposition be the best thing that could happen the country? And why not Peterborough help to supply it? Then, if Mr. Ross is returned, is it not infinitely to our advantage to have a Cabinet Minister as our representative?

The speech of Mr. Stratton last night was a masterly one, and showed a truly wonderful grasp of public affairs. His record and the record of the Government was fully explained. The speeches of Messrs. Harcourt and Evanturel were also of deep interest and persuasive. Altogether the meeting was one continued success, from start to finish.

How did you like the speeches?

• • •

Sporting men have been betting even on 800 majority for Stratton. The limit will now be raised to a thousand.

• • •

Registration of manhood suffrage votes begins on Monday.

• • •

A great calm will now settle down over the country. The disquieting rumor that the Provincial Secretary was in danger of being pried loose from his job as member for West Peterborough, in the Legislative Assembly, has been run to the earth and found to have no foundation.

Humor of the Hour.

Patience—I see that Miss Sue Brette is going to write a book on the stage.

Patrice—Well, it wouldn't take her long.

"Why not?"

"Why, haven't you ever noticed how they write on the stage?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Second Hunter—My fault?

First Hunter—Yes, I saw something moving. When I said, "Is that you, Jim?" the deer ran. Next time I'm going to say nothing and shoot, so look out.—Boston Post.

Sweetness Long Drawn Out.

A business man of whom the "Youth's Companion" tells declares that the average stenographer will not learn to spell correctly until the millennium comes. In support of his opinion he relates his experience with a young woman whose spelling, as he describes it, had an "engaging originality," but who was so amiable and even-tempered that he seldom found heart to rebuke her.

One day she appeared before him with a neatly written letter for a Southern correspondent. He hastily looked it over.

"See here," he said, "you've spelled sugar s-u-g-g-e-r."

The young woman looked at it a moment critically, and then her face brightened as she replied:

"So I have. How careless of me! I don't see how I came to leave out the 'h.'"

Supply Limited.

"This is tough luck," said Shem, mournfully, as he leaned out over the side of the ark. "What's wrong now?" queried Ham. "Why, all this water to fish in," replied Shem, "and only two worms on board."—[illegible]

Poultry and Dairy.

Washing the hands seems a needless task sometimes, but the successful dairyman will find the moments spent in this way are the most profitable of the day. Clean hands lead to clean cows, and with clean cows there will be a clean product.

Experience With Houdans.

I have had fifteen years' experience in breeding Houdan fowls, and am strongly of the opinion that the high favor in which this breed is held by the French farmer and poulterer is not misplaced. I think it a great mistake that the Houdans are not more generally raised by the farmers of this country. They are medium sized, good layers of large white eggs, and are highly esteemed as a table bird. They have no combs to freeze in severe weather—a convenience to farmers who expect fowls to thrive without protection.—Charles Hopper, Ashley, O.

Poultry on the Dairy Farm.

Just why dairymen do not make poultry-raising pay is not a problem hard to solve. The reason is lack of knowledge relating to poultry-raising. How can we make fowls hustle and exercise? First, we must not feed too heavily or make it too easy for birds to get their food. We must get them out of their houses in winter as much as possible. The profit in winter depends on having the hens well housed and giving special care. A house 12 by 20 feet is large enough for 50 fowls. Do not permit any of the floor space to be occupied with nests, roosts or other fixtures. All of the floor space should be reserved for the hens, and a part of it should be used for a scratching floor. Put in only enough glass for lighting purposes.

One reason why some people do not succeed with poultry is that they do not know how to feed to the best advantage. Large fowls require a different system of feeding than small ones. Leghorns are not likely to get overfat. They will leave corn on the ground and run after insects; while the larger breeds will eat the corn that is given them and stand around waiting for more. Chopped clover is good, and should be fed each day, and chopped vegetables will not take its place. On the average farm there is much that goes to waste that the fowls can utilize, and this helps to give profit.—F. M. Munger, in American Agriculturist.

Guinea Fowls for Farm.

There is a difference of opinion as to the profitableness of guinea fowls. Where one person succeeds ten will perhaps fail. Guineas are very like wild birds in habits and it is thought that it is impossible to tame them but this is not the case. On a farm where they have a wide range guineas can be raised to advantage. They begin to lay in April and lay until the middle of October. During this season chicken hens get broody and in August and September moult and a flock of guineas will keep the egg basket filled.

Young guineas are susceptible to cold, and we do not set any eggs until the first of June, and have them coming off from the first of July until the middle of August. Those taken off later will not get grown before cold weather, but will make nice broilers to use in the fall. We set the eggs under an ordinary hen and raise them with the chickens; keep them fastened in a coop with the hen for several days, until they get used to the hen; then turn them out to forage in the day but shut them up at night. We give them the same kind of food as the young chicks, making sure to keep the coop's floor covered with coarse sand. The little guineas are so tame that it is hard to keep from stepping on them when going to feed or to put up at night. Her guineas roost in the fowl house, and, although they make the circuit round the farm every day, they come back to a clover patch near the fowl yard to lay, and nearly always lay near each other. I do not find them any harder to raise than chickens. They are great foragers, bug catchers and insect destroyers, and trouble grain and truck patches less than any other class of fowls.

The meat of the guinea resembles that of wild game in flavor, and is delicious, fit for an epicure. In many sections of the country partridges, quails, etc., are very scarce, and I do not see why guineas could not be hatched by incubators and raised to supply those who know what a toothsome bird the guinea is.—L. G. Holland, Ninety-Six, S. C.

The Water on a Dairy Farm.

The water supply should be even more scrupulously guarded than the food supply. It serves a double purpose, that of water for the cow and for the washing of the utensils. The water for both should be equally pure, and it ought to be made an axiom that water unfit to wash the pails or cans is unfit for cattle to drink. The milking cow requires large quantities of water, and whether it be capable of demonstration that impurities may find their way into the milk, it is safest to take the benefit of the doubt and use only pure water. A shallow dug well in the corner of the cow lot cannot escape contamination at some time. The contamination may not last all the time, and it may be, as is usually the case, that it is of a harmless character. The fact is that any contamination from the surface, no matter what may be its character, marks the well as one that may become infected and the cause of an epidemic. It only remains for the right kind of an infection to enter. It may require one year or forty years.

The special forms which are partial to the water supply are the intestinal germs that cause diarrhoea and the typhoid form. Many of the most alarming epidemics of typhoid have been traced to such source. It is not an easy matter to obtain an adequate supply of water at all places about a city, but as far as possible it should be from driven wells. As far as tested, all driven wells of more than twenty-five feet are supplying pure water. The hard-pan near the surface acts as an effective barrier to the passage of germs, and those that come from below are harmless. A driven well of twenty-five feet is a deeper well from a sanitary standpoint than any dug well. All dairies within the corporate limits of a city should be compelled to use city water.—United States Bulletin No. 68.

Lord Chas. Beresford

Rear-Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, who has been on duty in the Mediterranean for some time, is without doubt the most popular man in the British navy. He has recently returned to England, and the newspapers are conjecturing whether he will re-enter Parliament or accept a higher post in the navy. His ability is not estimated to be inferior to his popularity, and there is probably no post associated with the navy for which he would be regarded as unequal. He represents, above all things, the gospel of efficiency, which is being preached just now, and with ample need, judging from the remount scandal, and if in Parliament would do much to insure the maintenance of the navy at the highest practicable standard. The popular sailor celebrated his 56th birthday on February 10th.

A Defence of Canada.

"The title of 'Our Lady of the Snows,'" says the Scottish writer, "bestowed on Canada in a haphazard sort of manner by Rudyard Kipling, is not at all a happy one, as it applies to a season only. I have seen the grapes hanging in luxuriant bunches to the vines in a Quebec garden, and the fields of tomatoes grow crimson in the warm sunshine; I have lingered in the golden wheatfields in the evening, and listened to the myriad sounds of the cricket and grasshopper; I have walked amid the cedar trees in an Ontario swamp when the sunset glow had faded, and watched the fireflies darting to and fro like shooting stars; and I have watched the tiny humming-bird, with plumage that rivalled the gaily-painted butterflies, contesting with the bee for the honey that lay within the sweet-smelling flowers. Scenes like these are not associated with a land of never-ending winter. Consequently there can be no greater mistake than to imagine, as too many pople do, that Canada is a semi-Arctic country out of which little good can come. And yet, what do we find? According to the returns of the Board of Trade fully 65,000 to 75,000 Britishers went to live in the United States during the past year, while only 12,000 or 13,000 went to Canada. There is no reason to doubt that if the resources and natural wealth of the Dominion of Canada were more generally known in this country, we would soon hear the last of the term "American" as applied to Canadian products, and United States producers would no longer receive the credit for Canadian goods, in many cases superior to their own. Those who guide the destinies of the Dominion think that the Stars and Stripes have overshadowed the Maple Leaf long enough. Every true Briton will be of the same opinion."

Where He Belonged.

The visit of Prince Henry of Prussia to the United States is naturally causing the telling over of some of the countless anecdotes of which the aged Kaiser Wilhelm, grandfather of Emperor Wilhelm and his brother, was the central figure. The following is one of the prettiest I have seen:—

In his later years the aged Kaiser took great pleasure in visiting the schools and catechizing the children. At one time while in the City of Ems he visited an orphan school that was in the city, and under Government patronage.

After listening for an hour or more to the recitations of several of the classes, the Kaiser called to the front a bright, golden-haired little girl seven or eight years of age, and, lifting her into his lap, said to her:

"Now, then, my little fraulein, let me see if you can answer me three hard questions." And taking an orange out of his pocket he held it up. "To what kingdom does this belong?" he asked.

The little girl hesitated a moment and then said timidly: "To the vegetable kingdom."

"Right, my little fraulein," said the Kaiser. "And, now, to what kingdom does this belong?" The Kaiser drew a gold-piece out of his pocket and placed it beside the orange.

More confident this time, the little girl replied: "To the mineral kingdom."

"Better and better," said the Kaiser. "Now, look at me and tell me to what kingdom do I belong."

The little girl was confused. Dare she say "the animal kingdom"? All the teachers and pupils looked at her with breathless expectancy. But in a moment she glanced up brightly into the face of the kind old Kaiser, and said: "To the kingdom of heaven."

This unexpected answer drew tears from the eyes of the Kaiser. "Yes, yes, my child," said he, "I trust that I do belong to the kingdom of heaven; and the day is not far distant when I shall go there, my little fraulein."

Then, kissing the little girl, he presented her with the gold piece and the orange, and brought his visit to a close.

A Slanderer of the British.

The Berlin correspondent of The Standard says that further evidence has come to light of the methods employed to stir up anti-British feeling in Germany. The history of the man Kaulitz or Farlow, who at the outbreak of the Boer war founded the "London cable correspondence" for supplying the continental press with alleged war news, which was "made in London," has been traced by The Kolnische Zeitung. The Kolnische quotes from a provincial paper a list of this man's misdeeds. He was born at Brunswick, became a Social Democrat at Leipsic in the seventies, and was afterwards, it is said, sentenced to two and a half years' imprisonment for inciting the workmen in the Saar district by articles in his paper. Later on he became Johann Most's partner in London and was on the staff of his paper. After giving a few further facts about the man's career The Kolnische says:—"This honorable gentleman has now been unmasked, but, unfortunately, too late, for the lies about the atrocities of English Lancers at Elandslaagte, outrages on helpless Boer women and girls, etc., continue to be freely circulated, and whoever attempts to disprove them is suspected and insulted for being an English hireling."

A Classification.

Henry Thomas Buckle's thoughts and conversation were always on a high level. Once he remarked: "Men and women range themselves into three classes, or orders, of intelligence; you can tell the lowest class by their habit of always talking about persons; the next by the fact that their habit is always to converse about things; the highest by their preference for the discussion of ideas."

Rail Road Men

In all departments of active service stand in need of the readiness of mind and promptness of action which depend on a healthy nervous system. Let a railroad man be "rattled," and every life depending on him is in danger. A great many railroad men have found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a valuable tonic for the overstrained nervous system. It builds up the body, purifies the blood, nourishes the nerves, and induces a healthy appetite and refreshing sleep.

"I suffered for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed several physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. Popplewell, of Eureka Springs, Carroll Co., Ark. "I felt that there was no help for me; could not retain food on my stomach; had vertigo and would fall helpless to the floor. Two years ago I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets,' and improved from the start. After taking twelve bottles of the 'Discovery' I was able to do light work, and have been improving ever since."

NEW SPRING NOVELTIES JUST RECEIVED

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE,

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices.

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.

WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

My lady, the chatelaine, wove in beautiful designs and embroideries the tapestries from which we have borrowed some beautiful ideas in our wall paper.

My lady of 1902 will find many things in our stock to her liking.

OUR PRICES ARE FROM 10 TO 40 PER CENT. CHEAPER THAN ELSEWHERE.

The word "ponger," indicating an exponent of the art or science of ping pong, has lately sprung into existence. Do the users of this euphonious but backboneless noun realize what they are responsible for? Witness the result:—

"If a man who plays at ping pong is a "ponger,"
Then a singer at a "sing song" is a "songer";
If the "songer" is a "singer,"
Then the "ponger" is a "pinger,"
And the man who says it's wrong must be a "wronger."

If your charming partner at the game's a "pingstress,"
Then an operatic nightingale's a "singstress";
If the song she sings is sung,
Is a game of ping pong "pung"?
And is the girl who lingers called a "lingstress"?

A pretty girl boarded a crowded street car in Washington, and a pompous old gentleman arose and gave her a seat.

After some time a number of passengers got out, and the old gentleman sank into the nearest corner with a weary sigh.

"I wouldn't get up again," he murmured, "for an angel," and then, as he caught the eyes of the girl fixed upon him reproachfully, he added quickly, "I mean, madam, for another angel!"—Harper's Magazine.

"In Esquire Robert's court recently," says The Fulton (Ky.) Leader, "a boy was put on the witness stand, and to ascertain if he knew the nature of an oath the Justice interviewed him as follows:—

"'Well, if you should tell a lie, do you know where you would go when you die?'

"'Yes, sir.'

The customer had not been sitting long at the hospitable table of a certain hotel in London when he noticed something mysterious about his plate of "fine old Stilton" and bread.

He watched it very closely for some time, and then with a look of awe on his face, called lustily to the waiter.

"Waiter!" he cried, "remove this cheese."

"Beg pardon, sir," said the waiter. "Can I bring you any other kind?"

"Remove this cheese, I tell you!"

"We've some fine Gorgonzola, sir. I'll—"

"Great Jupiter, man! If you don't remove it immediately I'll call the police!"

"Sorry, sir," said the terrified waiter. "Is there anything wrong?"

"Wrong! wrong! It's eating all my bread!"

It came to us, so white and pure,
A visitor we rarely see,
It stayed with us, to play with us—
'Twas welcomed by us royally.
It stuck to us, it would not go,
But gradually its paleness left
Until it scarcely seemed the same—
Of all its beauty 'twas bereft.
And now, as black as soot, it strews
The streets and pavements where we go,
We tramp it under foot and kick—
'Tis not the snow we used to know!

Grass lands deserve as much attention in spring as any other portion of the farm. Grass is really the mainspring of farming, for wherever there is a good stand of grass there will be an excellent prospect for hay, pasturage and soil improvement. Fertilizer should be applied before grass starts, and the spring rains will carry it down to the roots and give the crop an early start, which will greatly assist in enduring drought in the summer. No pasturage or grass plot should be expected to give crops without manure or fertilizer. Wood ashes make an excellent fertilizer for grass, and a light application of nitrate of soda will give good results. If cattle are given the run of a grass plot when the grass is young they will do more harm to the grass by trampling than can result from any other cause. Grass exhausts the soil the same as any other crop, and the land must be supplied with the plant foods removed. If there are bare places in the pasture use the harrow over them and sow mixed varieties of grass seeds.

The World Lost for Love's Sake

her so to making the terrible sacrifice that would have saved Lillian Ruthven.

"If her life or mine must be wrecked, what matters it which one is sacrificed," she comforted herself by saying.

Her ardent love for Aleck had conquered all other feelings.

Two days more and she would be away from Sacramento en route for New York. Better there in the midst of hustling crowds than here, where any day she might meet Harold St. John face to face.

As for Harold St. John himself, he haunted the road which led to the villa, on the watch for Daisy, but he did not see her as the days passed; then he determined to go boldly to the house and call for her.

"Does Mrs. Hamilton live here?" he asked of the liveried footman who opened the door.

"Yes," was the laconic reply.

"Is she at home? I wish to see her."

"Not at home."

"Not at home," repeated Harold St. John. "Does that mean she is in the house, and unwilling to see any one, or that she is really not here?"

The man looked aghast.

What a question to ask the fashionable servant of a fashionable mistress.

The direct earnestness of it took him by surprise; he answered it honestly, before he had time to think what he was saying:

"My mistress is not at home to callers today, though she is in the house."

Then the footman recovered himself. He had certainly lost some of his dignity by being too affable. He looked at the stranger from head to foot and mentally decided that although well dressed, he looked too flashy to be a gentleman, no need therefore to waste civility.

"Can you tell me when she will be at home to callers?" St. John inquired, "what day I can see her."

"Sorry, I don't know," was the reply, rather impatiently.

Then Harold St. John bethought himself that perhaps a golden key was required. He placed a bill in the man's hand.

"Now try to remember," he said. "The fact is that I really wish to see your mistress on very important business."

Then seeing the servant hesitate, he added:

"The business is urgent, and relates to her own affairs."

The footman thought to himself there would be no harm in obliging this generous man. So he answered readily enough, his mistress was on the eve of a journey, the maids were packing the trunks, and she had said adieu to all her friends she cared to know.

Harold St. John listened with bated breath.

"Where does she go— I mean where is her destination?"

And again, thoughtlessly enough, the man answered:

"New York City."

Then the footman seemed to consider he had been civil enough for the bill given him, and closed the door. At that instant Harold St. John saw a little phaeton passing swiftly out of the gate. He caught the gleam of a golden head beneath the gauzy veil, and knew, much to his chagrin, that he had just missed the object of his search; but he made up his mind to wait at the carriage entrance until she returned. Then he would confront her.

He might have to wait for hours. Never mind fatigue, never mind pain. So he watched and waited the rest of the day there.

He watched the sun set and the stars rise; he watched the sweet summer night fall, and he brooded in gloomy silence over the revenge he should take on Daisy for proving so false to him.

It would be a glorious revenge to take her triumphantly from Alexander Hamilton, to drag her from this luxurious home to follow his fortunes, no matter where he might choose to take her. Her lovely face, too, would inspire the envy of all his friends.

He was too deep in his reverie and plans to hear the phaeton roll up to the velvety lawn and up to the carriage drive.

He raised his head just in time to see Daisy and Alexander Hamilton descend from it, and run lightly up the marble steps.

He sprung after them, but before he had time to speak the door opened and closed after them. Then Harold St. John rung the bell; the door was opened by the same servant he had seen early in the afternoon.

"Mrs. Hamilton is in now," said St. John. "I know it. I watched for her. I must see her."

"Come, come!" said the man, "this will not do at all. We are not used to this sort of thing here; you cannot see my mistress at this hour of the night."

"But I must see her— I will not take a refusal. You have no right to refuse me; I must and will see the lady!"

The footman eyed him severely.

"I tell you," he said, "I should be very sorry to take any violent measures, but this will not do at all. You must not make this noise here."

"I will give you——" began St. John, excitedly.

"There!" interrupted the man, "say no more; it's of no use. I'm sorry enough that I have accepted what I did from you."

"I will wait outside yonder gate until I do see her, mark my word," exclaimed St. John, emphatically.

"All right! that will not be my fault at all; you can please yourself. If my mistress leaves the house to ride tomorrow, it will not be until late in the afternoon; the police will have removed you long before that. A lady's house is her castle; you cannot get into it just when you will, I can tell you that."

"You are an impudent menial!" cried Harold St. John, fairly glowering with rage.

"Just so; well, never mind; get off these steps and I will be anything you like."

So saying he closed the door, and St. John had no recourse but to go away.

"What is the matter, John?" asked Mr. Hamilton, who was crossing the hall and had heard angry voices; "what is wrong?"

"Only a man, sir," answered John, "who insisted upon seeing my mistress."

"At this hour of the night? Was it anything important?"

"I should say not, sir. I told him it was impossible."

A Good Salve For Horses.

A salve valuable to horsemen may be made of equal quantities by measure of pine tar, sulphur and lard. Mix the sulphur with the tar and stir it well; then add the lard and stir again. Set it on the stove and simmer for six hours, occasionally stirring it. It will cure the scratches on horses, and galls from the harness.

For scratches, thoroughly wash and clean the parts with castile or some other good kind of soap, and then rub in the salve. I have tried it and recommend it to others. I never knew it to fail. It is simple and cheap, and the formula easy to remember. It is not patented; anyone can use it.

It will also relieve sores, ringworm and most skin troubles on men.—J. W.

Ayrshires at St. Louis in 1903.

The breeders of dairy cattle in the United States are already beginning to prepare for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, to be held in St. Louis in 1903. At the recent meeting of the American Ayrshire Breeders' Association, held at Providence, R.I., it was voted to appropriate money from the treasury to pay the expense of placing a herd of Ayrshire cows in the breed test at that Exposition, and a committee was appointed to take charge of the same. Canadian breeders who intend to exhibit at St. Louis should at once begin to prepare their stock, so that they will not be taken at a disadvantage, when the time for this great international contest arrives.

Canadian Cattle in Aberdeenshire.

The removal of the British embargo on Canadian cattle is evidently still a live question in Scotland, as shown by the following item from a recent issue of The North British Agriculturist, a paper which has strongly opposed the free admission of Canadian "stores":—"A rather curious debate for a literary society, 'Should the restrictions on Canadian cattle be removed?' was held in the Public Hall, New Deer, under the auspices of the local Literary Society. The local papers state that there was a large attendance, and considerable interest was taken in the debate. Mr. Milne, coach-builder, supported the negative, and Mr. Godsman of Mains of Fedderate the affirmative. Mr. Milne made an able speech in favor of his side, pointing out the injury that would be done to small farmers and crofters, who depended mainly on their stock for a living, were Canadians admitted; but Mr. Godsman, who argued mainly on free trade theories, was one too many for him, and in the end carried the affirmative by a considerable majority. The great majority of those present were not farmers at all, but the vote shows how opinion may go even in this large cattle-breeding country."

How to Secure Good Lambs.

Begin with the ewes before the breeding season. For two or three weeks put them on better feed. The best I have found for this is rape pasture. Let the ewes run on the rape for an hour twice a day for the first few days until they get accustomed to it. This will put them in good flesh and in shape to raise strong lambs.

I always raise a few acres of turnips and these I feed regularly twice a day during the winter in connection with ground oats and bran. About a quart for each sheep with as much hay as they will eat up clean is sufficient. This care of the ewes during the winter gives to the lambs when they are dropped a large amount of milk. When the lambs are less than a week old they will begin to eat a little grain. The ewes must then be fed more liberally. I generally have a place where the lambs can be fed by themselves, and then give them ground oats and a little bran in the morning with cornmeal and bran at night. I always give a feed of roots during the day. By this method I have raised lambs which have dressed 78 pounds at thirteen weeks old. I always keep the following points in mind:—Give plenty of clean water, dip in late summer, keep clean and in a good dry barn, give regular attendance and feed.—J. Withers, in American Agriculturist.

Pigs and Cows.

The dairyman of to-day is of necessity a breeder of swine. The two go together so thoroughly that it would be a waste of good material and opportunity to neglect either. There can be no doubt that nature intended that the pigs should be the companion of the cows in the clover fields. But more than that, the swine should be fed on the skim milk that comes from the dairy. Pigs and shoats will thrive on this skim milk as on nothing else. The milk fed in this way will yield a larger profit than if sold in the ordinary market, where only a few cents a quart can be obtained, and often not that. The waste of time and material in trying to find a good market for skim milk is the most discouraging feature of the dairy business. Many a man has been induced to leave the business entirely on account of this. After settling up his accounts for the year he has found that he was actually no gainer for the year's work.

The only actually sure way of making money is to have a well organized dairy and pig farm. Enough of the latter should be kept at all times to consume the skim milk. By rapid growing and selling, turning the money over quickly, a good profit can be made for every quart of skim milk fed. Some keep their pigs too long. It is better to sell them as young pigs than to wait until they are so fat that few want them. A good healthy pig, with plenty of lean and fat on his sides, will usually sell better than the excessively fat hogs. The clover and grass will always help to make the pigs grow, and on a diet of good clover and plenty of skim milk there is no danger of hog cholera or other swine diseases in the hottest of weather. Corn and dry grain are the breeders of disease and illness in hogs during the summer. The hog cholera is undoubtedly the produce of overheated blood, superinduced by heavy corn and grain feeding. We cannot stamp out the disease until we change the diet. Let that be skim milk and green clover and grass from June 1 until the end of September, and any man can raise as fine a flock of clean, healthy swine as any market man could ask for. And the market for such animals—A. B. Barrett, in Indiana Farmer. a always ready, with prices far more constant than for most farm products.

UNCONSCIOUS INFLUENCE.

SERMON BY
REV. GEO. H. HEPWORTH.

For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself.—Romans, xiv., 7.

Somebody has said that thoughts are things. The phrase is unfortunate, because it is misleading and inaccurate. This world is made up of things and forces. Thoughts are more subtle than mere things and far more potential. They are forces which change a man's life for better or for worse.

If you apply the principles of wireless telegraphy to spiritual concerns you will see the full scope of my statement. We may safely do this, for there is a spiritual law running parallel to every physical law, and no man can discover a physical law without suggesting a corresponding spiritual law. In this way all thinkers stand shoulder to shoulder, lifting the world out of the old into the new.

The wireless telegrapher tells us that a word or its equivalent creates a vibration of the air, as a pebble creates a ripple in the pond, and this vibration speeds on its way to the destined terminus, however distant, and there makes itself known and felt. We are living in an age of miracles, or, in other words, an age of discovery, and this is one of the startling results.

In like manner a word of scorn or of praise hurled into the spiritual universe from a heart that hates or loves becomes a living force, not lost in the general confusion as a single note is lost in the multitude of sounds, but going straight to the man or woman against whom or in favor of whom it was directed. That other heart at the further end of the line, perhaps half broken by remorse or timidly hoping for better days, is the receiving station of this wireless telegraphy. Your thought, critical or gentle, strikes that other heart with an impact which either hurts or helps. You may not know that your thought has taken its flight, that other person may not know whence it comes, but all the same he is uplifted or oppressed by it.

This may seem strange and even incredible, but while it is to-day a possible fact, it may to-morrow become a demonstrated truth, and the next day it may change the whole outlook of the spiritual world. It has the appearance of a miracle, but profounder knowledge always seems miraculous, while in reality we only climb from the lower to the higher realm of law, see further and understand God better.

A spoken thought is even now recognized as a force when speaker and hearer are within earshot of each other. An oath, a compliment, a bit of vocal flattery go through the ear to the heart and kindle a flame of resentment or of happiness. What you say becomes part of another man's life and excites passion or stimulates friendship. Why may there not be a quicker transit than the slow and dull ear affords? Why may not the time come when we can convey our thoughts without the coarse medium of words? There are no words between us and heaven. A prayer is longing of the soul, "uttered or unexpressed." God speaks to hearts. The impression is instantaneous, as when the sun makes its mark on the photographer's plate. There are "unseen beings who walk the earth both when we wake and when we sleep," but they use no words. They make us feel their presence, and we are as sure that they are close by as though we heard a trumpet call. What they would say steals into the heart, for our poor ears cannot catch it. We hear nothing, but we know that they are giving us a helping hand. Is there any language in heaven except that of thoughts?

When the world grows older why may we not speak to each other without this cumbersome factor of spoken words? Progress is indefinite and infinite, and we are moving in that direction. We catch glimpses of the possible already. A look, a pressure of the hand, and contempt or sympathy is complete. Enlarge the circumference and you have a new truth. No one needed to tell the Christ what he thought. He read the heart as an open book. He looked at a man and the man's story was already told. Lips had nothing to do with it. The Master felt the woes and shared the joys of humanity. A subtler language than we can use was at His command.

A thought is the wireless message of soul to soul. Your neighbor's welfare is affected by your kind or unkind criticism of him. When we deal with subtle and far-reaching forces of this kind, then religion, which enjoins charity, is brought to the forefront as the most important factor in human life. If you would be at your best you must love your neighbor, for your thought of him will either lift him up or trip him to a fall. The whole trend and swing of the universe bid a man be honest, just and gentle, for we are so bound together that nobility in one kindles nobility in all, and one man's hurt is an injury to all. Since we are marching, one great company, from time to eternity, let us go as brothers, with a kindly word and a helping hand whenever opportunity offers.

Cover Crops and Fertilizers.

Prof. I. P. Roberts of Cornell University says:—Cover crops may in a measure take the place of fertilizers and manures. They are not, however, a universal panacea for all soil deficiencies, neither are they a full substitute in all cases for fertilizers. There is always a wide field for the profitable use of one or all of the concentrated forms of fertilizers named, and in many cases there is also a special place for the use of fertilizers, therefore the more need of honest goods. Commercial fertilizers furnish available plant food, but no humus. The cover crop furnishes both, but it is only fair to say that the plant foods in the former are more available than in the latter. Cover crops improve the physical condition of the soil, lessening the cost of tillage. Physically, fertilizers benefit the soil little or none. The humus furnished by the cover crops increases the availability of the plant food already in the soil; fertilizers do not. Cover crops shade the land and conserve moisture.

It is impossible to accurately compare the cost of fertilizers with the cost of seeds for the cover crops and the preparation of the soil for them. The cost of increasing productively by extra tillage, by the use of fertilizers, by cover crops or by all three means, can only be determined in each case by the farmer interested. I give below a single illustration of what a cover crop contains, knowing that another cover crop under other conditions might either be more or less valuable. Second growth of clover, furnished in roots and tops per acre the following:—Nitrogen, 126.86 lbs.; phosphoric acid, 67.35 lbs.; potash, 109.96 lbs. There is removed by 25 bushels of wheat and accompanying straw, nitrogen, 42 lbs.; phosphoric acid, 20 lbs., and potash, 27 lbs. It is believed that most of the nitrogen taken up by legumes is secured from the uncombined nitrogen in the atmosphere. The clover did not add to either the store of phosphoric acid or potash. The plant took them from the soil and made them available.

Little Mothers in Japan.

Although the Empire of Japan is said to be a "paradise of children," where they are allowed to do very much as they please, and where they seldom, if ever, cry, their life is not all play. The little boys and girls have their work to do, but in many skilful ways they turn work into play. Take, for instance, the little girls who have baby sisters or brothers to care for. They tuck the youngsters into their queer garments and go on with their games of ball. If the baby grows tired and begins to fret the "little mother" jounces it up and down over her shoulder with a peculiar bumping motion of her back, without stopping the game. All the time she sings some pretty song.

When Judge Barnard was on the bench and holding court in Poughkeepsie a lawyer who did not like him chanced to see a one-cent coin lying on the floor. Picking it up and holding it forth in ostentatious display, he said:

"I imagine, your Honor, from the value of this coin, that it must belong to the court."

"And I imagine," replied Judge Barnard, "that if it was not such a small coin the court never would have seen it."—New York Times.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in affecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh, and Dr Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $10 will be paid for any case they will not permanently cure.

Permanent Cures

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our constitutional treatment in curing Cancer is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the Breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggravated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, its cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper, on receipt of two stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

—Mr. W. H. Foord, formerly superintendent of the Little Lake Cemetery, was down from Toronto attending the obsequies of the late Mr. Denne.

Prohibition Meeting

Mr. W. W. Buchanan, of Toronto, Secretary of the Manitoba Alliance and editor of the new temperance newspaper, the Liberator, will address a public meeting in the opera house on Tuesday evening next, May 13th. He will urge the election of Major Miller, the prohibition candidate.

Educational Closing

The educational closing will be held in the Y.W.C.A. rooms this evening at 8 o'clock. Reports of the work in the various classes will be given by the teachers, followed by a musical programme, and informal reception. Refreshments will be served. Members and friends of the Association are specially invited to be present.

Supplementary Estimates

In the final supplementary estimates which were brought down in the Dominion Parliament on Wednesday the following items appear which are of local interest: Repairing Public Buildings, Peterborough, $2,500; Harwood wharf, $1,800; Lindsay harbour, $2,000; Dredging the Trent River, $6,000; bridge at Healey's Falls, $1,000; extending dam at Peterborough, $9,000.

Lost Hearing Quickly Restored

No matter whether of long standing or not deafness can be permanently cured by Catarrhozone, which never fails even in the worst cases. The pleasant-scented vapor of Catarrhozone allays inflammation, prevents and cures the catarrhal condition that causes deafness and relieves right away. Thousands have proved the efficiency of Catarrhozone, and with such a valuable remedy within easy reach there is no longer any reason for people to remain deaf. Catarrhozone is recommended also for coughs, colds, catarrh and bronchitis. Complete outfit $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S. or Kingston, Ont.

Hamilton's Pills cure constipation.

Laid at Rest

The remains of the late Mr. Henry Denne were interred yesterday afternoon from the family residence, [illegible] George street. As the funeral cortege passed down the street the places of business were closed as a mark of respect to the deceased. There were many beautiful floral offerings, among them being those from the Town Council, the Board of Education and the Cemetery Board. Notwithstanding the rain, the funeral cortege was one of the largest ever seen in Peterborough, nearly every business house in town represented. The Aldermen, members of the Board of Education, and Cemetery Board attended in a body. The following gentlemen were bearers:—Messrs. James Stevenson, J. J. Lundy, James Stewart, Charles Stapleton, E. H. G. Hall and W. H. Wrighton.

THE LATE HENRY DENNE

A Resolution of Condolence Passed by the Little Lake Cemetery Board

At a meeting of the Directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Company, specially called by the President for consideration of action of the Board upon the death of the late Henry Denne, it was unanimously resolved that there be placed on the company's minutes an expression of the very deep regret felt by the directors at the loss of so highly valued a member, and their sincere sympathy with his sorrowing widow and family."

Mr. Denne was elected a member of the Board in January, 1878, and has since occupied that position, and during that period he has been president for ten years. Over all these years Mr. Denne has ever been active and energetic and manifested the deepest concern in the company's affairs, and much of its success and prosperity is attributable to the eminent services of Mr. Denne as Director and President.

The directors would also, on this occasion, bear witness to the deservedly high esteem in which Mr. Denne has for fifty years been held by his fellow townsmen, evidenced by their having elected him to the various positions of public trust which his busy life would permit him to accept, to which he invariably devoted time and much ability, and he will be long remembered for the faithful discharge of the duties he undertook.

It is further resolved that the Board provide a wreath and attend the funeral in a body, and that a copy of this resolution be delivered by the secretary to his afflicted widow.

THE J. P.'S DECISION

He Sums Up the Coffee Case

Judge W. W. Bowen, of Creeds, Va., announces himself as a "reformed coffee toper, and gives authority to make the following public statement.

"For years the coffee habit had been growing on me until my condition was getting serious. I have considerable writing to do and had become so nervous that I had to depend almost entirely upon my wife to do the writing. Sometimes when it was imperative that I sign my name my hand trembled so I could scarcely do it. [illegible]

I had severe headaches, stomach trouble, heart trouble, also some rheumatism. A friend, Rev.——, one day sent me a package of Postum Food Coffee with request that I give up Coffee and make a fair trial of Postum.

I took the advice and the headaches ceased, also the stomach trouble. I now have no heart trouble at all except when I use coffee for a time. My old nervousness is a thing of the past.

My wife also suffered for years with heart trouble and extreme nervousness. She has found relief by leaving off coffee and using Postum. We now think it a much better drink than either coffee or tea. I have known of a number of cases that have been entirely cured or greatly benefited by leaving off coffee and using the new beverage, Postum."

THE BARGAIN CLOSED.

THE STREET RAILWAY CHANGED OWNERSHIP YESTERDAY

Five Thousand Dollars Paid Over to Bind the Bargain—Work to be Begun at Once and Cars to be Running in a Few Weeks

Yesterday was the last day of the option on the purchase of the street Railway by the National Construction Company of Detroit. The $5000 which the option called as first payment of the purchase money, amounting to $30,000, was handed over yesterday morning.

The new company will lose no time in getting to work, and in a few days we will probably see the streets torn up in the work of resurrecting the road. The Times is informed that the line to the edge of the river will be constructed first, and put in operation, together with the old line.

Monday May 12

The programme to be given in St. Paul's church on the 12th inst., by the Jarvis street Baptist choir, of Toronto, is without question a program of the good things in music. The choir is assisted by Miss McMurty, soprano, Mr. A. L. E. Davies, bass, Mr. Victor Hutchison, tenor, Mr. G. B. McClellan, baritone, and Mr. Arthur Alvin, solo organist. As an evidence of the interest this choir has caused in church circles, it may be stated that they have had six or seven invitations to visit as far east as Perth. That Mr. Vogt and his choir has chosen to visit Peterborough is a matter for congratulation to the choir of St. Paul's and the public generally.

PING PONG AT LINDSAY

Number of Peterborough Young People Spend a Pleasant Evening

A party composed of Miss Helen Hall, Miss Gwendoline Meade, Miss Mamie Rogers, Miss Kate Hall and Miss Dumbl and chaperoned by Mrs. J. H. McClellan were most delightfully entertained in Lindsay on Wednesday evening, by the ping pong club of that place.

Although Peterborough was not successful in winning the laurels it was not at all detrimental to their enjoyment of the various forms of entertainment provided.

Beside ping-pong, dancing and euchre were also engaged in and at the conclusion of the games refreshments were served.

All returned home delighted and speak in glowing terms, of the evening's enjoyment.

The Lindsay ladies who received on behalf of the ping-pong club were Mesdames Grace, Hopkins, Kempt and Paddon.

WHAT YOU DO, DO IT WELL

This Is Important For Health-Building In May

Thousands of Cures Made by Paine's Celery Compound Should Convince You of Its Value

"What you do, do it well," is the golden rule of business life. This rule and far-reaching command can be profitably observed in many other conditions of life. In sickness and and suffering it is all-important that "what you do" to banish disease and restore lost health, shall be well done. While prudence and common sense will, in nearly every instance, direct you aright, the experience of your friends and neighbors and the thousands rescued from sickness and suffering, will point directly to Paine's Celery Compound as the infallible health-giver.

People who think they will get rid of troubles such as rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia and nervous disorders by medicines which have not yet passed the experimental stage, will be sadly disappointed and find their sufferings increased.

To get rid of rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia and nervous complaints, it is wisdom to use Paine's Celery Compound, a medicine that proceeds at once to make the appetite normal, sleep natural and refreshing, the nerves strong, as a foundation for building up health and vigor.

If sick people in May look for a true nerve strengthener, an honest blood purifier, a reliable diuretic, that will restore strength, renew vitality, regulate the kidneys, liver and bowels, they should at once make use of use of Paine's Celery Compound, and note the speedy and pleasing results that flow from its use.

NEXT WEEK'S MEETINGS

IN THE INTERESTS OF THE CANDIDATURE OF MR. STRATTON

Announcement of the Dates on Which Addresses will be Made in Different Parts of the Riding

Meetings have been arranged as follows in the interests of the candidature of Mr. Stratton in the riding:

Foresters' Hall, Baillieboro, Monday evening, May 12th.

Temperance Hall, Selwyn, Tuesday evening, May 13th.

Temperance Hall, 4th line, Smith, Wednesday evening, May 14th.

Town Hall, Bridgenorth Thursday evening, May 15th.

Young's Point, Thursday evening, May 15th.

Bensfort, Thursday evening, May 15th

Fraserville, Friday evening, May 16th.

—A train one mile in length sounds like a record, but that is what was recently hauled over the Thunder Bay and Wabigoon section of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It comprised 105 cars. Situate next to the engine was a testing car. The train was sent over the road to ascertain exactly the tonnage that could be handled on the various grades between the lake and leveller sections of the prairie. With this knowledge gained, plans will be prepared to lower the grades where necessary, and generally improve the road to allow of the haulage of the maximum tonnage both directions. A portion of the $2,000,000 appropriated for the improvement of that section will be applied to this work.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY

Representatives of a Large Industry Arrive in Town Last Night

Yesterday afternoon representatives of a large industry arrived in town, and will be shown the advantages possessed by Peterborough as a place to locate in They were met by Senator Cox, at the station, and escorted to the hotel.

CEREAL COMPANY'S NEW DAM

Tenders Asked for for Dam, Bridge and New Power House

The Peterborough Hydraulic Power Company, which is said to be only another name for the Cereal Company, are advertising in outside papers for tenders for the construction of a concrete dam, bridge and power house.

Yesterday The Times called up Mr. Kirn, the Engineer of the Cereal Company, who said that the work was in the hands of Mr. Charles H. Keefer, C.E., Ottawa. When asked if Peterborough contractors were to be given a chance to figure on the work, Mr. Kirn said that they did not do so on a former occasion, and he did not think they would do so now. He had nothing to do with it, the matter being entirely in Mr. Keefer's hands.

THE COMING WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA

A Colossal Struggle Will Soon Begin for Commercial Supremacy of the Conquered Republics

London, May 9—On the day when peace is declared between Great Britain and the Boers there will be a new ultimatum and a fresh declaration of war. The battles between the armed legions will cease. The struggle for supremacy between the cohorts of industry will begin.

There have been some passages of arms already, but they have been for the most part suspended while the land has echoed with the tramp of armies and the noise of war. Both sides have scored, and scored sufficiently to show us that the coming struggle will be long and bitter, and one to be fought out to the end.

What will be the prize of the victors?

Roughly, this may be said to be the finest market in the world for commodities of every description. Materials of every-day necessity, articles of food and articles of wear, the fitting out and the building of new cities and of towns ruined by the long conflict, all will be needed.

There will be railway systems to be developed and extended, and the equipment of railways and trains to be provided. And, above all, there will be such a demand for machinery of every kind as has never before been made by any one country at any one time.

The mining plant alone wanted on the Rand within five years of the conclusion of peace will run into colossal figures. It has been stated officially that its value will not be less than one hundred and fifty million dollars. There are at present some six thousand head of stamps. These will be increased to seventeen thousand. South Africa will be the El Dorado of the future, not only for the men who own the gold mines of the Rand, but also for every enterprising, up-to-date manufacturer of machinery.

The prize is too great to be won without a fierce industrial struggle. Natal is a closed land to invasion. Clauses in all contracts there are not only insisting that British manufacturers shall do all the work; they go further, and say that even the raw material must be supplied by British firms. Rhodesia is in much the same condition. The management of the Rhodesian railways boast that everything they use, from sleepers to locomotives, is either local or British.

Cape Colony, on the other hand, is disposed to give a readier ear to the manufacturer, without consideration of his nationality. Sir Charles Eliot, the special Commissioner of the Cape railways, has spent some time in the States and is in touch with the best firms. The Cape cannot afford to let patriotism stand in the way of business.

It is here and in the new territories that the battle willl centre. Not long since a large and wealthy company, composed almost entirely of Englishmen, supported entirely by British capital, had to place orders for two large breweries, one in Cape Town and one in Johannesburg. The bricks and mortar were made locally. Everything else came from the States, where every cent was spent. The machinery alone cost $350,000.

Structural machinery, copper coolers, refrigerating and ice-making plants, elevators, scales, fermentation and storage tanks, fireproofing, and even carpentering work—all this fell to American firms. And there is only one explanation. Nowhere else could such a combination of excellence in the different things required, and cheapness and satisfactory terms for delivery be secured. Even the designs for the buildings were drawn out by a Broadway architect.

"We cannot wait for the British manufacturer," said one of the largest buyers in London to me the other day. "When we want anything quickly we have to go to Germany or America. We would like to be patriotic, but we must draw the line somewhere. Some time ago steel piping to the value of $300,000 was wanted for a waterworks scheme at Johannesburg. When several English firms had been tried and could not promise delivery in less than monthly instalments ranging over a period of nine months we placed the order in America and had delivery of the whole lot promised in four months. The matter was urgent and we offered a bonus for all time saved. Every cent of that bonus was earned and we had our goods within three months."

On another occasion, 240 30-ton steel trucks were required urgently. The order for 167 of these went to America, after ample opportunity had been given to English manufacturers to retain the whole order.

This question of speed and delivery will be the one on which the fate of the struggle will depend. It will be to the industrial combatants what mobility has been to armies in the field. The demand will come all at once. From north to south, from east to west, from the Zambesi to the east, everybody will want their goods at the same time.

Woe then to the manufacturer who wants unnecessary weeks and months to complete delivery. There will be no time for elaborate calculations, and for the interchange of those letters of courtesy in which old fashioned manufacturers delight. With speed of cable and of telephone thousands of tons will have to be arranged for on the spur of the moment.

Grip and nerve and quick decision rather than the slow level of certainty to the tenth of a decimal point will be the order of the day. There will be no waiting. The men who are there ready will have the orders and there will be as many of them as they can conveniently take over.

Competition does not entirely lie between the British and American firms. The diligent Teuton claims attention as a factor in the case. He, too, has made great preparations for taking a side in the coming fray. The fight will be triangular rather than between two evenly matched nations.

German interests on the Rand are strong. They have the controlling power over one important group of mines, the Abe group, and the forges of the Grusonwerk in the past have groaned with orders sent to the homeland. This competition will be intensified in the near future.

In one important respect in South Africa Briton and German have manifested a tendency to pool their interests. German interest is supreme in a great stretch of country in Southwest Africa, rich in minerals and full of possibilities of development.

A railway is already planned, starting from a portion of German territory and pushing eastward with designs upon a junction with the famous Cape to Cairo line. This will be extended until a band of iron joins the Atlantic to the Indian Ocean.

But still the main competition will rest with the two branches of the Anglo Saxon race.

Race sympathy in the coming war in South Africa will count for little. Neither the hatred which some declare the inhabitants of the new countries will feel for their conquerors nor any hypothetical attraction they may feel for others, will have anything to do with the matter whatever. The thing will be fought out on its own merits.

This is universally recognized. British merchants, watching with grave apprehension the advance scouts of their competitors, have taken counsel together as to how their interests can be best served.

They want to keep all rivals out. They recognize the value of the new lands to be added to the crown. They see a preserve which, if they can keep for their own, will last them for many years and load them with profitable orders.

In this desire they are actively assisted by politicians. One reason why Britain has been patient in paying her colonial war bill has been this constant hope of recouping all outlay by greatly extended trade.

This waking up of the British merchants will add to the intensity of the struggle. They are making preparations as vast as those made by their rivals. Already they have given out some orders which are not inconsiderable to manufacturers in their own country. The manufacturer jogs along in his quiet way. On him really depends the issue.

Can he turn out material fast enough to second the efforts of the wide-awake merchant? He can. But then here comes in a further question, will he? The answer to it will be watched with eagerness on both sides of the Atlantic and in Germany, for much depends thereupon.

CLOSING EXERCISES

In Connection with the Young Women's Christian Association

The educational department of the Y.W.C.A., which has been a source of so much benefit and pleasure to many of our young ladies during the past season, was brought to a close last evening, when a great number of members and interested friends were present and showed their appreciation of the helpful work which is being accomplished by the Association. Interesting reports were heard from the following classes: Physical Culture, Miss Dickson, teacher; Wood Carving, Miss Dennistoun and Miss Jessie Dennistoun, teachers; Instrumental Music, Miss Agar, teacher; Book-Keeping and Stenography, Miss Detcher, teacher; Dressmaking, Miss Mann and Miss Armstrong, teachers; English Composition, Mrs. Marks.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the teachers for their gratuitous services so kindly lent during the term, after which an enjoyable musical programme was given, followed by an informal reception. Refreshments were served in the gymnasium which was converted into a tea room and prettily decorated for the occasion.

The meeting dispersed by singing God Save the King.

THE POLLUTION OF THE LAKE

The Medical Health Officer Has Something to Say on This Subject

Dr. Bingham, the efficient Medical Health Officer of the town, sent the following letter to the Board of Health,—

Peterborough, May 8th 1902.

Gentlemen,—At the suggestion of your chairman, I prepared a short report in reference to the different sources of pollution which contaminate the waters of Little Lake, where the citizens obtain their annual supply of ice for domestic use. Of the sources of contamination outside of the corporation may be mentioned all the river drives, the steam boats Lakefield and the Auburn Woollen Mills. Within the municipality we have the kindergarten school, the National hotel and the Cereal Works emptying their sewerage into the river. Your Sanitary Inspector and your Medical Health Officer met the Managers of the Cereal Company who treated us very courteously. They say that they have no outlet for their sewerage excepting the river, or a sewer constructed along the river bank to connect with the main sewer on George street. Privy Pits would be out of the question where they employ so many people. I may be permitted to mention that I have heard it said on all sides that the town should deal liberally with the Cereal Company, who are bringing so much wealth to the town.

J. BINGHAM,
Medical Health Officer.

The following resolution was adopted by the Board:

"That persons whose premises are connected by a sewer with the river or creek or a cess pool, and who can connect with a sewer be requested to make the connection with the town sewer at once."

It was decided that the Medical Health Officer, owing to the presence of dyptheria, should inspect the Lake street school.

The Board then adjourned.

Paine's Celery Compound

Was Her Deliverer From Disease

A Special Message of Comfort For Sick and Despondent Women.

Ten years of suffering from treacherous kidney disease is of itself a heavy record of sickness and agony for one frail woman. When we add to kidney suffering, nervousness, sleeplessness and continued overwork in the home, it marks a condition of life that draws forth our tenderest and deepest sympathies.

Such a condition of life was bringing Mrs. W. Irvine, of Queen street, St. John, N.B., very close to the dark grave. Notwithstanding the regular use of common advertised remedies and doctors' prescriptions, the ravages of disease continued, and friends of Mrs. Irvine said with sad voices, "she is going fast to death."

Just before deadly disease could finish its work, the use of that wondrous life giver, Paine's Celery Compound, was recommended. Soon, hope—a new hope—cheered the sad heart and brightened up the pallid face. A powerful, searching, life-giving agent was working at the root of the disease. It was making new blood; it was nourishing and strengthening nerves and body; it was saving a precious life.

Take comfort and cheer, ye weary, sick and diseased women, from Mrs. Irvine's experience. The remedy that so successfully met and conquered her troubles will, without fail, meet your case. Mrs. Irvine speaks of her case as follows:

"I have been troubled for the past ten years with kidney disease and have tried a great many preparations and doctors' prescriptions, with little or no benefit. For the last six months I have had a great strain upon my system from night-watching and overwork. I was breaking down; my friends said, 'I was going fast to death.' I resolved to try Paine's Celery Compound, and used four bottles. My kidney trouble disappeared; nervousness and sleeplessness are troubles of the past, and my general health is good. In a word, I am cured; I wish you to publish this so that the world can read it."

WEATHER NOTES

Probs. To-day,—Winds, gradually becoming easterly; fair and cool.

The important disturbance mentioned yesterday is now situated in the Lower St. Lawrence Valley and the marked cool wave is centered in Lake Superior. A northwest gale prevails over Ontario and Quebec, and will soon extend to the Maritime Province. Sharp frosts are indicated for all localities.

Storm warnings will be lowered on the lakes, but remain up in the St Lawrence and the Maritime Provinces.

RESULT OF VACCINATION

A Victoria University Student Dangerously Ill at Norwood

The Toronto News says,—The vaccination scare at the University this spring has brought unpleasant consequences in its train for several students of Victoria College who were obliged to submit their arms to the test required by the authorities.

Rev. Dr. Bain, registrar of Victoria College, stated this morning that he had just received a letter from the physician in attendance upon Mr. W. M Hunter, a first year student of Victoria, saying that the unfortunate young man was dangerously ill, and that the probabilities were that he would not recover. Hunter was so ill after vaccination that he gave up his studies and went home to Norwood. Dr. Bain expressed his sincere regret, and also sympathy for the young student. Several of the lady students of Victoria are also ill and unable to write on their examinations. In several cases the arms have been so bad that they have been lanced repeatedly.

A RUSSIAN STRAGETIC RAILWAY IN CHINA

A Sensational Story Regarding Russia's Attempt to Control China

Special to The Times.

London, May 9—What may prove to be a momentous announcement of Chinese politics is made by the Manchester Guardian. It is declared on the authority of an expert traveller, who has penetrated Manchuria disguised as a Russian tramp, who is the only foreigner admitted without Russian military escort, that Russia rapidly is completing a secret strategic railway, leaving the Siberian line to go directly through Mongolia to Pekin. The line leaves the trunk line seventy miles west of Khailar in Manchuria, 650 miles directly north of Pekin and will before winter reach Kalgan on the great wall, 100 miles west of Pekin. This is 476 miles shorter than the previously adopted St. Petersburg-Pekin route across the desert of Gobi, and traverses a much better country in Chinese Mongolia. The Guardian says that it is useless to blink the fact that the existence of such line would profoundly affect the political situation in the far East. With such a direct railway in Russia's hands, the integrety of China, to which Great Britain and Japan are pledged in the face of the world, could be defended only by a land war.

Weary Brain Workers

All fagged out, ideas flow slowly as molasses, snap and energy gone! The buoyancy that made work a pleasure, that gone also. A doctor would say you are run down, enervated, neither eating nor digesting enough. It's Ferrozone you need to brace up that fitful appetite and improve assimilation and digestion so that lots of pure, strong blood will be formed to nourish the broken down system. Ferrozone will drive away the tired feeling, restore your spirits and energy, revive your ambition and strength for work. No tonic or rebuilder like Ferrozone—try it. Southampton, May 9 — Dr. Jameson, Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, Rudyard Kipling and Mr. Michell, manager of the Cape Town branch of the Standard Bank and one of the executors of Mr. Rhodes's will, arrive here from South Africa to-day on the steamship Walmer Castle. Dr. Jameson was welcomed by B. F. Hawksley, the solicitor for the late Cecil Rhodes, and other members of Rhodes's staff.

New York, May 9—It looks very like a fight between Mr. Bryan and Mr. Hill in the affairs of the Democrats of New York State. Mr. Bryan seems to be clinging tenaciously to his issues of 1896 and 1900, while Mr. Hill is as firmly opposed to them as ever. If the latter should carry New York this year on his programme he would be a powerful factor in the next National Convention. Hence the importance of any move Mr. Bryan may make in New York politics. Edward M. Shepherd, the Tammany nominee for Mayor who ran against Mr. Low last fall is on a western trip on "legal business" but in Brooklyn it is suspected that he is on a secret political mission, this being no more or less than that of sounding Mr. Bryan and getting his agreement to a harmony programme.

Paris, May 8—The Journal's correspondent at Marseilles telegraphs that mail advices from Jibouti, French East Africa, declare a rumor is current that a battle has been fought between Turkish troops and the Imam tribe of Arabs at Koffutidor, on the frontier of Arabia, in which the Turks were defeated, losing 400 men in killed and wounded. The Arabs are also said to have lost heavily.

TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE IN FRENCH WEST INDIES

Immense Mass of Fire Destroyed the Town of St. Pierre--25,000 People Perish

Paris, May 10.—The commander of the French cruiser Suchet has telegraphed to the Minister of Marine, M. De Lanessan, from Fort De France, Island of Martinique, under date of Thursday, May 8, at 10 p.m., as follows:—

"Have just returned from St. Pierre, which has been completely destroyed by an immense mass of fire which fell on the town at about 8 o'clock in the morning. The entire population (about 25,000 souls) is said to have perished. I have brought back a few survivors, about thirty. All the shipping in the harbor has been destroyed by fire. The eruption continues."

EARTHQUAKES OF THE PAST

This old earth has been subject to thousands of disastrous earthquakes. On consulting the recorded list the reader is surprised at the amazing number of volcanic catastrophes and is bewildered at the loss of life that has been caused through the centuries by these eruptions.

The most celebrated volcanic outburst was the dire eruption of Vesuvius, which buried the beautiful cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii beneath a tide of burning lava in the year A.D. 79.

In the year 542 an earthquake was felt by nearly the whole world.

Thousands perished in an earthquake that shook Constantinople in 557.

An earthquake in Sicily in the year 1137 destroyed 15,000 persons.

In 1158 some 20,000 perished in Syria.

In 1268 in Cilicia 60,000 people perished.

At Naples in 1456 over 40,000 people lost their lives.

At Schamaki in 1667, an earthquake lasted for three months, and killed 80,000 natives.

In September, 1693, an earthquake occurred in Sicily, which overturned 54 cities and towns and 300 villages; of Catania and its inhabitants not a trace remained; more than 100,000 lives were lost.

In Jeddo, in Japan, 200,000 perished on Feb. 2nd, 1703.

In November, 1731, over 100,000 people were swallowed up in Pekin.

The memorable earthquake of Lisbon occurred on Nov. 1st, 1755. In about eight minutes most of the houses, and upwards of 6,000 inhabitants were swallowed up, and whole streets buried. This awful earthquake extended 5,000 miles and was felt even as far north as Scotland.

Four years later 20,000 people perished in an earthquake which visited Syria.

On Feb. 4, 1797, the whole country between Santa Fe and Panama was destroyed, including Cuzco and Quito; 40,000 people were buried in one second.

In 1822 an earthquake in Aleppo killed 20,000 persons.

In [illegible] the Cities of Arequipa and Chancha, and many towns in Peru and Ecuador, were destroyed and about 25,000 lives lost and 30,000 rendered homeless. The loss of property amounted to $50,000,000; about £11,000 were collected in London to relieve the sufferers.

In May, 1875, an earthquake killed 14,000 people in Colombia.

An earthquake in Kuchan, Persia, in 1893, destroyed 12,000 lives. Since then there have been no fearful catastrophies until the present volcanic actively in Martinique.

THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT.

St. Thomas, D.W.I., May 9.—Yesterday afternoon the British steamer Roddam, Capt. Freeman, brought the report from Martinique to St. Lucia that the town of St. Pierre, Martinique, which is the commercial centre and largest city of the French West Indies, had been totally destroyed, as the result of volcanic disturbances, and that almost the total population of 25,000 had been killed. The shipping in the port is said to have been destroyed, and the Quebec Steamship Company's steamer Roraima is reported to have been lost with all on board. The Roddam herself was nearly a complete wreck, while her captain was badly burned and seventeen of her crew were dead.

London, May 9.—A despatch to The Times from St. Pierre, dated Thursday confirmed the report that the city with all its inhabitants and with the shipping in the harbor had been destroyed by a volcanic eruption, and a message to The Daily Mail stated that the eruption of Mount Pelee continued, that Guerin factory had been overwhelmed with boiling mud on Monday, and twenty-four persons were known to have been killed. Up to the time of the sending of the message, however, there had been no earthquake.

PROFITABLE HOME WORK

In thousands of homes in city and country districts will be found faded and partly worn dresses, skirts and men's suits that can be cleaned, dyed with the Diamond Dyes and made over for the girls and boys. In this way, many women dress their families in handsome, fashionable clothing at a comparatively small expense—thanks to the Diamond Dyes.

Diamond Dyes are put up specially for home use, and the directions on each package are so plain that even the inexperienced can get beautiful and unfading colors by using these dyes. Diamond Dyes color anything from ribbons and feathers to the heaviest coats and dresses.

Homemade mats and rugs are all the rage just now. These pretty floor ornaments are all made from the Diamond Dye Mat and Rug Patterns. Send for designs and information to The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, 200 Mountain street, Mont-

THE SPANISH KING'S CORONATION NOW ON

Madrid in a Blaze of Glory Over the Great Event

THE YOUNG KING VERY POPULAR

The Ceremony will Take Place on Tuesday Amid Great Pomp and Splendour—The Programme for the Week

Special to the Times.

Madrid, May 10—The fetes preceding the coming of age of King Alfonso whirl along with bewildering ingenuity. They have converted Madrid into a city diffused with rainbows. Pictures of the young monarch gleam from almost every wall and window of the capital. The patriotic subjects are making bedlam of the streets, and visitors agree that never before have they seen such extraordinary wealth and brilliancy of decorations. Great silken flags, with red and yellow streamers, and pennants of silver and gold choke the air, resolving the sunshine into partial night. They hang thick in every thoroughfare and drape every public square. Under the flags merrymakers hold a noisy holiday. Groups of sweet voiced youngsters stray hither and thither, breathing soft melodies.

Occasionally the young king and queen regent drive past in an open carriage, their approach heralded by mounted officers. Then follows a scene of headstrong tumult, men, women and children pushing pell mell for the line of march. Several of the extraordinary missions from abroad have arrived in the city and to-morrow they will be received officially, their reception forming the first link in the long chain of ceremonies and festivities which is to culminate in the hall of the Chamber of Deputies the week from to-day. An outline of the completed programme for the week is as follows:

Monday, the foreign missions will present their credentials. In the afternoon there will be an official reception at the Northern station of the train which brings the foreign princes themselves, and in the evening a state banquet will be given at the royal palace in their honor.

Tuesday, the ceremony will take place at the palace, in the morning, of intrusting the king with the Order of the Garter. In the afternoon a bull fight; in the evening a state ball. On the same day will be held, if possible, a review of the troops which are stationed in or near Madrid.

Wednesday, in the morning, the investiture of the king with the Persian Order of the Agdes. In the afternoon the inauguration of the fair in the Buen Retiro. In the evening an official reception at the foreign office and a great military tattoo, which will be witnessed by the royal family and foreign representatives from the balconies of the palace.

Thursday, inauguration of an exhibition of portraits. In the afternoon a "battle of flowers" in the Retiro. In the evening a state banquet in honor of the foreign missions.

Friday, a military tournament in the Plaza de la Aremiria with a display of horsemanship by Arabs from Morocco. Gala night at the opera house.

Saturday, at 2 in the afternoon, in the assembly hall of the Chamber of Deputies, the king will take the oath to the Constitution, and at 3.30 will be present at a Te Deum, to be performed at the Church of San Francisco el Grande. The king will go in state, the procession passing through the principal streets in [illegible] Madrid.

MURDERED ON EVE OF HIS WEDDING DAY

Lorenzo Nathan Said to Have Been Murdered.

HAD $200 IN HIS POCKET

Excitement in the Village of Burnley, Twenty Miles East of Cobourg

Special to the Times

Lorenzo Nathan is the man who has disappeared, and Miss Ellen Shaw was to have become his bride. Nathan was a prosperous farmer, the wedding was set for 8 o'clock in the morning, and the guests were at the church. When Nathan did not put in an appearance at 8, a messenger was dispatched to his home. There it was learned that the young man had not been home since the previous evening. The members of his family thought that he had spent the night with some bachelor friends, and were anxiously awaiting his return. The news of his disappearance was broken to Miss Shaw, who collapsed completely, and has since been in a precarious condition.

Up to the night of his disappearance young Nathan had been making preparations for the wedding. A couple of days prior to that he drew $200, and it is known that he carried this sum on his person. On the night of his disappearance he left home with the intention of going to a neighboring village, but it has since been learned that he did not go there. It is now learned that he was murdered and robbed on some of the lonely roads near here, and that his body was then hidden. Searching parties have scoured the woods in this vicinity, but no trace of him can be found.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 10, 1902.

THE HART RIVER FIGHT

The reports by mail which are now coming to hand give a more lucid account of the Hart River fight of March 31st, in which the Canadians so greatly distinguished themselves, and, apart from the feeling of pride and gratification that our boys fought so splendidly and died with never a thought of surrender, there is the additional satisfaction of knowing that the most severe losses were sustained in holding positions the relinquishment of which would in all probability have meant the destruction of the whole force. The two troops which were practically annihilated were on the extreme rear guard and they heroically sacrificed themselves to prevent the Boers closing in on the wagon train before it could reach the main body and laager. Every man who died gave up his life to gain invaluable time, which was utilized by getting the transport into compact formation where the main body was able to resist the Boer attack and repulse it with heavy losses. It is plain that if our men had not been the bravest of the brave the Boers would undoubtedly have added another disaster to the ghastly list of similar incidents. The story of the fight in a few words is that the rear guard troops, under Lieut. Bruce Carruthers, held their ground until practically all were killed or wounded, to give the column time to concentrate in a defensive position with its transport and then the rest of the Canadians with the British troops who were with them put up a fight that made the Boers draw off with heavy losses.

It is a fine thing to know that our brave Canadian boys, mostly inexperienced and fresh from home, exhibited an indomitable courage which we may almost pride ourselves now is inseparably linked with the name of the Canadian soldier, but it is a still finer thing to know and a consolation to feel that they displayed their courage and sustained their losses in an intelligent and successful frustration of an attack by a superior Boer force, which, but for their cool daring and ready adaptation to the exigencies of the sudden onslaught, would undoubtedly have scored a decisive victory.

A TRUE STORY

Of How a Peterborough Merchant Secured a Cash Customer and How This Great Family Journal Did the Trick.

The good farmer's wife on one evening in May,
When at last she had finished all parts of the day,
She sat on the porch with the Times in her hand,
And read of the happenings all over the land.

When down in one corner she happened to spy,
And as she read it it twinkled her eye,
The ad of a merchant but ten miles away;
She was sure they could go there and back in a day.

She was sure, this good wife, that now where they should go
To trade after this and her husband must know;
For the goods were so cheap everything that's of use,
And they paid a high price for all farmers produce.

So out to the barn she must hasten to go
To tell him the news he must needs want to know;
And they straightway decided the very next day
To this wonderful place they would hasten away.

They started by daylight, not any too soon,
And arrived there along in the early forenoon.
They loaded their wagon with groceries in store,
And slippers and dresses and all things galore.

And the good farmer said, unloading his store,
That he never had seen such great bargains before.
The journey was long and the hills they were steep,
But they felt full repaid for the goods were so cheap.

This ad in the Times the good wife had seen
Brought at least two new patrons for all time I mean;
And perhaps many more, tho' not seeing, not knowing,
But why the vast crowds who in that way are going!

The next time she went to Peterborough to trade
At the Times office she called while she stayed;
Thanked the editor kind for the ad in [illegible]
Then left a round dollar to renew her subscription.

Anecdotal

After one of his trips to the Emerald Isle Foote was praising the hospitality of the Irish, when a gentleman asked him whether he had been at Cork. "No, sir," answered Foote, "but I have seen many drawings of it."

Disraeli once said of Sir William Harcourt in his affectedly cynical way: "He has the three essential qualifications of success in politics—a fine person, a loud voice, and no principles." To this, when it was repeated to him, Harcourt rejoined: "Leaving out the first two qualifications, it might almost be applied to 'Dizzy' himself."

Tradition ascribes to the second Pitt the dying words: "O, my country—my country! How I leave my country!" What, in fact, Pitt said was: "I think I could eat one of Bellamy's pork-pies." Which he did—and straightway expired, to the intense grief of the nation. This version is attested by the head-waiter of "Bellamy's" (likewise deceased), who told it to Mr. Disraeli.

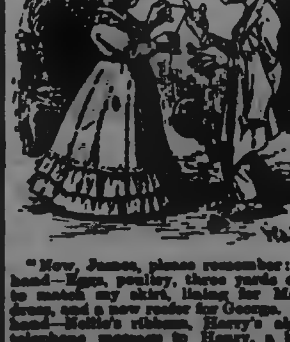
Louis XIV. was told that Lord Stair was one of the best-bred men in Europe. "I shall soon put him to the test," said the king; and asking Lord Stair to take an airing with him, as soon as the door of the coach was opened, he bade him pass and get in. The other bowed and obeyed. The king said: "The world is in the right in the character it gives—another person would have troubled me with ceremony."

When, a few years ago, the King of Portugal was a guest at Lord Salisbury's country seat, the Prince of Wales—now King Edward—asked King Carlos what had impressed him most during his stay in England. "English roast beef is very delightful," was the reply. "Oh," said the Prince, "surely something else has impressed you as well." "Ah, yes," returned Carlos; "of course, there is English boiled beef, which is also delightful."

A commercial traveler well known in the cycle trade adds this to the collection of jokes on newly made happy fathers: The hero is the manufacturer of the wheel which the narrator sells. Being compelled to go away on a business trip about the time an interesting domestic event was expected, he left orders for the nurse to wire him results according to the following formula: If a boy, "Gentleman's safety arrived." If a girl, "Lady's safety arrived." The father's state of mind may be imagined when, a few days later, he received a telegram containing the one word: "Tandem."

A certain Scotch caddie named Mathie Gorum was noted for his invariable remark after a poor shot by the person he was serving: "It micht hae been waur," which was meant to be consolatory and encouraging. His master, a clergyman, was wearied with this well-meaning flattery. Accordingly, to make sure that he would squash the remark for once, he told the caddie he had a terrible dream the night before. "Mathie, my man, I dreamt that I was in the place where the wicked are punished. I saw the wretched ones tortured; they were swimming in a lake of boiling pitch, and could not get landed for red-hot pitchforks thrust in their faces by demons." He halted a minute, with his tongue in his cheek, when, with perfect coolness, the caddie answered: "Aye, sir, that was a bad dream, jist awfu'; but it micht hae been waur." "Waur, you fool? How could that be?" "It micht hae been true."

It is a current story in Teviotdale that in the house of an ancient family of distinction, much addicted to the Presbyterian cause, a Bible was always put in the sleeping apartment of the guests, along with a bottle of strong ale. On some occasion there was a meeting of clergymen in the vicinity of the castle, all of whom were invited to dinner by the worthy baronet, and abode all night. According to the fashion of the times, seven of the reverend guests were allotted to one large barrack-room, which was used on such occasions of extensive hospitality. The butler took care that the divines were presented each with a Bible and a bottle of ale. But, after a little consultation among themselves, they are said to have recalled the domestic as he was leaving the apartment. "My friend," said one of the venerable guests, "you must know when we meet together as brethren the youngest man reads aloud a portion of Scripture to the rest; only one Bible, therefore, is necessary. Take away the other six, and, in their place, bring six more bottles of ale."



"Now, James, please remember: Left hand—Eggs, poultry, three yards of silk to match my skirt, lining for Maggie's dress, and a new reader for George. Right hand—Nellie's ribbons, Harry's skates, telephone message to Henry, a box of starch, and my new bonnet. Say them over as you go to town."—"Harper's Weekly."

Sue Brette—How do you know the gallery gods threw eggs at you? Ham Lette—How do I know? Ye gods, didn't I catch them in the act?—Chicago "News."

A visitor to a farm was especially struck by the great ruggedness and strength of one of the stalwart harvest hands, and said to the farmer: "That fellow ought to be chuck-full of work." "He is," replied the farmer, "or he ought to be, because I hain't never been able to get none out of him."—From "Success."

"I see that Mrs. Uptardeight is addressing the Mothers' Scientific Club this afternoon on The Care of Children." "Speaking of children, who was that youngster that broke into Snoopy's candy store last night and robbed the till?" "That—why, that was Mrs. Uptardeight's youngest."—Baltimore "News."

Nobody can tell yet how ideally correct feeding can be practised. It is less than useless for anybody in New Jersey to tell us how he feeds Minorcas successfully if another man in northern Michigan or Wisconsin is going to copy without change. It is not even advisable to adopt unchanged the rations of one man for a flock of equal numbers, same breed, in the next county, next town, next farm.—Jas. Shackleton, Shoal Falls, N.J., in New York Tribune Farmer.

Late Sidney Cooper, R.A.

An interesting figure in the art world passed away a few days ago in England, when Sidney Cooper, R. A., died at the age of 99. He worked at his profession until almost the last, and had a picture in the Royal Academy last year, as he had had each year since 1845, when he became A. R. A. His record in this respect is without a precedent, nor is it likely to be equalled for many a generation. Mr. Cooper was born September 28, 1803. A few years ago he was so repeatedly asked the question to what he attributed his long life and splendid vigor that he jotted down the following salient points of his life and habits:

"I was born at Canterbury in 1803 during the great Imperial war, which lasted till I was twelve years of age. All provisions were very dear and my early life was spent on very plain food. So soon as I was able I got to hard work for little pay.

"I took every opportunity to draw and sketch from Nature; but as I could not get instruction this caused me to walk much daily. I have been a great walker. At twenty years of age I was able to learn drawing at county schools, which gave me a great number of miles to walk.

"I was never ill, except with infant maladies. At thirty I commenced to try to paint. After I came to settle in London my living was of a very careful kind. I soon became known and received many commissions for my work, which became very popular.

"Then came a period of bad health from the overstrain of London life, and I feared I should become a poor invalid. So I went back to the country, bought some land and built this house (Vernon Holme, near Canterbury) in 1848. I soon felt the change for the better.

"I bought a farm, which required much looking after, and I commenced to walk again. This I continued to do; and now, in my ninety-sixth year, I can paint four or five hours a day and walk slowly a mile daily in fine weather or take a carriage drive if not fine.

"I rise at 7 o'clock, go into my study, set my palette, take my breakfast at 8, then my Bible, then I paint till 12.30. Then lunch and Bible and paint till 3 o'clock. This is my day's work and then I take my walk, write letters and dine at 6 o'clock.

"I take no wine, but a very little whiskey and cold water. Of course I have the infirmities of old age, but now enjoy the cheerful effects of a temperate life.

"I think moderate smoking conducive to sleep, if in the evening; but to smoke all day, as I know some do, is not wise.

"I must tell you that I attribute my long life to the merciful care of God's Providence, for He was the Father of the fatherless boy and has preserved him through all his trials and difficulties, prosperities, sunshine and shadow."

Mr. Cooper was no doubt the oldest member of his profession in the world at the time of his death, but he was even then junior to a Devonshire preacher, who is in his hundredth year. This is Mr. Robert C. Chapman of Barnstaple, and from the excellent health he enjoys at present there is every prospect of his going well into the second century.

Primarily a barrister, he gave up his profession when still in the twenties, in order to devote himself to religious work. For over seventy years he has worked in Barnstaple, and the older he gets the more popular he becomes with the members of the Plymouth Brethren community, to which he belongs. A man of scholarly attainments, he is master of half a dozen languages and author of many Biblical works. Mr. Chapman is known among the Nonconformist churches the world over. He still preaches, though only occasionally, as he finds it takes rather too much out of him, but whenever he does occupy the pulpit there is always a large congregation.

Advertising Canada.

Certainly, if Canada is not well advertised now in Great Britain, it is no longer the fault of the British press. It is difficult to pick up an English newspaper to-day without finding it containing somewhere or other a reference to Canada's resources or to some phase or other of life in the Dominion. Moreover, there need no longer be any feeling that the attention of the British is directed by their newspapers to Australia or New Zealand rather than to Canada; all that has changed during the last few years. South Africa necessarily occupies a sad prominence, but from a point of view altogether different from that from which Canada is seen. The London press has been paying much attention to the Deputy Minister of the Interior, Mr. Smart, during his visit to Great Britain, and numerous interviews and articles that must prove of great value to this country have appeared in the columns of the big metropolitan dailies. In the provincial press Canada is almost equally to the front. In the shape of letters from correspondents, who are sometimes residents of Canada, sometimes Englishmen who have visited Canada, or by means of articles based on the excellent literature emanating from the Immigration Department, Canada is being continually kept in the minds of the people of Great Britain.

Temperance Work in London.

In connection with the efforts to increase the growth of temperance in the Province of Ontario it is interesting to notice the expensive temperance work that the London County Council is at present carrying out, but it is not designated as such, nor is the general public aware of the fact. Yet within the last three years the London County Council has devoted more than $1,250,000 to the practical work of temperance. It is one of the consequences of the extensive improvements being made in London at present. When acquiring property for the necessary widening of different streets, many public houses, with licenses and good will, come into the possession of the Council. These properties are very valuable, but the Council, instead of renewing them for premises in the neighborhood, is deliberately giving them up, seeing, at the same time, that no new licenses for those localities are issued. In this way the number of public houses in London has been diminished by 103, which were valued at $4,372,782.

Friend—You had a very fashionable audience, didn't you?

Pianist—Yes, at one time there was not a single person in the room who was listening.—Somerville (Mass.) Journal.

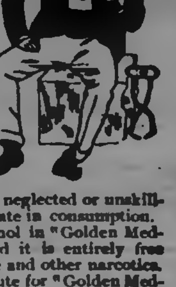
Little Dorothy had been intently watching her brother, an amateur artist, blocking out a landscape in his sketchbook. Suddenly she exclaimed, "I know what drawing is."

"Well, Dot, what is it?"

"Drawing is thinking, and then marking round the think."

Cooling Off.

The man who would sit on a cake of ice to cool off would be considered crazy. Yet it is a very common thing for a person heated by exercise to stand in a cool draught, just to cool off. This is the beginning of many a cough which ultimately involves the bronchial tract and the lungs.



For coughs in any stage there is no remedy so valuable as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures deep-seated, obstinate coughs, bronchitis, bleeding of the lungs, and like conditions which if neglected or unskillfully treated terminate in consumption.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good."

"I took a severe cold which settled in the bronchial tubes," writes Rev. Frank Hay, of Nortonville, Jefferson Co., Kansas. "After trying medicines labeled 'Sure Cure,' almost without number, I was led to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took two bottles and was cured, and have stayed cured.

"When I think of the great pain I had to endure, and the terrible cough I had, it seems almost a miracle that I was so soon relieved.

"That God may spare you many years and abundantly bless you is the prayer of your grateful friend."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers or 50 stamps for it in cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW SPRING NOVELTIES JUST RECEIVED

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE,

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices.

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.

WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the color scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD
WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

My lady, the chatelaine, wove in beautiful designs and embroideries the tapestries from which we have borrowed some beautiful ideas in our wall paper.

My lady of 1902 will find many things in our stock to her liking.

OUR PRICES ARE FROM 10 TO 40 PER CENT. CHEAPER THAN ELSEWHERE.

Keep Hogs Thrifty.

The hog seems to need some earthy or mineral matter to enable it to digest its food well. For this purpose many give salt, wood ashes and charcoal, allowing them to eat it as they please, and they usually are pleased to eat it pretty freely, especially the breeding stock kept over winter, and it has been found by test that fattening hogs put on flesh more rapidly when they can resort to this mixture as they please. It prevents the gravel eating, which sometimes seems to keep them from growing. The Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, sends out the following recipe, which we are not sure is any better than the one we give above. Charcoal, sulphur and black antimony, of each one pound, mixed with common salt, baking soda, sulphate of soda, hyposulphite of soda, of each two pounds. If given in the feed, one teaspoonful is allowed daily to each hog. The hogs also need in winter, especially the breeding sows, either roots or green feed of some kind. We think raw roots are better than cooked ones, but if they are not at hand give every day a lock of clover hay. They will always eat it greedily.—American Cultivator.

The Unproductive Cows.

What to do with the unproductive cows is a question that is puzzling many farmers to-day. Much of the stock on hand will not return the value of the feed needed to keep the animals. If the poorer animals of the herd are old cows, which have passed their period of usefulness for the dairy, I would advise selling for what they will bring as second quality beef. Old dairy cows will not return in their final value the cost of the feed necessary to fatten them. Heifers or cows in the prime of life may pay for fattening. This depends on the amount of feed which must be purchased and used in this way.

Homegrown corn and cottonseed meal are the most economical grains to use in fattening. I would advise feeding animals that are being fattened but little coarse fodder, and of this would use the poorer grades, such as second quality hay and corn stover, but would feed liberally of grain for from four to six weeks, and then sell for what the animals will bring.

A grain ration made up of four hundred pounds of corn meal and two hundred pounds of cottonseed meal should produce a rapid gain. This ration should be fed at the rate of from six to ten pounds a day, according to the size of the animal. All animals will gain faster during the early part of the fattening period, but at the present prices of feeds will probably not gain enough to pay for the feed if the fattening process is followed up beyond a certain point. This point can only be accurately ascertained by frequent weighing, but will probably not be later than six weeks after feeding begins.—Prof. C. S. Phelps, in New-England Homestead.

Edison's Prophecy.

Mr. Edison's latest theory is that by and by we shall be able to do without sleep altogether, as by the more perfect processes of electric lighting it will be difficult to tell night from day, and we shall forget when bedtime comes round. The man of the future is evidently going to live pretty rapidly. It was only the other day that we were told that square meals would be a thing of the past in the good time that's coming. Instead of laboriously working your way through seven or eight courses, all you'll have to do will be to go to the nearest chemist and buy a few pills with the nourishment of a city dinner concentrated into each. In the face of these conditions one feels disposed to urge the races unborn to stay where they are for their own sakes.

Imperial Weather.

SOMEBODY is about to publish a vindication of the character of English weather. It appears that it has been most unfairly misrepresented. What we stupidly call its fickleness is really nothing in the world but a perfectly laudable effort to reproduce in our midst the imperial nature of our climate, remarks "Outlook." When it presents us with primroses in November, that is to remind us of the pleasant picnic weather they are having on the veldt; the same laudable intention accounts for June snowstorms. Nor do we have to wait for complete reversals of the seasons. A week of imperial weather—sometimes, like a cheap trip, it is all crammed into one day—runs somewhat as follows: Monday, fog (home produce); Tuesday, cricketing weather (Australia); Wednesday, skating (Canada); Thursday, waterspouts (various ocean territories); Friday, steaming (West Coast); Saturday, general imperial representation; Sunday—but the British Sunday

Gambling on the Atlantic.

An English paper charges that the big Atlantic liners are hotbeds of gambling, and supply an easy prey in the shape of foolish young men to the card-sharpers who travel to and fro. Probably there is not a steward on board who does not know the faces of half a dozen of these men, and doubtless the detectives of Liverpool and New York know every one of them. Liners should carry a detective as they carry a surgeon and lifeboats; and a quiet hint to the prey that is walking into the snare should be easy and effective.

Little Georgie was taken by his aunt to see the newcomer, aged one day. He was duly and profoundly impressed with the specimen, and asked where the little brother came from. "God sent it," answered the aunt, reverently. The answer made a deep impression on Little Georgie, for that afternoon he was seen out in the backyard gazing up into the deep blue sky and spreading his diminutive apron expectantly as he said: "Dear God, please throw me one down, too."—Troy "Press."

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY
—OR—
The World Lost for Love's Sake
By Laura Jean Libbey
Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leafy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

"Some one want'ng money, I presume," said Aleck; "she is so good in that way to every one."

But John —remembering the two-dollar note tucked away so carefully in his vest pocket —knew that his master was mistaken in that at least.

In turn'ng away, blinded by rage, Harold St. John missed his footing and went crashing down the steps headlong, and there, unconscious, one of the servants found him when he went to fasten the outer gates.

He was removed to the hospital, where, after a strong cordial was given him, he opened his eyes, gazing in wonder at the strange faces bending over him.

He tried to spring from the couch, but a terrible twinge of pain rendered him almost frantic, and he abandoned the attempt.

"Where am I and what's the matter with me?" he groaned, sinking back among the pillows.

"A sprained ankle," repl'ed the doctor, briefly, "and a fracture of the bone."

"How long will it be before you can get me out of this?" he demanded, with a fierce imprecation.

"Three weeks, if you remain perfectly quiet, and allow the bone, which we have set to knit together— two months if you don't, and a prospect of amputation."

A volley of horrible oaths broke from Harold St. John's lips.

"Curses on the way affairs are going!" he cried. "I can't lie here three weeks—and I won't."

"You are at perfect liberty to walk off any time you can," replied the doctor, laconically.

What could not be cured must be endured. As there was no help for it, Harold St. John was obliged to lie on the hospital cot and allow the fractured ankle to slowly mend.

He bought the daily papers and scanned them eagerly. He read of the departure for the east of Alexander Hamilton and his young wife on the twenty-fourth, and another volley of curses broke from h's lips.

As he was about to crush the paper in his hand, and toss it from him, torn into a thousand shreds, another paragraph caught h's eye which held him spellbound —slowly he read the article through from beginning to end —the veins standing out like whipcords on his forehead as his startled eyes traversed each line, that wavered in letters of fire before his gaze.

CHAPTER XXX.
"Would You Have Loved me if You had Never Seen Me?"

Harold St. John thrust the paper from him with a muttered imprecation.

He was white to the lips, and great beads of perspiration stood out on his forehead.

The paragraph which had startled him so, was a list of passengers' names who had just come over from London, and among the list he saw one name that struck subtile terror to his heart.

He recovered himself with a mighty effort.

"Pshaw! the world is wide — we shall never meet," he told himself reassuringly; then dismissed the subject from his mind altogether.

It was a happy day for Daisy when she reached New York— despite her accusing conscience —for the memory of Lillian Ruthven and her haunting face were ever before her, waking or sleeping, by day or by night.

She had sold her soul for love and happiness; she would give up all fear, and live only in the pleasure that each day brought forth.

The meeting between Hetty Gordon —who had been left behind in New York when Mr. Gordon and Olive took that western trip — and her two sisters was very affecting.

She had keener perceptions than Olive, and saw at once that beneath Daisy's assumed gayety there was something terribly wrong.

"I am sorry to say it, papa," said Hetty, when she found herself alone with her father that evening, "but I do not think Daisy is quite happy. She laughs and smiles, but if you come upon her suddenly, when she fancies herself quite alone, you will find something very like terror on her face, and her long lashes wet with tears. Does that look like happiness?"

Even Hetty had noticed it. What could it mean?

Very reluctantly her father confided to her all that had happened at the villa; the strange quarrel between Aleck and Daisy, which he had not understood, and which neither of them would explain.

"Whatever that quarrel was, it has brought about a shadow between them which is not likely to be dispelled soon," said Hetty. "For Daisy's sake, father, I must find out by strategy what it is."

So she set her wits to work to discover Daisy's dark secret, little dreaming where it was to end.

By night and by day she watched her.

She noticed another thing — how visibly affected and how nervous Daisy grew if any one mentioned by chance Briarvale, or the pretty young heiress, Lillian Ruthven, who used to live there.

One afternoon, while Hetty and Daisy were driving through Central park, they came across Lillian herself.

A wild cry broke from Daisy's lips; her face turned the hue of death.

Now why should this chance encounter with Miss Ruthven affect her so? Hetty wondered in amazement.

Lillian Ruthven held out her hands to them with a bright smile.

"You are surprised to see me here, I suppose?" she said to Daisy, turning her animated face toward her, adding quickly: "You remember what we were speaking of at the garden-party that night — of the terrible cloud that hung over me— in the expected presence of the man who had blasted my life, and who declared he was coming to claim me on the twenty-fifth?

"How shall I describe to you in what torture I waited, for I had determined to brave the affair out there and then; rather than have gone with him I should have thrust the silver dagger I wore in the coils of my hair through my heart, and have fallen dead at his feet.

"But much to my intense surprise and joy the day came and went — my mortal foe did not put in an appearance, nor has he been heard from since— you see, when it came to the test, the fellow dared not claim me.

A SIMPLE FAITH.
SERMON BY
GEORGE H. HEPWORTH.

Ye believe in God, believe also in me.—St. John xiv., 1.

What is absolutely essential in religion, so far as doctrine is concerned, is very little and very simple. The church has for a long time had a strange notion that in order to be saved a man must believe a long list of dogmas, whereas the only condition imposed by the Christ is that a man shall have a heart and a life full of love which lifts someone's burden whenever the chance occurs, and seek the strength to do it from Him who is Father to all alike.

There is this difference between what is called "a body of doctrine" and a spiritual principle, namely, that not everybody can either understand or accept the doctrine, while no man is so unlettered or so obtuse that he need fail to do what is right because he is in doubt about it. The road to heaven is not a tangled mass of statement about Christ or God, but a straight and open path from the trusting human heart to the immortal life, a path in which the little child and the grave philosopher may hand in hand wend their way with equal pleasure and profit.

You need corner-stones if you erect a building, and for a like reason you need certain beliefs if you make for yourself a character. Faith in a God who will never desert you stands first. It must be an unflinching faith, however, or it will give way in the time of emergency. You begin well when you begin with that, and you begin ill if you begin in any other fashion.

I have a queer suspicion that the faith in the ability or willingness of God to see us safely through all earthly experience is clouded by more or less doubt. It is a matter which we keep to ourselves, but deep down in the heart is a wonder whether this beautiful something which we call religion can be relied upon as firmly, for instance, as the sea captain relies on his compass in a storm. Hence the despair which we find when death comes into the house, and hence our weakness when a bold and insolent temptation assails us. We are not thoroughly convinced, and, though we hope that God is there and does hear us when we cry, we have a doubt which seizes us like a sudden throb of agony.

That is not religion; it is only the simulation of it. It is a staff of willow, not a staff of oak. It serves in good weather, but in the tempest it fails us. When Davy invented his wire gauze lamp as a protection against the explosive fire damp in mines the workmen looked at it and shook their heads. It was too simple to be worth much. But Davy had faith in his lamp. He lighted the candle, went into the bowels of the earth, sought the spot where fire damp lay in ambush and exposed himself to the danger. He had not only a theory, but a conviction. He would trust his life to it. No test could be too severe. He felt absolutely safe with that lantern in his hand.

That is the kind of faith we want if our lives are to become heroic. And when we are possessed of it we have something else besides. Faith in God produces faith that our earthly experiences are our discipline and our preparation. The moment you see God as your Father duty becomes not only clear and distinct, but easy. Alone you can bear but little, but with the infinite reservoir of power and love to draw from you are equal to whatever your position may be. If God is with you, then the angels who do His bidding will be your companions. You become one of the great family and will be consciously helped by unseen hands over the rough places. And this consciousness will grow clearer as your faith increases, until in the end there will be only a thin veil between you and the other world. You will live in the friendship of the departed as you live in that of the dear ones in your household. The Christ realized this, but we are yet dull of hearing and dim of sight.

Immortality will become not a vague hope or even a reasonable belief, but a demonstrable certainty, and you will live in the two worlds at the same time. Your last hour will find you with a smile on your lips and a great gladness in your heart. You will eagerly step out of a tired body to be welcomed by those who await your coming.

That is the kind of religion which men long for, and which they will have when they wake up from this half belief and this make believe to a realization of the glorious truth. It was Christ's religion, and it is our own fault if we do not make it ours.

Herr Von Holleben, who entertains Prince Henry as Germany's chief representative in America, has been Ambassador at Washington since 1897, and was Minister to the United States from 1892 to 1894. He is the second in the Ambassadorial corps, and upon the retirement of Lord Pauncefote will become the dean. He is sixty years old, a native of Bremen, and a graduate of Heidelberg. He was educated especially for the diplomatic service. While at the university he was distinguished as a successful duelist, and his face shows the marks of sword encounters. He is a confirmed bachelor.

The Lament of the Adult.

IN one of Dickens's novels—those novels which we are tearfully assured nowadays are not in the least funny—an ungrateful brickmaker rejects the little volume which has been brought him, because "it's a book fit for a babby, and I'm not a babby. If you was to leave me a doll, I shouldn't nuss it."

Something of this unchastened spirit stirs within our middle-aged hearts when we read a modern story, or see a modern play. It is probably the nicest kind of a story, and the nicest kind of a play, and if we were only fourteen instead of forty, or fifteen instead of fifty, we should thoroughly enjoy them both. Nothing is better calculated to make us regret our lost youth than fiction and the drama as they exist to-day. With what glorious emotions we should have dilated in childhood over Mr. Crockett's desperate brigands, or Miss Johnston's dauntless heroes. How we should have steeped ourselves—figuratively speaking—in gore, and revelled in romance. Sicilian outlaws, noble Indians, cruel half-breeds, courtly villains and heroines of wild, unearthly beauty—time was when these things made our pulses jump. But now seventeen murders excite us less than one, and duels are no longer the thrilling episodes they were in the happy past. It is hard to grow old, and it is made harder by the fact that nobody, save one's family doctor, has anything to offer to age. We should still like, even at forty or fifty, to be amused, but nobody caters to our amusement. When a veteran actor like Mr. Drew—who ought to sympathise with adults—entertains us with a drama that calls to mind the school plays of happy infancy, and the last act of which must certainly have been written by Miss Edgeworth, we feel that we are indeed friendless in the evening of our lives.

It is cold comfort to be told that the drama is intended for the debutante, and the novel for her younger brothers and sisters. It is even less agreeable to hear it hinted that if we do not like these pure and wholesome performances, it is because we want something evil. Does nothing, then, interest the adult save sin? Are bankers and brewers, anxious mothers and hard-working spinsters indifferent to all but vice? Must we either frolic like lambs—being lambs no longer—or devote ourselves seriously to the meretricious? Life has issues, not wholly unimportant, yet disconnected with love-making of any kind. Men—middle-aged men—desire many things besides their neighbors' wives. Women—middle-aged women—are sometimes strangely indifferent to their neighbors' husbands. We may be pure of heart, yet unable to take pleasure in "The Old Homestead" or "Ben Hur." We may be virtuous and intelligent adults. Will no one write novels and plays for us?—Agnes Repplier in "Life."

"Suppose," said the man with the morbid imagination, "that the trusts make everything so expensive that the public can't afford to buy; what then?"

"Now, what's the use of talking nonsense?" answered the business man. "All the fun a trust has is taking people's money from them. When they get all the money, they'll simply have to give a lot of it out again or stop the whole amusement."—Washington Star.

It came to us, so white and pure,
A visitor we rarely see,
It stayed with us, to play with us—
'Twas welcomed by us royally.
It stuck to us, it would not go,
But gradually its paleness left
Until it scarcely seemed the same—
Of all its beauty 'twas bereft.
And now, as black as soot, it strews
The streets and pavements where we go,
We tramp it under foot and kick—
'Tis not the snow we used to know!

There is scarcely any condition of ill-health that is not benefited by the occasional use of a R·I·P·A·N·S Tabule. For sale by Druggists. The Five Cent packet is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

Permanent Cures

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our constitutional treatment in curing Cancer is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the Breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggravated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, its cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper, on receipt of two stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

(Ed.—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to its columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published.—Ed. Times.)

—There was some frost last night.

—There was no Police Court yesterday.

—The Chief again notifies all who have not yet done so to take out dog tags.

—You can hardly realize that two weeks from next Thursday will be election day. Keep a-moving.

—We have 50 good-sized second hand packing cases for sale cheap at The Times Bookstore.

—Peterborough has now a third auctioneer. In the person of Mr. J. H. Gardiner, who has taken up his residence in Ashburnham.

—New map of the County of Peterborough, mounted on rollers, only $2.50. Times Bookstore.

—May 24th falls this year on Saturday, and market day will be held on Friday. Farmers and others will please make a note of this.

—Want a nice hammock? New lot, of the very best make, just in, at Times Bookstore.

—Messrs. Gough Bros., the great Peterborough clothing house, are conducting a big spring sale of boy's ready-made clothing.

—A new floor is to be put down in the Post Office, a grant of $3,500 having been made for this purpose. Mr. J. H. McClellan, to whose efforts are due the securing of the grant, states that the work will be proceeded with at an early date.

—Look out for the Jarvis Street Baptist choir concert in St. Paul's Church on Monday evening. Secure your tickets at once.

Although the town of Deseronto is one of the busiest lumbering towns in Ontario, they have now decided not to lay any more new plank sidewalks. They are going in for cement walks. E. W. Rathbun, Mayor, and the other town officials have figured the cost of cement walks to be cheaper and better than plank.

—FOR SALE—New Al-Vista Panoramic camera. Cost $45.00. Will sell at a great bargain. Apply, Tate Optical Co., 428 George street.

—The hungry man, or the man who is regular in eating, wants a place to dine where the surroundings are appetizing. He wants plenty of "sea room," so to speak; he wants attentive waiters; he wants an inviting table—clean napkins; clean water—and, most of all, he wants to know that what he finally orders will be well cooked. These are the essentials. Then he wants the price after each article to be at least low enough so that it will not destroy his appetite while the order is being filled. All these things are found at the Palace Cafe, Frank, the caterer, has a happy faculty of making you feel at home in this restaurant, and our advice is for you to go there and verify what we have said concerning it.

—We read of boys and men arrested in Ontario for shooting robins, and being fined for so doing. The increase of insect pests is undoubtedly due in part to the destruction of birds by would be sportsmen. Left to herself, nature maintains a balance which permits of no undue increase in what is hurtful. A few years ago the sheep-pastures on the Scottish borders were destroyed by mice to a degree that was ruining the farmers. Every device was tried to kill the mice, and failed, and the plague continued until hawks were allowed to do their work. The increase of rats and mice in field and barn in this district, and which this spring has ruined many an orchard, may be traced in part to the ruthless shooting of owls and hawks.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Events Under This Head Transpiring In and around Peterborough.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to furnish the paper with items of a personal and social nature either by phone or in writing.—Ed. Times.)

—Mr. Geo. B. Hilliard, Lakefield, was in town yesterday on business.

—Miss Emeline Miller, the talented pianiste, who was so much appreciated on the evening of Mrs. Morrow's concert, returned to Toronto yesterday after spending a few weeks in Peterborough very pleasantly.

—Mr. J. C. Minorgan, Miss Lillie Minorgan of town and Miss Florence Crocker of California, left town yesterday for Montreal where they will take the Allan liner Tunisian to-day for London, England.

—Mr. George Burnham, of the C.G.E. Company, who left yesterday for Pittsburg, Pa., was given a hearty send-off by his fellow members of the C.D.A. at the Crown Hotel on Thursday night when he was presented with a handsome pipe.

Retail Clerks to Organize

A movement is on foot to organize an Association of Retail Clerks. A very strong organization, it is hoped, will be formed in Peterborough. The object of the society is to discuss matters of mutual interest, and in these days of unions there is no reason why such an organization should not be formed here.

Station Improvements

Extensive improvements are being made in the Grand Trunk station and buildings at Lakefield. The old engine house has been taken down; a new roof is being put on the station building and the waiting room is being enlarged. A freight storehouse will also, we understand, be constructed.

Why Snuffle and Sneeze?

Don't suffer any more with a cold in the head. Just carry a Catarrhozone Inhaler in your vest pocket, use it now and again and you won't have colds. Catarrhozone knocks out a cold in ten minutes, kills a headache in five minutes, and hard racking coughs in half an hour. Inhale the pleasant Catarrhozone vapor five minutes four times daily and it will cure bronchitis, lung trouble, deafness, asthma and catarrh in any part of the system. Catarrhozone is the most direct, modern and scientific method, and is guaranteed to give satisfaction. Complete two months' treatment costs $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Senator Cox's Liberality

Peterborough has a staunch friend in Hon. Geo. A. Cox, who is always interested in anything that goes to promote the welfare of Peterborough. This has been shown in a thousand ways during the past few years. Yesterday he subscribed for a large block of stock in the new hockey rink, which will be built this year.

Voted for 56 Years

Yesterday Mr. Redmond Carey, an old and respected resident of Otonabee, called to renew his subscription to The Times. Mr. Carey has a high opinion of this great family journal, and says that it is by all odds the best paper in this part of the Province. He has for many years been a subscriber, as well as a subscriber to other local papers, and therefore knows what he is talking about. Speaking of the election, Mr. Carey said that he has voted at every parliamentary election for 56 years. He is an ardent Conservative, and predicts the election of Dr. Ford in the east. He looks hale and hearty, and will live, we trust, for many years yet.

CEREALS OR MEAT

A Prepared Food Helps to Solve the Problem of Good Living.

PRICES OF MEAT GO UP

"While the average housekeeper may be ignorant as to whether a beef trust has been formed or whether the increase in the price of meat is due to other causes, if she is a woman of moderate means, she has become convinced that she must turn to something except animal food for the main fare of her family," says the Buffalo Express.

"It is not an entirely new thing, this advance in the price of meats, and it is even rumored that prices have not yet reached their limit, but certain it is that the cost for the average family has increased rapidly of late until meat has become an article of diet that must necessarily be eliminated from the daily fare of the very poor and has become almost a luxury even to those who have a moderate and usually adequate amount to spend upon the family food.

"To-day domestic science and public opinion have joined in teaching an important lesson to rich and poor alike, the necessity of consuming body building food, supplying material that will keep nerves, muscles, bones flesh and brain in the proper condition, feeding into the human engine the fuel needed to make good the constant waste."

A food expert at Battle Creek, Mich., has produced a food especially intended to supply more nutriment than meat, fish or fowl, and that costs the consumer about one cent a meal. It is called "Grape-Nuts," and has more nourishment for the body and greater strength and vitality for the brain and nervous system, and is an economy that reduces the cost of housekeeping to the minimum and at the same time pleases the palate.

Grape-Nuts is a condensed food, and about four teaspoonfuls with cream is sufficient for the cereal part of a meal. It requires no cooking or preparation of any kind, and is ready for immediate use and suited to the laborer, athlete, brain worker, epicure and invalid.

One pound of Grape-Nuts contains more nourishment—that the system will absorb—than ten pounds of meat. An experiment was tried by a man who found that by leaving off meat altogether at breakfast and lunch and taking in its place four heaping teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, he began to gain health and strength and before the full pound package was gone had gained four pounds in weight, whereas he had been losing on his meat diet.

Present conditions, therefore, regarding the price of meat, are solved to the family provider by supplying Grape-Nuts to the individuals of her household—a food that not only recommends itself by its economy and pleasant taste, but by its health-sustaining properties and its ability to build up flabby muscles, restore color to the cheek, brightness to the eye and replace the daily loss occasioned by brain and nervous work.

A package of Grape-Nuts costs 15 cents and makes 14 meals. All grocers.

THE STREET RAILWAY

Arrangements Being Made to Proceed to Work at Once

Yesterday Mr. Ed. Wade received a letter from the new owners of the Street Railway, in regard to beginning operations. Men will be put to work in a few days to clear the track. It is evident that no time will be lost in getting the railway started.

The Prospective Industry

The party of American capitalists who arrived in town on Thursday evening, were driven around town by Hon Senator Cox, James Kendry, M.P., acting Mayor Hegar, Ald Rush and Ald. Morrison. The visitors expressed themselves as highly pleased with what was shown them and promised that the advantages Peterborough possessed would be carefully considered. The gentlemen represented a large elevator company, and are looking up a suitable place in which to locate. Mr. Kendry, M.P., brought the visitors to town.

Got Lame Back or Lumbago

No need of that now. That sort of pain can be knocked out in short order, for Polson's Nerviline, which is five times stronger than any other, penetrates at once through the tissues, reaches the source of suffering, drives it out, and thus gives relief almost instantly. Not magic, but strength that gives Polson's Nerviline this power. You will think it magic however if you try it, pain goes so quickly. Sold by dealers everywhere, in large 25c. bottles.

Monday May 12

The programme to be given in St. Paul's church on the 12th inst., by the Jarvis street Baptist choir, of Toronto, is without question a program of the good things in music. The choir is assisted by Miss McMurty, soprano, Mr. A. L. E. Davies, bass, Mr. Victor Hutchison, tenor, Mr. G. B. McClellan, baritone, and Mr. Arthur Alvin, solo organist. As an evidence of the interest this choir has caused in church circles, it may be noted that they have had six or seven invitations to visit as far east as Perth. That Mr. Vogt and his choir has chosen to visit Peterborough is a matter for congratulation to the choir of St. Paul's and the public generally.

Everybody reads The Times.

We Suggest Major Miller

Each Canadian regiment is to be represented at the coronation, and who will be selected by the 57th for the honor has not yet been determined. The Times makes bold to suggest the name of Major Miller in this connection. He is an old warrior, and has worked his way up from the ranks in the local force. Besides, it would be a nice rest after his weary and fruitless effort in West Peterborough, and would be some offset for the great disappointment which he is sure to experience on the evening of the 29th.

A Breakfast Dish That is Daily Bringing Health and Strength to Thousands

The old breakfast grain foods with abundance of insoluble starch and other indigestible elements producing dyspepsia, indigestion, irritation of the stomach, eruptions and redness of the skin, have not been tolerated in many homes since the introduction of Malt Breakfast Food.

The advent of Malt Breakfast Food has brought health, joy and contentment to tens of thousands who use brain and muscle in the activities of life. This unequalled breakfast food is a positive banisher of dyspepsia and stomach irregularities; our best physicians recommend it daily to those whose digestion is weak. It perfectly agrees with the stomach of the young child and the strongest adult. If you would build up in flesh, bone, muscle and strength, make Malt Breakfast Food your first morning dish. All grocers.

A COLLEGE PROFESSOR.

One of Georgia's Useful Educators is Grateful For What Pe-ru-na is Doing For Suffering Humanity.

F. A. CURTRIGHT

F. A. Curtright, A. B., Principal of the Georgia Normal and Industrial Institute, and editor and proprietor of the "Georgia Helping Hand" writes the following glowing words concerning Peruna, and its efficacy in the cure of catarrh.

He says: "I was induced to try Peruna by the advice of a friend, and certainly believe that suffering humanity would be relieved if they only gave Peruna a fair trial. Would that I could frame words sufficient to express my gratitude for the benefits derived from its use."—F. A. CURTRIGHT, Greensboro, Ga.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota, in a letter written from Larimore, North Dakota, says:

"Persuaded by a friend, I have used Peruna as a tonic, and am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—W. N. Roach.

Senator Roach's wife recommends Peruna also. She says: "I can cheerfully recommend your excellent remedy, Peruna. Indeed, I know of no other remedy as good as yours. It is a grand tonic, and many of my friends have used it for catarrh with good results."—Mrs. W. N. Roach.

The most common phases of summer catarrh are catarrh of the stomach and bowels. Peruna is a specific for summer catarrh.

Mr. Wm. Hobley, Duquesne, Pa., writes:—"I am cured of catarrh of the stomach of two years standing. I had it so bad that I could not eat anything but milk. I doctored with several doctors and they could give me relief for a short time only. I saw Peruna recommended and thought I would try it, and I now think I am cured of catarrh. I have worked two months and did not lose a day."—Wm. Hobley.

Mr. Moses F. Merrill, Columbus, Cherokee Co., Kansas, Rural Route No. 3, writes:

"I had been troubled with systemic catarrh, which affected the lower bowels especially. I was troubled with running off of the bowels and troublesome catarrh of the bronchial tubes which caused spitting of thick mucus. Since taking Peruna my improvement has been wonderful. My bowels are regular as clock-work. I can now eat like other people and my victuals digest."—Moses F. Merrill.

"No Money, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

WHIRLWIND OF FIRE SET THE TOWN IN FLAMES.

Loss of Life Estimated at 30,000--Barbadoes Also Affected by the Eruption

Paris May 11.—The Minister of Marine has received the following undated despatch from Pointe A Pitre, Island of Guadeloupe, from the commander of the French cruiser Suchet:—

"I have obtained the following information of the events of yesterday: About 8 o'clock the volcano threw up a considerable mass of smoke and earth. A whirlwind of fire immediately followed. Instantly the whole town (of St Pierre) was in flames, and the ships in the harbor were dismasted and burned. The shower of rocks lasted a quarter of an hour. I arrived at St. Pierre at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, saving a few persons from the ships. I saw no living creature in St. Pierre, to which it was impossible to penetrate. There were numerous corpses near the quay."

CONFIRMATION FROM LLOYD'S AGENT.

London, May 11.—Lloyd's agent at St. Lucia, B.W.I., cables later news fully confirms the disaster at St. Pierre. He says he cannot ascertain the names of the vessels which have been lost, but they include one Italian barque and two steamers, one probably being the Grappler, the cable ship belonging to the West India and Panama Telegraph Company. The total loss of life is estimated at 20,000.

Lloyd's agent at St. Thomas, D.W.I., cables that St. Pierre has been totally destroyed by fire and that all the inhabitants perished. All the vessels in the harbor were lost. These include the Grappler. The steamer Roraima, belonging to the Quebec Steamship Co., took fire in port and become a total loss. All on board the Roraima perished.

BARBADOES COVERED WITH DUST.

London, May 11.—The following cablegram was received this morning at the Colonial Office, from Governor Sir Frederick Mitchell Hodgson, of Barbadoes:—

"The Soufriere volcano on St. Vincent, B.W.I., erupted violently yesterday. Loud reports, resembling artillery fire, were heard at Barbadoes at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. At five o'clock there came darkness and thunder, accompanied by a strong downpour of dust, which continued until night. Barbadoes is covered several inches deep with dust this morning. Have telegraphed Sir Robert B. Llewellyn, Governor of the Windward Islands, offering him all assistance."

Another cablegram received from Administrator Bell, of the Island of Dominica, is as follows:—

"A terrible eruption has occurred of a volcano at Martinique. Great distress prevails there. I am sending provisions immediately. All safe at Dominica."

THE LATEST NEWS.

Paris, May 11.—A telegram from the Governor of the Island of Guadeloupe contains the latest news of the Martinique cataclysm received at the Colonial Office. After announcing that the French cruiser Suchet had thirty survivors on board, the Governor of Guadeloupe says:—

"Everything tends to the belief that Governor of the colony M. L. Mouttet, and Colonel Gerbault, and their wives perished with the population of St. Pierre. I have ordered the prompt despatch of provisions from Pointe A Pitre and Basseterre. The Suchet sails for Martinique this evening. All of the people and the supplies of Guadeloupe are at your disposal for relief."

An unending procession of inquirers who have friends and relatives on the stricken island is arriving at the Ministry of the Colonies, which has telegraphed to every possible source for information.

A few private telegrams received here renew the hope that some of the inhabitants of St. Pierre escaped. The Bishop of Martinique sent a cable message from Fort De France, forwarded at 6.30 p.m. yesterday, announcing the safety of Pastor King, of St. Pierre, who escaped the disaster, and sought refuge at Morne Rouge. It is hoped that others fled there.

Cable messages have been received by the southern route. All the northern cables are interrupted.

At least fifty families of Bordeaux are bereaved. Most of the business of St. Pierre was transacted through Bordeaux.

SURVIVORS OF THE RORAIMA.

New York, May 11.—The agent of the Quebec Steamship Company has received a telegram from the company's agent at Dominica saying that the survivors of the steamship Roraima, which was destroyed in the Martinique disaster, are on board the steamship Korona. The following are reported as saved:—

The quartermaster, the stewardess and Seamen Morley, Thompson, Moore, Evans Benson, Mayer, Leady and three others, names unknown. The first officer and assistant purser are in the hospital at Fort de Fance.

CASUALTIES ON THE RODDAM.

London, May 11.—Thirty deaths are reported to have occurred at the Island of St. Vincent, according to a telegram received at the Colonial Office from Governor Llewyllen, forwarded from St Lucia yesterday evening. The Governor adds: "Information incomplete Eruption continues. I am endeavoring to get back to St. Vincent."

Steel, Young & Company, of the city, owners of the British steamer Roddam, which escaped from St. Pierre to St. Lucia, received the first news from their agents at St. Lucia this morning. It was as follows:

"Terrible volcanic eruption at Martinique, Roddam returned. One anchor and chain slipped. Tarpaulins and running gear burned. Machinery intact. Captain in hospital. Two mates, chief engineer and eight of crew dead. Ten in hospital. Second and third engineers aboard. Campbell, supercargo, dead. Communication between here and Barbadoes interrupted."

FORTY THOUSAND DEAD.

London, May 12.—Forty thousand people are now estimated to have perished in the volcanic disturbance which destroyed St. Pierre, in Martinique. A Reuter telegram from Kingston, Jamaica says that the eruption began on Saturday May 3, which St. Pierre was covered with ashes and appeared to be enveloped in fog, and the flow of lava continued until Wednesday, May 7. The people were panic-stricken, and few escaped. The French cruiser Suchet arrived at Pointe a Pitre, Island of Gandeloupe, French West Indies, from Fort De France, Martinique, yesterday morning, bringing several refugees, who said that most of the inhabitants of St. Pierre had been killed, the neighboring parishes laid waste, and the residue of the population without food or shelter. The commander of the Suchet stated that at 1 o'clock on Thursday the entire town of St. Pierre was wrapped in flames. He endeavored to save about thirty persons, more or less burned, from vessels in the harbor, and his officers went ashore in small boats to look for survivors, but were unable to penetrate the town. They saw heaps of bodies on the wharves, and it is believed that not a single resident of St. Pierre at the moment of the catastrophe escaped. The governor of the colony and his staff colonel and wife were in the city and probably perished.

1,000 WHITE RESIDENTS.

The most reliable estimate places th white population of St. Pierre at one thousand, including half a dozen English men. The British Mail steamer Esk, which arrived at St. Lucia yesterday passed St. Pierre on Thursday night and though five miles out was covered with ashes. She sent a boat as near the shore as possible, but no one was to be seen on shore, only the flames were visable.

A cablegram received yesterday by the State Department at Washington from Point a Pitre says that at 7 o'clock a.m. on the 8th instant, a storm of steam, mud and fire enveloped the city and community, and many lost their lives. Eighteen vessels more than twenty persons escaped were burned and sunk with all on board, including four American ships and the steamer Raraima from Quebec The United States Consul and his family, are reported to be among the victims.

VOLCANO EXPLODED.

Another vessel, the British schooner Ocean Traveler, which arrived at the island of Dominica yesterday, reported that she was opposite to St. Pierre when the volcano of Mount Pelle exploded. Those on board say that a wave of fire swept from it over St. Pierre, destroying both the town and the shipping in the harbor, including a cable ship engaged in repairing the cable. The Ocean Traveler had also a previous experience with a volcano, having been obliged to hasten away from the Island of St. Vincent on May 7, owing to a heavy fall of sand from a volcano in eruption there.

CANADIANS LOST.

A despatch from Halifax gives some information regarding the Roraima, the Quebec Line steamer, which was lost. She was commanded by Capt. George Muggah, who was born in Sydney 44 years ago, and was married to a daughter of Theophilus Spence of Port Morien, C.B. The chief officer of the ship was Robert Morley, a Halifax boy, whose mother lives there yet. A thriving trade was formerly carried on between Halifax and Martinique, but the protective tariff enacted by the French Government about ten years ago put an end to it.

They Father Consumption

Bad coughs, colds and catarrh are responsible for more consumption than is traceable even to heredity. Catarrhozone cures more quickly than ordinary remedies because it is the only antiseptic yet discovered that is volatile enough to reach the root of the trouble in remote parts of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and impregnate every part of the air breathed with its healing, germ-killing vapor. Colds can't last ten minutes, or coughs more than thirty minutes when Catarrhozone is inhaled. It clears nose, throat and air passages at once, stops dropping, headache, and eradicates catarrh from any part of the system. Two months' treatment, $1; trial size 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Further Developments of Cruelty by American Expected

Special to The Times.

Manila, May 12 — Further developments in the charges of cruelty and barbarity brought against the army in connection with the Samar campaign are expected to come to light in the general court-martial which meets at Catbalogan to-day for the trial of Major Edwin F. Flenn, Fifth Infantry, and other officers and men against whom charges have been preferred.

RUSSIA AUSTRIA'S FRIEND

Emperor Francis Joseph Says He will try to Preserve Good Relations

Special to The Times.

Budapest, May 11,— Emperor Francis Joseph's speech from the throne to the Hungarian delegates at the reception to-day declared that the Government would continue its exertions to foster friendly relations with other nations, more especially to preserve an amicable understanding with Russia concerning events in the East, the continuation of which understanding would be a guarantee of the maintenance of order in those countries.

METHUEN'S LEG AMPUTATED!

Strathroy Soldier Writes to His Home Telling the News

Strathroy, May 12 — Edwin Morrow, of this place, is in receipt of an interesting letter from his son, Private Fred. Morrow, of the Canadian Field Hospital Corps on service in South Africa. He states that Lord Methuen had been compelled to submit to the amputation of one of his legs as a result of the wounds received in the battle with Delarey. The cable news announced that Gen. Methuen would be crippled for the remainder of his life, but this is the first intimation that the injured limb had to be removed.

CORONATION FETES AT MADRID

The City Crowded With Visitors to see the King Crowned

Special to the Times.

Madrid, May 12—The opening of coronation week finds the capital thronged with visitors from all parts of Europe and from all of the South American republics. The lavish decorations with which the streets and squares and buildings are blossoming out gives evidence that the populace intends to enjoy the fetes to the utmost. With a score of princes, grand dukes and other persons of high rank from the various courts of Europe, grandees from all over Spain, to say nothing of the many visitors of lesser rank, it will indeed be a gala week for the ancient city of Madrid. The programme of popular and municipal festivities provides for bullfights, horse races, gala performances at the opera, balls and receptions galore. The grand ceremonial programme, as distinguished from that arranged for the entertainment of the masses, was inaugurated to-day with a grand review of fifteen thousand troops at Camp Carabanchel.

The Critical Time of Life

Is between the years of fifty-seven and sixty-two. Nature's power slows down, vitality becomes less, and the progress of decay sets in. A means of extending old age and renewing de-creasing vigor is to take Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone keeps up the appetite, and in the formation of red, vitalising blood, imparts clearness to the tiring brain, force, energy and spirits just when they are needed most. To take Ferrozone regularly means adding from ten to twenty years to life. Large boxes 50c., or six boxes for $2.50, at druggists, or Ormond & Walsh.

PEACE SITUATION IN WEST AFRICA

No Apprehension of a Recurrence of Old Troubles

THE ASHANTIS ARE DESCRIBED.

Said to be: Cruel, Deceitful, Suspicious and Intemperate, but Brave and Clever

London, May 11.—The last report from Coomassie, West Africa, shows that strained inter-tribal relations were less severe, and that there was no apprehension of a recurrence of trouble. Villages are being rebuilt, roads made and cleaned, land disputes settled, and generally speaking, the country is, superficially at least, settling down. But the permanent factors are not altogether reassuring. These are set forth in a despatch by Governor Nathan, dated March last. The real cause of the rising, he points out, was the profound dislike on the part of the chiefs and leading people of Ashanti to British rule. Nor is this dislike unnatural, he says. "We take away from them all they care about, and give them in place conditions of life which have no attractions for them." Peace has no charm for men whose title to respect, and whose recognized power and wealth, are in feats of war. Humane punishments are ridiculous to the Ashanti, besides depriving him of the pleasure he derives from seeing blood flow.

As for industry, personal labor of any kind is beneath his dignity, and there is no compensation for labor in a wage which has to be slowly accumulated before it reaches a sum such as could be obtained in a day's loot of an enemy's town. The only things which European civilization has brought him which he really appreciates are spirits and power. The chiefs like velvet and silks; but native custom confines the wearing of these stuffs to the few. The mass of the people regard the toga — their only wear — as superior when made of native cloth, not of Manchester cotton. "A complicated system of administration, hallowed by antiquity and historic precedents, which our ignorance and policy have alike tendered to break down, and a deep-rooted superstition which we are unable to understand, and from which our presence in the country has detached a proportion of the people, further help to make our rule distasteful to the Ashanti."

WAR AT HART RIVER

Letter from an Ottawa Boy who was at the Battle of Hart River

Ottawa, May 11 — a letter from Lieutenant Graham, of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, dated from a place with an unpronounceable name near Klerksdorp, April 2nd, has been received by his friends. It is the first news by mail giving any details of the fight, and is necessarily short. He says:

"Here I am again safe and sound after a very hard fight and much marching. We went out for General Delarey and we certainly found him, for before we knew 'where we were at,' he had us surrounded and was pumping lead and iron into us from all sides from four large guns and three pom-poms, and a force of three thousand Boers. We managed, however, to fight him off and positively refused to surrender. Our regiment lost three officers and 63 men, while all the rest lost in proportion. We killed 350 Boers, and wounded many others. My friend Ryan was wounded, it being the third time in this campaign."

The writer had to close abruptly to catch an outgoing mail. As far as can be ascertained Lieut. Graham's is the only letter received from the Ottawa boys in the C.M.R. by this latest South African mail.

MRS. SOFFEL GUILTY.

She Acknowledges Her Part in Assisting the Biddles' Escape.

Pittsburg, May 9 — Mrs. Catherine Soffel, attired in a white shirt waist and black skirt, with a modest hat, ungloved and with her face uncovered, entered the crowded court room a few minutes before the District Attorney called up her case for aiding and abetting in the escape of the murderers, Edward and John Biddle, on Jan. 30 from the Allegheny jail, of which her husband was keeper.

The woman took a seat near the wall and watched the proceedings. She appeared to be in excellent health and exhibited no concern. Not once did she show any emotion.

When her name was called Mrs. Soffel advanced to the bar of the court with a firm step and stood there looking fixedly at the judges during the moments required to dispose of this chapter in her career. None of her relatives were present. They had obeyed her wish and stayed away.

Attorneys Scandrett and Moore attempted to keep their client from appearing before the criminal bar in the Quarter Sessions Court by pleading guilty for her, but District Attorney Haymaker said she would have to plead the same as any other criminal.

"Catherine Soffel," he cried in a loud voice.

Then she leisurely arose and stood with her attorneys before Judges Fraser and Elliott, apparently the calmest person in the room. She will receive her sentence Saturday morning. It will probably be two years in the penitentiary.

The two Biddles died from wounds inflicted by their captors. Mrs. Soffel was wounded also.

THE GALLANT FIGHT OF EASTER MORNING

Halifax Man Tells of the Sudden Appearance of the Boers

E SQUADRON'S FINE STAND

Hot Work Amidst a Storm of Screeching Shells and Whistling Bullets

Halifax, May 9—J. G. Harrington, of the C.M.R., writing to his father of the fight on Easter Monday, says: "We were just getting dinner, when on the skyline crowds of mounted men appeared. Nothing was thought of it until whiz, and with a scream, a shell pitched into our lines. Then another, and so on. We rushed out a hundred yards, dismounted, and commenced firing. The Boers circled around us, our guns got on them, and played havoc. Lieut Markham was shot alongside of me. Our corporal was also shot. Bullets were sending up the dust all about one, and the shells were pitching about us. It was hot work, but we beat them off. We lost heavily, 70 casualties, total in column 150. We buried 8 of our poor chaps next morning. Our troops were sent over the field next day, and we found a few dead Boers, and came upon the spot where a troop of E Squadron made a splendid stand. They were cut up badly and the ground about was strewn with broken rifles, bandoliers, bayonets, etc. Our fellows had broken their rifles rather than let them fall into the Boers' hands. Remnants of Boer clothing were on the ground where they had stripped our dead and wounded.

SURROUNDED BY THE BOERS

Toronto, May 9 — Trooper Moody, whose capture by the Boers was related in a letter from Trooper Moon published here Tuesday, was released and returned to the British lines, evidently after Moon had mailed his letter. Moody's mother has received a letter from him, dated at Karlldorp. He says:

"We are moving to-morrow 175 miles up the track. We were shipped here by rail. We have had a big time since coming up here, chasing the Boers."

Moody tells of the big ride, in which the Canadians covered 45 miles between 6 o'clock at night and 3 the next morning. He says a big rain and hail storm came up, and he and others got separated from the main body, and when the weather cleared they found themselves surrounded by Boers, who were all wearing the British uniform and greatcoats. After taking the Canadians' rifles, the Boers ordered them to take off their clothes, and left them to walk 18 miles to camp. They also took from Moody a ring, which was presented to him by a friend before he left Toronto.

PEACE IN SOUTH AFRICA SAID TO BE A CERTAINTY

Expected Result of Boer Conference to be Held on May the 15th or 16th.

Special to The Times.

Lisbon, May 11.—A despatch received here from Delagoa Bay, Portuguese East Africa, says that peace in South Africa is certain to result from the conference of the Boer leaders to be held at Vereeniging Transvaal, May 15. It is said, the despatch continues that peace will be officially proclaimed May 30. Preparations are afoot for general rejoicings.

After having met the burghers in the field and explained to them the British terms, the Boer leaders were to meet at Vereeniging, and reach a final decision on the subject of peace.

A despatch from London dated May 3 said it was officially asserted that after their conference at Vereeniging, the Boer leaders would proceed to Pretoria, and announce to Lord Kitchener their decision in regard to the peace terms they were prepared to accept.

Items of Interest

Vienna, May 9—The Mittags Zeitung learns that negotiations are on between Austria and Russia regarding a partition of Turkey, beginning with the common occupation of Albania and parts of Macedonia. An Austrian commission, the paper says, is now bound for Albania to study the conditions there. The Mittags Zeitung, which is subsidized by the Austrian government, asserts that the statement is accurate, despite anticipated denials.

Berlin, May 9—Reports from Constantinople states that the sultan has been greatly excited by a confidential despatch from the Turkish ambassador at Vienna which stated that Austria is preparing for war. Abdul Hamid, according to representatives, immediately appealed to the kaiser, as his personal friend and chief of the triple alliance, to pacify Austria.

Stratford, May 9.—Mrs. S. J. Ballard, Caledonia street, has received a letter from her son, Pte. Harry Ballard, who was wounded at Hart's River on March 30. The letter, which bears the date of April 4, is as follows:

"My Dear Mother,—Just a short note to you to let you know that we have had one of the fiercest fights of the war. The enemy attempted to rush our camp, but were repulsed with heavy loss. We had a terrible position with 2,500 Boers around us, with three captured British guns. Our squadron formed the rear guard, and we were about a mile from camp when the enemy opened fire. They planted shells right into the camp. We got the order and retired about two miles from camp, and the rest of the regiment remained in camp. There were only the third troop of our squadron and our own troop, the fourth, under Lieut. Carruthers, and a few British troops—in all, about 80 of us—fighting outside of the camp, with the whole of us completely surrounded. The fire was awful. Nearly all our horses were hit, and most of our men.

"Well, mother, I got a wound at last, but it is only a slight one. A bullet struck me in the right shoulder. On my shoulder strap was a badge with Canada' on it. The bullet struck it first, and turned its course—otherwise it would have gone through my throat. As it was, it ran along my shoulder, causing a painful, but not a bad wound. Now, don't worry; I'm all right.

"The enemy advanced steadily until right up to us. Then they rushed and shouted "Hands up!" took us prisoners, marched us off about two miles, and stripped us of our clothes. They took my shirt, shoes, hat, drawers, but left my coat, on account of my wound, and thus sent us back to camp. All this time a fierce fight was raging in the camp, but the enemy were repulsed on all sides. About 200 men fell on our side, about 30 of whom were Canadians. I lost my horse, rifle, saddle, and everything, and my feet are sore from walking without shoes. It was as hot as Paardeberg. The enemy were led by De Wet and De la Rey. They lost about 250 men. We belong to Coxon's column.'

London, May 9.—In his speech yes- Turning to the peace negotiations, Lord Salisbury announced that "Great Britain has not receded one inch from her former position. As to the rights we claimed and the policy we intend to pursue we are exactly where we were." terday Lord Salisbury said the country must not expect the "ashes of past conflicts" to be extinguished immediately. Great Britain has had a great and serious war; but, admitting that misery and suffering had been caused, it "must be recognized that the power, prestige, influence, and magic effort of our great Empire are more potent, more efficient, and more admirable than ever before." "We have suffered," continued the Premier, "but we have greatly won."

INSIDE THE GROCERY

Some Facts Made Known.

It is often thought that grocers really have very little care regarding the food value of the articles they sell, but the real facts are that grocery keepers of the right sort are extremely particular as to what they recommend.

One of the fraternity relates a tale. "The highest priced coffee on the market I introduced to my customers and used myself. I began to have bilious attacks and after a little observation attributed them directly to coffee. Every time I left off drinking it I got better, but I felt the need of a warm drink for breakfast.

Along in '96 a wholesale grocer urged me to put in some Postum Food Coffee in my store, which I did with considerable misgiving, for, at that time, the now famous Postum was not so well known.

He urged me to try it myself, which I did and was disgusted with the flat, tasteless, beverage; so was my wife. I remembered the wholesale grocer said something about following directions carefully, so I took the package and studied it. I at once discovered that we had not boiled it long enough, only three or four minutes, but it must be boiled fifteen minutes at least, so we tried it again, with the result that we got a perfect cup of coffee, a delightful and healthful beverage. I have continued the use of Postum in my home ever since. We use it for breakfast, dinner and supper.

My bilious attacks quietly left and I am free from them altogether. I began to explain to my customers something of the value of Postum Coffee and now have a very large trade on it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A STUBBORN FIGHT WITH STRONG FORCE OF BOERS

Relief Party Found Grabbe Heavily Engaged With a Boer Force of 1,200

Cape Town, May 11.—In writing of the arduous work of troops in clearing Cape Colony of rebels, a correspondent says—"A badly-needed halt was called until daybreak, when the contract was made with Col. Crabbe. The latter was anxious about Major Crafton's ill-fated convoy, and went out to pick him up, asking Capper to remain at Reinfontein, and he would send for him if he wanted help. Almost immediately afterwards a despatch came back from Crabbe reporting Crafton's convoy burnt, and his own column heavily engaged, and a request that Capper and Lund would come to his help at once. The two columns promptly moved out, and came to Crabbie at the critical moment for he was heavily engaged by fully 1,200 of the enemy. The three columns conjointly repulsed the attack after a very stubborn fight, and the enemy retired north. Crabbie's casualties were heavy, as the casualty list will have told you.

CONCERTED SWEEP.

"On February 17 a concerted sweep of the country from Beaufort west to the blockhouse line by Williston began. The force engaged consisted of three separate bodies of about 600 men each, each of these being subdivided into two columns of 300. The stretch of country they had to cover was sixty miles wide, and the columns had to plough six furrows 200 miles long, with cross cuts into the gaps of country, between the furrows.

"That the enemy had come south again was seen in evidence, for shipping began the first day out. The second day out Col. B. Doran's column surprised a Boer laager, and captured Hugo and Van Heerden, and set the rest off at a run which they will remember for some time to come. The fugitives fell in with Pyper's commando two days later, just as Pyper fell in with Capper. After a temporary stand Pyper cleared, and the chase began again, Capper driving him on to Crabbie, who considerably hustled him, while Lord C. Bentinck's Scouts completed the demoralization, and the commando fled in disorder northwards. Capper's column struck the Zac River, which he worked up without incident until Williston was reached on February 27. The result of the drive was: Malan driven across the railway to the east at Nelspoort J. J. Smith, the two Pypers, Wessels and Van Reenen driven north of the blockhouse line."

New French Warship

Special to the Times.

Paris, May 11 — The armored cruiser Amiral Aube was launched at St. Nazaire to-day with interesting ceremonies and in the presence of a large crowd of spectators. The vessel is a sister ship of the Conde, recently launched at Lauriont. She is the last of the armored cruisers provided for in the shipbuilding programme of 1896. The Amiral Aube will be ready for commission in June, 1903. Her total cost is estimated at nearly $5,000,000.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL

The Montreal Star says: What would Parliament be without the Trent Valley Canal? It may start nowhere and run to a place of the same name. It may be more useful to the local fisherman than to the shipper, and to the politician than to both; but it links us with the distant past, and will perpetuate our memory into the far future. When we take up the dusty records of dead and gone Parliaments, we can always find something familiar by leafing them over until we come to the annual discussion of the Trent Valley Canal; and when Canada shall have grown so that Parliament will sit at Winnipeg in order to get nearer the centre of population, there will still be the yearly vote for the unfinished Trent Valley Canal. It can never run dry—politically—unless some Government arises which is foolish enough to get to work and dig it out.

Our contemporary is evidently not up in geography or it would know that the completion of the Trent Valley Canal would mean a very great increase to the trade of Montreal. No railway is able to compete with water transportation. In a given period of time all the railways running eastward from Chicago carried five million bushels of grain while twenty-seven millions of bushels passed over the Erie Canal. When it is remembered that the latter is a mere ditch as compared with the Trent Canal, and is several hundreds of miles larger, there is no room for argument against the great Canadian waterway. We are surprised that the Star has not more sense than to print such stuff.

The Pope has granted the Catholics throughout the British Empire a dispensation allowing them to eat meat on Friday, June 27th, and on Saturday, June 28th—which is a fast day, the vigil of the feast of St. Peter and St. Paul—to enable them to take part in the rejoicings on the occasion of the Coronation. If the Catholics of Canada avail themselves of this dispensation, they will be giving financial proof of their loyalty, considering the present state of the meat market.

Caught in a Stampede.

TWO years ago, when the cowboys of north-eastern Arizona came together to find out who was the "best man" in various ways, James Evans won the steer-tying championship by roping, throwing and tying a vicious steer in twenty-four seconds. But in a recent round-up the champion did a more remarkable thing, by which, says the Kansas City "Star," he saved his own and another man's life.

While he and some companions were camping for the night on a high table-land, which ended a few miles away in an abrupt drop of two hundred feet, a storm swept through the mountains. Made nervous by the lightning, the herd of fifteen hundred cattle stampeded in the direction of the precipice. Evans and his men mounted hurriedly and, circling to the front of the maddened cattle, tried with whoops and revolver-shots to turn them back.

In the dense blackness of the night Evans's horse missed his footing and went down in a heap, one leg in a gopher-hole. The horse of a cowboy named Davis, running close behind, stumbled over Evans's horse, and Davis, too, came to earth and lay still, unconscious.

Fifty yards away came the herd, and a short flash of lightning showed Evans the situation. The swiftly moving sea of cattle reached one hundred yards each way. Unable to arouse Davis, and never thinking of leaving his disabled comrade, Evans took the only chance of saving both. He emptied his own revolver and his companion's into the center of the herd, cutting a breach in the front of the mass. Then, throwing the inanimate form of Davis over his shoulder, he awaited his opportunity.

As one of the leaders brushed by, Evans, with one movement, put the body of Davis across the shoulders of the steer, and mounted, also. Vainly the animal leaped, bucked and side-jumped. With his legs wrapped tightly around the body of his mount, Evans drove his spurs deep in, and held himself and Davis in place.

The steer, wild with rage, agony and fright, rapidly left the herd in the rear, and, veering to the right in a furious gallop, carried his riders out of danger. Then Evans rolled off the back of his strange rescuer, and a half-hour later, when his cowboys turned the herd at the rim of the canyon, and rode back to look for the foreman and Davis, they found them, both unconscious. The weary steer, with his sides covered with blood, lay exhausted a short distance away.

The outfit ordered a medal for Evans, and the steer has been pensioned for life on the best alfalfa in the valley.

A Revolutionary Age.

Soulless corporations, heartless coquettes and conscienceless rascals of various sorts we have had with us now these many years, and it looks very much now as if a kind of providence was about to even things up a little by providing us with such useful contrivances as wireless telegraphy, heatless light, smokeless powder, boneless shad and seedless oranges. If some genius will rise up now and give us a breed of biteless dogs and stingless mosquitoes, together with some loseless umbrellas and spendless cash, we shall all be happy and content.—"Leslie's Weekly."

The Monk's Knowledge of Women.

AN interesting story comes from the French Alps of Dauphiny relating the futile efforts of the Princess of Croy, who desired to enter the monastery of the Grande Chartreuse, a habitation from which women visitors are rigidly excluded.

The story runs that the Princess dressed herself in boy's clothes and accompanied her husband to the institution. The gates were opened to them, and the Prince sent his card to the father superior, with a line to the effect that he was accompanied by a friend.

Just as they were about to make the round of the building the word was received that the father would like to see the Prince and "his friend." Going upstairs they were received by the smiling monk, who cordially invited them to join him in an appetizing luncheon. The Princess endeavored to make the best of the situation, but she was not put any the more at her ease by the fact that the monk kept gazing sharply at her.

At last he exclaimed suddenly: "Catch it, young man!" at the same time throwing at her a large pear. The Princess was startled, and, thrown completely off her guard, made a motion to grab up her skirt, the absence of which she overlooked in her confusion.

Then the father stopped smiling and said with great gravity:

"I beg your pardon, madam, but ladies are not allowed in the monastery. I must ask you to wait outside until the Prince has finished his inspection."

And outside she had to go, the reverend father bowing her from the room with most elaborate politeness.

The Democracy of Children.

ONE amusing trait in children is their unconscious democracy. They are nearly always democratic when permitted any latitude. The desire for playmates levels sense of caste, if any exists. On a street through which I often pass there is a coterie of children who blend with the most thorough harmony, although they are of quite different social strata. One of the boys is a "smart" young gentleman in knickerbockers, always well groomed; another is a little Italian; a third, the thin, restless, wide awake son of a housekeeper. One of the little girls is a negress, with her woolly hair standing out from her head in thin curved-up tails. She is quite a belle in this "mixed" company.—Harper's "Bazar."

Light Hogs.

A good many farmers in eastern Ontario are still adhering to the very foolish policy of marketing hogs that are too light in weight, and quite unsuitable for packing purposes. The Geo. Matthews Co., Limited, report that during the month of January their receipts of hogs graded as follows:—Selects, 1,398; light, 1,840; light fats, 690; heavy fats, 17; sows, 40; stags, 6; cripples, 21; stores, 123; a total of 4,154 hogs, of which only 1,398, or about 33 per cent., were suitable for the manufacture of first-class export bacon. If the trade in Canadian bacon is to be increased or even maintained, at its present volume, it is absolutely necessary that only hogs of proper weight and quality be sent to the packing houses.

A Test For Good Butter.

The good housewife who said, "The way to test good butter is to smell it," was surely an expert judge of butter. The fact is that a really good judge of butter seldom tastes it but depends rather upon the senses of smell and sight. The dealer who really knows and deals in good butter can at any time when he is testing a crock or roll of butter, be seen to very carefully pass it in review before his olfactory nerve, and to break it and note the appearance of the broken surface.

The true flavor of butter can be quickly tested in the entirety of a package in this manner, while, if the sense of taste alone were depended upon and the package was not of even quality, the fact might go unnoticed. The quantity of salt in the butter can, of course, only be determined by tasting it. The surface exposed when a package or sample of butter is broken should exhibit what is known as a good grain. That means that it should have a clearly defined granular surface, similar to that found on the broken surface of cast iron of good quality. Do not fail to apply these tests when passing judgment on the quality of butter. Their careful observance and a little practice will make you an expert.—Michigan Farmer.

Clover For Egg Producing.

Experience has demonstrated the value of clover for egg producing time and again. Clover has just the material in it to form egg shell, and hence it becomes an essential part of every ration fed to the chickens. It may not be generally understood that there are nearly thirty pounds of lime contained in each thousand pounds of clover. The chickens fed daily with clover will consequently prove better egg layers than those denied it. The clover hay should be given to chickens in winter in quantities sufficient to satisfy them, and to make them eat more it is desirable sometimes to prepare it in various ways. Cook and chop it up, and mix it with meal or other articles. This will sometimes induce the hens to consume a great amount of clover each day. Cut up into short lengths and mixed with warm mash, and then fed only as fast as the chickens will clean it up each day, is probably the most economical way to feed the clover. Some cut the second crop of clover and place it in the poultry yard for the chickens to eat and scratch over at pleasure. This of itself is all right, but it is rather wasteful. More than half the clover will be lost, and the chickens do not actually eat much more than the leaves. The stalks contain most of the lime, and these should be prepared so the chickens will consume them. Of all foods that can be raised on a farm for poultry, clover is not only the best, but probably the cheapest, and a field of it is as essential to success as a pasture field is necessary to the success of dairying.—Annie C. Webster, in Massachusetts Ploughman.

Just What You Ask For.

Outside the drug store—the store of J. Milhau's Son, at No. 183 Broadway—you may read the announcement at the head of this column, "We give you just what you ask for."

We are glad to seize upon this occasion to pay a tribute to this motto, and, incidentally, to point out a dishonest and very common practice among merchants—that of substituting one article for another.

One business man devotes all his energy, his money and his time to building up the reputation of a certain article. He enables the retailer to make a large profit, and he spends his money that customers may be plentiful.

When a customer asks for the article in question it is dishonest to say to him, as many do:—

"Don't buy that. We have something else just as good and much cheaper."

If the merchant has something good and cheap of his own, let him sell it to his customers by all means. But let him not steal the trade of a man whose energy helps to build up his business. Let him not divert to his own pocket all of the profit which he ought to in honesty share with another.

There are wares that are made enormously profitable to the retailer simply because men push their business with intelligence and perseverance. It is ungrateful as well as dishonest for the sake of a little extra profit to cut into the legitimate business of the advertising manufacturer.

Incidentally, the public, as well as the storekeeper and the manufacturer, are interested in this question of substituting one article for another.

That which is represented as "just as good" is usually not just as good, but very far from it.

If a man has spent a million dollars building up the reputation of a certain article, it is to his advantage to keep up the quality of the material which enters into the manufacture of that article. His profit is large if he is honestly treated, and it would be suicide for him to use inferior material for the sake of a little extra money.

The man who makes up an imitation article and announces it as "just as good" has no such sum at stake. He has invested nothing. He has no valuable name to ruin, and it is to his interest to make the "just as good" article just as cheap as he can make it.

The buyer should remember these facts and put his confidence in that retailer who, like the man quoted at the head of this article, gives to the customer just what he asks for, treats the wholesaler honestly, and shows gratitude for the energy which builds up a successful business and makes the retailer prosperous.—From The New York Journal, Issued by the Association of American Advertisers.

"Pain in the head and back" is a form of suffering with which so many women are familiar. Often this pain is associated with nervousness, sleeplessness and loss of appetite. The cause of such suffering is generally to be traced to derangement of the womanly function, or a diseased condition of the delicate womanly organs.

In such cases the action of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is marvelous in the prompt relief of pain and permanent cure of disease. It regulates the periodic function, dries disagreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It cures when all other means have been tried in vain.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

In a little over thirty years Dr. Pierce, assisted by his staff of nearly a score of physicians, has cured more than half a million women.

"I was a great sufferer for six years and doctored all the time with a number of different physicians, but did not receive any benefit," writes Mrs. George Sogden, of 641 Bonda Street, Saginaw (South), Mich. "One day as I was reading a paper I saw your advertisement, and, although I had given up all hope of ever getting better, thought I would write to you. When I received your letter, telling me what to do, I commenced to take your 'Favorite Prescription' and follow your advice. I have taken ten bottles in all, also five vials of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' Am now regular after having missed two years and suffered with pain in the head and back. I was so nervous, could not eat or sleep. Now I thank you for my recovery."

Jeanne de Villeneuve has been appointed secretary of the French consulate in New York. This, it is believed, is the first appointment of a woman in the consular service. Mlle. Villeneuve is only twenty-five years old, and belongs to an old family of Provence.

McKeesport, Pennsylvania, has a bookless library. The fine stone building was erected with the $50,000 Andrew Carnegie donated, but the entire donation was used to build the library, as the directors expected Mr. Carnegie would give more. He has declined to do this, and the board has no money to buy books.

The mountains end a greater number of lives every year than is generally supposed. An official report states that in 1901, in Switzerland alone, accidents to mountain-climbers amounted to 112, and that death occurred in all of these. This figure is double that of 1900, and represents the highest total that has hitherto been recorded.

At Uelzen, in Luneberg, the authorities have passed a by-law which is more popular with the fair than the sterner sex. Husbands must be home by eleven o'clock. A fine equal to ten shillings is the penalty for infringing this regulation, half of which goes to the person—presumably the wife—who brings and proves the accusation.

One of the eccentricities of the late Duke of Portland was to subscribe for all the ordinary newspapers and magazines of the day and have them wholebound in beautiful crushed morocco coats of many colors. Each of these volumes he put in a perfectly fitting oak box lined with white velvet and fitted with a patent Bramah lock and duplicate keys. The cost of each volume worked out at about £40.

As the result of studies on New Jersey mosquitoes last summer, Professor John B. Smith of Rutgers College says that not only will the insects travel long distances from their breeding-place, but on favorable evenings large swarms rise and are carried during the night by winds. The direction in which they go is often seaward. Swarms have been met fifteen miles from the shore, and they are common five miles from shore. Migration of mosquitoes with the aid of the winds Professor Smith regards as of much importance, and as rendering the control of the mosquito nuisance much more difficult than has been supposed.

Miss Florence K. Jewell, a wealthy young Jewess, who attained notoriety in August, 1899, by marrying Lobengula's son, while he was on exhibition at the Kaffir Kraal at Earl's Court, London, has applied for a divorce on the ground of her husband's cruelty and misconduct. She testified that he had given her black eyes, and stabbed her with an assegai, when the judge, Sir Francis Jeune, broke in with: "That was what you expected in marrying a savage, was it not?" The judge reserved judgment, as he doubted whether it could be shown that Lobengula's domicile was in England. He said, too, that he only behaved like a savage, and that the petitioner had insisted on marrying him, and now saw the result of it.

The old proverb about honor among thieves has had a staggering blow in St. Louis. The thieves were certain members of the city council and a number of street railway men, and it was because neither side had any confidence in the honor of the other that a remarkable case of bribery was most amusingly disclosed. The railway men desired certain franchises, and put up one hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars as a corruption fund. They were afraid, however, to pay it to the councilmen until the council had voted as they wished. The corrupt councilmen, on their part, would not vote until they had the money. By a compromise, therefore, the fund was placed in a safety-deposit box which had two keys, one of which was held by each party. Neither could open the box without the cooperation of the other. The councilmen voted as they had agreed, and it was through the quarrel over their attempt to get the funds that the whole matter became public.

The widespread interest in the dairy industry is shown by the returns just received by Superintendent Creelman of the new dairy institute meetings in western Ontario. Fourteen gatherings were held, and there was an aggregate attendance of 2,200. Expert instruction was given on the feeding and care of the dairy cow, and on the care, handling and manufacturing of milk. A series of twelve meetings are now in progress in eastern Ontario. Mr. Creelman, as Secretary of the Fruit Growers' Association, has also completed arrangements for 47 fruit institute meetings, covering the fruit sections of the Province, to begin on Friday and last until the middle of April. These will include [illegible] demonstrations.

NEW SPRING NOVELTIES JUST RECEIVED

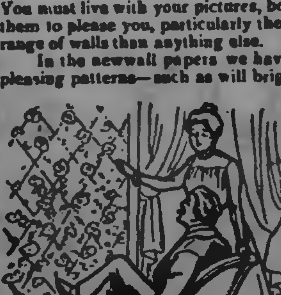
PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE,

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices.

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.



WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the decoration scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end. Our wall papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD
WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

My lady, the chatelaine, wove in beautiful designs and embroideries the tapestries from which we have borrowed some beautiful ideas in our wall paper.

My lady of 1902 will find many things in our stock to her liking.

OUR PRICES ARE FROM 10 TO 40 PER CENT. CHEAPER THAN ELSEWHERE.

The Antiquity of Trousers.

WOMAN'S ever-changing fashions in dress have afforded the men much amusement, and have given the satirical writers any amount of material for their pens. It is clearly a case of people living in glass houses and throwing stones. Men's fashions have passed through quite as many changes, and it is doubtful if the petticoat itself has had a more varied history than have those grim articles trousers. "To the eye of vulgar Logic," said Ruskin, "what is man? An omnivorous biped that wears Breeches." There has never been a Petticoat Bible, yet in the year 1560 an edition of the Scriptures was printed at Geneva known as the "Breeches Bible." The name arose from an unusual rendering of Genesis iii. 7. Adam and Eve, instead of making themselves aprons of fig-leaves, made themselves "breeches." There is no record of Eve wearing petticoats, yet the first man is reported to have worn breeches. The ancients wore breeches —divided skirts probably—on horseback only, resuming their flowing draperies when they dismounted. Among the Romans, trousers, which were called braccae, were worn only by the soldiers who were exposed to cold northern climates. They were homemade, to judge from the pictures, and not in the least stylish. Among the Greeks such garments were confined to slaves, the swells reserving the chiton for themselves. The first faint foreshadowing of trousers as we now see them was in the time of Richard I. of England. In Spain, as well as in the Low Countries, trunk hose, mercilessly slashed, stuffed and decorated, were the smart things among the elegants. The story is related of a luckless courtier who, having seated himself on a chair upon which was a projecting nail, was suddenly obliged to rise to pay his devoirs to his sovereign. Instantly several pecks of dry wheat dust gushed out of his "galloons," and the unhappy courtier stood there diminished to a spindle and cutting a very sorry figure. During the reign of Charles I. of England, when Vandyck's influence was being felt, breeches became of uniform width, open at the knee, where they were fringed or bordered with lace and fastened with ribbons. Trousers comes from Old French: trousse, a kind of hose, from trousse, a truss. Pantaloons owes its origin to St. Pantaleone, a patron saint of the Venetians. His name was commonly received at baptism by the Venetians, and was by them transferred to this garment, which they very much affected. The term "sansculotte" originated in France. It meant, properly speaking, a fellow without breeches, and was used as a term of derision by the aristocratical party for the popular party at the beginning of the Revolution, but was later assumed by the patriots as a title of honor. Another term, one which has offended our ears and our sensibilities, is pants. But good old Oliver Wendell Holmes disposes of it with short shrift: "the things named pants—a word not made for gentlemen, but gents." Even among the poets trousers have not been considered too prosaic to be put into song. The genial Tom Moore leaves behind him a charming little Impromptu inspired by a pair of breeches. It seems that the bard was obliged upon one occasion to leave a very pleasant party on account of not having a pair of evening trousers in which to dress for dinner. He scratched upon a fly-leaf the following:

Between Adam and me the great difference is,
Though a paradise each has been forced to resign,
That he never wore breeches till turn'd out of his,
While, for want of my breeches, I'm banished from mine.

A Toast to the Bachelor.

A TOAST is offered to the bachelor. Not to every bachelor, of course. Not all are toastworthy. There are plenty who ought to have married, but were too timid, distrustful, lazy, self-indulgent, or incompetent. There are those who were dazzled in their youth by the spangles and gewgaws of life, and stretched out for them hands too eager to detect the worthlessness of what they got. There are those who were unfit to marry. Toast them in moderation, because they didn't, provided they will give bonds to continue single. There are those who broke hearts, partly from faithlessness, partly from over-much calculation, partly from mere lack of grit. No, we may not toast all bachelors. So much the more toast those whom we may! Maintainers of the unmaintained, bearers of burdens dropped by other men, providers for the unprovided for, succorers of the distressed, defenders of the fatherless, bulwarks of the widow! Oh, what a good, an indispensable man is that bachelor who can make a bigger living than he needs, and is always ready to share his surplus; who counsels his nephews and fortifies them with timely remittances; who surprises his nieces with gowns and opportune hats; who has no serious troubles of his own, and is ready always to shoulder such troubles as others bring to him! The trouble with Benedict is that his hostages are given. There are claims upon his heart, his time, his income. He must consider obligations and proprieties. He is a mortgaged man, though he may be ever so good a one. There is no use of spending much affection on Benedict, for he can get it at home, and he can't repay a large investment in kind without incurring domestic hazards. But a good bachelor, what a great property he is, and how inestimably valuable to those who own him! It is a great calling to be a good bachelor, and about one bachelor in a hundred makes a fairly satisfactory demonstration that it is his.—"Harper's Weekly."

An Expensive Luxury.

Mr. O'Toole (entering doctor's office) —Shure, doctor, Oi think Oi have appindicitis. Dr. Smith—Nonsense, man! You haven't money enough for that.— "Judge."

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leafy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

The report had been put in circulation some time since, however, that I had lost my fortune, and—without that, which was his God—I was worthless in his eyes. He has let me go —to find a wealthier victim I imagine."

It was terrible to witness the pallor of Daisy's face as she listened—she spoke no word, but as the last sentences fell from Lillian Ruthven's lips, she threw up her white hands and sank back in the carriage in a dead faint.

Hetty turned the horse's head homeward at once, but Daisy regained consciousness before they reached there. Hetty could not refuse the pleading way in which she begged her not to mention what had transpired, assuring her it was only the heat of the sun and the overpowering odor of the roses that had caused her to swoon, but, though Hetty kept her own counsel, she believed differently.

In a vague way the thought came to her that Daisy's trouble seemed somehow connected with Miss Ruthven; still she had no glimmer of the actual truth—she attributed it to a far different cause.

Once before, when Daisy had seen Miss Ruthven talking to Aleck, Hetty had observed that she turned deadly white. Now she jumped to a strange conclusion, and that was that Daisy was suffering from the keenest pangs of jealousy; yes, that was the secret that was destroying poor Daisy's life, she thought—she was bitterly jealous of poor Lillian Ruthven.

Every incident went to prove this —there had been no quarrel between Aleck and Daisy until Miss Ruthven had come on the scene. Daisy could not bear to hear Miss Ruthven's name mentioned.

And Hetty, who imagined herself very clever, wondered at her father's stupidity in not finding this out before.

It takes a woman to ferret out a secret every time, she told herself.

The next afternoon Miss Ruthven called to see if Daisy was better, and that was the first intimation the family had that there had been anything amiss.

Hetty watched with furtive eyes to see what reason, if any, Daisy had for jealousy.

She saw Aleck greet Miss Ruthven in the most friendly manner—he bowed his handsome head low over the little white hand extended to him, and smiled kindly down into the lovely girlish face.

He took her out and showed her the roses in the garden and the choice flowers in the conservatory, and she came back with her hands full of the scarlet blooms, and a cluster of them on her breast.

"Aleck and I have been talking over old times," she said, turning toward Daisy with a charming smile. "Did he never tell you that we were playfellows when we were little children—and so fond of each other that people smiled as we passed them by with our arms twined about each other, and called us 'little lovers!' Ah, those were happy days! Why, people went so far as to predict that we would surely marry each other when we grew older."

Daisy opened her blue eyes wide in great surprise.

"I never even heard of it," she said, "Aleck never mentioned it to me."

Lillian turned a pair of reproachful eyes upon him.

"He had simply forgotten me—that is all," she said, demurely.

"As though any one, having known you, could forget you," replied Aleck, gallantly. "Do not, I beg of you, accuse me of anything so unkind."

"How does it happen, dear, that you never told me you knew Lillian Ruthven when you were children, Aleck?" asked Daisy, when they found themselves alone together.

"I thought so little about it, that no doubt it did not recur to me; the playmates of our children drift out of our memory so quickly."

"But she says you were lovers," persisted Daisy.

He laughed aloud.

"What is the love of a boy or girl?" he replied. "Do not talk nonsense, my dear Daisy."

"If you had seen Lillian in all the beauty of her girlhood, and had not seen me—do—do—you think you could have cared for her, Aleck?" she asked, with pitiful wistfulness.

"Perhaps," he answered carelessly; "for she looks strikingly like you, Daisy."

She turned away hastily, for she felt a deadly faintness at her heart. Ah, she knew why—she knew why.

"Has that likeness between you never occurred to you, Daisy?" he asked.

But there was no answer — Daisy had suddenly quitted the room.

She stole out of the house and into the grounds—the very air seemed to stifle her. Oh, how chill the night winds blew, but they were not more chill than her heart.

She hurried across the rose terrace, through the grounds to the very edge of the park beyond, to where a little brook flowed through the grounds, and flung herself beside it.

In the distance she could hear the plaintive songs of a pair of caged nightingales in a neighboring villa. And, lying face downward, sobbing her heart out in the lone wood, the haunting words of the old song came back to her with the plaintive notes of the nightingales:

"Oh, cruel- like birds! They sing for spite.
They sing for hate, they sing for doom;
They'll sing through death who sing through night,
They'll sing and sting me in the tomb—
The nightingales, the nightingales!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

To Err is Human.

"He had once loved Lillian Ruthven; he might have married her but for me."

Those were the words that burned themselves into Daisy's very soul.

Brushing all the traces of tears from her face by laying it in the cool waters of the brook, Daisy mechanically returned to the house.

On the porch she met Hetty.

"Why, where have you been, Daisy?" she cried. "Your dress is bedraggled with dew, and it lies heavy on your golden hair; even your hands are cold and chill."

Daisy drew her hands away from her sister's clasp like a petulant child.

"I have been merely walking through the grounds," she said. "Is there anything so strange about that?"

"Why, yes, at this time of the night," declared Hetty.

The Origin of the Loving Cup.

THE loving cup is very common nowadays, and we see it everywhere. But many years ago there were no such things as these queer three handled affairs, and the following story tells how they first happened to be made:

Once upon a time centuries before us, there lived a great and powerful king, who was extremely fond of hunting. He was one day in a forest pursuing a stag, but it was so fleet and clever that it eluded him and his band of followers, and led them entirely out of their way. After wandering about in a hopeless fashion they finally came upon a little hut, and the king himself dismounted and rapped smartly upon the door.

A young girl answered his knock, and soon showed the men the right path. The king was about to go, when he saw a well near the house, and at the sight of the clear water immediately felt thirsty, and, going back, asked the girl for a drink. Without hesitation she went into the house and came out with an earthen jug filled with the well water. But, instead of offering his royal majesty the handle, as most people would do, she held that herself, and handed him the cup the wrong way.

The king said nothing, thanked the girl, and he and his band soon found their way out of the wood.

But when he reached his palace he determined to reward the girl for giving him the water and at the same time to teach her a lesson in politeness.

Sending to his jeweler, he bade him make a silver cup, with two handles, and deliver it to the young girl, without a word as to whence it came.

Perhaps a month after this the king again hunted in that same forest, sought the hut and asked the girl for another drink of water.

This time she entered the house and came out with a beautiful silver cup, full of the sparkling water. "Now," thought the king, "she has certainly learned a lesson." But never was he more mistaken, for the poor, ignorant girl took a handle in each hand, and for the second time offered her liege lord nothing save the side of the cup.

The king rode away deeply perplexed. He resolved to teach the girl the polite way to hand a cup without directly rebuking her, and many were the hours he spent in cudgelling his brains for some way in which to do it. At last a bright idea struck him, and he sent for his jeweler a second time. "Make me," said he to the man, "a silver cup, heavily chased, and with my royal crest, and put three handles on it." The jeweler, much surprised—for remember, no such thing had ever been heard of up to this time—did as he was told, and soon the mug was finished. As before, the king had it privately sent to the girl who lived in the little hut.

One day not long after this for the third time he rode into that forest, and, taking the now well-known path, soon reached the cottage. Dismounting, he knocked at the door and asked humbly for a drink of clear water.

The girl immediately came out with the beautiful three-handled cup, and, taking two of the handles in her hands, she offered him the third.

So the king rode away well pleased with his strategy and, reaching home, ordered three-handled cups to be made in every sort of ware, and they became so popular that we now have them in all our shops and stores.

An Unfortunate Experiment.

SOME years ago there lived in Turin a physician noted far and wide as a specialist of brain diseases. Men and women came to him from the ends of the earth. With the development of fortune, for his fees were in proportion to his prominence, he cultivated a pleasing taste for those precious relics of antiquity in which millionaires alone are privileged to indulge. He had in his library a collection of costly objects of art. The fame of his treasures was loud in the world's ears with the note of his skill. One day a rich American banker came to consult him about his wife, a confirmed kleptomaniac. His life was a burden to him, following her from store to store, continually guarding her reputation against the encroachment of her fingers. Though it had cost him thousands, his wife knew nothing, suspected nothing of her own weakness. Nor should she ever know if he could prevent it.

"If I brought her here to consult you as a physician," said the afflicted husband, "I fear she would suspect something and it would kill her. If you will permit it I'll bring her to call on you as a collector of antiquities. Do not be disconcerted, however, if during the interview you find her pilfering, slipping your relics and coins into her umbrella or pockets. That is the ailment, and, of course, whatever she takes will be returned to you at once. My references are So and So, bankers." This with much dignity and the production of documents.

The physician made the appointment, and next day the couple came. The doctor brought out his treasures, wonderful coins, antique jewelry, on which he descanted with much graceful learning. Every now and then the lady slipped into her pocket or dropped into her parasol a coin, a jewel, a vase, and as she did so her husband winked at the doctor to draw attention to her theft. When the physician finally gave the signal that he had learned all he required, she had accumulated the rarest of his possessions.

"I'll be back within an hour," said the Chicago banker, "with the things my wife has taken. Poor, poor girl!" he burst out. "Doctor, my fortune, my life are yours if you can but cure her."

Two hours passed, then three, then the interval lengthened to five. The physician, rather alarmed, sent his servant to the American's hotel. No persons of the name were staying there. The police were called in, descriptions given, detectives went forth. They identified the culprits, who had time to make their escape. They were London pickpockets, two thieves whose characters and depredations were notorious all over England.

"Why do you call the fast bicycle rider a scorcher?" "Because he goes at a hot pace, makes pedestrians boiling mad, warms up the police, gets roasted in court, and then thinks the whole thing is a burning shame."—"Tit-Bits."

Curious Bits of News.

It is somewhat humbling to our pride to know that the greatest speed attained under sail is that of the flying proa of Pacific savages. Until the advent of the turbine motor these tiny craft could outsail any steamer afloat, even the modern German liners. Their lowest estimated speed is twenty knots, and many travelers credit them with more.

Since March 1 the torch in the hand of the Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World, in New York harbor, has not been lighted. This does not mean that the statue has lost its significance as the symbol and personification of the broad political and industrial freedom which is enjoyed in the United States. It simply means that no satisfactory method of lighting the torch has been devised, and that the Lighthouse Board does not think it worth while to continue an inadequate electric lamp. The other harbor lights serve all the needs of the mariners, and the statue itself, without its own light, will show more plainly in the darkness than before.

The reputation of Germany as a country where life is regulated as much as possible in accordance with the behests of science is borne out by the regulations of the German military authorities concerning the marching and physical training of troops. The "physiology of marching" has recently been the subject of careful investigation, and the results obtained are taken advantage of for the benefit of the German army. Among the conclusions reached is that during continuous heavy marching the rations supplied are not sufficient to replace the waste of carbohydrates, and that a day's rest is required after every three days' marching, to enable the body to recover its normal power.

In typewriting 500 letters you waste one hour in writing "Dear Sir" and "Yours very truly." Now, the total annual number of letters sent through the post all over the world is 3,000,000,000. Of course this is not all commercial correspondence, nor is it all typewritten, but for the purpose of having some statistical starting-point it will be assumed that it is. To write "Dear Sir" and "Yours very truly" for this number of letters would take one typist 18,000,000 hours, allowing 300 working days to the year, about 6,700 years. To translate this into an approximation of its money value, allowing $10 as the salary of the typist and eight hours as the average day's work, the cost would be $3,250,000.

The Wiarton (Ont.) "Echo" records a remarkable instance of affection between dumb brutes. A Mr. Robertson lost a team of horses through the ice on Colpoy's Bay. It appears that the gentleman mentioned is the owner of a dog—an ordinary collie dog—that was passionately fond of the animals drowned, and they were in constant companionship whenever possible. After the accident occurred, and when the horses were delivered from their watery graves and pulled out on the ice, the large crowd that had gathered quickly dispersed, the horses being apparently "left alone in their glory." It transpired later on, however, that the faithful dog, in his grief for his lost companions, refused to leave the spot where they were, and was tenderly licking the animals' heads and giving vent to his sorrow in various other ways. Efforts were made to console the bereaved canine and to attract him from the spot, but he went not, and refused to be comforted. He remained, it is said, near the scene of the accident till the bay was completely enveloped in darkness. The poor brute then solemnly and sadly wended his way to his master's home.

The other night Thomas J. White, a Brooklyn butcher, found it necessary to remain in his store until after midnight, to finish making up his accounts for the week. Miss Maria Jacobs, his fiancee, was waiting for him to escort her to her home. White took six hundred dollars from the cash drawer and placed it in a wallet, which he put in his pocket. He was just about to don his coat when he was seized with a fit and fell to the floor. Miss Jacobs tried to raise him up, but failed, so she ran out of the store for assistance. The first persons she met were two frowsy-looking fellows, who readily responded to her appeal for help. They rushed into the store, and while one of them lifted the prostrate White the other lifted the wallet out of the butcher's pocket and fled. Miss Jacobs gave pursuit. The other stranger promptly dropped White, ran to the money-drawer, and, finding no money there, looked about him for something of value to seize. There were juicy steaks and toothsome chops, but he selected a big bologna sausage and ran out with the booty. The first stranger, in the meantime, had succeeded in eluding Miss Jacobs and getting away. When she returned to the store the second thief had also disappeared. A policeman was finally called to hunt for the robbers, and a physician to attend White. The doctor succeeded in bringing White out of his fit, but the policeman failed to bring back the thieves or the money.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to its columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published.—Ed. Times.]

—The County Council will meet on the third Tuesday in June.

—The town is fairly flooded with commercial travellers these days.

—Saturday's market was fairly well attended, but prices were high.

—Houses are scarce in Peterborough, and as a result rents have increased.

—We have 50 good-sized second hand packing cases for sale cheap at The Times Bookstore.

—The prices of Chemong Park lots have increased on account of the prospect of a street railway being built.

—Want a nice hammock? New lot, of the very best make, just in, at Times Bookstore.

—The frosts of Friday night did considerable damage to the crops in various parts of the country.

The employees of the Wm. Hamilton Foundry will have Saturday afternoon off during the summer months.

—New map of the County of Peterborough, mounted on rollers, only $2.50. Times Bookstore.

—Victoria Park is once more assuming its beautiful summer appearance, under the faithful care of Mr. Cooney.

—The rummage sale, in aid of All Saint's Church, which has been going on for some days, closed on Saturday.

—We see the Dominion Supplementary Estimates make no provision for the proposed dredging of the Otonabee River.

—Advertising bears about the same relation to a business that steam does to an engine. Everybody reads The Times.

—Look out for the Jarvis Street Baptist choir concert in St. Paul's Church on Monday evening. Secure your tickets at once.

—The proposal to level off the graves in the old Catholic burial grounds on Murray street, is certainly a "stiff proposition.

—FOR SALE—New Al-Vista Panoramic camera. Cost $45.00. Will sell at a great bargain. Apply, Tate Optical Co., 428 George street.

—The Cordage Company's works are now in full operation, the electric energy to drive the machinery being supplied by the Auburn Power Company.

—The rumor that the Sovereign Bank is to open a branch in Peterborough has been renewed. The Times was told on Saturday by a gentleman who is supposed to know, that a branch will be opened here in a short time.

—A Vankoughnet, of Lindsay, was sent [illegible] to [illegible] this [illegible] morning by P. M. Dumble for stealing lumber from premises owned by Thos. Williams.

—The Grand Central Hotel is rapidly being remodelled and made into flats or houses. We understand that every suite of rooms in the building has been rented.

—While at play a little four year old daughter of Mr. T. J. Parker, of Ashburnham, had the misfortune to fall and break her arm at the elbow. She is being attended by Dr. Brown, and is now doing as well as can be expected.

—There is no truth whatever in the rumor that our popular fellow townsman Mr. Harry LeBrun, is getting himself into condition in order to complete in the 100 yard dash at the Olympic Sunday School pic-nic, next month.

—Port Hope people propose to build a fine covered rink for hockey and curling and plans have been prepared. The hockey ice will be 180x70 feet, and the curling sheet 150x30 feet. Seating accommodation for 1200 persons will be provided.

—The Olympics will excurt to Stony Lake on the first Thursday in June. Already preparations are being made for the event, which promises to be more enjoyable than ever. Already over sixty members have signed their intention of taking in the event.

—Mr. J. W. Crossley, Reeve of King township, a brother of Rev. D. O. Crossley, of the Charlotte-st. Methodist church and Rev. N. T. Crossley, the well known evangelist, died Saturday morning at his home in King. The funeral will be held this afternoon. Rev. Mr. Crossley left on Saturday.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Events Under This Head Transpiring in and around Peterborough.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to furnish the paper with items of a personal and social nature either by phone or in writing.—Ed. Times.]

—Mr. John Craig, Lakefield attended the market as usual on Saturday.

—Mr. Isaac Richardson, the well known Millbrook drover, was in town Saturday.

—Mr. J. J. Preston, of Bethany, Conservative candidate for East Durham, was in town on Saturday.

—Messrs. Reg Adams and Willis Garrow, Machinists at the Wm. Hamilton Foundry, left for Toronto this morning to secure employment.

—Judge Weller and Messrs. Harry Le Brun and Ed. Brown have returned from a weeks' stay at Preston Springs, greatly benefitted in health.

—Miss Barlee, who is soon to leave for England, was the guest at a farewell tea given in her honor by friends at the Golf club house. Appropriate toasts were proposed and honored.

Saturday's Market

There was a fair attendance at Saturday's market, the following prices prevailing: Eggs, 12c; chickens, 50c. to 75c.; butter, 18 to 20c; rhubarb, 3 bunches for 10c; potatoes, 75c. to 80c. per bag.

Sneak Thieves at Work

A few nights ago a sneak thief entered the summer kitchen or Mr. R. E. McKee's residence, Charlotte St., and helped himself. Everything disappeared except a pail of lard and some pickles. This is not the only case of the kind. On Saturday night some garden implements were reported missing from a house on Brock street.

Valuable Advice to Mothers

If your child comes in from play coughing or showing evidences of an approaching attack of grippe, sore throat or sickness of any kind, first thing get out your bottle of Nerviline. Rub the chest and neck with Nerviline, and give internal doses of ten drops of Nerviline in sweetened water every two hours. This will prevent any serious trouble. No liniment or pain reliever equals Polson's Nerviline, which is a necessity in every household. Large bottles cost only 25c.

THE STREET RAILWAY

Arrangements Being Made to Start Work in a Week or So

As intimated in Saturday's Times, work on the Street Railway will begin as soon as material and men can be secured. Mr John Campbell, of the National Construction Company, an expert on work of this kind, has arrived in town, and is looking over the ground. He says that the rails will require to be re-bonded, but very little other work will be necessary. He hopes to have his material here this week, when actual work will begin.

The Company will secure power from one of the local electrical concerns until their own power house, which they propose to build, is constructed.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Eloquent Anniversary Services Preached Yesterday

Yesterday the anniversary services of St. Paul's Church were conducted, eloquent and impressive sermons being preached morning and evening by Rev. Dr. Parsons, of Toronto.

In the morning the subject of the discourse was, Matthew 20th chapter and 28th verse, and in the evening the text was 1st Corinthians, second chapter and 16th verse.

The congregations were large on both occasions, special music being furnished. In the evening a solo by Mrs. H. Johnston, Millbrook, was rendered with effect. The collections were for the reduction of the debt on the church.

General - Sports.

The Boys Brigade baseball team of All Saint's Church, defeated the Shamrock's on the Edison field, Saturday afternoon.

The Choir boys of All Saint's defeated the boys of St. Andrew's Guild in a game of baseball, Saturday afternoon.

The T.A.S. and the Y.M.C.A. Lacrosse teams will come to-gether in a match at the T.A.S. pic-nic at Lakefield, on the 24th.

DROWNED AT HASTINGS

Richard King of the Government Dredge Loses His Life

Richard King, an employee of the Government dredge, now working in the Hastings River, while boarding the craft on Thursday night, lost his footing on the gang plank, in the dark, and was drowned.

His companion, who had preceded him on board, heard the splash, but the unfortunate man must have sunk at once, and was doubtless carried away with the current. The fire alarm was sounded, and the villagers turned out with grappling irons, but were unable to recover the body.

The deceased leaves a wife and family and owned a small farm about four or five miles out of the village.

THE CONCERT TO-NIGHT

A Splendid Programme Provided for the Musical Events

The sacred concert to be given in St. Paul's church this evening by the splendid choir of the Jarvis street Baptist church, Toronto, under the auspices of the choir of St. Paul's, is worthy of the attention and patronage of all our music-loving citizens. The visitors will arrive this evening, by special train, and will return at the conclusion of the entertainment. The local choir are to be heartily commended for their enterprise and pluck in bringing this magnificent musical organization to Peterborough, and it is to be hoped that the church will be packed to the doors. The following is the programme:

CHURCH NOTES

—At St. Luke's Church yesterday the Rector, Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, preached on "The Divine Farewells" in the morning, and in the evening on "The Judgement Seat of Christ," both discourses being eloquent and impressive.

—At Murray-st. Church last night Rev. Mr. Bastow preached a special sermon to young men. There was a large congregation, and an earnest, thoughtful and impressive discourse.

—In the absence of Rev. Mr. Crossley, who left to attend the funeral of his brother, the pulpit of the Charlotte-st. church was filled yesterday by Rev. Mr. Wilson, of George-st., in the morning, and Rev. Mr. Yule in the evening.

—At All Saint's, the Rector preached on "Paul and Titus" in the morning and on "The Death of Moses, or this Life's Incompleteness," in the evening. There was large congregations at both services.

A Christian Temperance Union Mission was opened yesterday for the first time in the Union Labour Hall, Water street. This Mission is free for all, especially those not identified with any church. In the forenoon, Sunday School was held from 10 to 11 o'clock and Bible Study from 11 to 12 o'clock. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock a temperance address was delivered by Mr. Holland. In the evening, Mission Service at 7 o'clock was conducted by Mr. W. A. Redfern, superintendent of the Mission.

HEART RENDING SCENES OF DESOLATION DESTRUCTION, AND FAMINE AT ST. PIERRE

30,000 Perish, and 50.000 are in Need--King Edward Sends Gift of Five Thousand Dollars---Lava Still Pouring Out.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, May 12.—Several steamers, including the Government vessel Rubis, started from here yesterday for St. Pierre, carrying relief, also a quantity of firewood, petroleum, and quicklime, for use in the cremation of the bodies of the victims of the terrible volcanic outbreak. Large quantities of disinfectants and stocks of clothing for the refugees were also shipped to St. Pierre. The refugees had as a rule assembled at Le Carbet and Caz Piloto (not far from St. Pierre), and it is reported over a thousand of them have died since the fearful stream of lava poured down Mont Pelee.

SEA COVERED WITH DEBRIS.

The sea for miles round was covered with the wreckage of the vessels sunk off St. Pierre, and ashore only a few trees, all bent seaward by the force of the volcanic shower, were left standing.

When nearing St. Pierre the Rubis met a number of tugs towing lighters filled with refugees.

The heat from the smoking, lava covered ruins at St. Pierre was suffocating, and the stench from the corpsestrown streets was awful. Only a few walls were standing. The report that the hospital clock was found intact with its hands stopped at 7.50 was confirmed, as was the statement that the offices of the cable company had entirely disappeared.

On all sides were found portions of corpses, which were gathered up by the soldiers and gendarmes and burned on one of the public squares.

4,000 REFUGEES SAVED.

Nearly four thousand of the refugees from the vicinity of the village of Le Precheur, a suburban to the north of St. Pierre, were rescued by the French cruiser Suchet and the cable repair ship Pouyer-Quertier, and were brought here. As the result of his inspection, the commander of the Suchet, said that crevasses and valleys are constantly forming in the northern portion of the island, where the land is in a state of perpetual change. Fortunately, that part of the country was evacuated in good time by the inhabitants, who fled to Fort de France.

LAVA STILL POURING OUT.

Lava continues to stream down the mountain side, accompanied by terrific thunder and lightning.

The dearth of provisions is beginning to be felt throughout the island. Numerous families are completely ruined, and even shelterless, while the means at the disposal of the authorities are much inadequate to cope with the distress.

Communication is practically cut off from all the surrounding islands, except by stray vessels, which are seized upon by the inhabitants to flee from Martinique.

KING EDWARD'S GIFT.

Paris May 12.—King Edward has sent 25,000 francs ($5,000) as his contribution to the fund being raised for the relief of the sufferers from the Martinique disaster.

The Czar has telegraphed to President Loubet, expressing the sincere sympathy of himself and the Czarina, who share with France the sorrow caused by the terrible West Indian catastrophe.

50,000 ARE HOMELESS.

Washington, May 12.—Secretary Hay has received the following cablegram, dated May 11, from United States Consul Ayme at Gaudaloupe, who went to Fort de France, Martinique, by instructions from this Government:

"The disaster is complete, the city wiped out. Colonel Prentis and his family are dead. Governor says 30,000 have perished, 50,000 are homeless and hungry. He suggests that the Red Cross be asked to send codfish, flour, beans rice salt meats, and biscuit as quickly as possible. Visits of war vessels valuable."

The Navy Department this morning was informed of the departure of the cruiser Cincinnati from San Domingo city for Martinique.

STORY OF THE RUINS.

A landing has at last been made at St. Pierre, and the work of exploring the ruins of the annihilated city has begun. Those who have come back here from the city report that the streets and all the neighborhood are now encumbered with heaps upon heaps of dead bodies in all directions.

AN APPALLING SIGHT

All the dead thus far seen were stark naked, their clothing apparetnly having burned from their bodies like so much tinder, while they themselves were roasted to death. In the vast majority of instances fires seem to have been the sole cause of death. Great numbers of bodies have been burst asunder by the terrible heat, and lie disemboweled. In many instances the faces of the victims are quite calm, as though they were stricken down instantly where they stood without a moment's warning, or with hardly time to appreciate for an instant the deadly peril they were in. Others have stamped on their faces an expression of indescribable terror.

The entire city and the neighborhood all about it recks with a horrible odor of burned flesh. In one instance an entire family of nine persons were found, all tightly locked in each other's arms, and the bodies in a horrible state of decomposition.

CREMATION OF THE DEAD.

Almost the first thing done was to make preparations for the cremation of the dead. Fatigue parties of soldiers built enormous pyres of wood and branches of trees, upon which they heaped the dead bodies by scores, and burned them as rapidly as possible. To facilitate the combustion and to destroy as far as possible the awful odor of burning flesh which came from them, the impromptu crematories were heavily soaked with coal tar and petroleum.

The total number of dead is now estimated at fully 30,000. The disaster itself took place within thirty seconds, and in that half minute the vast majority of all those people were killed.

MOUNDS OF RUINS.

All the small hills around Le Carbet and in the Township of Le Precheur are crowded with fugitives. They number about 5,000. They are being brought away gradually, and meanwhile provisions are being sent to them.

Few of the victims will ever be recognized, so great is the mutilation and distoration. Searching parties found 2,000 charred corpses on the site of the cathedral. All appear to have been asphyxiated before they were burned. The bodies of some persons were found as they died, in the act of performing their daily avocations.

DANGER OF PLAGUE.

Unless wholesale cremation, as intended, is carried out, there will be an epidemic.

GOVERNOR'S FAMILY LOST.

Among the families of St. Pierre which have entirely disappeared are those of the Governor of Martinique, including Mme. Mouttet, his wife, Lt.-Col. Gerbault, and his wife. The Governor escaped to Morne Rouge, a suburb.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

One captain of one of the vessels lost in the harbor alone survives. In relating his escape, he says that the only way in which he managed to save his life was by repeatedly diving. He was an expert swimmer and was able to remain under water for a considerable length of time. He returned again and again to the surface, barely exposing his face for a moment or two to the terrible heat, and thus getting enought breath for another long dive.

THREATENINGS OF DISASTER

On May 3 last Mont Pelee began to throw out dense clouds of smoke. Midnight the same day flames, accompanied with rumbling noises, lighted the sky, causing widespread terror. Hot ashes covered the whole city quarter of St. Pierre an inch thick on May 4 and while falling made Mont Pelle invisible.

On Monday, May 5, a stream of boiling lava burst through the top of the crater, plunged into the valley of the River Blanche, overwhelming the Guerin sugar works, and killing 23 workpeople and the son of the proprietor. As the lava rushed into the sea the water receded three hundred feet all along the coast. Returning with great strength, a big wave covered the whole sea front of St. Pierre, but doing little damage ashore or afloat.

Terrible detonations, heard hundreds of miles northward, followed at short intervals and continued at night. The electric lights failed, but the town was lighted up by flashes of flames from the mountain. Terror-stricken inhabitants rushed for the hills, screaming and wailing.

FATAL REASSURANCE.

A commission was appointed by the Government to investigate the outbreak, and it returned a reassuring report on Wednesday evening. But about 8 o'clock on Thursday morning a shower of fire rushed down on St. Pierre and the coast from Le Carbet (which had a population of 6,000) to Le Precheur (which had a population of 4,000) burning up everything in its path.

RUIN DESCENDS.

The inhabitants of Fort de France were panic-stricken the morning of the disaster, when the sky suddenly blackened until it was as dark as at midnight. The sea shrank back 30 yards, but rain began to fall, while gravel, the size of walnuts, poured down to the town. This lasted about 15 minutes, and then the town began to resume its normal aspect.

The 460 survivors who were brought here yesterday from the vicinity of St. Pierre by the French cable repair ship Pouyer Quertier came from the town of Le Precheur were surrounded on all sides by flowing lava. They were nearly roasted to death, and expected momentarily to be engulfed.

ERUPTION CONTINUES.

The latest reports received here showed that lava continues to pour down the slopes of the mountain, slowly engulfing the whole north side of the island, while fresh crevasses are continually opening.

THE RODDAM'S ESCAPE.

Captain Whatter of the Roddam reports that having just cast anchor off St. Pierre at 8 a.m. in fine weather, succeeding an awful thunderstorm during the night, he was talking to the ship's agent, Joseph Plissono, who was in a boat alongside, when he saw a tremendous cloud of smoke and cinders rushing with terrific rapidity over the town and port, completely, in an instant, enveloping the former in a sheet of flame and raining fire on board. The agent had just time to climb on board when his boat disappeared. Several of the crew of the Roddam were quickly scorched to death. By superhuman efforts, having steam up, the cable was slipped, and the steamer backed away from the shore, and nine hours later managed to reach Castries. Ten of the Roddam's men were lying dead, contorted and burned out of human semblance, among the black cinders which covered the ship's deck to a depth of six inches. Two more of the crew have since died.

The survivors of the Roddam's crew were loud in their praises of the heroic conduct of their captain in steering his vessel out of danger with his own hands, which were badly burned by the rain of fire which kept falling on the ship for miles after she got under way. When the Quebec liner Roroaima sank Captain Muggah of the latter waved his hand in farewell to the Roddam as his vessel exploded.

BRITISH WARSHIPS SENT.

London, May 12.—The Colonial Office received another cable despatch from Governor Llwellyn Saturday afternoon, dated St. Lucia, in which he said that, he would leave St. Louis at once for St. Vincent. He adds:

"The eruption continues. The break in the cable also continues. I again request that a man-of-war be sent."

The warship Indefatigable has been ordered to St. Pierre to render all possible assistance.

HOW ST. VINCENT SUFFERED.

St. Lucia, B.W.I., May 12.—The entire northern end of the British Island of St. Vincent has been laid waste by volcanic eruption.

The British lieutenant in charge of the garrison here reports that both large craters on St. Vincent are emitting enormous volumes of smoke, lava, and hot ashes.

The northern end of the island is cut off from the southern end by an enormous stream of lava, which is destroying everything in its path.

Small craters are bursting everywhere.

No vessel can approach the northern shore of the island on account of the intense heat and the steam which is coming from all sides.

It is estimated now that fully 200 lives have been lost on the Island of St. Vincent. It is thought that when details are received the loss of life will prove to be much heavier.

MOCK MARRIAGES BIND 200

Purim Ball Prank Results Seriously for a Hundred Couples

Yonkers, May 13.—There is consternation in Jewish circles in this city over the serious outcome of the mock marriage of fully 100 couples of the 200 that attended the recent Purim ball at McCann's Hall, this city. In the course of the ball somebody suggested that each man select a partner and go through a mock marriage. The suggestion pleased many young persons, and fully 200, some of them said to have been already married, went through the Jewish marriage ceremony, including the placing of a ring on the finger of the bride.

Several days later a New York rabbi informed several of the young persons that according to the Hebraic law every one of the marriages was valid. The matter then ceased to be a joke. Several other rabbis were consulted, and every one of them pronounced the marriages valid, because the mockers had not only used rings, but had so faithfully repeated the marriage pledges that it met all the requirements of the Jewish religion.

It is said that fully three-fourths of the young persons concerned will apply to the courts to have the marriages annulled, while the remainder will abide by the result. A majority of those thus married are residents of this city, and the rest are residents of Manhattan, Brooklyn and nearly every town in Westchester county.

Many of our Boys and Girls are Suffering This Month From the After-Effects of Winter Grippe

Wise Parents Provide

Paine's Celery Compound

For Their Loved Ones

The Wondrous Medicine Quickly Expells All Germ Poisons From the Blood and Fortifies the Weak and Rundown System

A busy city physician, enjoying a large annual income, remarked the other day that a host of young people—boys and girls—were suffering this month from the after-effects of winter grippe.

Dear parents, have any of your children suffered from an attack of the cruel monster grippe during the past winter months? Are your boys and girls irritable, feverish, pale or weak? Have they cold and clammy limbs? Is the blood watery, impure or sluggish? Is the appetite poor and digestion weak? Has the rose tint of health faded from the cheeks? If any of these conditions are noted, be assured the dregs of deadly grippe are implanted in the system.

If your children are not blithesome, happy, boisterous and strong in May, their condition calls for prompt action on your part. Their future—health and physical happiness or suffering and early death—is in your hands dear parents, and you alone are responsible to heaven and the community of which you form a part.

When winter grippe has implanted seeds of virulent diseases, the first and most important work is to expel from the blood every trace of poison. This is always successfully accomplished by the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

This marvellous medicine after purifying the foul and stagnant blood, acts as a nerve food. It builds up the nervous system and nourishes all the bodily tissues.

Boys and girls with such a start in life as they always receive from Paine's Celery Compound, grow up as sturdy as forest oaks; they revel in strength and true life; they are fair to behold; they make the men and women most needed by our country. Do your part this month, dear parents, with promptness and honesty, and rest assured Paine's Celery Compound will not fail in its grand work of health building.

KILLED IN FORLORN HOPE

Result of Agitation to Re-Establish Kingdom of Poland

Special to The Times.

Warsaw, May 13.—Demonstrations in favor of a re-establishment of the kingdom of Poland occurred yesterday. The crowd became so noisy it was discharged and dispersed by a body of Cossacks, who rode over the people, flogging them with knouts. Six persons were killed and 225 injured. Over 800 persons were arrested, including a number of children under ten years of age.

REVIEW OF RUSSIAN TROOPS.

Czar's Safety Carefully Insured During the Manoeuvres

Special to The Times.

St. Petersburg, May 13.—The Czar held a grand review this morning. The force was composed of fifty-four battalions of infantry, thirty-seven squadrons of cavalry, fourteen companies of Cossacks and artillery, with 126 guns making a total of 60,000 troops. The Grand Dukke Vladimir Alexandrovitch, the Czar's brother, was in command. The most elaborate precautions were taken to insure the Czar's safety en route to and during the review. During the actual manoeuvres the public was kept a quarter of a mile distant.

DRINK MIXERS MEET

The Wine Clerks of Canada and United States Gather Together

Special to The Times.

Louisville, Ky., May 12.—Louisville is this week entertaining some 300 men who have done much to make Kentucky whisky famous. They are the delegates to the annual meeting of the National Bartenders' Association, and all parts of the United States and Canada are represented among them. The session began today in the Elks' Hall, and will continue through the week. Among other matters to receive attention it is probable that the meeting will take action to sever the alliance between the Bartenders' Union and the Waiters' organization.

The Story of Morning Tiredness

is told by impure blood, poor digestion, sluggish liver and tired nerves. It is a warning of very serious trouble ahead, and should prompt sensible people to take a bracing tonic like Ferrozone, an energetic invigorant and rebuilder. Ferrozone will give you a sharp appetite, promote good digestion and sound sleep; it will feed and energize the enfeebled organs, strengthen the nerve and vital forces and regulate the heart. Ferrozone changes that tired feeling into vigor, strength and ambition, and does it quickly. Remember the name, and insist on having only Ferrozone; it's the best tonic made. Price 50c. per box, or two boxes for $2.50, at druggists, or Ormond & Walsh.

A MARVELOUS CANNON

Norwegian Physicist Claims Gun will Throw Projectile 90 Miles

Berlin, May 13.—Prof. K. Bierkland, the Norwegian, physicist, has been in Berlin demonstrating before experts the powers of an electro-magnetic cannon which theoretically can throw a projectile weighing two tons a distance of ninety miles. The principle has not been made public, but it is understood that the projectile is thrown from an ordinary cast iron tube, heavily wrapped with copper wire. No explosive gases result from the discharges.

A firm of artillery manufacturers has offered to purchase the invention for immediate exploitation. Many regard the new gun as liable to bring on a greater revolution in fighting material than the discovery of gunpowder.

A DESERVING INSTITUTION

The Highfields Consumption Sanatorium Proving a Success

The Times has been requested by Dr. Playter, Secretary, to publish the following:

It is claimed in its last report that Highfields Consumption Sanitorium is the freest, and so far as means permit, the most accessible charitable institution in Toronto. It receives neither city nor government aid, and in the two years since it was opened has had in residents from various parts of the Province and treated for many months patients without receiving any remuneration whatever from them, while for many others their friends paid only from $1.50 to $3.00 or $4.00 a week for months together. A few have been able to pay for the benefits received. $8.00 to $12.00 per week.

Furthermore, nearly all the patients were far advanced in the second or third stage of the disease and many of them for this reason had been refused admission to several institutions. Yet several of these, greatly prostrated and emaciated, have recovered and been able to resume their usual occupation.

The medical attendance, including almost constand medical supervision, over the patients in the institution, except in a few special cases, is all free.

Since the opening of the institution, when there was a surplus, no general appeal or effort to collect money has been made.

Now, however, a few hundreds of dollars are much needed for patients not able to pay in full or in part, and, also, particularly for some tents.

Contributions sent to the Treasurer, Lt. Col. Mason, or the President, Robert Darling, Esq., will be thankfully received and acknowledged.

Married in Toronto

A wedding of considerable local interest took place at the residence of Major W. J. Ramsay, Moss Park Place, Toronto, on Friday last, when Miss Lila Florence Smith, second daughter of Mr. William Smith, Principal of the Central school, Peterborough, was united in marriage to Mr. Edwin Carter Crompton, of Brantford. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. H. M. Parsons, of Toronto. The bride was well known in Peterborough, and her friends will join in wishing her many years of happiness.

CANADIANS WITH RIMINGTON'S COLUMN

Interesting Particulars of the Movements of This Division

HOW THE BRITISH TOMMY ACTS

When Under Fire—Humorous Incidents in the South African War

Montreal, May 11.—Trooper A. C. Loosemore, a Montreal boy in South Africa, writes, under date of Heilbron, Orange River Colony.

Since writing you, we have been on trek continuously with Rimington's column, having been attached to it for a time, and a nice time he has given us, even going so far as to take our water cart and bottles away from us, to make us more mobile, I suppose, though where his argument against the water bottle comes in is hard to see. He gave us one or two good fights though, to make up for his conduct in other ways. One day, after a rapid advance, we charged and took a Boer laager, capturing eight of their waggons and other stuff.

I was glad of the chance to see a laager, but there was nothing particular about it, with the exception of the extreme dirt, everything being filthy, including the prisoners we took.

I said to one of them: "Your chaps don't keep things as clean as we do.' And he said: 'That is the colour o a different horse," getting our old proverb a bit mixed. On our return to camp the Boers gave our rear guard a lively time of it, pressing them closely all the way in. I had no business to be with the rear guard at all, as it was composed of Tommies—that is, Mounted Infantry—but I had fallen out and ridden over to an orchard on the flank, and while busily making myself sick on green peaches and pears I had let most of the column go past, and was brought back to a realization of my position by heavy rifle fire breaking out, not a hundred miles away, so I rode cautiously out of the orchard and found Johnnie Boer in possession of ridge within a thousand yards of where I was, the Mounted Infantry peppering them from some kraals just back of the farm house, I being between the two. The M. I. had been firing over the orchard, and when the firing began I could hear the bullets whistling over head; so, as I was very much closer to them than I was to the Boers, I at once made toward them. They ceased fire until I had galloped up to them. The Boers, of course, let me have it, but their range was much too short to do any damage. I did not show much too soon, as shortly after I joined them the M. I.'s retired from where they were to a ridge about a quarter of a mile further back, as the Boers would have given me a gallop for it if I had delayed in the orchard much longer.

Being with them, I thought I'd stay with the M. I.'s, and see the fun before going to my own outfit, so I handed my horse over, and lay down in the firing line. I had been there about five minutes when I heard the following amusing conversation from two Tommies next me:

"Wot range 'ave ye got up, Bill?"

"I'm a givin' 'em 1400, 'Arry."

"Wot are we firin' at?"

"Oh, I'm just a droppin' 'em over that there ridge."

'Arry then fired, and cut the barb wire on a fence about 30 yards in front of him clean in two. The humour of the situation was increased by the fact that the Boers were supplying our ambulance with work from a farm house not 800 yards away. These two are exceptions, of course, as the M. I.'s are splendid fellows with their rifles.

We made some curious captures on this trek, too. On one of the waggons in the Boer laager we found two tame monkeys, curious little chaps, full of fun and quite pretty, light gray, with little black faces. Damant's Horse appointed them first favourites, and they got quite spoiled. Sometimes they ride on the ammunition-horses, but generally prefer the kit waggons. One of the men made them a small tent out of a couple of gunnery sacks, and one of the transport niggers always pitches it as soon as the waggons go into laager, and it is the first thing the monkeys look for on coming into camp. The Inniskilling Dragoons have a large baboon, which is quite a trooper. He has an old plug to ride all his own, and the reveille has no sooner sounded every morning than the baboon will make for the horse line and sit down beside his horse until some one looses it for him. There is only a halter round the horse's neck of course and he follows the troop without any guidance from Mr. Monkey, but it is quite funny to see him in the ranks. He won't allow any one to touch his charge.

I made a capture of my own on this trek. I had gone into an old barn to put a match to it, when a little fox-terrier came at me, making a great fuss, but I remonstrated with her, and she quieted down, and retired into a big bin at the end of the barn, where I followed her in order to turn her out before firing the place. I found her with a family of four beautiful little pups, so I just put them into my haversack and brought them into camp, carrying the little lady on my saddle in front of me. They live in the quartermaster's tent and get quite spoiled by the attention they get.

Upon getting back to the line from this trek we were very pleased to be told that we would in future act independently and just go easy for a few weeks, and re-fit, to be ready for the hard work we would get upon Colonel Damant's return. He seems to have deceived the doctors, and hopes to be back with his column shortly.

Major Campbell took us out for a run "on his own" the day before yesterday. We travelled all the night before, and rushed the camp of about 500 Boers just as the dawn was breaking, taking over 60 prisoners and putting about that number hors de combat. The M. I.'s did most of the work on this occasion. Coming back was a very tiring business, as we were all very sleepy and tired, some of the fellows getting nasty falls from sleeping in the saddle. Some of the prisoners had complete suits of khaki on, which they had taken from Kitchener's Scouts, whom they cut up with Wilson's column a few days previously. One of them had a khaki uniform bandolier of explosive bullets, and was identified by one of our men as a fellow who had shot men with their hands up, so he was put out of business at surprise this morning. He looked an awful villian, and, remembering 14th December, I was not at all sorry for him.

AN AMERICAN VIEW OF THE BOER WAR

The United States Have Gone as far as They Dare Go

A RESOLUTION OF SYMPATHY

This is All That Uncle Sam is Able to Do for the Fighting Burghers

Washington, May 11—The Tribune says: The friends of the Boers in the United States have lacked no opportunity to express their sympathy, and to appeal to congress and the administration for efforts in behalf of this unfortunate people. The president and the state department always have been accessible, and committees of congress always have been open to evidence and argument. A subcommittee of the foreign affairs committee received a large delegation recently, which made impassioned arguments and presented voluminous petitions. The desire of these people does not go farther than the passage of a resolution of sympathy by congress and its formal communication to Great Britain.

It is not unlikely that these applicants represent the secret or open feeling of a majority of the people of the United States. It may be said that congress is the natural channel through which the feeling of the people should have expression. Like resolutions of sympathy with other struggling nations have passed one or both houses without serious international complications. The formal communication of such a resolution to the British Government would be a different matter. It might not be resented, because Great Britain is not in a position to resent any act of the United States, however unfriendly in appearance. But it would create needless irritation without doing the least good, and would disturb relations with the only power in Europe willing to be sincerely friendly with the United States.

There is a proper and formal way for a neutral nation to show its good feeling towards one engaged in a war. We have taken that way to show our sympathy for the Boers. This government has tendered its good offices to both belligerents to bring about a good understanding and peace. They were refused by Great Britain and there the matter ended. The final evidence that we have gone as far as possible in this matter is that none of the continental powers, all of which are more friendly to the Boers and more unfriendly to Great Britain than we—has gone as far as we, with the single exception of little Holland.

LECTURE AND CONCERT

Ven Archdeacon Casey Speaks in the T. A. S Hall Last Night

In the assembly hall of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society last night a large crowd gathered for the concert and lecture in aid of the Junior Lacrosse Team of the T.A.S. The programme opened with an instrumental duet by the Misses McCabe and Doherty, following which were vocal solos by Mr John King and Miss Nellie Hallihan, and a comic song by Mr. Wm. Parle. Venerable Archdeacon Casey then took the platform and in an eloquent and attractive lecture laid before the audience the work of the Catholic Church in the cause of individual liberty, civil, political and religious. He compared the condition of society in the pagan empires of Greece and Rome to the later social conditions, after the church had begun to influence the minds of the people, and showed in a clear and forcible manner that the basis of all the laws of liberty and justice possessed by the peoples of the world to-day is the influence and example of the Catholic Church. The speaker dwelt on the gradual change from the terrible injustic and evil of slavery and the law and degraded position of women among pagan nations to the individual free dom and equality of men and the elevation and honors of women reigning among those guided by the teaching of the church. He was listened to with close attention by all present, and at the conclusion was tendered a unanimous and hearty vote of thanks by the audience. Mr. Jos. Maher and Mrs. Thos. Begley, the mover and seconder, spoke a few words in congratulation, and praise of the lecture, and short speeches were also made by Rev. Dr. O'Brien and Rev. Father O'Brien. It is hoped that Ven. Archdeacon Casey will be heard in Peterborough more frequently in the future, the enthusiasm of his reception last evening amply proving that his popularity among his former parishioners has in no way lessened. The lecture was followed by an instrumental duet by the Misses Doris, comic recitations by Mr. George Lynch and vocal solos by Mr. John King, Mr. W. J. Primeau and Mr. Thos Begley. Mr. Fred Dorscher, occupied the chair during the evening.

The senior Lacrosse Team of the T.A.S. is now well started on the work of this season, and the junior team is now being got into shape. It was for the purpose of giving them a good start that the concert of last evening was arranged. They will shortly be in a position to give a good account of themselves among the junior lacrosse players of the district.

A FORTUNE IN

Malt Breakfast Food

This is not a declaration implying that the Manufacturers of Malt Breakfast Food have a vast fortune in this popular breakfast food, nor does it mean that the grocers and dealers who sell it expect fortune profits from its sale.

A well known business man in Montreal, who for years suffered from indigestion and stomach troubles, declares emphatically he has found a fortune in Malt Breakfast Food. He says:

"For several years indigestion and general stomach troubles frequently were so severe as to keep me away from business, and, as a consequence, many matters to which I was obliged to give personal attention, were neglected, often causing me [illegible]. My doctor recommended the use of Malt Breakfast Food. It proved a happy change of diet; it perfectly agreed with my weak stomach, strengthened my digestion, and soon rid me of my ailments. By the regular use of Malt Breakfast Food I am hale and hearty, and never miss a day from my business. Malt Breakfast Food has proved a fortune to me from a financial and physical point of view. I advise all to give it a trial." Ask your grocer.

TOBACCO, LIQUOR AND DRUGS

Dr. McTaggart's Tobacco remedy removes all desire for the weed in a few weeks. A vegetable medicine, and only requires touching the tongue with it occasionally. Price $2.

Simply marvellous are the results from taking his remedy for the liquor, morphine and other drug habits. Is a safe and inexpensive home treatment; no hypodermic injections; no publicity; no loss of time from business, and a certainty of cure.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Register to-day.

• • • •

Only one day more to get your name on the list, so as to vote.

• • • •

All honest, thinking, intelligent men, who are not mere party hacks, will vote for Stratton.

• • • •

Don't forget to see if you are on the voters' list and if not see that your name is registered.

• • •

Whether the Ross Government stands or falls, Mr. Stratton is the proper man for Peterborough to have in the House.

• • • •

Capt Bernier is probably grateful that the North Pole is in cold storage, else it might become unfit for use, while he waits for the sympathy of the politicians to crystalize into a hard money vote.

• • •

Sessions of parliament during this coronation spring have been mainly gatherings at which the postponement of important measures until a more convenient season have been announced.

• • • •

The Tory organ is doing a lot of jollying these days. For instance, it speaks of electing Major Miller, when it knows that Mr. Stratton's return is only a question of majority—and a big majority at that.

• • • •

The political poets of North Bruce have attacked the candidates, and here is the retort of the Liberal poet to what his Conservative rival produced last week:

On the 29th of May
Is our election day,
Be sure and vote for Bowman,
And not for that old woman. "D.M.J.

• • •

Four years ago the Opera House was used by Mr. Stratton's opponents as a committee room. Such was the "enthusiasm." His opponent was to be elected, sure, and everybody howled for Garvin. But when election day arrived, most of these same people went out and voted for Stratton. History will repeat itself on the present occasion.

New York's Fussy Society.

"ALLOWING for a certain difference in the degree of barbarism," says Sydney Brooks in "Harper's Magazine," "Rome in its decline could alone furnish a parallel to New York's Four Hundred. The American aristocracy has no equal in Europe for ability to turn the simplest sort of diversion into a function, and every function into a ceremony. It is not of them I write, though their passion for incongruous artificialities and the glare in which they live have infected all strata. An exasperated Englishman once described the social atmosphere of Manhattan Island as 'rather fussy,' but that was only in comparison with the English way of doing things. The charm of London hospitality is that there is never the slightest strain put upon either host or guest. The American hostess, like the French hostess, feels that she must be continually 'entertaining' her guest; she considers it a reflection on her hospitality if the guest is left a moment alone; she looks upon it as her duty to be continually providing fresh amusements, and is constantly troubled by doubts as to whether the visitor is really 'enjoying' himself. That is one of the reasons why Americans, after the pampering they get at home, are apt to feel themselves neglected in London, and left out in the cold."

For Farmers.

The fact that last year some crop did not bring good prices is often an indication that this year prices may be high, for the reason that such a crop is liable to be discarded this season for something else. A successful fruit grower once stated that whenever he found his neighbors discarding a crop he invariably selected it for himself, as he expected a scarcity of the crop in market by reason of less land being devoted to it.

STUCK TO IT.

In a school for colored children there was a little boy who would persist in saying "have went." The teacher kept him in one night and said: "Now, while I am out of the room you may write 'have gone' fifty times." When the teacher came back he looked at the boy's paper, and there was "have gone fifty times." On the other side was written: "I have went home."

Rough Riders attach much value to their Colonel's good word. Perhaps, however, it never proved more useful to any of them than it did to the man who recently wrote to thank President Roosevelt for a testimonial of good conduct, sent at the former's request. After expressing his thanks he explained the "little difficulty" in which he had found himself as follows:

"I shot a lady in the eye. The lady ... I did not mean to shoot the lady. I was shooting at my wife."—New York

To Detect Bad Notes.

There will be no doubt an unusually large number of visitors in England this summer in connection with the coronation festivities. The recent announcement that several hundred £5 notes have been lately stopped by the Bank of England and other London banks will be specially interesting to them, and may cause some feelings of apprehension, for the visitor, unused to handling the English money, is naturally more easily victimized than those accustomed to it. The Daily Express gives some interesting information as to how you may tell whether your £5 notes are genuine or forged.

Chief cashiers in banks can tell at a glance, for in the freemasonry of the profession they have learned some of the secret marks by which the Bank of England absolutely safeguards itself against deception.

The whole of the secret marks, some dozen in all, are only known to the man whose signature appears on each note.

The best test for the average man to apply is the rough and ready one of looking at the water-mark. If that is very plain, when held up to the light or laid down on a table, you may be pretty certain that your fiver is genuine.

The water-mark of the Bank of England is one of those things that no forger has yet been able to imitate successfully.

Now for the forged notes. If you would detect them look out for any of the following defects, which were discovered after long examination by the chief cashier of a West End business house:—

(1) The water-mark is very light, and not made in the note.

(2) The paper is slightly greasy to the touch.

(3) The printing is lighter; the ink not as black as it should be. This is particularly noticeable in the medallion of Britannia in the top left-hand corner.

(4) The top and bottom of the note are very ragged, as if carried in the pocket, and nicked as if torn away, while the sides are quite clean cut.

"I had never handled a forged Bank of England note," said this cashier, "until this came into my possession, and I naturally examined it very carefully.

"I understand that the notes have different dates and numbers, making their detection more difficult, and I should say that the dates were added after the body of the note had been printed."

From the head of a large banking concern in the city The Express representative received an opinion regarding the forged notes closely corresponding with the one given above. He was of opinion that the note might best be detected by three of its features:—

(1) Not quite so crisp as the genuine note.

(2) Faint water-mark.

(3) Faulty engraving and printing of the Britannia medal.

Forgers of bank notes have always two prime difficulties to contend with—to imitate the water-mark, and to get the notes in circulation.

The Duke of Gloucester.

The proposal to revive the old English title of Duke of Gloucester has set newspaper writers at work, hunting up the records of former bearers of the title, which appear to be mournful enough to give it an aspect of ill-omen even in the present materialistic age. The title was last revived by George I., who created his grandson, Frederick Lewis, Duke of Gloucester in 1714. This Prince was not, if his father, George II., may be believed, an ornament to the Peerage. "My dear firstborn," said that unamiable Sovereign, "is the greatest ass and the greatest liar and the greatest canaille and the greatest beast in the whole world, and I heartily wish he was out of it." His unhappy relations with his parents were a public scandal, but a fairer estimate of his character is that given by Horace Walpole. "His best quality was generosity, his worst insincerity, and indifference to truth, which appeared so early that Earl Stanhope wrote to Lord Sunderland what I shall conclude his character with:—'He has his father's head and his mother's heart.' His character with the people is probably best summed up in the lines beginning

Here lies Fred,
Who was alive and is dead,
and ending with
There's no more to be said."

The title became dormant again in 1834, when the second Duke of this creation, third son of "Fred," died without children. If the story of the present revival has any basis, the title is presumably intended for one of the young sons of the Prince of Wales.

Helping Reciprocity Along.

Force of circumstances is compelling us to reckon with western Canada. The Journal has often spoken of the great agricultural resources of that region, and has predicted that within ten years it will be the greatest hard wheat raising region in the world. The enormous crop raised there last year and bound for the export market, almost entirely, has called the attention of Minneapolis grain men and millers to the importance of Canadian competition. Canadian wheat is now selling so cheaply abroad that the Minneapolis export flour trade is in danger of suffering thereby, as foreign millers can buy Canadian wheat and undersell the Minneapolis exporters.

To remedy partially this unfortunate state of affairs the local millers are thinking of buying Canadian wheat and milling it in bond for their export trade. If they do this they will be able to meet the foreign millers on equal terms as to the price of Canadian wheat, since the duty on Canadian wheat will be refunded when the flour made from it is exported. So, then, we are already confronted with the desirability of using Canadian wheat in the manufacture of flour designed for export. The time is approaching when we shall need it for flour intended for domestic consumption. Already, regardless of the tariff, it is competing with American wheat and forcing down the price of the latter. If the tariff on wheat were taken off and Canadian wheat were merged in American wheat in the markets, the chances are that it would affect the price less than now.

Truly, the development of the Canadian west is making the question of reciprocity with Canada a very live one for the people of the American northwest.—Minneapolis Journal.

On a Dog.

"They're thinking now of reversing the usual process, and first trying plays in New York before taking them out on the road." "What's the idea?" "Well, if a play succeeds in New York, the rest of the country will know it's rotten."—"Life."

A Matter of Contrast.

"Give an example of how heat expands and cold contracts." "In the summer the days are long; in the winter they are short."—[illegible]

Nature's Flying Machines.

IT is an extraordinary thing that the places where people think that they can invent flying machines are the capitals of Europe. Paris, Vienna, London, Brussels, each takes its turn, in paragraphs in the morning papers and illustrated interviews in the weeklies, at producing flying machine inventors; but the man who will succeed must be more familiar than any townsman or laboratory savant seems to be with the way in which Nature's flying machines, the birds, work. To this the townsman will reply that everybody knows how birds fly. They flap their wings; and what we have to do is to invent a machine which will flap its wings like a bird.

Yes; but which bird? In every one of our undulating Norfolk stubbles there are two birds, among many, that you cannot help observing on the wing. One is the partridge and the other the gull. Let us take the gull first. It is a bird with a very light body in proportion to its expanse of wing; and when it wishes to rise from the ground it raises its wings aloft, back to back, and then with one quick stroke—whiff!—wafts itself aloft. Three or four more similar strokes follow, each one visibly raising the bird higher in the air, and then it sails off. Now it is "coasting" down an inclined plane; now its widespread wings catch the wind like a sail and it curves upwards; then it wheels and "coasts" again, and at the turn one vigorous flap of its wings shoots it up into the wind again. Another sail, another "coast," another flap, and so the gull could go on through the livelong afternoon. The albatross, spreading as much wing-sail as Shamrock II., so very nearly equalizes its sailing power with its coasting momentum that it remains in the air alongside a steamer for, perhaps, half an hour together, without occasion for a flap of the wing. This is the very highest development of one kind of Nature's flying machines.

Now let us look at the partridge. This is a heavy, substantial bird, with great running power, necessitating a muscular development essentially different from the gull's. The object of the partridge's flight is not to loaf about in the air, always ready to descend at any inclined plane that the chance of snatching food from the restless waves may offer, but to put as large a distance as possible in the shortest space of time between itself and the danger which compelled it to take wing. With the partridge flying is, in fact, merely an urgent improvement upon terrestrial locomotion, whereas with the gull it is the highest development of the art of remaining in the air at the poise most suitable for descending like an arrow in any desired direction.

From this contrast it is evident that the model which human inventors of flying machines should set before themselves is that of the partridge and not of the gull. We need aerial locomotion as an improvement upon our existing means of terrestrial progress. Our flying machine must be a weight-carrier because it has to bear up a terrestrial mechanism—i.e., a man; and the partridge gives us a very good idea of the means whereby this can be achieved. In common with all ground-birds—and if man is destined to be a bird at all it is as a ground-bird that he will have to commence his aerial evolutions—the partridge goes off whirring like clockwork. This is because enormous power, comparatively speaking, is needed to raise so heavy a bird from the ground. But when it has once reached an altitude of, say, ten feet, it goes on at a tremendous pace, gliding for twenty yards, then whirring violently again for ten, gliding for twenty, and so on. Thus the partridge can, taking into consideration all kinds of wind and weather, travel between two fixed points faster than a gull, provided that the point of departure is higher than that of destination. This is not generally understood; and it is common to talk of the amazing power of flight of such long-winged birds as gulls and swifts, although their "power" of flight is small compared with that of partridge or pheasant.

A New Vocabulary.

"I SEE," said the wise person, "that some eminent philologist is again monkeying with the language of the world in the effort to combine them in one tongue that no one will want to learn, but everybody can understand. It has always been a matter of surprise to me that none of these word-arrangers has ever grasped the amazing possibilities of baby-talk as a universal, time-saving method of conversation. Instead of delving into the dusty dimness of antiquity for Saxon and Sanskrit roots, and making it necessary for one to master ten languages to learn one, why do they not go into the nursery with an open mind and a notebook and compile a new mother-tongue that will catch everybody?"

Here he paused for a question, but, as none was forthcoming, he went on:

"What I mean is this: You take any baby that has an intelligent, quick-witted mother, and it can make its wants known with less expenditure of breath than a deaf-and-dumb man. If it says "Wow" she knows that a pin is sticking it, or that it wants its dinner, or that it wants to turn over, or that it has colic. If it says "Ah-goo" she makes a rapid-fire translation which proves that the child has said that it wants to see papa or that it feels good. If it says "Gup" she will at once tell you that it means "look at the horse." If it says "Boo" she can tell you without a moment's hesitation that it desires a peep at its picture-book. And so on ad infinitum, and ad infantum, for that matter. By jing! We don't want Volapuk or any other old universal language, but as a time and tongue saver and word-condenser we need the adoption of baby-talk."

Then, with a sarcastic glance at the young father, he concluded:

"Besides, it would keep a lot of people from telling us what their children had tried to say."—W. D. Nesbit in "Judge."

"Daring" Books.

It is women who write "daring" books, and it is women who read them. When once the fair do take their bonnets off they are not content with that; they throw them over the windmills, as the French say. Men do not like this kind of thing. It not only disgusts but bores them. It is a particular kind of woman, usually earnest and very stupid, who enjoys these excesses. Our sex, if all this goes on, must provide itself with fans to blush behind. We must leave the ladies before the coffee and cigarettes begin to circulate.—Andrew Lang in "Longman's Magazine."

Limson—Why do you want to sell your property?

Sizzup—Because I dread the taxes.

Limson—But they are surely reasonable?

Sizzup—Yes, they are now; but they will not be reasonable next year. Haven't you heard that Carnegie intends to give a million-dollar library for us to maintain?—Brooklyn Life.

SUPERSTITION

Has been responsible for much of human mortality. Men and women die by thousands in an Indian famine, not because of lack of food but because caste superstition prevents them from accepting it. Even in America there are still to be found those who believe that healing herbs lack virtue unless gathered during certain phases of the moon.

The great foe of superstition is science. Every year science increases the territory of the natural at the expense of the supernatural.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery achieves its successful cures because it is a scientific preparation originated by a scientific man. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies the blood and establishes the body in sound health.

As the writer of the following letter says, "It is the best thing for nervousness and for a weak run-down condition that anybody would want. It gives a person new life and new blood."

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol and is free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics.

"I must again send a few lines to you to let you know how I am getting along since taking the wonderful medicine which cured me two years ago," writes Miss Bertha Wheeler, of 1416 Benton Street, St. Louis, Mo. "I still continue in very good health and think there is not a better medicine on earth than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the best thing for nervousness and for a weak, run-down condition, that anybody would want. It gives a person new life and new blood. I can now work all day long without feeling the least bit tired. I was very nervous and weak last summer. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it just made me feel like a new person."

THE CORONATION

Things Worth Noting—A Popular House or House

The date having been fixed for June 26th, every town, city, village and hamlet will hold its rejoicings. The house will have to be thoroughly gone through with the usual spring cleaning and the lace curtains and other fancy goods will have to be selected. Also ladies will be specially engaged in the selection of those personal adornments such as blouses, collarettes, capes, scarves, etc., of all kinds, which are so fashionable this season.

We have before us one of S. Peach & Sons, Nottingham, Illustrated Catalogues, which is the most complete and comprehensive list issued. It is full of choice, artistic but inexpensive goods, and shows the great advantage of buying direct from the looms. We advise our readers to send for one of these lists, which are sent gratis.

For the past 45 years Messrs. Peach and Sons have been supplying the public in all parts of the empire direct from the looms, and have thus gained experience which enables them to suit all tastes and to meet the growing demand for their goods. We feel sure their efforts this coronation year will be crowned with success.

Messrs. Peach and Sons' goods are reliable in every way and any lady may order through the post feeling confident that her instructions will have best attention. The elaborate price lists containing photographs of curtains, their own registered designs and other lace goods, renders the selection quite easy, every make in Nottingham lace curtains is included, also real Swiss, Guipure d'art, Madras muslins, at most reasonable prices.

Our illustration of lace curtain taken from their price list showing No. 2862, 3 1-2 yds. long 57 in. wide at 9s. per pair gives you some idea of the reasonable prices at which this firm are enabled to offer.

Sideboard covers, table centres, tray covers in handmade and embroidered lace are also shown. Two leading lines of blouses might be mentioned, creme silk slip with lace insertion at 9s. 6d. each and black silk blouses trimmed torcha 11s. 9d. each both of which are very fashionable and useful. All kinds of laces are also stocked, including real Torchons, Valenciennes, fancy creme laces, etc. Black silk trimming laces in all widths at special prices, black and creme dress nets in large variety, patterns of these are sent, embroidered lace robes, etc., etc. New Duchesse Roller Blinds and also the well-known make of Stand Hard Wear Nottingham Loom Hosiery for ladies and gentlemen. Damask table and household linens, qualities such as only a firm with with their reputation to uphold would send out are inexpensive and very durable.

For the past 25 years this firm have advertised their Popular Parcel (21s) which contains for 1902: 1 pair of drawing room curtains 4 yards long, 2 yards wide; 2 pairs handsome diningroom curtains 3 1-2 yards long; 1 pair of pretty bedroom curtains, 3 yards long, 50 in. wide; 1 pair fashionable sash curtains, 1 table centre and 1 handsome set of duchesse toilet table covers. All the curtains are new elaborate designs for this season. The lot is sent carriage paid for 21s.

There Was One.

"Is there a man in all this audience," fiercely exclaimed a female lecturer, "that has ever done anything to lighten the burden resting on his wife's shoulders? What do you know of woman's work?"

"Is there a man here," she continued, folding her arms and looking over her audience with superb scorn, "that has ever got up in the morning, leaving his tired, worn-out wife to enjoy her slumbers, gone quietly downstairs, made the fire, cooked his own breakfast, sewed the missing buttons on the children's clothes, darned the family stockings, scoured the pots and kettles, cleaned and filled the lamps, swept the kitchen, and done all this, if necessary, day after day, uncomplainingly? If there is such a man in this audience, let him rise up! I should like to see him!"

And in the rear of the hall a mild-looking man in spectacles, in obedience to the summons, timidly arose. He was the husband of the eloquent speaker. It was the first time he had ever had a chance to assert himself.

"Is that a historical novel you're reading?"

"That's what they called it at the library, but it seems to me to be more hysterical than anything else."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Don't you think heaven is a land of rest?" enquired the doctor.

"O, I suppose it is," replied the professor, "for everybody except the recording angel."—Chicago "Tribune."

NEW SPRING NOVELTIES JUST RECEIVED

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE,

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.

WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the decoration scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end Our wall papers are fit for royal homes.

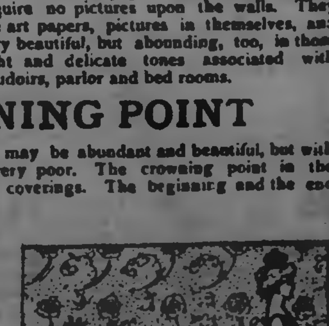
A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are enrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD
WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

My lady, the chatelaine, wove in beautiful designs and embroideries the tapestries from which we have borrowed some beautiful ideas in our wall paper.

My lady of 1902 will find many things in our stock to her liking.



OUR PRICES ARE FROM 10 TO 40 PER CENT. CHEAPER THAN ELSEWHERE.

Curious Bits of News.

A minister in a Kansas town recently adopted a novel scheme for bolstering up the church collection, which had been diminishing. He informed his congregation, just before the plates were passed around, that the members who were in debt were not expected to contribute. The collection that day was double the usual sum.

It really turns out that the population of France has increased three times more rapidly during the past five years than it did during the preceding five, and, consequently, the recent French census is regarded as unexpectedly favorable, notwithstanding that the rate of increase has been extremely low. It is important, if the decline has passed the deepest point of depression.

The oyster trade of England has fallen in ten years from an annual total of fifteen million dollars to two and one-half millions. Sewerage schemes carried out by town boards resulted in flooding the oyster beds with sewage, and several deaths ensued from eating poisonous oysters. The alarm became widespread, and the figures quoted show the disaster brought upon the trade.

It is evident that one of the popular superstitions had no hold on the designer of Uncle Sam's silver twenty-five-cent piece. In the words quarter-dollar are thirteen letters. Thirteen letters compose E Pluribus Unum. In the tail of the eagle are thirteen feathers, and in the shield are thirteen lines. There are thirteen stars and thirteen arrow-heads, while, if you examine the bird through a microscope, you will find thirteen feathers in its wing.

According to the Birmingham "Daily Gazette," an extraordinary character has just passed away in a Carmarthenshire gentleman named Evans. Mr. Evans devoted his life to witnessing hangings, making the acquaintance of executioners, and collecting relics of murderers. In the early days of public hangings he would travel any distance to see a man "turned off." He was so fascinated by the business that on the death of Calcraft he applied for his post. As this was not granted, he set up a gallows in his own house and invited his friends to test the noose.

Exploration, says "Science Siftings," has now revealed relics of Menes, the founder of Egyptian monarchy, fashioned more than sixty-five hundred years ago. Of Zer, the successor to Menes, it is astonishing to find the forearm of his queen still in its wrappings, with four splendid bracelets intact. This brilliant and exquisitely finished group of jewelry is two thousand years older than the jewelry of Dahshur, the oldest up to then known. The arm of the queen had been broken off by the first plunderers, and had lain hidden in a hole in the wall of the tomb.

Two curious cases of the use of the magnet in surgery are attracting some attention. Dr. Garel of Lyons, France, has drawn a nail about two inches long from the bronchial tube of a boy of eighteen months from Buenos Ayres. The nail had been there for some time, causing the child to cough much. Roentgen rays showed the position of it, and an electro-magnet drew it out. Another successful operation of the same kind has been performed by Dr. Piechaud of Bordeaux, on a child of three years. In this case the trachea was opened to get a projection from the pole of the magnet near the nail.

Too Great a Risk.

"I'm going to give up the business," said a life insurance agent with a sigh, whom the Detroit "Free Press" encountered. "I don't care whether they meant it for a joke or not. It's a hard life, and people have no business trying to be funny at my expense.

"I have always prided myself upon my ability to land a man when once I succeeded in getting his attention. But I had a new experience the other day. I was working hard to convince a party that it was his duty to take out some of our insurance upon his life for the protection of his family, and I saw that I had him wavering, when I had to pause for breath, and he broke in with:

"'By the way, how much do you carry on your life?'

"While I, taken unaware by the abruptness of the question, was stammering a reply, he escaped. The incident set me to thinking. I had induced hundreds of men to insure their lives for the benefit of their families, and yet I had never thought far enough to carry any insurance upon my own life. It didn't look consistent, now that I had come to consider the question, and I resolved to remedy it at once. To think is to act with me, and I sat down and filled out an application at once for a good round sum.

"I got the application back to-day marked, 'Refused—occupation too dangerous!' The next paper they get from me will be my resignation!"

So many persons are operated upon every day that it is becoming quite a distinction to go to the grave all in one piece.—Atchison "Globe."

"Doesn't it make you the least bit envious to see what elegant furniture Mrs. Hyedy is putting into her house next door?" "Not a bit. My husband says it will be sold by the sheriff within six months—and I'll be there to buy."—Chicago "Tribune."

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leafy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

"Habit is strong, Hetty," she answered. "Don't you remember how I used to wander round the old farm at night whenever fancy willed, watching the lily-bells close their eyes and the stars come out in the sky? No one thought it strange then when I came and went."

"A farm is a different place from the suburbs of the great metropolis; besides, you were only a child then, and we thought when you grew older you would grow out of all those childish habits."

Daisy threw herself with a burst of tears into her sister's arms.

"I wish I could have remained a child forever, Hetty," she sobbed. "Oh, I was so happy then — so happy, dear!"

"Then you are not happy now?" questioned Hetty, earnestly. "Oh, Daisy, I feared this; and yet you have everything in the world to make you contented."

"I was only jesting," declared Daisy sobbing and laughing in a breath. "You ought to know that Hetty?"

"Do you ever dream bad dreams at night, Hetty?" she asked suddenly; "dreams that leave traces of tears heart?"

"Yes, often," replied Hetty; "and they are said to be caused by an unsettled state of the mind."

Daisy crept nearer to her, and laid her hot cheek against hers in the caressing way she had ever had since she was a little child.

"I always dream the same bad dream, Hetty," she whispered. "That I am parted from Aleck, but not by death; if it were that it would not seem so cruel to bear it. I stretch out my arms to him and he turns away—turns away in the bitterest scorn and anger, and I wake weeping as though my heart would break."

"I am afraid you love him too well dear," said Hetty, gravely. "You idolize him; that is quite wrong. Idols are the soonest shattered."

"Do you know what I should do Hetty, if Aleck —ever— ever left me?" Daisy faltered, creeping closer to her sister.

The idea was so horrible and so far from actually occurring that her words took Hetty's breath away. Before she could remonstrate with her for the ridiculous notion, Daisy continued in a low voice:

"If he should ever leave me, Hetty, I would steal quietly away to mother's grave— you know the spot well, its white shaft pointing up to the sunshine, just within the shadow of the old gray church on the hill.

"I would part the long grass, and lay my tear-wet face on the cold earth and whisper: 'I have found the world too hard and bitter, mother, and I have come here to your grave, with my head pillowed on your pulseless breast, to die'; and when the stars came out and were burning golden in the night sky, there they would find me, with the dew lying heavy on my face—dead."

"Heaven forbid!" cried Hetty fervently. "You paint such terrible pictures —mind pictures — that you terrify me. Why, you are becoming a monomaniac, it almost seems to me on the subject of Aleck's leaving you. Do you know of any reason why it would be liable to happen?" she asked, sharply.

She saw the question strike her as lightning blasts a tender flower, all in an instant she seemed to wither, a terrible shudder passed over her, her lovely face grew ghastly in utter terror, and the beautiful blue eyes grew almost black with inward emotion.

Her manner was so strange Hetty began to feel anxious. Daisy was looking at her with wistful eyes, but she did not answer her question.

"It is colder tonight than usual, isn't it, Hetty?" she said, in an unsteady voice, trying to change the conversation. "The air is sweet with roses, but it seems to me chill," and again a shudder passed over the slender frame. "I wish," she added, with a sudden, piteous quiver in her voice, "that I could live my life over again, and knew as much as I do now. Oh! Hetty, Hetty, how I wish it from the bottom of my heart."

"I do not suppose there are many people but what have had that same thought," laughed Hetty, amusedly.

"All people make grave mistakes one time or another in their lives, do they not, Hetty?" she asked, slowly.

"Very many do," replied Hetty; "but surely you are not among the number, Daisy, you can have made no mistake in your life."

"Hetty," she cried, drawing her sister's face down to hers and laying her dimpled pink-and-white cheek upon it, "do you think if any one loved another very much, and found out that the one so loved had done a great wrong, do you think it would be easy to find pardon —to forgive and love still?"

"It would depend altogether on the nature of the wrong commited," answered Hetty. "I should imagine one who loves well and truly could overlook ordinary faults and weaknesses, for you know:

"'To err is human,'

but there are some things that should never be pardoned."

"What are they?" asked Daisy, breathlessly.

"Trickery, deceit, and falsity in love," she replied, "the latter especially. There are many people who would, I believe, almost forgive murder soon than anything of that nature."

Daisy was looking at her with wide-open, frightened eyes.

"Would sooner forgive murder than —than— falsity in love," she echoed.

The words had a strange sound as she uttered them, and made a lasting impression on Hetty.

"I am sure it is chilly," she remarked, after a pause. "I am going in, Hetty."

Long after Daisy left her Hetty paced the grounds in silence. What terrible mystery was here? that there was some dark and awful secret, she felt sure, but what could it be?

How strangely Daisy had dwelt on the words "falsity in love." Was Aleck —whom the world looked upon as a model young husband, who seemed to fairly adore his lovely girlish bride —false to her?

What had darkened Daisy's life so pitifully?

That Lillian Ruthven was connected with it in some way she felt certain.

At length Hetty came to a strange conclusion.

"I will see Miss Ruthven, and accuse her openly of trying to come between Daisy and Aleck," she decided. "Poor little Daisy's happiness shall not be wrecked if I can prevent it."

Honor for a Canadian.

Canadians generally will be interested in learning that Dr. J. Beattie Crozier, author of the famous work, "History of Intellectual Development," has been selected as one of the 300 representatives of the empire in the splendid ten-guinea volume of portraits and biographies which the Grosvenor Press are bringing out. The work consists of representative men of every class outside of the military and civil services, who will have a volume to themselves. Dr. Crozier will be one of the representatives of the department of philosophy. Also, of course, he will stand as one of the representatives of Canada, a distinction he has well earned, and on which I am sure his countrymen will warmly congratulate him.

An Outspoken Journal.

It is refreshing, and even entertaining, to turn occasionally to that ultra-Radical English journal, Reynolds' Newspaper, and see the use which is still made of that right of free speech which is sometimes supposed to have been menaced by the developments of late years. Reynolds' does not take much stock in the colonies of the empire, nor, for that matter, in the mother country either, and in an article dealing with the war the other day made the following amiable reference to the progressive colony of New Zealand, the advanced radicalism of which might have been expected to meet with sympathy in its columns:—"Amid all this scene of woe and desperation, one sinister figure emerges—the ogre of Capitalism. Seddon, the frozen meat 'patriot,' with the hostile tariff against British goods, and his bankrupt colony living on borrowed money, rages about the contracts for supplying the army. The foreign Jewish 'patriots'—who used to sing 'God Shave the Queen'—domiciled here, have secured most of those contracts, as they secured the astounding contracts for the supply of horses. And behind this section of old Jewry is that other section of Judaism with which Rhodes the Raider is connected. Fine patriots, indeed, making their millions out of the war, while the Government refuses to pay poor Tommy Atkins his back wages, leaving him to starve in the street, or to die in the workhouse."

Here, too, is Reynolds' pleasantly frank way of dealing with the Anglo-Japanese alliance:—"We are going the way of all nations given up, on the one hand, to the most sensual luxury, on the other to the most immoral and criminal seizure of their neighbors' territory. The latest sign of our feebleness, under a Government composed of rich men and land monopolists, whom the international Jewish capitalists have by the throat, is the treaty with Japan. Only a couple of months ago that vulgar self-advertiser Chamberlain was hurling insults at Germany—a country that had previously rejected his cringing appeal for an alliance—and boasting of our 'splendid isolation.' To-day our Government, composed of fools and knaves, recognizing the gravity of the position of affairs in South Africa, is obliged to beg little Japan, a semi-savage nation, with a veneer of western culture among its more prosperous classes, to enter into an alliance with decaying England. The humiliation of it! The danger of it!"

Presbyterian Lenten Service.

A regular Lenten service in a Presbyterian church is not heard of often, but Dr. Hunter of the King's Weigh House Church, London, has begun this innovation during the present season of Lent. In the course of a conversation with a representative of a London newspaper, Dr. Hunter expressed himself as strongly in favor of the observance of all the seasons of the "Christian year." "It belongs," he said, "to the whole of Christendom and not to any one section only. Nonconformists have lost much through their non-observance of these special seasons. For instance, Lent arose originally out of a deep necessity of the inner life, and, more even than men long ago, we require such a pause amid the rush of business and pleasure. It is well for us to have such a season, it is better still if we seek to profit by it. It is wise and good that so many in our day, and in so many of our churches, are returning to the old paths of meditation and prayer and are seeking to fill the best of the old forms and observances with a truer and better meaning and spirit."

Dr. Hunter has always been an advocate of the observance by Free Churchmen of the feasts and fasts of the church. When he began his ministry in York twenty-eight years ago he introduced the custom of a service on Good Friday, and in his church at Glasgow he had for two years daily prayer. At King's Weigh House Church on the Sunday evenings in Lent, Dr. Hunter is delivering a course of sermons on "Self-discipline," and he has announced a "class for young persons wishing to be prepared for the Communion of the Lord's Supper," which is presumably on the lines of a confirmation class in the Church of England. The service book in use at King's Weigh House is one compiled by Dr. Hunter, and used by him at Glasgow, and, while based mainly on liturgical lines, it provides for the exercise of extempore prayer.

To Make Colts Shy.

Nearly every colt, when first driven away from home, will shy and scare more or less at objects along the roadside. After he has been driven a few times the common practice is to strike him with the whip every time he does this. It is provoking to feed a horse hay three times a day and then see him scare at a little pile of hay in the road. The first thing that comes into the mind is to give him a cut with the whip.

Nothing worse than this could be done. The next time he will not only be afraid of the object, but of the whip also, and by a little training in this way he will soon be confirmed in the habit of shying and scaring at nearly everything he sees. First the tendency, then the habit, is the law of nature, and when the pile of hay or rock, or whatever else, is connected with the whip, as it soon will be, the habit is fixed for life. You cannot lick horses into good habits; you can establish vices very easily by blows.—Maine Farmer.

PATIENT ENDURANCE.

SERMON BY
REV. GEO. H. HEPWORTH.

But let patience have her perfect work.—St. James, i., 4.

Patience is generally classed among the minor virtues, but so much of life's happiness and usefulness depends on it that we ought to give it a more prominent place. To patiently endure an environment which includes suffering and hardship is nothing less than heroism, and there are unseen and unrecorded instances in which men and women have shown the courage of the martyr.

Patience is always yoked with other high qualities of character. Its nearest ally is self-control, and self-control is as important when you are building a character as a rudder is when a ship is launched. It is literally the steering apparatus which keeps us clear of the rocks and shoals of an impetuous and reckless temper. I would rather have patience with perfect self-control than to have genius, for while genius is erratic and often unbalanced, these other qualities give us poise and equilibrium. Patience is grounded on resignation to the inevitable, which results in a calm endurance under exasperating circumstances, and in the conviction that it is safer to bear the ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of. When a man cultivates patience, therefore, he becomes master of himself and master of whatever may possibly happen. It is a kingly, a royal virtue, and more depends on its possession than we are apt to think.

You can reckon its value by considering its opposite. Impatience is a dangerous quality. It constantly places your self-respect and your relations to your dearest friends in peril. Moreover, it makes unhappy circumstances more unhappy still. You can't rebel against your surroundings with a complaining heart without rendering yourself weak to oppose or change them. Look your life over calmly and impartially and you will find that where you have been at odds with your lot you have made the lot so much the worse and more difficult to get away from, whereas if you had accepted the bitter experience and made the best of it you would have reaped a benefit otherwise impossible. It is equally true that where you have been impetuous of speech you have had cause for regret, while a curbed tongue has been cause for rejoicing. When you have been silent you have done better than when you have spoken. A bitter word suppressed strengthens the character, while a reckless utterance is like a bomb, which is sure to injure, if it does not kill, a friendship.

It is an inexorable law that three-quarters of the world must drudge in order to live. You may wonder why this should be so, but you will find no solution for the puzzle. The simple, stubborn fact faces you, and it ends all controversy. Moreover, all the world, without exception, must sooner or later bear heavy burdens of sorrow and bereavement. The normal condition of man is to be a burden-bearer, and I had almost said it is the only healthy condition. There is no smooth road laid down on the chart of life. We all trudge through storm and sunshine. Poverty, sickness, trouble, death, are to be found everywhere. Kings and peasants alike have their sorrows. It is the common lot.

There is only one question to be asked and answered: How shall we make these experiences contribute to strength of character, and possibly to our welfare? Not, surely, by a restless controversy with the inevitable and inexorable. That state of mind only aggravates the evil without even the shadow of a good result. It is your attitude of mind and heart which decides your happiness or misery.

Fight fate and you will surely be defeated; not only defeated, but soured. On the other hand, make the best of the worst, calmly and patiently use events and extract from them whatever of good they may contain, and your days will swing along with a smoothness that will surprise you. More and better than that, your calmness and patience will have a tendency to draw to you the help of the other world, and if you and the other world come to a harmonious understanding the very complexion of your adverse circumstances will change.

In a word, the soul which follows in the footsteps of the Christ and in poverty and hard work and misfortune bravely meets and nobly endures will find light in unexpected places, and joys where only fears were looked for. There is a subtle law here, and if we can discover it and be guided by it the clouds will have a silver lining, and even our sorrows will prove a blessing.

God is still with us, and so are the angels of God. With patience and courage we may fit ourselves for their kind services, and so make good use of the roughest places over which we must travel to the rest and reward of the glorious future.

Now as to the name of the garment,
There is one unerring test.
If it costs five plunks 'tis a waistcoat;
If less than that, a vest.

Chester carries with him the hearty good will of his many young Peterborough friends.

The Kirkfield Lift Lock

Mr. Gus. Sawers, C. E., is down from Kirkfield for a day. Mr. Sawers is employed as engineer on the Cereal Works on this section. He showed The Times a number of photos taken by himself of the works. Excavation is now going on for the lift lock, which will have a lift 48 feet, which is 17 less than the Peterborough hydraulic lock.

Miss Jones' Voice Greatly Improved

A startling improvement is noticeable in Miss Jones' singing. Her voice is stronger, and sounds clearer and sweeter than before using Catarrhozone, which is a wonderful aid to singers, speakers and ministers. Catarrhozone Inhaler insures absolute freedom from colds, coughs and catarrh, clears the nose and throat, and prevents hoarseness and huskiness. Catarrhozone makes the voice brilliant and enduring, and is uncommonly well recommended by prima donnas, members of parliament, lawyers, doctors and thousands that use it daily. Better try Catarrhozone. Price $1.00, trial size 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Hamilton's Pills cure constipation.

Another Spring Poem

Recent rains have manifestly cheered up another poet, through whose verses for some weeks past there has run a vein of deep melancholy. He now throws open the windows of his soul and sings as follows:

Ay last Ontario is wet down,
In every spot and nook,
And every man in this man's town
Has on a echeerful look.
The glad green leaves look fresher now
Than they have looked this spring;
The grass grows for the spotted cow—
Let all arise and sing.

There are several additional verses, but we are afraid to unload any more of it on our readers.

A Sure Cure for Constipation

Some remedies cure this distressing complaint in a day, some in a month, but Nerviline never fails to cure in a few minutes. Just ten drops of Nerviline in sweetened water—that's enough, and away goes the dysentery, cured to stay cured. Nerviline also cures cramps, colic, pain in the stomach and sick headache. It has five times the strength and curative properties of ordinary remedies, and should be in every household. Better buy a 25c. bottle and try it. Nerviline is all right.

Hamilton's Pills for the liver.

IS IT RIGHT?

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—I happened to drive up the river road to Lakefield, on Sunday last, and was surprised to find a gang of Italian laborers at work dredging the river. When I asked one of the men why they worked on Sunday. I was informed that it was because they did not want to lose a day. There apparently was no reason for their doing so, as the work was not of a nature that required urgency.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would ask if this is right? Where are the Constables, that they do not interfere to prevent this flagrant violation of the Lord's Day Act?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I am, etc.,

J. W. WOOD.

The Colors Produced By the
DIAMOND DYES
Are Admired By All Who Have A Taste For Color Beauty

The colors produced by the Diamond Dyes on all wool, mixed goods and all cotton goods are admired by all ladies who have a taste for color beauty. There is a depth, fulness and richness in Diamond Dye colors that manufacturers of other home dyes have never been able to produce.

Garments and materials dyed with the Diamond Dyes show clear and perfect colors that stand fast as long as the goods hold together. Colors produced by the common package dyes are dull, muddy and streaked, giving full proof of adulterations and worthless coloring ingredients. When it is generally understood that Diamond Dyes with all their superior qualities and a guarantee of perfect work are sold at the same price as the poorly prepared dyes, it will be a difficult undertaking to find a woman who will risk her goods with the adulterations put up in imitation of the Diamond Dyes.

Send your address on a post card to The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, 200 Mountain street, Montreal, P. Q., and you will receive post paid full range of designs in the new Diamond Dye Mat and Rug Patterns.

DELIGHTFUL CONCERT AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

The High Class Entertainment Given by Jarvis St. Church Choir

A CHARMING PROGRAM IT WAS

The Beautiful Edifice, Which Was Decorated with Flowers, Filled to the Doors

One of our noted writers has said: "The music and the poetry of each country must keep pace with their usual tone of mind as well as with the state of society." Music moves the heart to something and the influence must be good, and if we are to judge by large and appreciative audiences and rapt attention, we are confronted with the fact that those who comprise the musical circles of Peterborough are not lacking in culture and refinement of taste.

To Mr. J. Crane, the popular and energetic director of St. Paul's Choir, the thanks and gratitude of our music-loving citizens are due for placing within their reach one of the richest feasts of music which Peterborough has ever enjoyed.

It would be hard to conceive of a more enjoyable entertainment than the Service of Praise given in St. Paul's last evening by the Jarvis St. Baptist Choir, of Toronto, under the direction of Mr. A. S. Vogt. There was a very large audience present, testifying to the fact that Peterborough entertainment-lovers know how to appreciate the efforts of those who bring good attractions to the town.

It is unnecessary for us to eulogize Mr. Vogt and the different artists composing his choir—it is enough to say their names are household words in Canada, where Mr. Vogt stands without a peer in the realm of music. All the members of his choir are artists of conspicuous attainments and talent, whose reputation in most cases is already well established.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the attendance of the different choirs of the town in a body, showing respect for the visiting choir and also to derive both pleasure and instruction from the excellence of the choral work rendered by this splendid organization.

After the Doxology and opening prayer by Rev. Dr. Torrance the choir chanted the Lord's Prayer, and the programme proper was commenced by Mr Arthur Oliver giving the Meyerbeer Best arrangement of the Schiller Festival March, which thoroughly proved him master of his instrument.

Tours' Anthem "God hath appointed a Day" was then rendered most effectively by the choir, the quartette being taken by Miss Dora L. McMurtry, Miss Gertrude Shuttleworth, Mr Victor Hutchinson and Mr A. L. E. Davies.

Mr. A. L. E. Davies then followed with Gounod's "There is a Green Hill far Away." Mr. Davies captivated the audience with his splendid voice and fine broad style.

The Soprano Obligato and Chorus "Inflammatus," from the "Stabat Mater" (Rossini) by Miss Dora L. McMurtry and the choir was an attractive number. Miss McMurtry, whose artistic rendition of the soprano obligato was so much admired, is well known in Peterborough, having sang before delighted audiences several times.

A Motette "Come Unto Him," (Gounod) unaccompanied, was given in excellent rendering, and held the audience spellbound, after which the choir gave "They that now in tears," with splendid effect, the different voices blending most harmoniously.

In the second part of the programme the two unaccompanied Motettes, "Say, Watchman, What of the Night?" (Sullivan) and "Yea, tho' I Walk Through the Valley of the Shadow of Death" (Sullivan) are worthy of special mention, and showed to advantage the training and strong points of the Choir.

Mr. Oliver again excelled in another of his sublime and delightful organ solos, Fantasia "O, Sanctissima" (Lux), after which the baritone solo and choral Sanctus, "Behold, I Create a New Heaven and a New Earth" (Gaul), was very effective, the solo being sang in splendid voice by Mr. Davies.

"List, the Cherubic Host" (Gaul) a number of much sweetness and pleasing rythm was excellently rendered by the ladies of the choir with obligatos by Miss McMurtry and Mr. Davies.

Gounod's beautiful cantata from "Gallia" was the closing number, Miss McMurtry again taking the solos with indescribable sweetness. The National Anthem brought this pleasant and profitable evening to a close.

The work of Jarvis St. Choir last evening was beyond criticism—it was perfect. We cannot describe nor do justice to it as we are conscious that we hear but imperfectly and can only give an imperfect sketch. The noble effort of Mr. Crane in bringing this choir to town has been appreciated by all as it has shown the different effects that can be accomplished by human voices.

ASHBURNHAM COMMITTEE ROOMS

Mr. Anderson's Committee Rooms in Ashburnham will be open on Wednesday night and each evening until after the election. All Mr. Anderson's workers and supporters of the present Government are asked to attend.

DR. J. O MOFFAT,
Sec'y. E.R.L A

The Peterborough, District Convention of the Women's Missionary Society, of the Methodist church, will be held on Thursday, May 15th, at the Methodist Church, Lakefield. There will be three sessions all open to the public. Public meeting in the evening will be addressed by Rev. Mr. Wilson, Peterborough. An excellent musical programme will be given.

GERMAN ABSORPTION IS HOLLAND'S DANGER

This is Greatly Feared Should Queen Wilhelmina Die Childless

Special to The Times.

London May 14—The daily bulletins in regard to the condition of Queen Wilhelmina, which are issued from Het Loo are favorable, but the danger is not over. The question of the succession to the Dutch throne is still present in the minds of European statesmen. Wilhelmina, who is the last in a direct line, acts by reason of her pedigree as a barrier to all dynastic pretensions but, as the Spectator says to-day, Holland will never really be safe until the Queen has an heir."

There is no doubt that the German people look toward Holland with a longing, only equalled by the detestation and fear with which the Dutch regard the Germanization of their country. Nor is the prospect vague and illusory. The German people want their "'free-born German Rhine" from its source to the sea and they consider that owing to the configuration of the Empire they have a natural right to it. This has been a favorite theme with German writers for many years.

According to the arrangements made in 1890 the Dutch throne, failing Whilhelmina, and her possible children, passes to the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar, He, of course, is a vassal of the German Emperor and as such the Dutch people would not tolerate him as a King. It is generally assumed, however, that the Grand Duke has renounced his claims to the Dutch throne, which would prove a thorny heritage for himself and his heirs. Assuming that this renunciation is true, the next successor is Prince Albrecht of Hohenzollern,, Regent of Brunswick. He is no more pleasing to the Dutch,, who fear that he would naturally govern Holland for the advantage of Germany and the Hohenzollern dynasty.

The Spectator commenting on the situation says: "The drift of Holland to Barvia's position in the Empire of which it would be a maritime arm, would be almost irresistible. The Dutch would detest this prospect and might reject it. Then the foreign offices of Europe would quiver with excitement and alarm."

The independence of Holland, then, is protected only by Austria and Russia, The former does not desire to see any further aggrandizement of the Hohenzollerns or for Germany to become without expense a maritime power that would be able to dominate the Mediterranean. Similiar feelings obtain in Russia, which, in turn, would influence France. Thus Holland might be permitted to settle at once its own fate. The Dutch feeling would almost certainly favor a reversion to a Commonwealth or a republic, to which the Powers would probably object, thus forcing the selection of a King and leaving the way open to renewed danger.

Holland's safety lies in the life of the young Queen, and the birth of an heir. The former at the present moment is very precarious, the bulletins admit. The physicians privately acknowledge that extreme weakness may yet prevent her recovery. Even if she does recover there is considerable doubt as to the prospects of an heir, after two such terrible experiences within seven months and with no very favorable family history in this particular line taken into consideration.

The Hague, May 10.—The bulletin issued this morning says "The Queen had a particularly good night. There was no return of the fever. All continues as well as could be desired."

Queen Wilhelmina's condition is so much improved that she is able to sign all the necessary Government decrees. The newspapers suggest that there be a national holiday when her condition permits and on the cessation of the Bulletins from Castle Loo. The afternoon's bulletin says that the Queen's favorable condition continues.

NO MENACE TO CANADA

Shipping Combine Should be Met with Fast Ships

Special to The Times,

London, May 14 — Lord Strathcona does not regard the shipping trust as a menace to Canada's trade at the present, but, in his own words, there is no saying what might happen in the future. The way to meet the combine was, he thought, to have fast British steamships between Britain and Canada. Lord Strathcona anticipates that at the present rate of development Canada will be able in ten years to provide all that Britain needs in the way of necessities.

Liverpool, May 14 — The Liverpool Journal of Commerce asserts positively that J. P. Morgan has arrived at some arrangement with the Manchester Ship Canal Company.

TO ABOLISH CHURCH FESTIVALS

Women's Missionary Society Try to Start a Great Reform

Xenia, O., May 14 — The Women's General Missionary Society of the United Presbyterian Church is holding its nineteenth annual convention in this city. More than 200 delegates have arrived from all parts of the United States. The convention will be in session until Friday noon.

A lively debate is promised over the resolution prepared by Mrs. H. C. Jackson, of Illinois, president of the society, to do away with all church suppers, bazaars, festivals and the like in raising money for missions. About one-half of the mission revenues comes from this source, and its abolition will be vigorously opposed by the liberal element of the church.

1,600 DEATHS IN ISLAND OF ST. VINCENT THE CHILDREN MOAN FOR WATER

Died in Awful Agony--Unable to Drink Through Being Chocked with Ashes Reports To-Day Say Death List in British Island is Growing

St. Thomas, D.W.I., May 13.—Advices received here from the Island of St. Vincent (British West Indies), forwarded on Sunday last, announce that seven hundred deaths have occurred in that island as a result of the outbreak of the Soufriere volcano, which is still slightly active.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, British West Indies, May 13.—It is announced in advices received here this morning (Tuesday) from the Island of St. Vincent (British Indies) that 1,600 persons have perished there since the Soufriere volcano has been in eruption.

CHILDREN MOAN FOR WATER.

New York, May 13.—James Taylor, who was one of the officers of the Roraima, the Quebec Line steamship which was destroyed in the harbor of St. Pierre, gives a graphic account of the tragedy of last Thursday, says a despatch to the Herald from St. Pitt's Island of St. Christopher, B.W.I.

"We experienced the greatest difficulty in getting into port," he said. "Appalling sounds were issuing from the mountains behind the town, which were shrouded in darkness. All the passengers were up, and some were trying to obtain photographs.

"Suddenly I heard a tremendous explosion. Ashes began to fall thicker upon the deck, and I could see a black cloud sweeping down upon us. I dived below, and, dragging with me Samuel Thomas, a gangway man, and a fellow-countryman, sprang into a room, shutting the door to keep out the heat that was already unbearable.

"The ship rocked, and I expected every moment that it would sink. Outside I heard a voice pleading for the door to be opened. It was Scott, the first officer, and I opened the door and dragged him into the room.

"It soon became unbearably hot, and I went on deck. All about were lying the dead and the dying. Little children were morning for water. I did what I could for them. I obtained water, but when it was held to their swollen lips they were unable to swallow, because of the ashes which clogged their throats. One little chap took water into his mouth and rinsed it out, but even then could not swallow, so badly was his throat burned. He sank back unconscious, and a few minutes later was dead.

SAVED BY A WAVE.

"All aft the ship was afire, and from the land came drafts of terrible heat. At last, when I could stand it no longer, I sprang overboard. The water was almost hot enough to parboil me, but a wave soon swept in from the ocean, bringing with it cool water.

"I was caught in the receding wave, which was of tidal velocity, and was carried out to sea. Then, on the second return of the wave, I was washed up against an overturned sloop, to which I clung.

"A few minutes later I was joined by another man, whom I learned was Capt. Muggah of the Roraima. He was in dreadful agony, and kept begging piteously to be put on board his ship.

"Picking up some wreckage and a tool chest I and five others who joined me succeeded in forming a rude raft, on which we placed the captain. Seeing an upturned boat I asked one of the five to swim out to it and bring it over so that Capt. Muggah might have an opportunity to live. The man succeeded in getting the boat righted, but instead of returning he picked up two of his countrymen and went away in the direction of Fort de France.

"Seeing the Roddam, which had arrived in port soon after we anchored, making for the Roraima, I said goodbye to Capt. Muggah, and swam to the Roddam. Before I could reach her she burst into flames, and put out to sea, I finally reached the Roraima, about half-past two o'clock in the afternoon, and later was taken off by the cruiser Suchet."

THE GLORY THAT WAS

The city of St. Pierre, just destroyed, was one of the most picturesque places imaginable. It was built in amphitheater shape, on the fine, sweeping curve of the harbor, the streets with their white houses, with red earthen-tiled roofs, rising gradually from the edges of the bay. Those narrow streets were well paved, with a central gutter, the water in which, bountifully supplied from the hills above the town, rushed down in clear and sparkling torrents. These street gutters were not mere drains, for children were even bathed in their clear, sweet water.

There was a fine cathedral, a theater, and good public buildings; but the glory of the city, to a foreigner, was its gardens, both public and private, with their reckless wealth of flowers and tropical foliage. Martinique is one of the "wet" islands, wonderful for the luxuriance of its tropical vegetation. The unlimited supply of water from the hills was taken advantage of, not only for the city's necessities, but for its beautification, and fountains splashed and sparkled everywhere.

Cleanliness in dress and habitation, even among the lowest classes, was everywhere conspicuous. The population was preponderatingly colored, negroes, mulattoes, etc., but all of an advanced, wholesome type. The colony of French people was of a select character, and they had brought with them the urbanity and grace of bearing which characterize the world's most polite race. The characteristics of the population, both white and black, are pronouncedly French.

The ill-fated and beautiful Empress Josephine was a native of Martinique, as was also her first husband, Viscount Beauharnais. At Fort de France stands a beautiful marble statue, erected to her memory by Napoleon III.

SOME LEFT IN TIME

Paris, May 14.—An official despatch received by the Minister for the Colonies,M. De Crais, to-day says that 450 refugees landed at Fort de France by the French cable steamer Pouyer-Quartier were all from the village of Le Precheur, near St. Pierre, and that the only inhabitants of St. Pierre who were saved were those who left that town before eight o'clock in the morning of the disaster, Thursday last.

HOLLAND TO AID.

The Hague, May 14.—The Government of the Netherlands has ordered the Dutch warship Koningin Regentes to proceed from the Island of Curacoa, Dutch West Indies, to the Island of Martinique, at full speed, in order to assist the sufferers from the Mont Pelee outbreak.

Both members of the States-General (Parliament) have adopted resolutions expressing sympathy with France.

ITALY'S KING GIVES $5,000.

Rome, May 13.—King Victor Emanuel has contributed 25,000 lire ($5,000) to the fund being raised for the relief of the sufferers from the Martinique disaster.

NOTES OF THE DISASTER.

Up to yesterday the death list of St. Vincent had increased to 700, and was increasing constantly.

The St. Vincent volcano burst into eruption again yesterday, after a period of quiet, and at noon the darkness was like midnight.

Nearly four thousand refugees have been brought to Fort de France by the cruiser Suchet and the cable repair ship Pouyer-Quertier, from Le Precheur, a suburb of St. Pierre.

A rescue party found a horse and buggy and a policeman dead in a group at a door.

The British ship Solent has taken to St. Pierre from the Barbadoes the Colonial Secretary, two civil doctors, two military, and Dr. W. E. Aughinbaugh of Washington, a corporal, and four hospital orderlies, three trained nurses, and full field hospital.

President Roosevelt has recommended Congress to pass $500,000 for relief. Congress has already appropriated $200,000.

The collier Sterling of Porto Rico is being loaded with voluntary contributions of supplies and army and navy stores, and will leave for Martinique as soon as possible.

It is believed in Chicago that Dan Coughlin of the Cronin murder perished at St. Pierre.

C. C. Evans of Montreal, who has on the Roraima in the harbor, describing his experience, said: "As eight bells was struck, a frightful explosion was heard up the mountain. A cloud of fire, toppling and roaring, swept with lightning speed down the mountain side and over the town and bay. The Roraima was nearly sunk, and caught fire at once. I never can forget the horrid, fiery, choking whirlwind which enveloped me. Mr Morris and I rushed below. We were not very badly burned, not so bad as most of them. When the fire came we were going to our posts (we are engineers), to weigh anchor and get out. When he came up we found the ship all afire aft, and fought it forward until 3 o'clock, when the Suchet came to our rescue. We were then building a raft."

"Ben" Benson, the carpenter of the Roraima, said: "I was on deck, amidships, when I heard an explosion. The captain ordered me to up anchor. I got to the windlass, but when the fire came I went to the forecastle and got my duds. When I came out I talked to Captain Muggah, Mr. Scott, the first officer, and others. They had been on the bridge. The captain was horribly burned. He had inhaled flames and wanted to jump into the sea. I tried to make him take a life preserver. The captain, who was undressed, jumped overboard and hung on a line for a while. Then he disappeared."

The Governor of the Windward Islands, Mr. Robert Llewellyn, has received instructions from England to spend all the money necessary for the relief of the St. Vincent sufferers.

Disturbances caused by the volcanic eruptions to the south-east of Jamaica are being felt at Kingston, Jamaica.

The victims of the awful disaster who have escaped with their lives and even without injury are dazed and helpless as children. They are absolutely destitute of everything save the few garments on their backs.

The food supply at Fort de France is so small that with the utmost caution it cannot last long among those who are there already, to say nothing of those who are still to come.

Over St. Pierre, and all the country for miles around, there is still, even in the middle of the day, a darkness from the great black canopy of smoke that continues to rise from Mont Pelee, and spreads out over the sky to the horizon. At considerable distances from where the big sulphur pit of the volcano was new craters have broken out.

RUSSIA'S IRON HAND TO CRUSH THE REBELS

Revolutionary Emergency in Russia to be Met By Reign of Terror Throughout the Country

Special to The Times.

Alexandrovo, Russian-Prussian Frontier, May 14.—Advice from the interior that cannot be intrusted either to mail or telegraph, say that the Czar's government is ready to meet the revolution-ary emergency by a reign of terror.

All the big cities and many of the smaller towns are to be declared in a state of seige, the inhabitants being put under martial law.

Martial law means the imposition of the death penalty, a punishment the criminal law of the country doesn't recognize.

Under martial law the gallows will be kept busy,, but those knowing the situation doubt that a display of severity, however sweeping, will mend matters.

The revolution has gained too much headway and infected too many classes. Besides, the whole of Russia's intelligent youth is on the side of the working classes, and these poor students, like the working classes, have nothing to lose but their lives, which they value little enough.

By introducing martial law, the government is enabled to hang Balmaschheff the murderer of the minister of the interior, while under the ordinary criminal code he would get off with sixteen years' imprisonment.

On many railway lines throughout the empire passenger and goods traffic has given way to transportation of troops, infantry and cavalry being moved in all directions.

While the czar is half willing to use extreme measures against the revolting students, he is opposed to harsh treatment as far as the peasants are concerned.

The new minister of the interior is therefore now traveling in the provinces trying to make peace between the peasants and their masters, the great land owners.

MODERN CANADA THE WORLD'S WONDER

Dominion's Developments Unexcelled in History

EXPERT'S STRONG TESTIMONY.

No Similar Population Has Ever Achieved Similar Results, Says Mr. Fred Nicholls

"Canada has made the most remarkable ascent, commercially as well as in every other way that makes life worth living, of any country in the world. A small population—barely five million, scattered all the way from Halifax to Dawson—a big, unsettled blanket of territory stretched out at every corner,—up against the rush and activity of the United States—and yet this country is the greatest, the most remarkable in the history of the commercial world.

"Ten years ago, no commercial enterprise of any importance was ever undertaken before it being first ascertained that the capital could be obtained for it in England. Now it is entirely different, and the result is enough to make any Canadian proud. I know of no commercial project too large for the enterprise of Canadians, or so large that all the money necessary cannot be obtained in Canada to carry it through."

These are the clear, virile, business statements of Mr. Frederick Nicholls, president of the Canadian General Electric Company, and director of half-a-dozen of the largest national enterprises of the Dominion. These include the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Canadian Northern Railway, the Crow's Nest Coal Co., etc.

"The progress which this country has made in a few years is simply marvellous. Here is a country of five million people scattered around to make Government and manufacturing and progress generally additionally difficult Not in the United States nor in any country in the Old World have the people any advantages over Canada, in the things that go to make life worth living. I have yet to find any single particular wherein other countries have the slightest advantage, and every time I come back home, it is coming to be forced on my mind that we lead them all.

"'Make a comparison! Where were the United States when they had a population of five million? Did they build a transcontinental railway or think of it when they had twice the population that we have now? Of course not! But people will tell you that times have changed, that telephones and telegraphs were not invented in those days and so on. But did they have the business, the commercial activity, and the genuine progress that marks Canada to-day? Every one knows that they did not. The Americans had a territory no larger than ours to handle, they had different climates—tropical in the South, and temperate in the North—but with twice the population of Canada they simply were not in sight for enterprise, and considering the money they had to start with, were not on the horizon in comparison at all. A man who lives in CANADA LIVES IN LUXURY.

Every little town and village scattered about as they are, has its waterworks and its electric light system and every equipment of modern life.

"Let me refer to some ancient history for a Canadian characteristic. When the McKinley tariff went into force, Canada was, for the moment, without a market. We had been selling our goods to the nearest buyers, which was natural, and the effect of the tariff was stunning to Canadian exporters. Did Canadian manufacturers and producers sit back and make a howl? Oh, no! They looked for a new market the next day. Now they have a better market than ever in the Old Country, and the Americans are glad to buy what they can get.

Then Canada labors under another big disadvantage. Being the smaller of the two nations, its markets are the slaughter-ground for American manufacturers, and the tariff is not protective. The tariff is one for revenue only, not of protection, just the opposite of the high walls of the United States This same market-finding pluck and business enterprise is what places Canadians in the highest among the positions of trust throughout the United States.

"Now look at Canadian institutions Take the banks for example, and I have the honor of being a director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The Bank of Montreal is, of course, the premier institution with a hundred millions assets,, while the Bank of Commerce has eighty millions. We have branches everywhere that business can be secured —in San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Victoria and Vancouver, in Alaska and all over the West. Now, was there any such banking system operated in the United States, when the population was five millions or five times that figure? Take the public buildings! I have seen them in half a dozen countries, and Canadian post offices and city halls, libraries and railway depots are equal to anything to be seen anywhere. Look at the immense business built up by the insurance companies—The Canada Life, the Sun, the Confederation, the Imperial, the Canada Mutual, the North American and all the others. Their business is large, profitable and absolutely solid —and they, like the banks, are enterprises of Canadians.

CONTROLLED BY CANADIAN MONEY

"The same is true of the industries I believe the maritime Provinces are destined to become the greatest manufacturing centres on the continent. The Dominion Steel and Iron Company at Sydney has alone expended in the vicinity of $16,000,000, and this industry alone is immense and far-reaching in its results. The people of the Maritime Provinces have had a peculiar career in manufacturing. Previous to confederation they had a very large trade down there in wooden shipbuilding and kindred industries. But after Confederation this fell off. The people laid the blame at the door of Confederation, but it was only the evolution of the industry—ships began to be manufactured in iron. Now those Provinces are reopening, until they promise to be the great manufacturing centres of the country. The investment of thirty millions of dollars in the iron and steel business had a tremendous effect. From the manufacturing of ordinary billets and blooms, the industry is developing to include the turning out of steel rails, and steel shipbuilding will shortly be commenced in conjunction with the works. And there is plenty of money right here in Canada to start more like them.

"Industrially and commercially the same progress is true all through Ontario and further west. The country was never so prosperous as now. You have only to look at the population of Manitoba and adjacent districts— something over 300,000—dividing among themselves sixty millions of dollars for a wheat crop alone, and you have no reason to look further for a reason of prosperity.

"'I was born in England, but now I am a Canadian, because my family has been born and has grown up here and because my interests are here. If there was anything better than being a Canadian, I would go out after it, but there isn't, and I think Canada to-day is the most phenomenally good and prosperous condition of any country in the world."

OLD AGE AND SPRING

Paine's Celery Compound Invigorates and Strengthens Those Advanced in Years.

If You Feel Old, The Great Medicine Will Give You The Vigor and Health of Youth

Everyone in springtime should give attention to the purifying of the blood, the bracing of the nerves, and the regulating of the digestive apparatus.

This is the special time when old people need a tonic and strength-giver—something that will restore them to that condition of health that conduces to make old age happy, cheerful and bright.

Old people should carry home with them to-day — not by-and-by — a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound. It will certainly banish the rheumatism and neuralgia that help to make life a misery. It will drive out of the system all impurities and make the life stream flow fresh and pure; it will banish weakness and all languid feelings, and impart the vigor and activity that mark youthfulness. It is the only medicine that will fully meet the needs and expectations of all in declining years.

Mr. J. Holdsworth, Claremont st., Toronto, Ont., says: "I was taken sick last summer, and was in bed for five weeks or more, and my physician was attending me all the time. My case was pronounced to be weakness of the heart and old age, for I am now seventy-eight years old. I kept getting worse until my recovery was considered hopeless. One of my relatives recommended me to use Paine's Celery Compound, which I did with good results. After the first dose I felt relieved, and in a few days was able to leave my bed and walk around. I used four bottles, and am now quite well. I hope other sufferers will receive as much benefit as I received."

THE KAISER WARNED TO KEEP HANDS OFF

Holland Never will be Annexed Without War

THE DUTCH LEARNING TO SHOOT

Wilhelmina's Last Order Aimed at Enlivening the Military Spirit of Hollanders

Special to The Times.

The Hague, May 14—At the time when Prime Minister Dr. Kuyper received your correspondent and told him about his country's hopes for an heir to the throne, the correspondent asked his excellency a question which he would answer only on condition that his reply be not made public at once. This was the question asked "Supposing that Germany by marriage, hereditary claims, or some other pretext, sought a closer connection with the Netherlands, would the Dutch people tolerate any attempts upon their complete sovereignty?"

Prime Minister Dr. Kuyper "'Never, sir, never."

Correspondent: "'The question of annexation, then, recently raised by the London Times, finds no favor in your government circles?"

Dr. Kuyper: "'Neither in Government circles, nor with the people. We are Dutch to the core, nobody, nothing can make us Germans."

Correspondent: "'You wouldn't even hear of a so-called personal union, the Netherlands ruled by a Prussian prince, subject to the kaiser only so far as the king of Saxony and the other German princes are subject to the Imperial authority?"

Dr. Kuyper: "'Nothing could ever induce us to forego one iota of our national rights or independence. We will neither be annexed nor join a federation of states, such as those constituting the German empire. We are free men and expect to remain masters of our own country as long as the world stands. I guess history backs me up in that statement, bold as it may seem."

Correspondent: "'But suppose Germany did annex the Netherlands under one pretense or another by force? When I say Germany I mean Prussia, Prussia wiped out the Kingdom of Hanover, the electorate of Hesse and the duchy of Nassau in 1866. She would have annexed Saxony, too, if Napoleon III had not interfered. Suppose she conquered you, what then?"

Dr. Kuyper: "'If Prussia ever conquered the Netherlands—God forbid,, for her sake as well as ours that she never makes the attempt—if Prussia, I said, conquered the Netherlands, my country would develop into a second Ireland. She would be to Prussia and Germany what Ireland is to Great Britain, only a ten times more formidible enemy—ten times more of a hindrance to her progress, for we have brains, we have money, we have men and we have friends, Yes friends the world over."

HOLLANDERS LEARNING TO SHOOT

Some little time before she was taken ill, Queen Wilhelmina, of her own accord issued a cabinet order commanding the minister of war henceforth to distribute prizes to the best shots in the kingdom every fall. The prizes consisting of medals in gold, silver, gilt and silver, are given "'to encourage military practice among non-commissioned and among Dutchmen retiring from the army service." As the war department defrays the cost of these medals, Wilhelmina's cabinet order may be regarded as a semi-military measure. While the constitution of the kingdom is against a large standing army, the Queen was anxious to keep the military spirit alive among her people to be alive for all emergencies.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Stratton and prosperity.

• • • •

The dreadful catastrophe at St. Pierre, Martinique, in which 40,000 persons are said to have perished, is one of the most appalling of modern times.

• • • •

People had supposed that such disasters as that of St. Pierre belonged to olden times or to far-away places, and could not happen near our own doors.

• • •

It is likely there will be heavy slumps against Mr. Stratton in some of the rural districts, as it is said that Mr. Garvin will be invited to sing some of his election ditties—words and music by himself, copyrighted.

• • • •

Peterborough will elect the man who has always stood by the town.

Every citizen of Peterborough, regardless of political ties, has a duty to perform, by voting for Mr. Stratton.

• • • •

Australia imports great quantities of paper, of furniture, and of steel rails. Canada will soon be in a position to supply the sister colony, on terms which will defy competition. The Gamo paper mills and the Sydney steel works are exceptionally well located for foreign trade.

He Wanted Work

This great family journal advertised for a man to do some rough work. A big, muscular Irishman walked into the Times Bookstore, in answer to the ad, and glanced around; finally his eye rested on a sign over a case of books: "Dickens' Works all This Week for $1." The Irishman eyed it thoughtfully, then edged towards the door. The young lady clerk asked him pleasantly if there was something he wanted, and the applicant remarked with a backward glance at the sign: "Oi come in t' git th' job, but O'll not care f'r it. Dickens kin wur-ruk all th' week f'r four dollars if he wants to—O'll not." And the visitor, who evidently belongs to the local labor organization, strode vigorously out.

AN APPRECIATIVE LANDLORD

How the Present Scarcity of Houses in Peterborough is Being Felt.

An occupant of a rented cottage in the south end, wishing to add to the comforts of his home and at the same time improve the healthfulness of his place, conceived the idea—a rather unusual one for a tenant—of digging a cellar and putting a stone foundation under the house. All winter he devoted his spare moments—in the morning and in the evening—to the work of excavating, and when the job was completed he proceeded to erect the foundation.

The next time the landlord called to collect the rent he was much surprised at the change in the appearance of his place.

"This is quite an improvement," said he to his tenant.

"Yes, it is," replied the latter. "Well, I felt as though I wanted a little more room, and, as I had a little time to spare I concluded to add a basement to the house."

"It certainly makes quite a difference in the looks of the place," said the landlord, "and ought to make the property more valuable. In view of this fact I suppose I will have to raise the rent. You may have the house at the old price until the 1st of June, but after that I must ask you to pay me $2 a month more."

This was more than the tenant had looked for, and the landlord's remarks took him completely by surprise. As he likes the place and does not care to move and no houses are to be had, he is now wondering whether he can compel the landlord to pay him for the labor and time spent in improving the place.

Germans and Japs in a Fight

Special to The Times.

Victoria, B.C., May 14 — The Japan Herald, brought by the steamer Tartar, which arrived to-day, published details of a collision between Japanese and German soldiers in China. Sergt. Myasaki with two private soldiers was going in the direction of Shan Hai Kwan to replace the garrison there, when he met a party of about ten German soldiers with a Japanese sea flag. The Japanese determined to recover the flag by force, whereupon the Germans quietly handed it over to them. The Japanese thanked the Germans for this courtesy, but no sooner had they turned their backs than the Germans attacked them with drawn swords. Sergt. Myasaki accepted the challenge and, assisted by his subordinates, had a hot engagement with the Germans, several of whom were killed and the others put to flight. The matter, it is feared, may become a grave international question.

GROOM DISAPPEARS ON WEDDING EVE

No Assigned for the Extraordinary Conduct of the Young Man

Special to The Times.

Cobourg, Ont., May 11—The village of Burnley, 20 miles east of here, is excited over the mysterious disappearance of a prominent young farmer who vanished on the eve of his wedding day.

Lorenzo Nathan is the man who has disappeared, and Miss Ellen Shaw is the young woman whom he had promised to lead to the altar. Nathan was a prosperous farmer, popular among his associates, and a man who took an active interest in politics. Both he and Miss Shaw were prominent in local society. They have been "keeping company" for some time, and when the bans were published for the first time two weeks ago Sunday no one was surprised.

On the morning set for the wedding Miss Shaw arrayed herself in her bridal gown, and, surrounded by her bridesmaids and members of her family, awaited the coming of the groom. Down at the church, a stone's throw from the bride's home, a curious crowd had assembled, and inside Rev. Father O'Connor waited patiently the coming of the wedding party. The wedding was set for 8 o'clock, and when Nathan did not put in an appearance at 9, a messenger was dispatched to his home. There it was learned that the young man had not been home since the previous evening. The members of his family thought he had spent the night with some bachelor friends, and were anxiously awaiting his return. Enquiries were then made among his friends, but nothing tangible regarding his movements could be elicited. The news of his disappearance was then broken to his intended, who collapsed completely, and has since been in a precarious condition.

Up to the night of his disappearance young Nathan had been making preparations for the wedding. A couple of days prior to that he drew $300, and it is known that he carried this sum on his person. On the night of his disappearance he left home with the intention of going to a neighboring village, but it has since been learned that he did not go there. It is now feared that he was murdered and robbed on some of the lonely roads near here, and that his body was then hidden. Searching parties have scoured the woods in this vicinity, but no trace of him can be found. Some advance the theory that he relented at the last minute and left the country. This theory, however, does not appear tenable, inasmuch as he left nearly all his clothing behind him, and made no provision for the caring of his stock or the tilling of his farm. He owns one of the best farms in the township.

Sam. Clark, M.P., has a timber limit and saw mill at Burnley, and visits that place once a week. He reports that the community is in a state of fervid excitement over the affair, and that while opinion is divided, many think there has been foul play. The intended bride is one of these. She refuses to be comforted, and it is feared that her mind will give way under the strain.

THE TRENT CANAL

For the Benefit of the Montreal Star We Print Below a Few Facts About the Trent Valley Canal

For the benefit of the Montreal Star we print below a few facts about the Trent valley canal.

This great waterway of 200 miles in length, can be completed for $3,500,000.

When completed it will give continuous navigation to barges of 800 tons burthen (twice the capacity of the Erie Canal) from Montreal to Sault Ste. Marie via Georgian Bay, Lake Simcoe, Otonabee and Trent Rivers and the connected lakes and Bay of Quinte.

It will shorten the distance between all the great western lake ports and Liverpool by 721 miles.

It is capable of being operated during a season of seven months in the year and of transporting 200 million bushels of grain per annum.

By means of the numerous lakes and rivers which it utilizes and intersects, it will give a short line of 11,000 miles and lay under tribute six million acres of agricultural, forest and mineral lands capable of yielding from 50 to 100 tons of freight per acre.

It will utilize the finest continuous system of water powers on the globe. The fall downward from Balsam Lake to Bay of Quinte being 600 feet, while that northward to Georgian Bay is 250 feet.

It will build up cities along its route to manufacture the hardwood timber into furniture and the iron and steel of Midland, Deseronto, and Sault Ste. Marie into all things into which they are convertible and also develop marl lands for the manufacture of Portland cement, the lime quarries for lime and building stone, the mica mines, the lithographic stone quarries, the peat fuel beds, etc., to say nothing of the agricultural products of the rich counties traversed at its southern ends, each bushel of which will have an added value owing to cheaper transportation of 1c per bushel.

It will act as a feeder to the railways which now very imperfectly serve the district through which the canal runs and render valuable an immense amount of material now only encumbering the ground, and valueless, save for the pittance in labor which the unfortunate possessors get for it when cut into cordwood or burned for potash.

140 miles of this waterway is now completed, but bottled up at both ends, yet it is giving employment for internal commerce and tourist travel to 500 steamboats, besides numerous smaller craft.

It has been estimated that a daily flow of 12 millions of gallons of water will be required to operate the canal, but 17 billions of gallons are available and if placed under one control, i.e., Dominion or Provincial, the flow of the stream would be more than doubled, and the water kept at a constant height throughout the year.

And last but not least it would greatly increase the shipping trade of Montreal.

When Miss Delavelle Barrington was playing Miami in The Green Bushes at the old Mary Street Theater, Cork, a ludicrous incident occurred. Miami has to jump into the Mississippi, but when Miss Barrington reached the rocky eminence from which she had to leap she saw there was no mattress below to receive her; also the ledge of rock in front of the supposed river was too low to conceal the actress after her leap. Miss Barrington, however, nothing daunted, took her leap, and came down with a thud on the bare stage. The situation struck a member of the "gods," for a stentorian voice called out "Oh, be jabers, 'tis frozen!"

Lord Chas. Beresford

Rear-Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, who has been on duty in the Mediterranean for some time, is without doubt the most popular man in the British navy. He has recently returned to England, and the newspapers are conjecturing whether he will re-enter Parliament or accept a higher post in the navy. His ability is not estimated to be inferior to his popularity, and there is probably no post associated with the navy for which he would be regarded as unequal. He represents, above all things, the gospel of efficiency, which is being preached just now, and with ample need, judging from the remount scandal, and if in Parliament would do much to insure the maintenance of the navy at the highest practicable standard. The popular sailor celebrated his 56th birthday on February 10th.

A Defence of Canada.

"The title of 'Our Lady of the Snows,'" says the Scottish writer, "bestowed on Canada in a haphazard sort of manner by Rudyard Kipling, is not at all a happy one, as it applies to a season only. I have seen the grapes hanging in luxuriant bunches to the vines in a Quebec garden, and the fields of tomatoes grow crimson in the warm sunshine; I have lingered in the golden wheatfields in the evening, and listened to the myriad sounds of the cricket and grasshopper; I have walked amid the cedar trees in an Ontario swamp when the sunset glow had faded and watched the fireflies darting to and fro like shooting stars; and I have watched the tiny humming-bird, with plumage that rivalled the gaily-painted butterflies, contesting with the bee for the honey that lay within the sweet-smelling flowers. Scenes like these are not associated with a land of never-ending winter. Consequently there can be no greater mistake than to imagine, as too many people do, that Canada is a semi-Arctic country out of which little good can come. And yet, what do we find? According to the returns of the Board of Trade fully 65,000 to 75,000 Britishers went to live in the United States during the past year, while only 12,000 or 13,000 went to Canada. There is no reason to doubt that if the resources and natural wealth of the Dominion of Canada were more generally known in this country, we would soon hear the last of the term "American" as applied to Canadian products, and United States producers would no longer receive the credit for Canadian goods, in many cases superior to their own. Those who guide the destinies of the Dominion think that the Stars and Stripes have overshadowed the Maple Leaf long enough. Every true Briton will be of the same opinion."

Where He Belonged.

The visit of Prince Henry of Prussia to the United States is naturally causing the telling over of some of the countless anecdotes of which the aged Kaiser Wilhelm, grandfather of Emperor Wilhelm and his brother, was the central figure. The following is one of the prettiest I have seen:—

In his later years the aged Kaiser took great pleasure in visiting the schools and catechizing the children. At one time while in the City of Ems he visited an orphan school that was in the city, and under Government patronage.

After listening for an hour or more to the recitations of several of the classes, the Kaiser called to the front a bright, golden-haired little girl seven or eight years of age, and, lifting her into his lap, said to her:

"Now, then, my little fraulein, let me see if you can answer me three hard questions." And taking an orange out of his pocket he held it up. "To what kingdom does this belong?" he asked.

The little girl hesitated a moment and then said timidly: "To the vegetable kingdom."

"Right, my little fraulein," said the Kaiser. "And, now, to what kingdom does this belong?" The Kaiser drew a gold-piece out of his pocket and placed it beside the orange.

More confident this time, the little girl replied: "To the mineral kingdom."

"Better and better," said the Kaiser. "Now, look at me and tell me to what kingdom do I belong."

The little girl was confused. Dare she say "the animal kingdom"? All the teachers and pupils looked at her with breathless expectancy. But in a moment she glanced up brightly into the face of the kind old Kaiser, and said: "To the kingdom of heaven."

This unexpected answer drew tears from the eyes of the Kaiser. "Yes, yes, my child," said he, "I trust that I do belong to the kingdom of heaven; and the day is not far distant when I shall go there, my little fraulein."

Then, kissing the little girl, he presented her with the gold piece and the orange, and brought his visit to a close.

A Slanderer of the British.

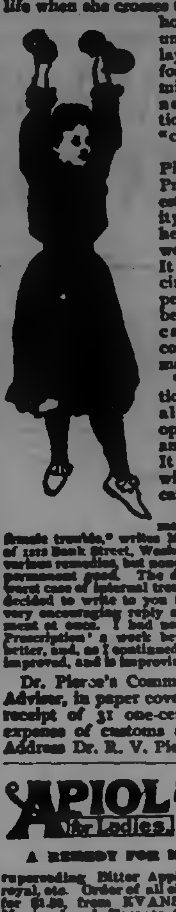
The Berlin correspondent of The Standard says that further evidence has come to light of the methods employed to stir up anti-British feeling in Germany. The history of the man Kaulitz or Farlow, who at the outbreak of the Boer war founded the "London cable correspondence" for supplying the continental press with alleged war news, which was "made in London," has been traced by The Kolnische Zeitung. The Kolnische quotes from a provincial paper a list of this man's misdeeds. He was born at Brunswick, became a Social Democrat at Leipsic in the seventies, and was afterwards, it is said, sentenced to two and a half years' imprisonment for inciting the workmen in the Saar district by articles in his paper. Later on he became Johann Most's partner in London and was on the staff of his paper. After giving a few further facts about the man's career The Kolnische says:—"This honorable gentleman has now been unmasked, but, unfortunately, too late, for the lies about the atrocities of English Lancers at Elandslaagte, outrages on helpless Boer women and girls, etc., continue to be freely circulated, and whoever attempts to disprove them is suspected and insulted for being an English hireling."

At a New York Pier.

The traveler fell on his knees and begged for mercy; but the customs inspector was adamant.

"Once, and once only," said the latter, "I let a man go through without offering him every indignity that savage ingenuity can devise. He proved to be a spotter from Washington, and I nearly lost my job. I shan't make that mistake again."

Yes, the traveler would have to have his stomach pumped out; most distinct-[illegible]



TOO MUCH

Exercise is as bad as too little for the growing girl. It is very easy for her to overdo, and this is especially dangerous at that critical period of a young girl's life when she crosses the line of womanhood. It is not an uncommon thing to lay the foundation for years of after misery by neglect of necessary precautions at the first "change of life."

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only establishes regularity, but it gives health to the entire womanly organism. It is the best medicine for diseases peculiar to women because it cures the causes of disease completely and permanently.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine nor any other narcotic. It cannot disagree with the most delicate constitution.

"For a number of months I suffered with female trouble," writes Miss Agnes McGowne, of 1212 Bank Street, Washington, D. C. "I tried various remedies, but none seemed to do me any permanent good. The doctors said it was the worst case of internal trouble they ever had. I decided to write to you for help. I received a very encouraging reply and commenced treatment at once. I had not used your 'Favorite Prescription' a week before I began to feel better, and, as I continued, my health gradually improved, and is improving every day."

Relics in Jerusalem.

The Greek Catholic monks, who are in possession of the chief portions of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, are now going to build a bazaar opposite it, where pilgrims may purchase souvenirs of their visit to Jerusalem. During the process of clearing the site the foundations of an old mediaeval church, forty meters long and thirty wide, with three apses, were discovered. A number of fine capitals, fragments of basalt pillars, and bas-reliefs, with symbolic animals, were found, all these remains having doubtless belonged to the choir of the church. Last year a valuable silver shrine, containing a piece of the holy cross and relics of the Apostles Peter and Paul—according, at least, to the inscriptions on them—was discovered at the same place.

The Patriarch of Jerusalem, it is said, is keeping other discoveries secret, owing to his dislike of the Roman Catholic Church. Those mentioned above are all the more important, as it can be ascertained to what church they belonged. According to the statement of a mediaeval traveller, the hospice and the monastery which the citizens of Amalfi founded about the year 640, as a refuge for western pilgrims, was situated due south of the Holy Sepulchre, about a stone's throw away. The first church was built in honor of St. Mary de Latinis, and the second, the ruins of which have now been found, in honor of St. John the Baptist. The French monk Bernard, who lived there in 870, highly praised the hospitality and the large library of the hospice. A Mohammedan historian says it was destroyed by the Khalif Hakem, and rebuilt shortly afterwards, while, according to another account, it prospered down to the time of King Baldwin of Jerusalem, from 1100 to 1118, when the two communities of St. Mary and St. John adopted the latter as their joint protector. This was the origin of the Knights of St. John. The remains now discovered, therefore, are the ruins of the cradle of this order. It is most unfortunate that the preservation of these very interesting remains seems impossible, owing to the ill-feeling which exists between the Greek and Roman Catholics in Jerusalem.—London Standard.

A Defence of the "Old Maid."

A toast is offered to the spinster! We meet a great many pleasant people in the world, but nowhere do we find a more satisfactory person than that elderly unmarried woman generally and somewhat disrespectfully known as the "old maid," and supposed to be afflicted with "nerves" and a cantankerous disposition. As a matter of fact, she is frequently the sweetest, most self-forgetful of her sex. She usually walks, with tact and a loving heart, in other women's paths, lives in other women's homes, and rejoices in other women's joys, making them her own. The children adore her, for she becomes to them a sort of fairy godmother, one who possesses all the tenderness of a mother without the extremes of maternal discipline. She loves to give children a "good time," and does it with extraordinary success. In household details, what a treasure! How many dinners owe their success to her, who reaps no glory except the glory of doing! And in the ultimate trials of life, what a prop and solace she becomes! But it is to the young boy-lovers of the family that she exhibits the finest flower of her capacity for friendship. What a gift of understanding she seems to have! There is no difficulty she cannot dissipate, no fear she cannot lessen, no tender little half-eared hope that she does not encourage to bloom for the other woman. It is always for somebody else that she is working, and perhaps it is this which gives to her eyes the look that even the worst among us unconsciously associate with all that is best and fairest in life. Let them make fun of her if they will, but could we do without her?—Harper's Weekly.

NEW SPRING NOVELTIES JUST RECEIVED

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE.

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.

WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the decoration scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end Our wall papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD
WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

My lady, the chatelaine, wove in beautiful designs and embroideries the tapestries from which we have borrowed some beautiful ideas in our wall paper.

Huxley and the Reporters.

On his arrival in Baltimore, Professor Huxley was driven to the country seat of Mr. Garrett, who had offered him hospitality and had invited a large company to meet him in an afternoon party. There was but one intervening day between his arrival, tired out by a long journey in the interior, and his delivery of the address. He had hardly reached the residence of his host before the reporters discovered him and asked for the manuscript of his speech. "Manuscript?" he said. "I have none. I shall speak freely on a theme with which I am quite familiar." "Well, professor," said the interlocutor, "that is all right, but our instructions are to send the speech to the papers in New York, and if you cannot give us the copy we must take it down as well as we can and telegraph it, for the Associated Press is bound to print it the morning after it is spoken." This was appalling, for in view of the possible inaccuracy of the shorthand, and the possible condensation of the wireband, the lecturer was afraid that technical and scientific terms might not be rightly reproduced. "You can have your choice, professor," said the urbane reporter, "to give us the copy or to let us do the best we can, for report the speech we shall." The professor yielded, and the next day he walked up and down his room at Mr. Garrett's dictating to a stenographer, in cold and irresponsive seclusion, the speech which he expected to make before a receptive and hospitable assembly.

I sat very near the orator as he delivered the address in the Academy of Music, and noticed that, although he kept looking at the pile of manuscript on the desk before him, he did not turn the pages over. The speech was appropriate and well received, but it had no glow, and the orator did not equal his reputation for charm and persuasiveness. When the applause was over I said to Mr. Huxley: "I noticed that you did not read your address; I am afraid the light was insufficient." "Oh," said he, "that was not the matter. I have been in distress. The reporters brought me, according to their promise, the copy of their notes. It was on thin translucent paper, and to make it legible they put clean white sheets between the leaves. That made such bulk that I removed the intermediate leaves, and when I stood up at the desk I found I could not read a sentence. So I have been in a dilemma—not daring to speak freely, and trying to recall what I dictated yesterday and allowed the reporters to send to New York." If he used an epithet before the word "reporters" I am sure he was justified, but I forget what it was.—Dr. D. C. Gilman in "Scribner's Magazine."

A Feat of Memory.

During a debate in the House, between Gladstone and Disraeli, when the latter in the course of his remarks had occasion to quote from a recent speech made by his rival upon some platform in the country, a dramatic scene was enacted, and is described by Harry Furniss in his recent book, "Confessions of a Caricaturist."

Suddenly Mr. Gladstone started up and exclaimed: "I never said that in my life!"

Disraeli was silent, and putting his hands behind his back, gazed apparently in blank astonishment at the box in front of him. Several seconds went by, but he never moved. The members in the crowded House looked from one to the other, and many imagined that Disraeli was merely waiting for his opponent to apologise. But Mr. Gladstone, who had a habit, which he developed in later years, of chatting volubly to his neighbor during any interruption of this kind in which he was concerned, made no sign. A minute passed, but the sphinx did not move.

A minute and a quarter, but he was still motionless.

A minute and a half of this silence seemed as if it was an hour.

When the second minute was completed the excitement in the House began to grow intense. Disraeli seemed to be transfixed. Was he ill? Was the great man sulking? What could this strange silence portend?

Two minutes and a half!

Some members rose and approached him, but Disraeli raised his hands as if to deprecate their interference, and they stole back to their places, conscious that they were forbidden to interrupt. Then at last, when the minute-hand of the clock had passed three times round its course, the most remarkable silence which the House had ever experienced within living memory was broken as the Tory leader slowly began once more to speak.

"Mr. Chairman," he said, "and gentlemen," and then word for word he repeated the whole speech of Mr. Gladstone from which he had made his quotation, duly introducing the particular passage which the Liberal leader had denied. Then he paused and looked across at his rival. The challenge was not to be avoided, and Mr. Gladstone bowed—he would have raised his hat did he wear one in the House, which, in the phraseology of the ring, was equivalent to throwing up the sponge. Mr. Disraeli afterward informed a friend that, working backward, he had recalled the whole of Mr. Gladstone's speech to his mind. Beginning at the disputed quotation, he recovered the context which led up to it, and so, step by step, the entire oration. Then he was enabled to repeat it from the outset exactly as he had read it.

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leafy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

Meanwhile matters were nearing the fatal end for the hapless girl who had paid such a bitter price for love's sake.

Harold St. John had entirely recovered from the accident which had befallen him, and was speeding toward New York city as fast as steam could take him.

"Heiress to a million in her own right," he muttered, for the fiftieth time on that journey, as he leaned back in his cushioned chair watching the night stars as the train whirled along. "I shall take a terrible vengeance upon her for daring to marry Hamilton. I will show her that I—and not Hamilton —am her lord and master, I will bring her to my feet, and when she kneels there asking me to pardon her, I shall please myself as to whether I will or not."

There was an awful malignity in his face, a fixed, terrible purpose.

"I must have my revenge," he muttered. "I may forgive her then, I may pardon her when I have crushed her pride and made her suffer, but not until then. I shall bring the whole force of the law against her; I will claim her and make her own the truth. I will have my wife, even though she should leave me again. If she were kneeling here with the pallor of death on her face, and the cold of death in her heart and I could save her by only one word I would not speak that word until I had had my revenge."

There was little hope for beautiful hapless Daisy with a relentless foe like this upon her track.

It was nearly sun-down when the train bearing Harold St. John reached New York.

"Too late for me to do anything tonight," he decided, as he drove to his hotel, "tomorrow I will begin my search, and ere the sun sets I shall have claimed her, my fair, false, beautiful, young wife. She may tremble for the future which lies before her, for she will have need to."

CHAPTER XXXII.

A Significant Telegram.

It so happened that on the day following Daisy's interview with Hetty on the porch, Aleck had received a telegram from Boston stating that his presence was needed there in a very important speculation, and accordingly he made preparations to go at once.

All in vain Daisy pleaded to accompany him. For once Aleck was firm in refusing her.

"It is to be purely a business trip," he declared, "and a man cannot attend to a wife when he has business to see to. You need not be lonely, darling," he added.

"Are you not in the bosom of your own family, with your father, Olive and Hetty about you? With fully five hundred dear friends to fall back on should you want company? Why, you couldn't be lonesome, my dear," he added laughing.

"I am always lonely when you are not near, Aleck," she said, twining her white arms about him, and hiding her face on his breast. "You are my world, Aleck. Ah, dear, if you would but take me with you," she sighed. "I have a strange presentiment that something will happen before I see you again."

"Foolish, superstitious Daisy," he laughed. "I gave you credit for more logic than this."

"You will always remember how I begged to go with you, Aleck," she said solemnly; "how I prayed and pleaded with you, telling you that I had a presentiment."

Aleck stopped the lovely mouth with kisses lest she should persuade him against his better judgment to take her.

The thing was almost among the impossibilities, for he was going with a party of gentlemen, and upon important business. No— no, it wasn't to be thought of.

But the lovely, tearful face haunted him for hours after he had reached Boston.

He thought it was because he had never been parted from her a whole day since their marriage before.

While smoking his usual after-dinner cigar, he took out of his pocket a copy of a New York paper, and almost the first item his eye rested upon was an announcement of the arrival at one of the New York hotels of Harold St. John.

He could not understand then, but he knew soon afterward what the shivering sensation meant that passed like an icy chill over his heart.

Two gentlemen, seated in the smoking-room, were evidently discussing the same paragraph.

"St. John is a man of splendid talents," observed one; "but they are fearfully misused. Such men, I always claim, are better in prison than out. Despite his career, he seems to take well with women. He is as handsome as a prince, and as wicked as the Prince of Darkness."

Both gentlemen laughed immoderately.

"Did you see him talking to that little beauty in the park yesterday? Why, there was quite a little scene. I was riding by in too big a hurry to catch the train to stop, or I should have done so to have found out what the commotion was about. The lady he was speaking to threw up her hands with a terrible cry and fell face downward in a dead faint.

"She was such a beautiful little creature," continued the gentleman, thoughtfully. "If I were an artist or a poet I might attempt to describe to you what she was like. Her hair, which seemed to have caught the shining gold of the sunlight, framed the sweetest, most bewitching pink-and-white dimpled face I ever beheld; and her eyes, why, they were simply like the hearts of two velvet pansies steeped in dew."

"How like the description of my Daisy!" thought Aleck, smiling. "I imagined there was not another in the whole world like her."

It would certainly have been against Aleck's principles to have deliberately listened, but he was so near he could not help overhearing their remarks.

"She is married," pursued the gentleman. "I remember seeing her once before with her husband at a New York reception. It was certainly not to her credit to be seen in company with such a man as St. John. I know her husband quite well— he ought to be warned against allowing his young wife to make the acquaintance of such a man as St. John. I declare the husband ought to have a hint dropped to him."

"Take my advice and don't meddle with affairs of that kind," declared the other gentleman, "unless you want to figure in a divorce proceeding, and that isn't pleasant."

Anecdotal.

At a recent dinner in New York the Rev. Dr. Minot J. Savage told a story of a lady who was asked: "Do you ever think of getting married?" "Think," she answered with asperity. "I worry."

A Toronto man, father of an unusually numerous family, was visited by a Westerner. "I never saw anything like it, old man," remarked the stranger over the cigars; "every time I come you have a new baby." "Oh, don't mind it, my dear fellow; it isn't your fault," was the quick reply.

The late Lord Dufferin had put on record a Sheridan story which is worth repeating. Richard Brinsley Sheridan was one day remonstrating with his son in reference to some peccadillo, and finished by exclaiming, "Why, Tom, my father would never have permitted me to do such a thing." Like lightning came the repartee: "Sir, do you presume to compare your father with my father!"

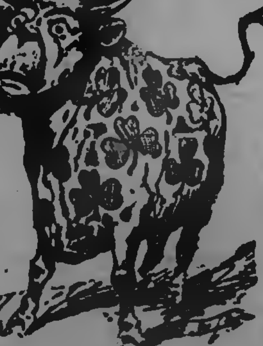
A young heiress with a penchant for farming was explaining at length the many difficulties she encountered in pursuing her fad. "I really am a farmer," she protested, and then added, regretfully, "although it must be confessed that almost all I plant I lose." "Therein differing from me," courteously rejoined her table companion, a rising young physician, "for I find in my case that almost all I lose I plant."

An omnibus full of Parisian students was making its way along the Rue de Rivoli when a priest in his robes of office joined the party. The students hailed the newcomer with delight, and began at once to tell all the objectionable stories they could recall. The priest spoke not a word till he rose to get out. Then he said, politely: "Au revoir, messieurs." The French "au revoir" means literally, "till we see each other again." One of the students evidently had this in mind when he replied. "Um," he said, "we don't want to meet you again, old dismal!" "But, au revoir," repeated the cure; "we are sure to meet again. I am the chaplain of the Mazas prison."

Once when Sir Charles Hotham, Governor of Victoria, was out driving, his coachman nearly came into collision with a wood carter, an Irishman, in a narrow lane outside Melbourne. The Irishman would not pull off the middle of the road, as he had the heavier load, and, by the rough rule of such things, was thus entitled to keep there. The incensed governor thereupon put his head out of the carriage window and shouted: "Do you know who I am, my man? I'm Sir Charles Hotham, the Governor of Victoria!" "Ye are, are ye?" responded the other. "Well, ye've got a thunderin' foine billet, ould man, an' I'd advise ye to shtick to it!"

When called to take up mission work in Chicago, the late Bishop Whipple found busy railway yards close to his chapel. He asked the chief engineer how to reach railway operatives. "Read Lardner's 'Railway Economy' until you are able to ask a question of an engineer and he not think you a fool." So instructed, he dropped in one day on a group cleaning an engine, and ventured a question: "Which do you like the better, inside or outside connections?" A torrent of discussion followed on connections, steam-heaters, exhausts; and at the end of a half hour he remarked, in leaving: "Boys, I have a free church in Metropolitan Hall, where I should be glad to see you." The next Sunday every man was there.

In order to show the feeling of insecurity of the Czar of all the Russias amongst his subjects, Prince Bismarck related the following anecdote of the Emperor Nicholas: The court physician had prescribed massage for some ailment of the Czar, who, however, was unable to find a single person in his entourage to whom he cared to entrust the task. At his wit's end, he at last applied to Frederick William IV. for a few non-commissioned officers of the Prussian Guard; these were sent, and returned to Berlin after the completion of the rubbing "cure" heavily laden with presents. "So long as I can look my Russians in the face everything is well," Nicholas is reported to have said, "but I will not risk letting them work away at my back."



AN IRISH BULL.—"Judge."

They Left.

"It does me good to see a smart Aleck get the worst of it," said the communicative conductor to the man on the back platform. "There were two of them on my car yesterday, and their game was to scare people into thinking that they were just recovering from smallpox. They talked loudly about it for the benefit of the other passengers, and the more nervous ones, especially the women, began to grow apprehensive.

"'Yes,' said one, 'my case was a pretty bad one, the doctors said.'

"'So was mine,' replied the other fellow. 'It seems good to get out of the Municipal Hospital, doesn't it?'

"'That's what it does,' said the first one.

"Sitting next to them was a man who had been taking it all in. At this point he leaned over and said:

"'Say, when did you fellows get out?'

"'Only yesterday,' loudly remarked one of the kidders.

"'Is that so,' exclaimed the man. 'So did I. What ward were you in?'

"Well, say, those fellows jumped off the car as though it had been struck by lightning."

A SIMPLE FAITH.

SERMON BY
GEORGE H. HEPWORTH.

Ye believe in God, believe also in me.—St. John xiv., 1.

What is absolutely essential in religion, so far as doctrine is concerned, is very little and very simple. The church has for a long time had a strange notion that in order to be saved a man must believe a long list of dogmas, whereas the only condition imposed by the Christ is that a man shall have a heart and a life full of love which lifts someone's burden whenever the chance occurs, and seek the strength to do it from Him who is Father to all alike.

There is this difference between what is called "a body of doctrine" and a spiritual principle, namely, that not everybody can either understand or accept the doctrine, while no man is so unlettered or so obtuse that he need fail to do what is right because he is in doubt about it. The road to heaven is not a tangled maze of statement about Christ or God, but a straight and open path from the trusting human heart to the immortal life, a path in which the little child and the grave philosopher may hand in hand wend their way with equal pleasure and profit.

You need corner-stones if you erect a building, and for a like reason you need certain beliefs if you make for yourself a character. Faith in a God who will never desert you stands first. It must be an unflinching faith, however, or it will give way in the time of emergency. You begin well when you begin with that, and you begin ill if you begin in any other fashion.

I have a queer suspicion that the faith in the ability or willingness of God to see us safely through all earthly experience is clouded by more or less doubt. It is a matter which we keep to ourselves, but deep down in the heart is a wonder whether this beautiful something which we call religion can be relied upon as firmly, for instance, as the sea captain relies on his compass in a storm. Hence the despair which we find when death comes into the house, and hence our weakness when a bold and insolent temptation assails us. We are not thoroughly convinced, and, though we hope that God is there and does hear us when we cry, we have a doubt which seizes us like a sudden throb of agony.

That is not religion; it is only the simulation of it. It is a staff of willow, not a staff of oak. It serves in good weather, but in the tempest it fails us. When Davy invented his wire gauze lamp as a protection against the explosive fire damp in mines the workmen looked at it and shook their heads. It was too simple to be worth much. But Davy had faith in his lamp. He lighted the candle, went into the bowels of the earth, sought the spot where fire damp lay in ambush and exposed himself to the danger. He had not only a theory, but a conviction. He would trust his life to it. No test could be too severe. He felt absolutely safe with that lantern in his hand.

That is the kind of faith we want if our lives are to become heroic. And when we are possessed of it we have something else besides. Faith in God produces faith that our earthly experiences are our discipline and our preparation. The moment you see God as your Father duty becomes not only clear and distinct, but easy. Alone you can bear but little, but with the infinite reservoir of power and love to draw from you are equal to whatever your position may be. If God is with you, then the angels who do His bidding will be your companions. You become one of the great family and will be consciously helped by unseen hands over the rough places. And this consciousness will grow clearer as your faith increases, until in the end there will be only a thin veil between you and the other world. You will live in the friendship of the departed as you live in that of the dear ones in your household. The Christ realized this, but we are yet dull of hearing and dim of sight.

Immortality will become not a vague hope or even a reasonable belief, but a demonstrable certainty, and you will live in the two worlds at the same time. Your last hour will find you with a smile on your lips and a great gladness in your heart. You will eagerly step out of a tired body to be welcomed by those who await your coming.

That is the kind of religion which men long for, and which they will have when they wake up from this half belief and this make believe to a realization of the glorious truth. It was Christ's religion, and it is our own fault if we do not make it ours.

Herr Von Holleben, who entertains Prince Henry as Germany's chief representative in America, has been Ambassador at Washington since 1897, and was Minister to the United States from 1889 to 1891. He is the second in the Ambassadorial corps, and upon the retirement of Lord Pauncefote will become the dean. He is sixty years old, a native of Bremen, and a graduate of Heidelberg. He was educated especially for the diplomatic service. While at the university he was distinguished as a successful duelist, and his face shows the marks of sword encounters. Meeting in Douro

A meeting in the interests of Mr. Wm. Anderson, the Liberal Candidate in East Peterborough, was held in the old church, Douro, last night. There was a large gathering of electors and the chair was occupied by Mr. John Welsh. The speakers were Messrs. Wm. Anderson, G. W. Powell, R. F. McWilliams.

Provincial Appointments

The Gazette announces the following appointments:—Wm. M. Hersey, Police Magistrate for Bowmanville and Durham Ward; C. F. Farwell, Sault Ste. Marie, Registrar of Deeds for Algoma; R. Bell, Chatham, County Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace, pro tem. for Kent County; A. W. Holmsted, Toronto, notary public for Ontario; Benjamin Hanna, Parry Sound, bailiff First Division Court, Parry Sound.

Business Not Too Brisk

The painters state that business—particularly in the line of wall paper hanging—is not so good as last year in town. The reason for the slump is explained by the fact that last spring owners of houses were obliged to cater to the wants of the tenants; now it is different. There are more tenants than there are houses to accommodate them, and the landlord is therefore at the bat.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Events Under This Head Transpiring in and around Peterborough.

NOTE.—The Times requests its readers to furnish the paper with items of a personal and social nature either by 'phone or in writing.—Ed. TIMES.]

—Mr. Charles Fowlds, of Hastings, was in town yesterday.

—Mr. John Millar, M.A., of Toronto News, was in town yesterday and was given a run around the Little Lake on Mr. R. M. Roy's steam yacht. He returns to Toronto this morning.

—Mr. A. Weir, the popular and energetic representative of the well known firm of Messrs. W. B. Reed & Co., cigar manufacturers, Montreal and Toronto, was in town yesterday in the interests of his company. This firm do a large and constantly increasing business in this district, their special brands being "Manhattan," "Rob. Roy," and "Caboose."

To Go to the Coronation

Seven worthy representatives of Peterborough's best type of a soldier paraded at the Armories last night after the march out of the Regiment and were put through difficult drill by Col. Edwards. One of the number will be chosen to go to the Coronation. The lucky man will probably be Sergt. Ed. Wand, drum major of the band, or Corp. Ironsides, of No. 4 Company. The boys have yet to appear for the doctor's examination.

Pte. Brown, of A Co. one of the South African veterans was the choice of the African veterns, was the choice of the majority of the regiment but owing to his present occupation had to decline the honor.

THE FARMERS' PICNIC

Arrangements for the Big Farmers' Picnic to Jubilee Point is Proceeding

Arrangements for the big farmers' picnic to Jubilee Point is proceeding. Mr. Wm. Collins, the energetic Secretary, is not letting the grass grow under his feet, and has already secured several speakers, who will address the farmers on topics of interest—namely the proposed sugar beet industry for Peterborough. Mr. Duncan Anderson, of Rugby, Ont.,—one of the best Farmers' Institute orators in the country, will be sent by the government, and Prof. Harcourt or Prof. Gamble, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, will also be present. Mr. Collins proposes to make the pic-nic this year the best that has ever been held in this locality, and there is every indication that he will be completely successful in his efforts.

IN GOOD SANITARY CONDITION

Are the Rooms in the Lake Street Separate School

Dr. Bingham, Medical Health Officer, makes the following report in connection with the sanitary condition of the Lake street Separate School:

On the 9th inst., in company with the chairman of the Board of Health, I inspected the sanitary condition of the Lake street separate school. All the rooms were in a good sanitary condition so that the most rigid sanitarian could find no fault with the school. But to make assurance doubly sure we disinfected and fumigated every room in the building, so thoroughly that it would be impossible for the most minute germs of disease to escape destruction. The school rooms are clean and absolutely free from any infection. The outside premises were examined and found to be in a proper sanitary condition.

Diptheria is a dirt disease, and it gradually starts in some family where sanitary measures are unknown, and this the disease spreads by infection in other families were the most scrupulous cleanliness is observed.

J. BINGHAM,
Medical Health Officer.

LIGHT "BOOZE"

Do You Drink It?

A minister's wife had quite a tussle with coffee and her experience is interesting. She says: "During the two years of my training as a nurse while on night duty I became addicted to coffee drinking, for between midnight and four in the morning, when the patients were asleep, there was little to do except make the rounds, and it was quite natural that I should want a good, hot cup of coffee about that time. It stimulated me and I could keep awake better.

After three or four years of coffee drinking I became a nervous wreck and thought that I simply could not live without my coffee. All this time I was subject to frequent bilious attacks, sometimes so severe as to keep me in bed for several days.

After being married, husband begged me to leave off coffee for he feared that it had already hurt me almost beyond repair, so I resolved to make an effort and release myself from the hurtful habit. I began taking Postum Food Coffee and for a few days felt the languid. Tired feeling from the lack of the stimulant, but I liked the taste of Postum and that answered for the breakfast beverage all right.

Finally I began to feel clearer headed and had steadier nerves. After a year's use of Postum I now feel like a new woman. Have not had any bilious attacks since I left off coffee." This lady requests that her name be kept from public print. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION

Mr. Buchanan Addresses a Meeting in the Opera House

In the Opera House lastnight a mass meeting was held, under the auspices of the Peterborough Temperance Alliance, for the discussion of the temperance question in the present election campaign. Mr. W. W. Buchanan, of Toronto, Secretary of the Manitoba alliance, was the principal speaker of the evening, the chair being occupied by Mr. J. M. R. Roberts, of Selwyn.

The meeting was opened with a male quartette and chorus. On account of the inability of Mr. Buchanan to reach Peterborough at the hour named for the meeting, short addresses were given by the chairman, by Mr. Lindsay and several clergymen of the town who were present.

Mr. Buchanan arrived on the nine o'clock train and from then till eleven o'clock occupied the attention of the House. During the course of his address he took the position that no matter to what political party a man may belong, it is his duty to vote for the candidate who has pledged himself to support prohibition independent of either party. He would not support Major Miller, the Conservative candidate for this riding, because he is a Conservative, but because he has pledged himself to help any movement in favor of temperance reform. He believed that Mr. Miller was in favor of other reforms also in the administration, and consequently deserved the support of the riding. After critizing the policy of the Liberal Government with regard to New Ontario, the speaker referred to the dealings of the advocates of temperance with the various leaders of the Government in Ontario, claiming that the latter had not kept their pledges to pass prohibitory laws. He would admit, he said, that no law would ever entirely do away with drink in the country, but claimed that with a prohibitory law properly enforced the evil would be greatly lessened. The meeting was concluded by the singing of the National Anthem.

THE RIGHT TIME TO SPRAY

Is When the Blossom Has Fallen, Not at Full Bloom the Law Says

Parties who are spraying their trees will do well to be careful of the time at which the work is done. Not only is the practice of spraying while the blossom is full, contrary to law, but it is positively hurtful to the crop. The pistil is so sensitive at this time that the spraying is liable to kill it and the consequence is no fruit. When the bloom has fallen is the proper time to spray the trees., according to the report of Mr. A. W. Peart, Burlington. A section of the act reads as follows —

1., No person in spraying or sprinkling fruit trees, during the period within which such trees are in full bloom, shall use or cause to be used any mixture containing Paris green or any poisonous substance injurious to bees.

2. Any person contravening the provision of this Act, shall, on summary conviction thereof, before a justice of the peace be subject to a penalty of not less than $1.00 or more than $5.00 with or without costs of prosecution, and in case of a fine or a fine and costs being awarded, and of the same not being upon conviction forthwith paid the justice may commit the offender to the common gaol, there to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding thirty days unless the fine and costs are sooner paid.

3. This Act shall not come into force until the first day of January, 1893.

London, May 14 — A despatch from Vryheid, Transvaal, dated May 5, says that natives who were searching for stolen cattle discovered a Boer laager at Scheeper's Nek and killed thirty Boers.

A True Nerve Tonic

Will act, not so much directly upon the nerves as upon the digestive functions and the abundant formation of red, vitalising blood. Nerves can't be fed on medicine. They can, however, be restored and strengthened by assimilated food. The marvellous action of Ferrozone arises from its action over the digestive and assimilative processes. When you take Ferrozone the blood is purified, strengthened, and grows rich and red. Then you grow vigorous, healthy and beautiful, ready for work, because you have the strength to do it. No tonic for the brain, blood or nerves compares with Ferrozone. Price 50c., at druggists, or Ormond & Walsh.

SHIPPED FLOUR TO MARTINIQUE

The Flavelle Milling Co., Town, Had Dealings with a St. Pierre Firm

Lindsay Post: It will interest all our readers to know that a Lindsay firm, the Flavelle Milling Co., has for several years made regular shipments of flour to a prominent commission firm of St. Pierre, Martinique, the ill-fated city that was destroyed the other day, with its entire population, by an earthquake. On Saturday the firm received a cheque drawn by their customer in their favor on the Bank de Martinique for the sum of 3,634 francs, and it was deposited to-day for collection by the Bank of Montreal. Newspaper despatches convey the news that all the members of the staff of the Martinique Bank lost their lives, and in all probability the commission merchants also perished.

Another shipment of flour was consigned to the same house last week via New York, but had not reached the steamer when news of the disaster arrived, and the order was cancelled by the Messrs. Flavelle.

Southern Presbyterians Concert

Special to The Times.

Jackson, Miss., May 14 — This city is filling with visitors for the Southern Presbyterian General Assembly, which begins its sessions to-morrow in the First Presbyterian Church. From all indications the attendance will be unusually large. Several matters of importance to the denomination are to be considered and acted upon and the session will probably last ten days.

BOERS STRIPPED THE DEAD

A Canadians Unpleasant but Lively Experience in South Africa

Special to The Times.

Chatham, May 14 — In a letter to his parents, James A. Kendall, a trooper in the Second C.M.R. says anent the fight with Gen. Delarey's forces:

"Our squadron was in command of Lieut. Bruce Carruthers. This was a most trying and critical time for us, our first actual smell of gunpowder. We might have escaped, but, even then, would have lost heavily in doing so. The order was given to throw up trenches and defend ourselves. I shall never forget the awfulness of that day. The air was rent with shells, pom-poms, Maxims and rifle poured a deadly hail of shot into our ranks. I am very thankful to tell you I only got a slight flesh wound in the left arm. My hat was shot through. My water bottle was shot away. Several shots seemed to skim past my face. We were almost wiped out. Most of my chums are dead. Poor Charley Evans was next to me; then Huston. Both of these poor lads are no more. Millan, next man to Huston, was badly wounded.

"The more I see of the Boers, the greater is my disgust and contempt for them. They stripped me of everything but my underwear. They stripped the wounded; yes, and even the dead. I saw some with only a shirt on."

The Cause of Deafness

Deafness and impaired hearing are due almost entirely to catarrhal inflammation of the eustacian tubes. Permanent cure is guaranteed to all who inhale Catarrhozone as directed. This vegetable antiseptic is inhaled at the mouth, and after traversing all the air passages of the respiratory organs is exhaled through the nostrils; it completely erradicates catarrh from any part of the system, clears the ears, nose and throat, and allays inflammation, congestion and soreness. For deafness, earache, ringing in the ears, head noises, catarrh, asthma and bronchitis, medical science can devise nothing as beneficial as Catarrhozone. Complete outfit for two months' use, price $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, after this notice has been posted up for one month in six public places in the Municipality and published weekly for four successive weeks in a newspaper published in the Municipality, the Council of the Town of Peterborough propose to pass a by-law authorising the Peterborough Radial Railway Company to lay out, construct and operate its railway on, upon and/along any of the streets of the Town of Peterborough (except Crescent street).

The said Council will at its regular meeting to be held on the 2nd day of June, 1902, hear in person or by counsel anyone whose property may be prejudicially affected by such proposed railway, who desires to be heard, and any person so heard may appeal to the Railway Committee of the Executive Council of Ontario against such By-law.

The proposed agreement for such franchise is on file in the office of the Town Clerk and may be examined by anyone interested.

Dated this 6th day of May, 1902.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Town Clerk.

TERRIBLE DEATH OF AN AERONAUT

Senhor Severo, the Brazilian Killed on His Trial Trip

THE EXPLOSION IN MID-AIR

Aeronaut Fell in a Street and was Dashed to Pieces — Engineer was Burned to Death

Paris, May 14.—The death of Senhor Severo, the Brazilian aeronaut, who, with an assistant was killed this morning by the explosion of his airship, La Paix, in which he was making a trial trip, created terrible consternation.

Senhor Severo had invited a number of friends to witness the ascension, and his wife and a number of relatives were following the course of the balloon in motor cars. Suddenly the spectators were horrified by a bright flash of light, followed by a loud explosion. The balloon, which at this time was 1,500 feet above the ground, fell rapidly, landing on the roof of a house.

The aeronaut fell into the street and was dashed to pieces. The bones of his legs were forced through the soles of his boots. The engineer who accompanied him was burned to death.

The accident is said to have been caused by a leakage of gas.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Senhor Severo started with the intention of sailing to the military parade ground at Issy, and a large number of his relatives and friends were preceding in the direction of that village (situated five miles south-west of Paris). With an engineer named Sachet, Severo sailed out of his balloon-house near the Boulevard de Vagirard, at 5.30 a.m., in excellent spirits, and full of confidence, the aeronaut put his airship through a series of evolutions before starting in the direction of Issy. There seemed to be some hitch with the steering gear, and the rear propelling screw turned with difficulty. Nevertheless, after several stoppages, the airship sailed of, moving steadily enough through a light breeze. Suddenly a puff of wind caught the airship and whirled it over the Avenue Dumaine. The ship turned completely around and veered about in a fashion showing that control of her had been lost. Then, from the center of the outer envelope, a tongue of flame darted out. This was followed by a loud report, resembling a cannon shot, and the ship sank like a stone, falling on the roof of a house, thence into some trees, and finally reaching the Avenue Dumaine almost ontop of its occupants, who had previously been precipitated to the stone pavement. The fearfully mangled corpses of Severo and Sachet were conveyed to a neighboring police station. The bodies of the two men presented a horrible spectacle, especially that of Sachet. The flame which caused the explosion burned the engineer in a shocking manner. Practically not a bone of either victim was left unfractured, and both skulls were terribly crushed.

FAVOR CONFEDERATION

Newfoundland's Best Interests Would be Served

Toronto, May 15.—Justice Morrison, of Newfoundland, and Justice Seymour of Newfoundland, are here in connection with a party on the island which is working towards confederation with Canada and their visit is considered as significant. Judge Morrison, in an interview, stated that in 1869 when Newfoundland opposed confederation the colony had no debt and the taxation upon imports was about ten per cent. To-day, chiefly through the building of railways the debt had risen to about $20,000, the interest on which was alone equal to the total expenditure of the colony in 1869. To meet this import duties had been increased until they now averaged about 33 per cent, or $10 per head of the population of 200,000. Not only would Newfoundland gain decreased cost of government by confederation, but Canada would gain an increased market as the $7,000,000 worth of goods imported into Newfoundland largely from the U. S. and Britain would to a great extent come from Canada when Canadian goods came in free and all other goods paid 30 per cent. Canada would gain control of the fisheries of the whole North Atlantic and would be able to dictate her own terms to the U. S. instead of allowing that country to play off Canada and Newfoundland one against the other. Judge Morrison says that Newfoundland is a country of great resources in timber, pulp wood and minerals and that once joined to Canada its development would be repaid. The French shore question would be settled in a year after confederation.

Judge Seymour speaking at the decoration of the Batoche monument on Saturday expressed hope that before long Canada would open her arms and take Newfoundland into the confederation. He saw a great future before the Dominion, and wanted to be in it. The hearts of the people of Newfoundland beat as one with Canadians in loyalty to the empire. When Newfoundland came in they would join hearts and arms for the defence of home and country.

Municipal League of Indiana

Special to The Times.

Vincennes, Ind., May 14.—The Municipal League of Indiana began its semi-annual meeting here to-day and will continue until Saturday. Those in attendance include the mayor or other officials of many of the leading cities of the state. The opening session was given over to routine business. It opened with an invocation by the Rev. E. Hunter. Mayor George E. Green welcomed the visitors and the response was embodied in the annual address of the president George E. Downey of Aurora. The regular business begins this evening.

One of the important reports to be considered is that of the committee appointed to codify state laws relating to the governing of municipalities. The report will contain a statement of the weaknesses of many statutes for city and town government, and suggestions as to how these effects may be remedied by legislative enactment.

Special to The Times.

London, May 14.—In recognition of the munificence of his educational gifts, the Plumbers' Company, an ancient Guild of the City of London, to day conferred the freedom of the city upon Andrew Carnegie. The ceremonies took place in Guild Hall and consisted of the presentation of resolutions contained in a gold box, the presentation being accompanied by suitable addresses and a response by Mr. Carnegie.

Alfred Beit Takes Rhodes' Place

London, May 14 — Mr. Alfred Beit to-day resumed the directorship of the South African Chartered Company.

Episcopal Church Convention

Special to The Times.

Jackson, Tenn., May 14 — A large number of lay and clerical delegates are here for the annual state convention of the Episcopal Church, which will be in session here for the next week. The presiding officer is Bishop Gailor of Memphis.

The Evils of Constipation

This dangerous condition causes sick headache, abdominal pains and in severe cases insanity and apoplexy. The most agreeable and satisfactory remedy is Ferrozone, which makes the bowels so well ordered that natural and unassisted action is established. It is mild and certain in action and never causes distress or inconvenience, and may be taken as long as required. Pains in the stomach and intestines, piles, biliousness and headache disappear at once when Ferrozone is used. Recommended and sold by druggists, price 50c., or by Ormond & Walsh.

FORT DE FRANCE SUFFERS AS WELL ?

A Conflagration in Direction of That Town Seen Last Night

SCENES OF AWFUL HORROR.

Material That Poured Upon the Stricken People was Like Burning Sealing Wax

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, May 15.—The St. Lucia signal station here reports having seen a conflagration last night in the direction of Fort de France, Martinique.

SCENES OF TERROR.

New York, May 15.—In a despatch from its correspondent on the Island of St. Vincent., B.W.I., the Herald says,—

Admonitory rumblings and earthquakes in the vicinity of Soufriere came two weeks ago. On Monday, May 5, the lake in the old crater became greatly disturbed. On Tuesday, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the mountain began a series of volcanic efforts. Several earthquakes accompanied these terrific noises, and detonations succeeded quickly.

At 7 o'clock in the evening an immense column of steam issued from the crater and lasted until midnight. Terrific explosions followed on Wednesday morning and at 7 o'clock there was another sudden escape of steam. This ascended for three hours, when other material was ejected.

THREE CRATERS OPENED.

At noon three craters appeared to open and began to vomit lava. Six streams at once ran down the sides of the mountain, making an awful scene.

The mountain labored heavily for half an hour after the appearance of the lava. Fire flashed around the edges of the craters, and there were tremendous detonations in succession, rapidly merging into a continuous roar.

This lasted through Wednesday night and until Friday morning. The thunderings of the volcano were heard throughout the Caribbean Sea.

The eruption began Wednesday. A huge cloud in a dark and dense column, charged with volcanic matter, rose to a height of 8 miles from the mountain top. Darkness like midnight descended, and the sulphurous air was laden with fine dust.

LITTERED WITH BODIES.

The country districts on the windward coast was littered with dead bodies.

Kingstown, the capital, and the whole population, are safe. There have been no accidents or deaths. Clouds of dust are blowing over the city, however.

The Royal Mail steamer Wear is transporting food and water to the leeward coast, sailing vessels will proceed to the windward coast on the same errand. Doctors and nurses have gone to the scenes of distress.

The majority of the corpses being found are covered with ashes, decomposed, and hardly approachable.

The dead are being buried in trenches, thirty in each.

WORSE THAN FIRST STATED.

London, May 15.—The Governor of the Windward Islands, Sir Robert Llewellyn telegraphs to the Colonial Office from the Island of St. Vincent under date of Tuesday, May 13, as follows:

"I arrived here yesterday, and found the state of affairs much worse than were stated. The Administrator's reports show that the country on the east coast between Robin Rock and Georgetown was apparently struck and devasted in a manner similar to that which destroyed St. Pierre, and I fear that practically all living things in that radius were killed. Probably 1,600 persons lost their lives. The exact number will never be known. Managers and owners of the estates, with their families, and several of the better class of people, have been killed. A thousand bodies have been found and buried. One hundred and sixty persons are in the hospital at Georgetown. Probably only six of this number will recover.

"The details of the disaster are too harrowing for description. I got, at St. Lucia, a coasting steamer, which is running up and down the Leeward coast with water and provisions. Twenty-two hundred persons have received relief.

"I have asked for medical officers from Trinidad and Grenada. All the neighboring British colonies are assisting generously. Every effort is being made to grapple with the awful calamity.

BODIES BLACK AND SHINY.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, Tuesday, May 13.—The correspondent of the Associated Press here has visited St. Pierre, Martinique, by the relieving steamer Kenneth. The destruction there is appalling. The streets are two feet deep in ashes and cinders, which cover thousands of dead bodies, scorched black, and shinny, as if they had been plunged into boiling pitch. Many of the dead were never touched by the volcanic fire, and some of the houses and woodwork destroyed show no signs of having been burnt.

At Mouillage, in the south-western portion of St. Pierre, the Town Hall is still standing as high as the first storey, while at the fort in the north-western part of St. Pierre the most massive stonework is calcined.

FEARS FOR VINCENT.

Fort de France, Martinique, May 14.—On the Island of St. Vincent conditions are reported to be worse. Le Soufriere, on St. Vincent, was in full eruption on May 10. A storm of stone and mud, half a mile wide, was then issuing from the volcano. Stones two inches in diameter fell twelve miles away. At Kingston, the capital of the island, the ashes were two inches deep. It is estimated that the total number of deaths on St. Vincent reaches 2,000. Most of the victims are said to be Carib Indians. Seven estates on the island have been burned to ashes, and it is authoritatively reported that two earthquakes occurred there.

It is believed the submarine cables in St. Vincent have been broken by the disturbances. The present volcanic eruption on St. Vincent is the first since 1812.

Kingstown is still free from serious harm, but it is certain that all crops and practically all the domestic animals on the island have been killed. Everywhere there is such devastation that from a tropical paradise St. Vincent has become uninhabitable.

Most of the inhabitants of the island are gathered at Kingstown, and there is already a scarcity of food and water. Military forces guard the supplies and prevent trouble.

LOOTING THE BODIES.

Fort de France, May 15.—Words fail to describe the present situation of St. Pierre. A small detachment of French troops is making efforts to inter the dead, although the Government seems to be strikingly unconcerned as to what is done in this direction. The looting of the dead has begun already.

A famine here is imminent. The northern section of the island is depopulated. Business is suspended. The people of the city have assembled in the churches. The cathedral, where special services are being held for the St. Pierre dead, has been thronged since daylight.

Strange to relate, in view of the number of inhabitants of St. Pierre who were swept to death by the volcanic waves from Mont Pelee on Thursday last, very few corpses have been found. This is due to the fact that the most populous quarters of the town are buried under a thick layer of cindered lava, which apparently entirely consumed the bodies of the victims.

MASS OF TRAVELING FLAME.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, Tuesday, May 13.— The Soufriere volcano, on the Island of St. Vincent, is still in destructive eruption. Terrific detonations can be heard a hundred miles away. The reports are followed by columns of smoke rising miles in the air. Immense balls of colored fire also issue from the crater. Lightning is playing fiercely in the upper sky, and the whole northern part of the island is one mass of traveling flame. It is impossible to reach the burning district by land or sea, and there are no means of estimating the destruction wrought to life and property.

Kingstown, the capital of St. Vincent, is still safe, though showers of ashes and pebbles are continually falling on the town. The volcano itself is invisible.

Connecticut G. A. R.

Special to The Times.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 14 — The Connecticut department of the G. A. R. began its annual encampment here to-day. The formal opening took place this afternoon in Warner's Hall and will be followed by the annual camp-fire this evening, when a number of speakers of prominence will be heard. The visiting veterans and their friends will be handsomely entertained by the members of Elias Howe, jr., post of this city.

Dinner to Whitelaw Reid

Special to The Times.

New York, May 14 — A notable dinner takes place at the Union League Club to-night in honor of Whitelaw Reid, special envoy to the court of St. James for the coronation ceremonies. The dinner is not given by the Club, but by a large number of its members. Senators Platt and Depew, several members of the Cabinet and other men of note are to be present.

PROOF IS EASY TO FIND.

One thing of great importance discovered by the manufacturers of Malt Breakfast Food, is a practical way of combining the vegetable digestive agent, Malt Diastase, with the choicest quality of Wheat.

The action of the Malt on the starch of the grain supplies the action in which the weakened stomach is defective, and the result is restored digestion, new health and greater strength.

While thousands of dyspeptics and strong people have given the most convincing testimony as to the superiority of Malt Breakfast Food over all other breakfast foods, the following letter from the celebrated Webster Edgerly, President of the Ralston Health Club, is worthy of the special notice of all who would eat to live happily:

"Your Malt Breakfast Food was duly received and tested. We think you have the best breakfast food for imparting strength that has yet been made. We wish all you can send us to give away for trial. We will soon displace all oatmeal and other foods in the market within our reach."

INFORMING THE WORLD OF CUBAN REPUBLICS

Identical Notes Sent to All Nations of the Earth

THE BIRTH OF A NEW NATION

A Period of Great Prosperity in Store for the Little Republic

Special to The Times.

Washington, May 15.—The State Department has decided on the method it will employ to inform the world officially of the birth of the new Cuban Republic on May 20. Instead of issuing a proclamation, the Department will send identical notices to all United States Ambassadors and Ministers abroad, that the military occupation of the island by the United States has ceased as of that date, and that Thomas Estrada Palma has been duly installed as the head of a new government of the Island of Cuba. There will be no invitation on our part to the nations to recognize the new Republic, but it is expected that they will take notice themselves of the fact that the United States has recognized the Cuban Republic by sending to the island a Minister President and staff of Legation and Consuls, and it is not doubted that the example will be followed.

SEVERE STORM IN ITALY

A Lighthouse Destroyed and Many Vessels Wrecked—Snow Fall

Special to The Times.

Rome, May 14 — A terrible storm is raging on the coast. The lighthouse at Civita Vecchia has been destroyed. Many vessels have been wrecked. Snow has fallen in some districts of Italy.

MARRIED TO SALM SALM

The Archduchess Maria Christina Weds the Prince at Vienna

Vienna, May 14 — The Archduchess Maria Christina was married to Prince Emanuel Salm Salm yesterday in the presence of Emperor Francis Joseph and a number of Archdukes and Duchesses.

The Archduchess is the eldest daughter of the brother of the Queen Regent of Spain, whose namesake she is.

Glass Factories Closing Down

Special to The Times.

Anderson, Ind., May 14.—The fires in all the factories controlled by or under the influence of the American Window Glass Company will be blown out to-morrow and production will cease for an indefinite period. According to the manufacturers it is the regular summer shut down, though a little earlier than usual, and the purpose is simply to maintain an aggressiveness in prices.

Texas Firemen's Tournament

Special to The Times.

Waco., Texas, May 14.—The Texas Firemen's Association began its tournament here today. Firemen accompanied by bands and citizens poured in on every train. The city is decorated and numerous arches welcome the fire fighters. The three days' programme provides for a parade, hook and ladder contests, races and other attractive features.

AN UNEQUALLED RECORD

Paine's Celery Compound
The Only Medicine That Can Poin With Pride To True and Marvellous Cures

ITS PRAISES SOUNDED BY ALL CLASSES OF OUR PEOPLE

A Spring Medicine That Quickly Purifies The Blood and Banishes Disease

Paine's Celery Compound can, with pride, point to a long and wonderful list of cures effected in this and other lands. In fully ninety cases out of every hundred, it has been successful in overcoming and banishing treacherous and long-standing diseases and ailments.

The great work of disease banishing and life saving so happily accomplished by Paine's Celery Compound has not been confined to any particular class of people. All ranks and conditions of our population — amongst which are found city toilers, hard working farmers, business men, capitalists, clergymen, lawyers physicians and legislators, owe their lives and present good health to the curing virtues of Paine's Celery Compound.

No other medicine in the world today has been so much talked of, so highly recommended by medical men, so generally indorsed by our best people, as Paine's Celery Compound. It truly deserves all the good words spoken in its favor.

May is the great month for recuperating and building up the weakened and diseased system. At this time we press upon the ailing, the nervous, the rheumatic, the neuralgic, the dyspeptic, old and young, the necessity of using Paine's Celery Compound. To those who are suffering and despondent owing to the rapid progress of blood troubles, kidney disease and liver complaint, we say "use the great health-giver at once, if you would be speedily restored to health." The virtues peculiar to Paine's Celery Compound are as potent and true for you to-day as they proved powerful and effective for your friends and neighbors weeks and months ago.

Locomotive Engineers Meeting

Norfolk, Va., May 14 — During the next three weeks the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, one of the most conservative and influential labor bodies in America, will be in biennial convention in this city. The convention organized for business to-day and as there is much to occupy its attention the session is likely to be a busy one. The reports of the various officers will show that the organization's affairs are in splendid condition. Since its organization in Detroit in 1863, with a membership of twelve men, the order has increased in numbers until it has now 585 subdivisions, representing a membership of 41,000. The Brotherhood has succeeded in making written agreements with 90 per cent. of all the railroad companies in the country, covering rules and rates of pay for the members. Furthermore the order has been instrumental in giving to the railroad companies a more efficient class of men, as it has aimed steadily to educate its members up to a high standard of excellence in their profession.

Items of Interest

London, May 15.—Only the other day all the Conservative and Liberal members of the House of Commons were opposed to Mr. Dillon. Yesterday the House was with him to a man. He was loudly cheered when he directed Mr. Balfour's attention to the action of President Roosevelt in recommending an immediate appropriation of $500,000 for the relief of the sufferers in the West Indies, and asked whether the British Government intended to take steps of a similar character. Mr. Balfour stated that every assistance that could be given on the spot by the Government would be given, but he was uncertain about granting a vote, for which there was no precedent. The situation is a singular one. The Government is anxious to show sympathy in a practical way. The House of Commons is anxious to pass a vote, and yet nothing can be done because the records of the mother of Parliaments have established no precedent in such a matter. Mr. Balfour informed the House that the question of relief for the sufferers of St. Vincent and Martinique was under the consideration of the Cabinet. Mr. Dillon was not satisfied with this assurance, and he proposes to ask Mr. Balfour again to-day to state definitely what the Government intends to do.

LUNATIC BURNED.

Baie St. Paul, Que., May 15.—At 1 o'clock this morning part of the St. Antoine Hospital was destroyed by fire, resulting in the death of a lunatic named Ducheane from Eboulements. The building, which was detached, contained about fifty lunatics and several guardians, who escaped with much difficulty. The main part of the hospital and the several surrounding buildings were saved. Loss is estimated at $8,000, with $4,000 insurance.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 14. — The Grand Army veterans of Tennessee began their nineteenth annual state encampment at Chattanooga today. Death is rapidly thinning the ranks of the veterans as is evidenced by the annual reports from the department officers. Tomorrow the visitors will spend the day on the famous battlefields of Lookout Mountain and Chickamauga.

New York, May 14.—A consolidation of all the large stove manufacturing plants of the United States will probably be consummated at the meeting of the National Association of Stovemakers, which began here to-day. The combine is the result of three years' wrok on the part of its promoters. The consolidated company will embrace between 40 and 50 plants located in all parts f the country and will be capitalized at $100,000,000.

Meppen, Prussia, May 14. — Krupp's new quick-firing gun, which is being tried on the nearby drill ground for cannons is a wonderful machine for wholesale murder.

It fires forty to fifty shots per minute, the reports following each other as quickly as the puffs of a locomotive nothing like of it has ever been seen or heard of.

Lindsay Post—Local Orangemen are making big preparations for the coming 12th of July, when the brethren of Victoria, Peterboro, Durham and part of Ontario Counties will foregather in Lindsay to the number of 5,000 or 6,000 at least. It is estimated that we shall have 15,000 or 16,000 visitors within our gates on that day.

New York, May 14 — If learned discussion can do anything towards checking the dread disease popularly known as consumption, then a great deal will be accomplished at the third annual session of the American Congress of Tuberculosis, which began today at the Hotel Majestic. Those in attendance include representative medical men from every state and territory of the Union, from nearly the Canadian provinces and from several of the countries of Central and South America. In addition to the foremost representatives of the medical profession there are accredited delegates from leading scientific societies and bar associations of the United States. This means that the great question at issue is to be discussed from every standpoint. The medical departments of both the army and navy are represented.

The sessions are to continue through the remainder of the week. There will be aside from all papers of a miscellaneous character, four symposiums arranged, each to occupy one session of the body, as follows:

"Preventive Legislation, Embracing the Social, Municipal and State Aspects of Tuberculosis." (What aid should be expected from the State in the cure and prevention of tuberculosis, and how shall this be secured?)

"Tuberculosis in its Pathological and Bacteriological Aspects."

"The Medical and Surgical Aspects of Tuberculosis." (Embracing sanitoria and climatic conditions, light and electricity.)

"The Veterinary Aspects of Tuberculosis."

Cincinnati, O., May 14.—The fifteenth Cincinnati May musical festival begins tonight with the oratorio, "The Beatitudes." The festival this year promises to be the most successful financially of any previously given here. The advance sale amounts to over $10,000. Every seat for the first night was sold a week ago, and Music Hall will be packed with an audience of 4,000 to hear Cesar Franck's famous oratorio. The instrumental music will be furnished by Theodore Thomas' orchestra and there will be a chorus of 500. The soloists this year are Miss Clara Turpen, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Ben Davies, Ellison Van Hoose, Andrew Black, and Gwylym Miles. The festival continues until Saturday night.

DIRTY WORK FOR RUSSIAN AUTHORITIES

French Police Obedient to Advices from St. Petersburg

LOOKING FOR THE ASSASSIN.

Murderer of Czar's Minister of the Interior Said to Have Friends in French Capital

Special to The Times.

Paris, May 15.—The Liberal Press is disgusted because the French police is doing "dirty" work for the Russian Government. Obedient to advices from St. Petersburg, the Paris police issued search warrants for fifteen persons residing in the French capital and confiscated their private papers. It is claimed that some letters and documents were found proving that the murderer of the minister of the interior had accomplices in this city.

NEW ARMY TELEPHONES.

At the forthcoming manouvers the new field telephone, system Charollois, will have a thorough trial. The inventor Captain Charollois, claims that moving bodies of troops, not more than six or seven miles apart, can be connected by telephone by a simple, strong wire, laid on the ground. Whether the wire is walked on or tramped on it doesn't make the least difference. It will operate as long as the land is dry. In wet weather the wire is to be placed on tree, fences or sticks. The wire is so thin that a distance of half a mile can be covered with wire weighing less than six pounds.

KRUGER DONE IN CAKE.

That Kruger and the Boer cause are decidedly popular in France is shown at this years' honey-cake market, Faubourg St. Antoine, where his face adorns most of the goods for sale. There are even more Kruger than Loubet cakes. To be done in honey cake is every French politician's ambition. Faure never achieved it, but really popular men like Gambetta, McMahon, and Boulanger were all honey-cake market heroes. This year Loubet is just a bit jealous of Kruger crowding him, but at the same time is proud of coming in second best. If Emperor Williams could once achieve honey cake market honors he might safely visit Paris.

SURVIVING TWIN IMPROVING

Professor Doyen, who separated the Indian twins, Radica and Doodica, allowed our correspondent to see the surviving child of his clinic. Radica is doing well as to general health, and is putting on flesh, but has to be constantly amused in order to keep her from brooding on the separation from her beloved sister. She is now being taught to walk, but progress is slow, even though she could walk when Doodica was alive. "The two girls," said Professor Doyen, "were depending upon each other when walking one holding the other, so to speak. As a consequence Radica has now to be taught to move by herself. This she won't be able to do without assistance for many months to come, for the curvature of her spine, which prevents her from hoisting herself erect, must be cured first. The curvature was originally due to the growing together." The professor denies the published reports that Doodica died from loss of blood during the operation. "What little blood was spilled," he said. "The girl had consumption of the stomach—that's what made the operation necessary."

Dying by Slow Degrees

Although not aware of it yet thousands die by slow degrees of catarrh. It first attacks the nose or throat, then the lungs, and finally spreads all through the system. Catarrhozone is the only remedy that will immediately prevent the spread of this awful disease. Every breath from the inhaler kills thousands of germs, heals the throat and nose, aids expectoration and relieves the pain across the eyes. Catarrhozone erradicates every vestige of catarrh from the system, and is highly recommended also for bronchitis, asthma deafness and lung trouble. Price $1.00, trial size 25c., all druggists. SECOND HORSE WON.

London, May 15.—In the race for the Newmarket Stakes (of sovereigns each with 2,000 sovereigns added; for three-year-olds) at Newmarket, to-day, Ard Patrick ridden by M. Cannon, was the first horse home; but "Clem" Jenkins, the American jockey, who was on the second horse, Fowling-piece, lodged an objection on the ground of bumping and boring. The objection was sustained, and the race was awarded to Fowling-piece, Royal Lancer and Cheers were second and third respectively.

THE CONDOR'S FATE.

Victoria, B.C., May 15.—At last the Condor's fate is definitely known. Information to the effect that she foundered, carrying her crew of 110 to death, in a gale of the night of December 3, is given in a letter written from Bamfield Creek by a hunter on the sealing schooner Mary Taylor. The sealer, Robert Marshall, writing to his brother, who lives on a farm near this city, says:—'It's too bad about the Condor, isn't it? One of the schooners saw her in distress on December 3rd night. She was firing off guns and rockets, but it was too rough to go to her. Afterwards they could not see her."

Marshall makes another reference to the lost warship in his letter, which indicated that he could tell more of the fate of the Condor, for he says in closing:—"But I suppose you know from the newspapers all about how she went down."

The Mary Taylor is now bound to the Behring Sea, and will not be back for about two months. The Condor sailed from here for the South Seas, via Honolulu, on December 2nd, and a very heavy gale raged for two days afterwards. Some lifebuoys, a boat, and small wreckage from her was found on the west coast of Vancouver Island, and she was posted as lost by the Admiralty on February 17. Until now nothing was known of how she met disaster.

McKinley's Memorial College

Special to The Times.

Washington, D.C., May 14.—The corner stone of the Ohio McKinley Memorial College of Government of the American University was laid today by President Roosevelt. Addresses were delivered by Senators Dolliver of Iowa and Hanna, of Ohio, the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Bristol, President McKinley's pastor, and District Commissioner McFarland.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 14, 1902.

THE COMMON SENSE VIEW OF IT

The questions which the electors of Ontario will have to consider in making up their minds as to how to vote at the coming election are of an essentially practical and business-like character. It is a mistake to attach too much importance to party names and formulas in such a contest. The words "Liberal" and "Conservative" have practically lost their significance as applied to the political parties of to-day. Hon. G. W. Ross, while in some respects adhering to old-time Liberal traditions, is a thorough Conservative as regards his policy of aiding the development of the country by the expenditure of public money in promoting various industries. His forward policy as regards New Ontario is in fact a leaf taken from the Conservative book, while the protests and denunciations of Mr. Whitney and his colleagues sounds very like the old-time Liberal outcries against the Canadian Pacific Railway and the N.P.

It would therefore be an error to be guided in this crisis by mere names and shibboleths which as regards the new issues confronting the people of to-day have lost whatever meaning they may once have possessed. There is no great question of principle as between the parties. Everybody is practically agreed as to the desirability of Provincial progress, of forwarding railway construction, building up industries and peopling the waste lands by a judicious expenditure of public money. It is simply a question of methods, of administration, and of which party shall be entrusted with the work. Much of the argument which we find addressed to the electors, based on old-time prejudices and sympathies and hereditary politics, is therefore utterly beside the mark. All that an intelligent elector has to do is to regard the matter from a common-sense business point of view. The fact that his grandfather was a Conservative or a Liberal ought not to weigh with him an instant.

The proof of the pudding, as the old proverb has it, is in the eating. There is no platform, no array of promises or pledges, so weighty as a good record. Dismissing all party predilections and judging the respective opponents by just what they have done, rather than what they or their friends say they would do, there is every reason why the Ross Government should be sustained at the polls. They have deserved well of the country. In the matter of administrative policy they have been energetic and progressive. They have grappled manfully with the question of how best to develop our Northern heritage so as to secure its early settlement and the building up of industries that will furnish a market both for the farmers in the neighborhood and the manufacturer and merchant of Old Ontario. It may be said that in some details of their policy mistakes have been made, but even admitting this, it is surely better to go ahead even if some blunders are made than to stand still and do nothing. The work must be taken as a whole, and viewing it in that light the people of Ontario have reaped a great and distinct advantage from Mr. Ross' course. Not only is this the case in regard to New Ontario, but in connection with other details of his constructive policy directed towards finding new markets for the farmer and artizan and improving economic conditions. Mr. Whitney's line on the contrary has been altogether that of the carper and the obstructionist. He has proposed nothing and originated nothing. He may have some constructive ideas but unfortunately he appears to be unable to free himself from the old-time political tradition, that the only duty of the Opposition leader is to oppose.

The affairs of the Province have been well and wisely administered by the Liberals and the interests of the people carefully protected. We are not prepared to say that the Conservatives might not do equally as well in this regard but why should the electors make the experiment? Why should they allow a mere party name to influence them to incur the risk of a change, which is much more likely to be for the worse than for the better? They should be satisfied to "let well alone."

In Mr. Stratton Hon. G. W. Ross has an energetic and capable lieutenant whose presence in the Cabinet is a decided advantage to the county and town of Peterborough. He has administered his Department with marked success, and brought the conspicuous business tact and ability which he has always displayed in his own affairs into the public service. It is hardly conceivable that the people of the constituency whom he has faithfully served and whose interests he has always done his best to forward in every legitimate way will reject him in favor of an untried man in politics, whose qualifications as representative have never been manifested. We ask the electors to view the matter purely from the standpoint of hard-headed practical common sense, to put aside partizan and sentimental considerations and act as a plain business man would act in an affair of every day life. Why should Peterborough be represented by a private member of mediocre capacity rather than by a cabinet minister of proven ability and disposition to serve his constituents? Some better reason should be forthcoming than the fact that one is dubbed "Conservative" and the other "Liberal."

THE LESSON OF THE EARTHQUAKES

There has been a notable advance in the thought of the world since John Wesley wrote his well known sermon on "The Cause and Cure of Earthquakes," the occasion of which was the great Lisbon earthquake of 1st November, 1755. The lesson which the eminent divine sought to teach was the ever-important one of the need for national righteousness; but in a manner characteristic of the times, he assumed that the divine displeasure with a nation was manifested in calamities of this nature, and conversely, that in a comparative degree, at least, of divine satisfaction, might be inferred where such calamities were absent. Yet a contrary lesson had certainly been taught by the Master Himself, when He repudiated the idea that those on whom the tower in Siloam fell were "sinners above all them that dwelt in Jerusalem." To very few in our day will it occur to impute special moral demerit to the unhappy population of St. Pierre de Martinique. The sympathy of the world goes forth to them unchecked by any such uncharitable assumption. The savants of to-day simply try to understand the physical conditions upon which the various phenomena of nature depend; and the theologians do not, as a rule, seek to embarrass them in their researches by any arbitrary prescriptions. But, while we may congratulate ourselves that in our day there is peace on the frontier between science and religion, we must not unduly blame those who in past generations argued and speculated, or even dogmatised, according to their less perfect lights. A good sermon from an irrelevant or misunderstood text is better than no sermon at all; and who will say that any occasion is unsuitable for the preaching of righteousness?

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Yesterday was the last day for registering. It's all over now but the voting.

* * * *

The three following Thursdays of May, 1902, will be historic. On the 15th the Boers are expected to accept the British peace conditions; on the 22nd the provincial nominations will be held in Ontario; and on Thursday, May 29th the Ross Government will be beaten out of its political boots,

LOCAL NEWS-LETTERS.

APSLEY

—The candidates for the Ontario Parliament have been here and told us all about the affairs of the Province and now we are ready to elect one of them (with the chances in favor of William).

—Although there is not likely to be any change in government, there are many changes going on in Apsley. Mr. Simon Windsor has torn down the old red store, an old landmark built by Mr. Vigard more than thirty years ago. Simon will at once commence building another on the site of the old one; he has all the material on the ground. Andy has finished the foundation work of Tommy's new house and carpenters will be put on this week. Work will be pushed forward next month on the Methodist church. Mr. McIlvena has his house almost completed and expects to move into it in a few weeks.

—Rev. Canon Harding, assisted by the members of his church, are making some good improvements to the churchyard. They have removed the unsightly fence that has stood for 25 years replacing it with a handsome wire fence.

—The municipal council intend having a new fence put up in front of the town hall property, and certainly not any too soon, as the present one is a disgrace to our village. There will be many other improvements during the summer. Others are purposing building in Apsley or near it if the saw mills can supply lumber, of which there is a scarcity at present.

—Mr. A. Evans, Presbyterian student, is in charge of Apsley and Clydesdale mission field for the summer, and though only a short time here has made many friends.

—A literary and improvement society is about to be started here.

—The union Sunday school will open next Sunday. Mr. J. E. Howson, the Superintendent, is assisted by a good staff of teachers.

—Miss Mattie Bullied is teaching at the Loon Lake school.

—The Apsley school has turned out a good many first class teachers and doctors, with more to follow.

—Robert has the factory in operation now with the prospect of a good season ahead.

GALWAY

It is with deep regret that we record the death of Mrs. John Clark, which sad event took place at the family residence on Monday, May 5th. The sad occurrence came as a shock to the whole community, for only two short years ago Mrs. Clark was made a bride and lived happily with her husband. Death was caused by premature confinement, the innocent cause being placed in the coffin at her side.

Deceased was only twenty-four years of age at the time of her death, and had, apparently, before her a long and a bright future. In all the duties of her position she was faithful. She was affectionate and devoted and deserved the title of a real home maker in the widest sense of that term, as she had already won a large circle of friends.

The remains were taken to the Roman Catholic cemetery in Galway, followed by a very large number of vehicles.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to Mr. John Clark, (son of Mr. Thos. Clark, ex-reeve of Galway,), whose home has been blighted so soon and who is one of the most promising young men of our township.

CHANDOS

—There is nothing but election talk at present.

—Mr. Wm. Anderson held a very successful meeting at S. S. No. 1 on Wednesday evening. The chair was taken by Reeve John Menogue, the speakers present being Mr. Thos. Blezard, John Menogue and David Campbell. It was the largest meeting ever held at Clydale.

—Mr. M. Clary was the guest of Mr. John Mannell last week.

—Mr. Thos. Blezard was the guest of John Menogue on Wednesday.

—Mr. Maurice Hobbins was the guest of Mr. Joseph Trotter on Sunday.

—Mr. M. Long and Patrick Menogue were the guests of Mr. James Scot on Sunday.

For the Farmer

Sheep are the only animals which do not really exhaust the land on which they feed. They distribute manure evenly on the field and tramp it into the soil, feeding upon plants that other animals will not consume.

It is claimed that if tobacco stems or refuse be placed around the base of a peach tree the borer will not attack the tree. The mode of applying is to get the stems around the trees, on the ground, and fasten them to the trees higher up. It is worthy of a trial.

Another remedy suggested for the curculio is to spray just before the trees blossom with a mixture of a pound of Paris green in sixty gallons of water. Two weeks later use kerosene emulsion, giving a third spraying about June 1st. This method, it is said, will destroy the curculio, leaf lice and other enemies of the plum.

Heat, moisture and occasionally cooling are the factors at work in the production of chickens. Heat is of course supplied by the hen, who, also, if she be a good setter, will see to the cooling, though as a rule it is better not to trust entirely to her for this. But moisture is beyond her control if the place of setting is allotted to her. In some districts there is no trouble whatever on this score, as the atmosphere is charged with sufficient for the needs of the eggs. But in others very great care has to be taken or dryness of the atmosphere will be fatal to successful hatching. Seasons also differ.

How to Spray.

The agricultural station of the University of Illinois has issued bulletin No. 68, prepared by Professor Arnold V. Stubenrauch, on "Important Details of Spraying." In the chapter describing the proper method of spraying, we read:

Having the mixtures properly prepared and thoroughly agitated cannot alone insure success. Unless the spray is properly applied, all preliminary effort is lost. To spray properly is more difficult than is usually supposed, especially where materials in suspension are used. It will not do to go out with a determination "to do a thorough job and give them an everlasting soaking" until everything is dripping. If this is done there will be less material on the trees in the end than if less were applied in a proper manner. This to some may seem paradoxical. Nevertheless, it is a fact, and an attempt will be made to show just how it takes place. In order to do this it will be necessary to consider the globules of water as they come from the nozzle, carrying with them suspended particles of Paris green or Bordeaux mixture, or both, as the case may be. The settling which takes place. The only way this can be avoided in the globules of water after they become fixed to the fruit and leaves. Hence the larger the globule, the more settling will take place, and consequently the more material will be deposited at one place in the spray tank goes on without. ed is to have the globules very small and fine as they leave the nozzle, and to keep them intact as separate, fine globules after they become attached to the fruit or leaf. Hence the importance of the injunction: "Use only a fine nozzle; use force enough to keep the liquid issuing as a fine mist, and spray only until the foliage and fruit are completely bedewed."

It requires considerable skill to do this properly and cover the surface fully. If it cannot be done with one spraying it would pay better to go over the trees twice, allowing the first application to dry before giving the second, than to try to accomplish it all at one time, and thus run the risk of going further than the simple bedewing of the fruit or leaves. If the spray is continued too long the fine globules will "run together" to form one or several large ones, which, instead of remaining fixed and drying just where they strike, will run down to the lowest place and drip. Of course, the suspended material settles to the lowest point of the globule, which is, in that case, spread over a considerable surface of the fruit. Some of the upper portions are thus left completely bare. At the lower edge the material will drip off with the water, or often accumulate in sufficient quantity to cause injury.

School Humor.

An English paper gives some further examples of children's unconscious humor in answering examination questions:

Alexander the Great was born in absence of his parents.

The chief clause in Magna Charta was that no free man should be put to death or imprisoned without his own consent.

Where were the kings of England crowned? On their heads.

What were the three most important Feudal dues? Friendship, courtship, marriage.

What do you know of Dryden and Buckingham? Dryden and Buckingham were at first friends, but soon became contemporaries.

What is Milton's chief work? Milton wrote a sensible poem called the "Canterbury Tails."

Give the names of five Shakespearian plays? Macbeth, Mikado, Quo Vadis, San Toy, Sign of the Cross.

An optimist is a man who looks after your eyes, and a pessimist is a man who looks after your feet.

A man who looks on the bright side of things is called an optionist, and the one who looks on the dull side is called a pianist.

Peaceful business methods oft

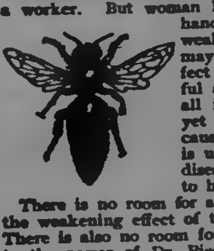
WASP WAISTS



Are not much in evidence among American women. The women of America are workers, and a weak waist handicaps a worker. But woman has a greater handicap than a weak waist. She may have a perfect form, beautiful and strong in all its lines, and yet be weak because her strength is undermined by diseases peculiar to her sex.

There is no room for argument as to the weakening effect of these diseases. There is also no room for argument as to the power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to cure them. It regulates the periods, stops unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It is a purely vegetable preparation, and cannot disagree with the weakest constitution. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all narcotics.

Sick women suffering from chronic forms of female diseases are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free, and so obtain the invaluable advice of a specialist in the diseases of women. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Words cannot tell how grateful I am for your kind advice and good medicines," writes Mrs. John Cooke, Hastings, Northumberland Co., Ontario. "I had been in poor health for four years back, and this spring got so bad I could not do my work. I went to the doctor and he said I had ulceration and falling of the internal organs, but I thought I would try your 'Favorite Prescription.' I took five bottles and three of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and I can safely say that I never felt better in my life. I have spoken well of your medicines wherever I have been."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep the liver healthy. They assist the action of "Favorite Prescription" when a laxative is required.

TOBACCO, LIQUOR AND DRUGS

Dr. McTaggart's Tobacco remedy re- weeks. A vegetable medicine, and only requires touching the tongue with it occasionally. Price $2.

Simply marvellous are the results from taking his remedy for the liquor, morphine and other drug habits. Is a safe and inexpensive home treatment; no hypodermic injections; no publicity; no loss of time from business, and a certainty of cure.

Address or consult Dr. McTaggart, 75 Yonge street, Toronto.

A Prophecy Fulfilled.

On no less authority than that of Mr. Justin McCarthy it is stated that, with the exception of the King of Sweden, a descendant of Bernadotte, whom Napoleon raised from the ranks and later made king, there is not a single important ruler in Europe who is not descended from Mary, Queen of Scots. In "Macbeth," which was evidently written with the idea of courting the favor of James I., the first Stuart ruler of England, Shakespeare puts into the mouth of the witches this prophecy to Banquo, from whom the Stuarts are by legend descended: "Your children shall be kings." Even the most obsequious of courtiers could not have anticipated how literally true this compliment to the Stuarts through King James was to prove. It is certainly a curious historical fact that the dynasty of the Stuarts, "in many ways the worst dynasty," as Mr. McCarthy says, "that ever ruled over England, "should have left so many descendants among the reigning houses of Europe.

Meantime there is for the student of medical anthropology the spectacle of a series of inbreeding intermarriages that demonstrates the dangers and effects of marital consanguinity. Perhaps the lesson of the necessity for exercising more care as regards the relationship and other qualities of marital partners may thus be taught by example, if it cannot be enforced by the legal measures that are now so commonly suggested. In a word, the history of the present reigning families of Europe is an open book in which he who runs may read the evils of marriage where new blood is not constantly introduced to modify the degenerative tendencies of the original stock. The lesson may be learned better from a "horrible example" than from the cold logic of statistics on the subject.

Faith and Works.

A piece of bright class-room repartee comes from a Western college. The professor had been annoyed by the tardy entrance of a student into the lecture-room, and pointedly stopped talking until the man took his seat.

After class the student went to the desk and apologized.

"My watch was fifteen minutes out of the way, sir. It's bothered me a good deal lately, but after this I shall put no more faith in it."

"It's not faith you want in it," replied the professor; "it's works."

Recognized Their Old Friend.

The love which English people, especially British soldiers, feel for Florence Nightingale has been shown at many times and in many places. A new and striking instance of it was recently given by the "Sunday Magazine."

The late Sir John Steell, sculptor to Queen Victoria, was modeling a bust of Miss Nightingale, when an officer of one of the Highland regiments which had suffered so cruelly in the Crimea heard that the bust had just been completed, and was in Sir John's studio. Many of the men in his company had passed through the hospital at Scutari, and he obtained permission from the sculptor to bring some of them to see it. Accordingly a squad of men one day marched into the big studio and stood in line.

They had no idea why they had been mustered in so strange a place. Without a word of warning the bust was uncovered, and then, as by one impulse, the men broke rank, and with cries of "Miss Nightingale! Miss Nightingale!" surrounded the model, and with hats off cheered the figure of their devoted nurse until the roof rang.

So spontaneous and hearty and so inspiring was the whole scene that in after days Sir John Steell declared it to be the greatest compliment of his life.

Anecdotal

Shortly after Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass" made its appearance, J. T. Trowbridge was walking with Lowell in Cambridge, when the latter pointed out a doorway sign, "Groceries," with the letters set zigzag, to produce a bizarre effect. "That," said he, "is Walt Whitman—with very common goods inside."

A Philadelphia paper declares that Archbishop Ryan was recently about to take a train for Baltimore at the Broad Street Station, when a young man accosted him, saying: "Your face is familiar, where in hell have I seen you?" "I really don't know," replied the archbishop, blandly; "what part of hell do you come from?"

Many years ago, when Senator Ingalls was in the Senate, oleomargarine was a bone of contention. The debate led Ingalls to utter one of those epigrammatic sentences which made him famous. "I have never, to my knowledge, tasted oleomargarine," said Ingalls, "but I have stood in the presence of genuine butter with awe for its strength and reverence for its antiquity."

A lady carrying on mission work in the slums was teaching a little colored girl to spell. She used a pictorial primer, and over each word was its accompanying picture. Polly glibly spelled "o-x, ox," and "b-o-x, box," etc. But the teacher thought that she was making "right rapid progress." So she put her hand over the picture, and said, "Polly, what does 'o-x' spell?" "Ox," answered Polly, nimbly. "How do you know that it spells 'ox,' Polly?" "Seed his tail," replied the apt Polly.

A very popular Oxford dean, crossing the quadrangle of Christ's College one day, was met by a number of undergraduates who passed him without "capping." The reverend gentleman felt annoyed. "Do you know who I am?" he asked. "No, sir." "Then how long have you been at the college?" "Eight days, sir." "Indeed!" replied the dean, sarcastically. "Well, in that case, you stand excused. I know that puppies do not open their eyes until the ninth day." And then he resumed his walk.

While he was in England, Mark Twain says his head was once taxed as gas works. He wrote Queen Victoria a friendly letter of protest, saying: "I don't know you, but I've met your son. He was at the head of a procession in the Strand, and I was on a 'bus." Years afterward he met the Prince of Wales, now King Edward VII., at Homberg. They had a long walk and talk together. When bidding him good-by, the Prince said: "I am glad to have met you again." This remark troubled Twain, who feared that he had been mistaken for someone else. He communicated this suspicion to the Prince, who replied: "Why, don't you remember when you met me in the Strand and I was at the head of a procession, and you were on a 'bus?"

Slason Thompson says that the late Eugene Field was fond of relating the following story of James Whitcomb Riley: "To beguile the tediousness of the return voyage from Europe, it was proposed to give a concert in the saloon of the ship—an entertainment to which all capable of amusing their fellow-voyagers should contribute. Mr. Riley was asked to recite some of his original poems, and, of course, he cheerfully agreed to do so. Among the number present at this mid-ocean entertainment, over which the Rev. Myron Reed presided, were two Scotchmen, very worthy gentlemen, en route from the land o' cakes to the land of biscuits, upon a tour of investigation. These twain shared the enthusiasm with which the auditors applauded Mr. Riley's charming recitations. They marveled that so versatile a genius could have lived in a land reputed for uncouthness and savagery. "Is it no wonderfu', Donal," remarked one of these Scots, "that a tradesman suld be sic a bonnie poet?" "And is he indeed a tradesman?" asked the one. "Indeed he is," answered the other; "did ye no hear the dominie intryjuce him as the hoosier poet? Just think of it, mon—just think of sic a gude poet dividing his time making hoosiery?"

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY
—OR—
The World Lost for Love's Sake
By Laura Jean Libbey
Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Wilful Gaynell, Little Leafy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

"I know," persisted his friend, "but I cannot see a lovely young wife take one step in a wrong path without feeling deep concern. I am married to a young wife myself, you know, and what does she know of the world or of its follies? Supposing she should, by chance, make the acquaintance of such a dangerous man as St. John, I should be thankful enough to any man who would drop me a hint of it. Remember, she might be innocent enough, but there's no trusting a fellow who has no reputation— no honor."

"My advice is, keep out of the affair, my dear fellow," laughed his companion.

They rose from their seats and walked away.

"I think one of those gentlemen quite right," mused Aleck, throwing back his handsome head and watching the blue rings of smoke as it curled gracefully above it. "A hint should be dropped to the husband— that is, if he does not know of his wife's acquaintance with St. John, which is presumably a fact, as St. John never cultivates the acquaintance of a pretty woman's husband."

With that thought he dismissed the subject from his mind.

Heaven help him, how little he dreamed who the young wife was the gentlemen referred to.

Aleck had been gone three days, and as yet no letter had reached him from Daisy, although the devoted young husband had written her three.

"She does not answer through pique," he told himself amusedly. "She is still displeased, bless her dear little heart, because I did not take her with me!"

A week had passed, still pressing business detained him; and although he had written Daisy regularly, he had not received one line from her in reply.

He was growing quite alarmed. What could it mean? Surely her petulant anger had had time to cool. He determined to write to Squire Gordon, her father, and find out what it meant.

Was his darling ill? Ah! surely not, for in that case he would have been apprised of it at once.

He would have taken the next express back to New York, business or no business. What was the whole world to him compared to Daisy, her comfort, and her welfare!

No reply was received from her father. Aleck was mystified.

He decided to close his business affairs the following day, no matter how disastrous the loss might be to him; he must know why Daisy had had not written to him.

"I might as well take in the theater with my friends the last evening I am in Boston," he concluded.

As he was crossing the rotunda to join the group of gentlemen waiting for him on the piazza; he was touched on the arm by a messenger boy.

"Mr. Hamilton, I believe," he said, "I spoke to you twice, sir, but you did not seem to hear."

"I am Mr. Hamilton. What can I do for you, my lad?" returned Aleck, pleasantly.

For answer the boy placed a telegram in his hand.

With a strange presentiment of coming evil, Aleck tore open the envelope, and ran his eyes in a flash over the contents, which were as follows:—

"To Mr. Alexander Hamilton, —— Hotel, Boston:

"In heaven's name, take the first express back to New York!

Hetty Gordon."

Strong man as he was, Alexander Hamilton turned pale as death.

There was something terribly wrong at home; he had felt sure of it all along. Could there be anything the matter with Daisy, his darling?

The next train would not start until midnight, and once aboard, it seemed to fairly creep along. At last he saw the tall spires of the metropolis faintly outlined in the early morning light.

"Heaven help me, if anything is the matter with Daisy!" he murmured hoarsely.

CHAPTER XXXIII.
Daisy Meets Harold St. John Face To Face.

Although the villa was about three miles from the great metropolis, almost every day Daisy drove into the city and through Central park.

Hetty was usually her companion, but one day—ah, how well she remembered it in the after years—her sister could not accompany her, and she went alone.

It was a day bright as golden sunshine could make it, but poor Daisy never dreamed that it was for her the day of doom.

Her spirits rose as she rode along through the sunshine and the early morning air.

How foolish she had been to wear her life out in terrible fear, she told herself. Fate would be too kind to her to part her from Aleck. Others had committed sins far worse, and the world never knew, —why should she find less mercy?

She never remembered how it happened —whether she was thinking too deeply, or whether the coach which came whirling around a sharp corner quite unobserved bore down upon her before she had the opportunity to turn aside—the fact remained the same; in a twinkling a wheel of the phaeton lay on the ground; and a terrible accident might have been recorded, if one of the blue-coated patrolmen, who had witnessed the occurrence, had not sprung quickly forward and grasped the bit of Daisy's rearing pony with a hand like bands of steel.

"I am not at all hurt," said Daisy, in reply to the frightened inquiries of the gentleman who had sprung from the coach, "the only damage done is the wrenching off of the wheel of my carriage. I see it is not broken."

Would she permit him to see that the damage was repaired? the gentleman inquired —there was a place adjacent where it could be done; she could either wait in the park for it or come to the office of the carriage factory.

"I will wait here," replied Daisy, consenting to the arrangement, and the pony and phaeton were taken away.

Daisy sat down on one of the benches busily intent upon watching a group of children talking and laughing a little way on.

How their childish prattle interested her. They were as beautiful and pure as angels, those little ones, she thought; how short a time it was since she had been like one of these—not more than eight years, and since then

They Staked Their Lives.

NOT long ago, among the varied pictures of human life which go to make up the daily newspaper, appeared a story as thrilling as fiction, although it was only a part of the plain news of the day. It had to do with the life-savers at the Chatham station which guards the end of Cape Cod. For thirty-six hours Captain Eldredge and his crew, who patrol this point of land projecting far out into the Atlantic, went through as hard an experience as brave men are often called upon to endure. The story is outlined by the "Youth's Companion:"

During a freezing hurricane they saw a schooner in distress off Pollock Rip. Ordinarily there could have been no question as to whether or not they should go to her assistance; for although every drop of water froze as fast as it fell, and the sea was mad, and Pollock Rip is a treacherous place, yet life-savers are used to riotous weather and do not hesitate. But this time there was a special element of danger; a northwest wind tearing down past the edge of the land at sixty miles an hour made it impossible for any boat that should set out for Pollock Rip to return against the gale.

But the men of the Chatham station did not stop to reckon their chances of return. Trusting that the schooner might hold out through the storm if manned and pumped by a fresh crew, they struck out in their life-boat toward the Rip.

Although the wind was with them, it was a hard pull. Three times they were nearly swamped, and when they reached the schooner, they dared not pull alongside of her. It took an hour of hard work to get aboard, and even then the crew of the schooner had to pull them up one by one with ropes, as if they, the life-savers, were the rescued, not the rescuers.

They had won their goal, but it might still be nothing but a goal of death; they knew that when they started. One pump was broken, the crew of the vessel was half exhausted, and the water was pouring into the schooner at the rate of nine hundred pump-strokes an hour.

Sending most of the ship's crew to their bunks, Captain Eldredge and his men manned the two good pumps and fought the inrushing water. After thirty hours of fighting they won. That is how the schooner "Emma D. Endicott," Captain Rogers of New York, lived to be towed up to Boston.

If she had not lived, the men of the Chatham life-saving station, who staked their lives on the chance that they could reach her and keep her afloat, who went to her aid knowing they could not return until the wind abated—well, they would not have lived to hear people tell them how brave they are.

Mrs. or Miss?

JUST as a sort of New Year's card, the Woman's Suffrage Society of Paris have issued a manifesto contending that, as woman in her maiden name accomplishes all the duties of a citizen, she does prejudice to her interests by sinking her identity and losing her individuality in adopting the name of her husband when she marries. Consequently, it seems on the tapis that in future, when Miss Smith marries Mr. Brown, she will still retain her maiden patronymic of Smith. Being married, she must of necessity be Mrs.; therefore, if she retains her maiden name of Smith, we shall have the weird anomaly of Mr. Brown and Mrs. Smith as man and wife. Now, supposing Mrs. Smith, otherwise Mrs. Brown, should, by any unforeseen event, meet with a Mr. Smith in the absence of her husband, and it should go forth to the world—in a hotel visitors' book, for instance—that they were actually Mr. and Mrs. Smith, where the dickens, in the event of trouble, would Mr. Brown come in? Mr. Brown might swear by all that was holy that Mrs. Smith was Mrs. Brown, but if Mr. Smith swore that she was Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Smith did not stoop to deny it, what jury outside a lunatic asylum could convict Mrs. Smith of playing fast and loose with Mr. Brown? It is a complex problem, to say the least of it; but if the Woman's Suffrage Society of gay Paree are not content to let well alone, I suppose they must put up with the consequences.

Man as an Incarnation.

PEOPLE of a materialistic frame of mind, to whom man is but a machine, says an editorial writer in the "Hospital," are apt to put on one side all that cannot be weighed and measured as not only inexplicable or unthinkable, but as quite beyond the range of reasonable discussion. Such people are advised to attend a meeting of the Society for Psychical Research for "a change of scene." What they will see is thus described:

"There they will find people, quite as convinced as they are of their own sanity, and quite as content as they can possibly be with the correctness of their own interpretation of things, asserting the most astounding propositions, without turning a hair. To those who are so self-centered as to think that there is something cranky about all who do not see as they do, it is a wholesome awakening to find good, solid, comfortable, and respectable people believing in telepathy as a thing indisputable, and holding that man, as we see him engaged in his various more or less ignoble pursuits, in the city and elsewhere, is but the incarnation of one little bit of himself as he exists in an intangible and ethereal form. At the last meeting of the Psychical Research Society, Dr. Oliver Lodge, F.R.S., said that he did not hold that the whole of any one of us was incarnated in their terrestrial bodies; certainly not in childhood; more, but perhaps not so very much more, in adult life. What was manifest was only a definite portion of a much larger whole. What the rest was doing during the years spent here he did not know. Perhaps it was asleep; but probably, he said, it was not entirely asleep with men of genius, nor perhaps was it all completely inactive with people called mediums. Now to the modern materialist all this is absolute 'rot.' Yet Dr. Lodge is not exactly a man to pooh-pooh. Indeed, may not the immaterialists retort that this is a Christian country and that our very religion teaches us not to weigh and measure too exactly? Again, Roentgen, Tesla, and Marconi have of late been giving many shocks to old ideas. At any rate, this is clear, that we must not too rigidly put outside the bounds of sanity belief in the unthinkable. It is a queer world, and which half of it is sane appears still undecided."

Turning Smoke Into Gold.

QUEEN ELIZABETH of England was not a thoroughgoing spinster, for she had so little prejudice against the practice of smoking that she permitted Sir Walter Raleigh his pipe in the royal presence. She was sufficiently a woman, however, to twit him openly on his devotion to the weed, and it was on one of these occasions—or so the author of "The Soverane Herbe" shrewdly surmises—that the knight replied:

"I can assure Your Majesty that I have so well experienced the nature of it that I can tell even the weight of the smoke in any quantity I consume."

"I doubt it much, Sir Walter," replied Elizabeth, holding it was impossible to weigh smoke, and mayhap scenting a joke, "and I will wager you twenty gold angels that you do not solve my doubt."

Gallantly accepting the wager, Raleigh filled his pipe with a weighed quantity of tobacco, smoked it out, and then, weighing the resultant ashes, announced the weight he had smoked away.

"Your Majesty cannot deny that the difference has disappeared in smoke."

"Truly, I cannot," answered the Queen. Ordering the wager to be paid, she turned to the courtiers around her and said: "Many alchemists have I heard of who turned gold into smoke, but Raleigh is the first who has turned smoke into gold."

Prince Henry frequently surprised his American companions on his recent tour by his knowledge of the idioms and slang of our language. The climax was reached on Monday on the train returning from Philadelphia, where his Royal Highness had inspected the magnificent Russian battle ship Retvizan. The Prince suddenly leaned over to Admiral "Bob" Evans, and, with a merry twinkle in his eye, said:—

"Admiral, this certainly is a most wonderful country—where even the physical ailments of the people win a European's admiration."

Evans, with a puzzled look, replied, "I beg your pardon, but I don't quite catch your meaning."

"Why," the Prince replied, with a broad smile, "we Europeans would be only too glad to have American Cramps!"—New York Times.

Death of Mrs. Dredge

There passed away at Nicholls Hospital yesterday afternoon about four o'clock Mrs. Dredge, beloved wife of Mr. Charles Dredge, and mother of Mr. Walter Dredge pressman at The Times Office. The deceased had been suffering from appendicitis, as well as other troubles, and when it was found that an operation was indispensible, she was removed to the hospital on Thursday last. The operation was successfully performed on Monday by Dr. Carmichael, assisted by Drs. Halliday and Boucher. Complications set in, and she gradually sank until death came to her relief as above. Mrs. Dredge was a beloveable woman, and many will mourn her demise. She was 50 years of age. The family will have the deep sympathy of the community in their irreparable loss. The funeral will take place from the family residence, 13 Victoria Avenue, (North) to-morrow, Friday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Reg. Turner Wounded

Yesterday Mr. J. J. Turner received a post card from his son Reginald, dated April 6th, informing him that he had been wounded, and is now down with enteric fever, in Severn Hospital, Pretoria. Previous to being taken to the field hospital, Reg. was in the saddle 36 hours. The Times joins in expressing the hope, which is universal, that the gallant boy will be soon again in the saddle.

MILITARY NOTES

No. 4 Company was well represented at the Drill Hall last evening. Sergt Jackson being in command and in charge of the recruits present for range practice with the Morris Tube. Several good scores were made, Corporal Hall showing up well and Pte. K. Henderson being a close second.

Staff Sergt Green who was present on invitation took a crack at the targets and succeeded in topping the score.

An Amusing Incident

Last Sunday evening a very amusing incident occurred at St. Luke's church. The service was over and the people began putting on their wraps. One of our prominent citizens who is a noted golf player, reached for his overcoat, and by some means he got hold of the tails of the garment instead of the neck. The congregation was startled to hear a loud noise in his vicinity, and it was soon learned that a number of golf balls, which he had in his pocket, fell out, and rolled in every direction under the pews making a racket that was startling. The people were shocked at first, but this soon gave way to a sensation of great amusement. Indeed, our informant, who sat near the unfortunate golfer, said that the look of horror on his face, as the balls clattered over the church, was very funny, and worth coming "Myles" to see. However, it is only proper, lest there be some injustice done, to state that this was not the golfer's regular Sunday coat.

High Beef a Benefit

if it teaches you that

BETTER HEALTH
GREATER STRENGTH
KEENER BRAIN

come from

GRAPE-NUTS

Try the change and "cut out" meat for breakfast.

Our word for it you will feel "Fit as a Lord" in a week's time by breakfasting on Grape-Nuts and cream, a little fruit and perhaps one or two soft eggs.

If you ever try this experiment, you will always bless the day of high beef that waked you up.

There's a reason why Grape-Nuts furnishes power to the body and brain. The food contains selected parts of the field grains that furnish phosphate of potash in a natural state that can be assimilated by the human body, this joins with the albumen of food and forms the soft filling of the brain and nerve centers.

Feed skilfully and you can "do things."

The greatest brain workers in America eat Grape-Nuts.

Ask one or two, they'll tell you.

You meat eaters who are ailing in any sort of way might take a valuable hint from the following statement of Chief Chemist Wiley, of the Agricultural Department, in the Daily Press from which we give the following extracts :—

"There is no doubt of the fact that meat-eating is not essential to human life, and that men can be well nourished without resorting to a fish diet,

"I think the statement may be accepted without question that, as a rule, we eat too much, not only of meat, but of all forms of food. The question of limiting the diet is based primarly not on the principle of economy, but on the requirements of hygiene.

"At the early breakfasts which Americans are wont to indulge in, that is, a hearty meal before going to their daily work, the omission of meat is to be earnestly advised.

"It is well known that men who are nourished very extensively on certain cereals are capable of the hardest and most enduring labor. Meats are quickly digested, furnish an abundance of energy soon after consumption, but are not retained in the digestive organism long enough to sustain permanent muscular exertion.

You will feel the Energy of Grape-Nuts longer than any meal of meat.

Remember Grape-Nuts food costs about one cent per meal for each person and all grocers sell it.

DR. FORD'S BIG MEETING

He will Address the Electors of Ashburnham on Monday

Dr. Ford, the Conservative Candidate for East Peterborough, will hold a meeting in Ashburnham on Monday evening next, in the Town Hall, Ashburnham This is the Doctor's first meeting in Ashburnham, and as he is a rattling good speaker, many no doubt will go to hear him.

The Times of Tuesday will contain a report of the meeting.

TO THE ADVERTISER

Do you realize that it would be easy for you to increase your business to the extent of several thousand dollars a year?

Do you know that hundreds of people living in the country surrounding Peterborough never see your name in the newspaper they read; that they don't know why it would be to their advantage to deal with you?

Do you know that those people are sending to Toronto for goods they could buy from you, if they knew you wanted to sell them?

Do you realize that the merchants of Toronto and Montreal are reaching out for the trade of this, and other towns; that they are spending thousands of dollars in advertising, to tell people who ought to buy from YOU all about their goods?

Are YOU telling the people about YOUR GOODS, and the LOW PRICES at which you sell them?

You CAN NOT do so thoroughly, if you don't advertise in THE TIMES, because THE TIMES reaches people whom you can't reach through any other medium.

At least 60 per cent, of the people living in the surrounding country read "THE TIMES" and NO OTHER newspape These people have money to spend and will spend it in Toronto because they think they can buy more cheaply there than here, If you don't secure their custom.

Use THE TIMES to tell them you can give them better bargains than they can get in Toronto.

You'll make money, you'll increase your business, you'll get new customers if you advertise in THE TIMES.

We're going to make THE TIMMES the best daily paper in Eastern Ontario. We have made arrangemtns to improve the local news service and to push the paper to the foremost place in the front ranks. We want you to advertise in THE TIMES because it'll pay you to do so. Every dollar you spend for advertising in The Times will return with good interest added.

Remember—No matter how much business you are doing now—YOU CAN DOO MORE if you advertise in THE TIMES.

TRY IT AND SEE IF YOU CAN'T.

PETERBORO'S POPULAR ROUTE

Peterborough Navigation Company Excursions to Rice Lake

The following excursions are already booked for Jubilee Point for the coming season, per steamer City of Peterborough:

May 22—Sons of England, moonlight.
May 24—57th Regiment Band (Steamer Water Lily also engaged.)
June 13—Farmer's Picnic.
June 26—C.O.F.—three Courts— (Water Lily also engaged.)
July 1.—Sons of England.
Aug. 11—Catholic Order Foresters.

There are several other excursions under consideration showing that the beautiful Otonabee River will have its share of the excursion business this year.

A Big Demonstration

A member of one of the local labour organizations suggested to The Times the idea of holding a big labor demonstration at Jubilee Point on Labour Day this year. The entire fleet of steamers on the waters would be necessary to carry the crowds from town to the Point and return. We think the idea a capital one, and would suggest that the matter be taken up at once. Unless this is done the steamers will be chartered ahead for that day.

SODDOM AND GOMORRAH

A Traveller Talks About the Martinique Disaster

"My first thought when I read of the destruction of St Pierre was that it was simply the history of Sodom and Gomorrah repeated," said Mr. M. Walker, a commercial traveller, to The Times yesterday.

"The morals of the inhabitants of St. Pierre were very bad," he explained. "Good women were an exception among the natives. I cannot picture the vice and immorality of that place vividly enough. It had to be seen to be understood. It is my fear that my friend and companion, Mr. Henry Wade, has lost his life, as he lived in the city and not back of the mountain, as I did. It may be wondered why people did not escape in time.

"When it is considered, however, that to one side laid the volcano, on another a steep mountain, on the other the sea, while the only avenue of escape, toward Fort-de-France, was within the radius of the volcano's power, the true situation may be seen. The people were simply like rats in a trap and had no way to turn. Whoever thought of an eruption proceeding from the volcano. It seemed entirely extinct and the fact that a little lake lay at the bottom of the crater lent strength to this supposition.

"This crater lay about twelve miles to the north and west of St. Pierre and could be climbed after hard work. Its precipitous sides were covered with rough rocks and lava beds. The crater proper was 300 yards in diameter and eighty feet deep.

Mr. Walker says that the whole archipelago is volcanic, and he fears the trouble is not all over yet.

A BELOVED PASTOR

Tribute to the Rev. J. P. Wilson, of George Street Church

The Quarterly Board of the George street Methodist church held its last meeting for the year on Wednesday evening. The various reports that came in showed a very prosperous year.

The following resolution was passed regarding the pastor, the members approving by unanimous vote;

"This Quarterly Board, at the close of the second year of the pastorate of Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., desire to convey to him their thanks for his faithful ministry. In every department of pastoral work Mr. Wilson has been eminently satisfactory — his pulpit efforts have been pleasing, interesting, instructive and helpful; the sick have been faithfully ministered to, the classes and Sunday school helped, and in his intercourse with the people he has won their respect and love.

"We take pleasure in conveying to Mr. Wilson this expression of our appreciation and good will, and hope that the present relationship of pastor and people may be long continued."

GALWAY

It is with deep regret that we record the death of Mrs. John Clark, which sad event took place at the family residence on Monday, May 5th. The sad occurrence came as a shock to the whole community, for only two short years ago Mrs. Clark was made a bride and lived happily with her husband. Death was caused by premature confinement, the innocent cause being placed in the coffin at her side.

Deceased was only twenty-four years of age at the time of her death, and had, apparently, before her a long and a bright future. In all the duties of her position she was faithful. She was affectionate and devoted and deserved the title of a real home maker in the widest sense of that term, as she had already won a large circle of friends.

The remains were taken to the Roman Catholic cemetery in Galway, followed by a very large number of vehicles.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to Mr. John Clark, (son of Mr. Thos. Clark, ex-reeve of Galway), whose home has been blighted so soon and who is one of the most promising young men of our township.

THE ST. PIERRE ERUPTION RELIEF FOR WEST INDIES

How Science Views It--Heat Melted Iron Bars--Echoes of the Horrible Disaster

Special to the Times.

London, May 15.—In a statement in the House of Commons to-day regarding the measures proposed by the Government for the relief of the sufferers from the volcanic outbreaks in the West Indies, the Government leader, A. J. Balfour, after a reference to the steps taken, added:

"We have not taken account of the most sympathetic manner in which the United States Government have, to use their own language, expressed their desire "to share in the work of aid and rescue." As to the manner in which this generous offer can best be accepted, the Government of the Windward Islands has already been consulted."

Mr. Balfour referred to the opening of the relief fund at the Mansion House by the Lord Mayor, Sir Joseph Dimsdale, in behalf of the sufferers of the Island of St. Vincent, and said that Canada, Jamaica, and the other West Indian Island, and the Island of Mauritius (in the Indian Ocean) had promised to help with money and goods.

AN OX SURVIVED.

Fort de France, May 15.— The only living thing seen at St. Pierre by a search party was an ox, thin as a skeleton, which stalked slowly through the wreckage to the beach, where it drank sea water, and then went back up the hillside.

Between St. Pierre and Carbet was the body of a man at the foot of a statue of the Virgin, he apparently having been killed while praying.

The wave of fire must have passed over that section of the island at extreme hurricane velocity. Every house in St. Pierre, not excepting those that were most solidly built of stone, is absolutely in ruins. The streets are piled 12 feet high in debris, and hundreds of bodies can be seen in every direction.

At the police station there was a large pile of bodies lying face downward, as if the victims had fallen while in the act of running to escape the fate impending them.

In one distillery a quantity of rum was found intact in casks.

The Royal mail steamer Solent reports that the people of St. Pierre were in a state of semi-panic for a few days before the catastrophe, and tried to leave the city, but the Government assured them that there was no danger, and placed a cordon of soldiers about the town to prevent anyone from leaving. Death appears to have been more due to suffocation than to fire or lava.

The population of Fort de France are in a state of great anxiety. Earth shocks are felt, and the roaring of the volcano is still heard. The mountain continues to throw out lava and cinders.

New Haven, Conn., May 15.—Prof. Henry S. Williams, Silliman Professor of Geology at Yale, in discussing the Martinique horror said:

"The trouble at Martinique was undoubtedly of volcanic origin. It might have been associated with earthquake energy, as the two sometimes occur together. The thunder and lightning which accompanied the eruption is not uncommon at such times. This was produced by the tension of the atmosphere.

"The volcanic explosions were due to water getting into the cavities in the earth and coming in contact with the heated rocks. These explosions are frequent in the vicinity of the sea or rivers. The ashes spoken of were really not ashes, but fragments of rock thrown out."

"How far down in the earth are these disturbances?" the professor was asked.

"At various depths. Usually they are pretty deep in the earth and may be several miles down. The matter that flows out after an explosion is not real fire, but molten matter. It is red hot and flows down the mountain like water and gives the impression of fire. Gases are emitted, and taking fire, produce the flame which is often seen. The molten matter sets fire to anything in its course. The theory is that the matter in the interior of the earth is under very great pressure, and this pressure keeps it from becoming molten, but as soon as it is thrown up, then it is molten matter.

"Earthquakes are produced by a sliding away of masses of rock and then there is a settling of the earth. At the Charleston earthquake the crack in the earth was several miles long. The earth settled only a few inches."

Princeton, N. J., May 15 — Prof. William B. Scott, the well-known geologist, speaking of the destructive volcanic eruption of Mont Pelee said:

"The eruption was of the explosive type, similar to that of Mount Vesuvius. But it differs in the nature of the material ejected. In the case of Vesuvius, the explosion was powerful enough to powder the lava. Here, however, immense masses of lava were blown out. To these white hot masses can be ascribed the destructive fire in the city and among the ships in the harbor. A rain of fire reported in the newspapers was simply the white-hot lava. Gases did probably burn, but any fire from the source would have ascended.

"The sudden access of a body of water to the lava reservoir is the only explanation worthy on the present evidence. The ejection is peculiar in that immense masses of lava were ejected, and in that comparatively little volcanic dust was noticed. A force as great as that which caused this explosion should have powdered all the lava."

DREAM WARNING AT ST. PIERRE

New York Woman Moved to Flee Before the Eruption

Special to The Times.

New York, May 15 — Mrs. C. M. Craig, of No. 41 West Forty-fifth st., who returned from St. Pierre on the last trip of the steamer Roraima previous to the disaster, tells an interesting story of her flight from Martinique after a dream, which she now regards as a premonition.

"Of all the West Indian islands we thought Martinique the garden spot," said Mrs. Craig. "The merchants were prosperous, the stores were fine, and we liked it so much that we talked of renting a house in St. Pierre for next winter.

"But for a dream I had we might have been in St. Pierre yet. My husband said that it was the coffee, but I insisted that we take the next steamer, and we did.

"I dreamed that while a ball was in progress a terrible rain descended. I was with my husband and my brother. In my dream I saw them killed, not by the rain, but by the natives while the rain was falling. They seemed to have been subjected to torture, and then I awoke. I told my husband of the occurrence. He laughed at me and said I was superstitious, but I insisted on leaving.

"Except for the Prentis family, there were no American families of prominence in St. Pierre."

Charles Van Romondt, until recently Dutch Consul at St. Pierre, who is head of the firm of Charles Van Romondt & Co., of this city and St. St. Pierre, is pessimistic regarding the possibility of the escape of his friends and relatives who were in St. Pierre at the time of the eruption. He believes all avenues of escape were cut off as soon as the ashes began to fall.

Canada's Presents to Royal Pair

London, May 16.—An exhibit of the presents received by the Prince and Princess of Wales during their tour of the colonies last year, was opened today at the Imperial institute. In a gallery alongside the royal presents, is displayed the mineral, forestry and fruit products from Canada, previously shown at the Royal Exchange. Following the exhibition at the Imperial Institute, the presents will be displayed at Edinburgh, Manchester and the other leading cities of the United Kingdom.

Farmers' Visit to Hungary

Special to The Times.

London, May 16—Under the auspices of the Essex Technical Instruction Committee, a party of agriculturalists leave London today for a three week's tour of inspection in Hungary, the object being to study farming and agricultural organizations in that country. Visits will be made to the Archduke Frederick's dairy farms at Magyar Ovar and to M. Snell's pure-bred herd of Simmenthal cattle at Ratot. Electricity as applied to farming will be studied at Ikervar. Various agricultural colleges and peasant farms will also be inspected.

THE CROWNING OF THE KING OF SPAIN

The Old Capital of Spain in a Blaze of Wild Frenzy

THE CORONATION TO-MORROW.

The Young King is Receiving Honors from Many Quarters—The City Crowded with Strangers

Special to The Times.

Madrid, May 16.—Madrid is en fete in celebration of the coming of age of Alfonso XIII. To-day's link in the chain of festivities will be the investiture of the of the young King with the Garter and other orders. The ceremony will be held at the Royal Palace in the presence of a brilliant throng of court functionaries, grandees and visiting princes.

All the provinces of Spain have poured their quota of visitors into the capital and the city is crowded as never before in recent years. The strangers include provincial and municipal authorities, delegations representing educational and scientific bodies, a host of clergy and thousands of people who came simply as sightseers. The continuous round of festivities afford ample entertainment for the visitors as well as for the populace of Madrid. Today there was a rehearsal of the various features which are to form part of the ceremonies tomorrow when the King takes the oath to the Constitution in the Chamber of Deputies. Stands are being erected along the route to be followed by the royal procession to and from the Royal Palace and the pageant will doubtless be witnessed by thousands. Detachments of military have been concentrated in the capital from all parts of the kingdom and extraordinary precautions are being taken to prevent disorderly disturbances.

APPEAL FOR IRELAND

Redmond Declares People were Never so United

Special to the Times.

Philadelphia, May 16.—William H. K. Redmond, member of Parliament from East Clare, last night addressed a meeting in Cathedral Hall in behalf of the United States Irish League. He spoke earnestly for the cause of nationalism and urged all present to exert their best efforts to stamp out English landlord rule in Ireland.

"This appeal," he said, "comes practically from the united Irish people, and at home the opponents of the movement are in the smallest possible minority. There is no doubt to-day that Ireland is more united politically than ever before, and the spirit of the entire country is stronger for nationalism. This is proven by the fact that out of the 103 Irish members of Parliament 83 are united against landlordism, and I emphatically deny that there is more enthusiasm for the cause in this country than there is in Ireland."

RUSSIAN PEASANTS STARVING

Enormous Crowds Flocking to Moscow in Search of Food

Special to The Times.

St. Petersburg, May 15. — Enormous crowds of starving peasants are flocking to Moscow from the Central provinces, in search of means of existence. Half a dozen freight trains, each carrying some 1500 persons, are dispatched daily from Riazan (about a hundred miles from Moscow), in addition to the ordinary traffic.

The railroad station at Riazan is inadequate to hold the refugees, and the wretched crowds bivouac in the open air, suffering from rain, cold and hunger.

DE WET PRAISES THE BRITISH ARMY

Says That He was Kindly and Courteously Treated

TOMMY GENEROUS AND KINDLY

The Boer Leader has a High Opinion of the British People—End of the War

Special to The Times.

Capetown, May 14.—Speaking in his native tongue, Gen. P. De Wet said:

"In my opinion these slanders proceed from the same class of people who have done so much to produce the present unfortunate war. They originate not from the Afrikander people, but from unscrupulous agitators who have been for past years sowing dissension and hatred between the two nationalities. It is impossible for people living in this country to be deceived by such palpable falsehoods. Only people living thousands of miles away can be found to put faith in them. For myself, I have invariably found the English "Tommy" friendly, generous and kind-hearted. I might refer to my own experience when at the outbreak of the war I was in command of a large body of Free Staters. Before we could join with the burghers from the Transvaal two severe battles had been fought at Dundee and Elandslaagte. Directly I came into touch with the Transvaalers who had taken part in the fight, and had learned that a large number of their men, including Gen Kock and other notable leaders had been wounded and taken prisoners, my first question was as to how the wounded prisoners had been treated by the English. I was gladdened to hear that they had been most kindly dealt with, and that after General Kock had succumbed to his injuries his body was respectfully handed over to friends for burial at their hands.

"Further, I had occasion to march through the country around Dewetsdorp shortly after a large force of English had passed through. I inquired most carefully at each farm and stopping place as to the behavior of the troops and was in every instance assured that the soldiers had stolen nothing and had treated all the people with kindness and respect. I even found that the families of burghers still fighting with the Boers had received exactly the same treatment as the families of those who had surrendered. No distinction had been made.

"Again, on one occasion I was permitted to meet with the wife of my brother, General Christian De Wet, who is still fighting in the field. I must acknowledge that Mrs. De Wet was at that time very bitter against the English; but when I asked how she was treated and whether I could procure her any necessaries, her reply was that she had been most kindly treated by the troops, and that she lacked nothing. Since my own surrender I have experienced nothing but kindness and courtesy from the military authorities. For the last twelve months I have lived in Kroonstad, and sometimes I almost forget that war is still in the land."

In conclusion, General Piet De Wet instanced the peaceable and quiet state of the town in which they were living, although thousands of soldiers were frequently passing through, as showing the thorough discipline and good conduct of Tommy Atkins.

Inflamed Nose and Throat

And such diseases of the respiratory organs as bronchitis, weak lungs, cold in the head and nasal catarrh, are treated with marvellous success on strictly scientific principles by Catarrhozone. The medicated vapor of Catarrhozone quickly traverses every air passage possible to be reached by any treatment. All soreness, pain, congestion and inflammation are at once dispelled, and by means of the healing powers of Catarrhozone the vitiated tissues are quickly restored. Where Catarrhozone is used colds last only ten minutes, coughs only half an hour, and catarrh, consumption, asthma and bronchitis flee as from fire. A trial will convince anyone of the startling merit of Catarrhozone. Costs $1.00. Small size 25c. At druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont. Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure constipation.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE

Celebrates Her 79th Birthday in London Yesterday

Special to The Times.

London, May 15. — Congratulations poured in to-day upon Miss Florence Nightingale, the famous Crimean war nurse, the occasion being her seventy-ninth birthday. There were a number of callers at her residence, all of whom were received and welcomed, although the health of the venerable heroine has been very poor for several years. The congratulations of the King and Queen, in the form of autograph letters, were delivered to Miss Nightingale by special messenger. Dispatches couched in felicitous phrases were also received from Miss Clara Barton, the Czar of Russia, and other notables.

It is well known that for years Miss Nightingale has been an invalid as a result of her experiences in the Crimea a half century ago. It is not so well known, however, that her sick room has been the scene of the most arduous and constant labor for the improvement of the health of the soldier. Although now confined to her bed for a large part of the time, she always accorded a welcome to anyone who seeks advice on a question affecting the interests of the sick or those who nurse them. She is cheerful and spends most of her time in reading.

Mafeking Celebration

Special to The Times.

London, May 16.—The anniversary of the action on the Malopo River, by which the relief of Mafeking was secured, will be celebrated in London to-day. Colonel Rhodes and Prince Alexander of Teck are the chief promoters in the celebration which consists of a number of loyal speeches by men of distinction in war and politics.

Montreal Dog Show

Special to The Times.

Montreal, Que., May 16.—As regards the number and high quality of the exhibits of the Montreal Canine Association which opened to-day in the Arena, is one of the most notable shows of its kind ever held in the Dominion. Nearly one thousand blue-blooded dogs are benched representing many of the leading kennels of Canada and the United States. The fox terriers, Great Danes, Russian Wolfhounds and St. Bernards are particularly well represented.

A Sensational Murder Trial

Special to The Times.

New York, May 16.—Preparations for the second trial of Roland B. Molineux, are well under way, the same being under the direction of Assistant District Attorney Osborne. The trial probably will begin early next month, and will, of course, revive all the sensation produced by the first trial two years ago. Patrick's trial caused talk enough, but it was a clean case. There was no scandal in it, the traditional "'woman in the case'" having been absent. But there is a broad river of filth running through the Molineux case which makes its retrial deplorable from the standpoint of public morals.

Completely Fagged out

The world is full of sickly, despondent, tired, enervated people, all hoping to be well some day. The surest road to health is along the road to taking Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone is a great appetizer and enables one to eat plenty of wholesome food without fear of indigestion or dyspepsia. This results in the rapid formation of an abundance of red, vitalizing blood, which will restore the nerves, increase flesh and vigor, and nourish and feed every organ of the body. Ferrozone is an ideal restorative and invigorant. It is a tonic of unequalled merit and that anyone can use with benefit. Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at druggists or Ormond & Walsh.

HE ALWAYS EATS STANDING

BUT IT'S NOT AT ALL FOR THAT OLD, OLD REASON

So the Real Explanation a Brand New Cure for Dyspepsia is Sprung — The Underlying Theory of the Cure is Backed Up Strongly by the Law of Gravitation

Into the Palace Restaurant in which several men perched on high stools were bending over the counter eating their luncheon, there marched a rosy citizen, exhibiting satisfaction with himself and the world. He seized a vacant stool moved it to one side with a thump, placed himself in the space thus left empty and looked around to see if the other lunchers were watching him. His eyes fell on the man to his right.

"Hello, John, that you?" he said as he grabbed the bill of fare. "What are you eating? One of Kennedy's beef steaks? Fruh! Gimme fried lamb chops," to Frank, the waiter.

"What's the matter with you sitting down?" rejoined John. "Make yourself at home and stay awhile."

"I can remember the time when I had to take my meals standing, too. That was after my father caught me going fishing when I ought to have been weeding. What have you been doing to get it so bad?"

"I've been getting common sense, that's what. Say those lamb chops are great. Frank, I'll have a bottle of beer with em."

"Ugh! If I tasted one of those chops I'd have dyspepsia till I liked to die."

"Serve you right for sitting doubled up on that stool. Stand up like I do and you could beat an ostrich. My! It's wonderful what an appetite this weather gives a man. Waiter! Gimme some fried sausages and buckwheat cakes."

"Say, my friend," interposed John, with some anxiety in his voice, "you haven't any reason for committing suicide, have you? Because if you have you'll find it a sight less painful to go down to the Otonabee bridge and jump into the river, and it'll be quicker, too than eating sausages and buckwheat cakes on top of lamb chops."

"Don't you be alarmed about me. A man can eat almost anything he feels like eating, provided he does it in the right way."

"I have heard that there are some men who don't know the meaning of fear and I suppose there are many others who have never heard of dyspepsia."

"Dyspepsia! Why, say! For years I had it in the worst way. I had it so bad last summer—that and indigestion—that I couldn't eat at all except prepared infant food. Why, I got so that I broke down and my wife had to carry me off to the country. Now, I am cured. That's all."

"That so?" exclaimed John laying down his spoon and turning around to face his friend. "What did you take?"

"Nothing," replied the ex-dyspeptic, "I just ate standing up."

"It's a fact," asserted the ex-dyspeptic, "and if you want to cure yourself I'll tell you all about it. I broke down last summer and my wife carried me off to the country. Just one meal of that good plain country board that you read about in the advertisements, laid me up for three days.

"When I was able to be up again I went to the doctor to get him to fix me up. He turned out to be a great old character, that doctor. Said he didn't believe in treating sick people by any school of medicine, but just used plain common sense.

"'I told him all about myself—what I ate, how much I ate and how often I ate. At the end I asked him what I ought to do.

"He replied, 'Do anything you please as long as you don't sit down when you eat.'

"Then he went on and gave a long explanation. I couldn't go into the details of it if I tried, because there were too many scientific terms in it. Man's life gets further and further away from nature with the growth of civilization. It becomes more and more artificial, while his functions remain as nature made them. Therefore, his functions are out of kilter with some of his present conditions.

"That is especially true of his stomach. Among other things it suffers from his manner of eating. The stomach and the oesophagus are like a rubber bag with a rubber tube leading down to it. Below the stomach are the intestines, like more rubber tubing.

"If you take a rubber tube with a bag at the end and hold it up the tube will be perfectly straight and anything you put in in will fall through to the bag and thence to the other tubing. So with the stomach. Let a man stand up and there is a straight path for his food to the place where it should be.

"But if the rubber tube is bent and the bag is doubled over, there will be no longer a free and unobstructed passage. That's what happens when you sit down to eat. You are bent over. The food can't slide down the oesophagus, and into the stomach, and thence to the stomach as it ought to.

"The passage gets blocked. There is a congestion of food. Instead of the work being equally distributed, part the digestive apparatus has to do all the work. The result naturally is a breakdown. And there you are."

"And do you mean to say that you cured your dyspepsia by standing up while you ate?" asked John, incredulously.

"Sure," replied the ex-dyspeptic, ordering a piece of hot mince pie. "And it seems reasonable, too. As that old doctor pointed out, animals never curl themselves up when they eat. Snakes stretch themselves out straight when they swallow their prey.

"That doctor declared that there were only two proper positions for eating, one standing upright, the other lying down after the fashion of the ancient Romans. If people would sit bolt upright when they ate, it wouldn't be so bad, he said, but they don't. They sit with their spine in a curve.

"I have tried the plan of standing up when I eat and you don't see any marks of the dyspeptic about me. I've told a dozen other people about it, and it has benefitted them. We're going to form a Stand-Up-While-You-Eat Club."

"I wish," said John wistfully, as he got down from his stool, "that really I knew how you got cured. Perhaps, I'll try eating standing up, though."

An Essential For Health Building

Malt Breakfast Food is now recognized as a prime essential for health-building. The ablest physicians as well as the most noted food experts after repeated tests and experiments have found to their satisfaction that Malt Breakfast Food contains a much larger proportion of the elements necessary for the building of flesh, bone and muscle, than any other food now on the market.

This expert testimony in favor of Malt Breakfast Food will strengthen the faith of present users of the popular cereal food, and will exercise a telling influence on those who now use oatmeal and other starchy food preparations at the morning meal.

While Malt Breakfast Food is the chosen and popular breakfast dish of the strong and well, it is the physician's favorite diet for the weak and frail, for the invalid and convalescent. A few weeks of dieting on Malt Breakfast Food will banish the ailments of the dyspeptic, and establish permanent health. All grocers.

WEATHER NOTES

Probs. To-day: Continued fine and somewhat warmer.

Continued fine weather is still indicated and the conditions are becoming favorable for higher temperature in Ontario and Quebec, more especially after to-day. Warm weather prevails throughout the West.

THE EARTH'S CENTER FRIGHTFULLY UNEASY

People are Fleeing From the Colima Volcano in in Mexico, Alarming Settlers

Special to The Times.

Guadalajara, Mexico, May 15.— The Colima volcano shows strong indications of a great eruption, and the inhabitants living in the valley at its base are moving to a safe distance from the peak, from which smoke and puffs of flame have been belching for several days.

Mount Colima has threatened renewed activity for several weeks, this condition, causing the work of constructing the extension of the Mexican Central railroad to Manzanillo, passing near the base of the mountain, to cease temporarily. The route of the extension will probably be changed in order to avoid any possible disaster that an eruption might bring.

Omaha, May 16.—According to dispatches received from Pender, Mount Lena, Nebraska's miniature volcano, has been for two days sending up smoke and steam.

The volcano is situated on the Missouri River, in Cedar County, about 150 miles from Omaha, and has been practically dead for 30 years.

Reports say that all the settlers in the immediate neighborhood are preparing to move. Geologists have said the smoke is caused by water from the Missouri sweeping into the limestone rock formation of the mountain, but the people are fearful of an eruption.

THE PRESBYTERY

Of Peterborough Met in Toronto on Wednesday—Rev. Mr. Yule for Springfield

The Presbytery of Peterborough met at Toronto, during Synod meeting and disposed of three calls; one from Keene to Rev. D. D. McDonald, of Caledonia, in the Presbytery of Hamilton; one to Rev. G. Yule from Springville, and one from Herning's Mills, in the Orangeville Presbytery, to Rev. D. A. Hamilton, of Havelock. Mr. Yule's induction was appointed to take place at Springville on the 27th inst. at three o'clock. Orders were given to the clerk to cite the Havelock congregation to appear for their interests at Springville on the 27th, when the call from Herning's Mills will be finally issued.

Mr. Hamilton tendered the resignation of his appointment as delegate to the Assembly and Mr. Kannawin, of Omemee, was appointed in his stead.

Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Clark, of the First church, Port Hope, were appointed as additional delegates to the Assembly.

Revs. Potter, Bennet and Campbell and Sheriff Hall, elder, were appointed to meet with a committee of the Whitby Presbytery to confer as to claims of the Ballyduff congregation on the manse property at Blackstock.

Those present at the meeting were Messrs. Potter, Bennett, Oswald, Campbell, McIntosh, Hamilton and Sinclair.

Presbytery adjourned to meet again at Springville on the 27th, of which meeting the clerk was instructed to notify all the members.

Living in Gotham

Special to The Times.

New York, May 16.—Each year brings additions to the list of famous people living [illegible] and thirteen who have been Maying in New York and nineteen hundred and two is not an exception to the rule. With ex-Secretary of the Treasury Lyman Gage, considered a New Yorker, there are now residing in the metropolis seven former members of the Cabinet, three of whom were Secretaries of the Treasury, namely, Fairchilds, Carlisle and Gage; four men who have been Ministers to France, Bigelow, Morton, Reid and Porter; two ex-Governors of the State, two men who have been Lieutenant Governors, either of New York or Brooklyn.

Enterprising Insurance Men

Special to The Times.

New York, May 16.—One of the most unique schemes for recruiting the ranks of any society ever heard of has been devised by the Equitable Life Assurance Society, which has agreed to establish a class of instruction in insurance to young men and women who are working their way through college and desire some employment to enable them to pay their expenses. The class will be under the instruction of experts in the business and during the one or two months' teaching the company pay the expenses of the members of the class. There will probably be more than a thousand in the class.

Tracing a Boer Up

Special to the Times.

Cape town, May 16.—A rebel in Cape Colony, whose name was Douwaas, and who could speak nothing but Dutch, was tried for treason recently. An English gentleman who was present at the trial became interested in him and after his acquittal entered into conversation with him through an interpreter. Douwaas could neither read nor write, but thought that he was of French extraction. However, all his little history was written down in the family Bible at his farm, and the Englishman had the curiosity to go there and investigate it. Then he discovered that the man's real name was Douglas, that his grandfather emigrated direct from Scotland and that the transformation was entirely the work of two generations of Boer mothers.

VILLIERS

Dr. Harrison of Keene is attending Miss Maggie Sager, who is ill with scarlet fever; he reports the case as doing nicely.

A little stranger appeared in our village last week, which means a busy summer for Geordie.

Our village blacksmith received a visit last week from his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William Hastie, Allandale.

Jack Frost worked hard on Friday night, leaving three quarters of an inch of ice on rain barrels and water troughs.

On Friday night one of our young men wheeling home at a late hour tried to run over a sheep, but only got far enough to put his arm around its neck.

Cramps are Like Burglars

They come unexpected and when least welcome. Be armed with a one-minute cure in a bottle of Nerviline, which relieves cramp and stomach pains in five minutes. In colic, summer complaint, diarrhoea, indigestion and nausea, Nerviline is a remedy of remarkable potency, and acts promptly and satisfactorily at all times. The composition of Polson's Nerviline expresses the highest medical progress of the age, which accounts for its superior merit. Price 25c.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 16, 1902.

THE REAL ISSUE

There has been a great deal too much ancient history dragged into current campaign discussion. Dead issues and forgotten scandals which have no legitimate bearing upon the actual questions before the people have been resuscitated and paraded through the partizan press and on the platform, while weightier matters have been neglected to a secondary position. It would be far better if both parties could conclude to let bygones be bygones and confine themselves to the discussion of live issues, and topics of present and pressing interest—a field quite broad enough it might be supposed to occupy the mind of the average writer or speaker.

The question which the electors are called upon to consider is not the general history, career and course of conduct of the two parties calling themselves "Liberal" and "Conservative," from the early days of settlement up to date. It is not a matter respecting which one has to rummage musty newspaper files and consult historical archives to arrive at a conclusion. It is a much simpler and more practical one, viz.—Whether the administration of Hon. G. W. Ross, or a government to be formed by Mr. Whitney from the leading members of the Opposition is likely to succeed best in promoting the practical interests of the country. It does not afford much scope for hysterics and histrionics, which are quite out of place in considering what is simply a plain business proposition.

The main feature of the policy of the incumbents of office—the paramount and all important issue in this contest, as respects especially West Peterborough—is the relation of Mr. Stratton to the progress and interests of this town and county, and the work of progressive development of New Ontario and the resulting benefits to Older Ontario, and of the general agricultural and commercial interests undertaken by the Premier and his colleagues. As to the beneficial character of the object sought to be obtained there can be no doubt. Everyone wants to see the town forge ahead and the county prosper, our industries flourish, new industries established, money plentiful, labor well employed, and immigrants flocking in. Everyone desires to see our agricultural lands settled, new enterprises promoted, railways built where they are needed, and to have these things accomplished as rapidly and efficiently as possible. However men may disagree as to party designations on abstract theories, the people as a whole believe in development and desire to see this town and the country generally grow and prosper.

It is to the credit of Mr. Ross and his colleagues, especially the member for West Peterborough, that they have not allowed outworn theories as to the limitations of the scope of Government to stand in the way of practical measures. The adoption of what is known as the forward policy, which by the way, was, we believe, just mentioned in the House in a speech by Mr. Stratton, was a great step in advance. This policy must be judged not by occasional shortcomings, but by broad, general results, and if on the whole they have been favorable thus far, and promise well for the future, the government certainly deserves well of the country and should be sustained. It is easy to criticize and pick flaws to show where there might be room for improvement, and how some features of the project have not turned out quite as favorable as could be wished. At this sort of work Mr. Whitney is an adept. Now we are not concerned with the correctness of his allegations, some of which may have a substratum of fact. But, making due allowance for the imperfections of all things human, and taking a broad, comprehensive view of the subject, it is evident that while the government has risen and shown constructive ability of a high order, Mr. Whitney, on the other hand, has never formulated any policy or advanced any plan for the advancement of the material interests of the province such as would indicate his fitness to carry on the work of development.

As the right hand man of Hon. G. W. Ross in pushing forward the constructive movement on which such great results depend, Mr. Stratton should have the hearty support of the electors of West Peterborough. The constituency ought to be proud of having a representative who has taken such an active part in the noble though arduous task devolving upon the government of Ontario. His prudence shown in the management of his private concerns, have well fitted him for his share in the additional duties and responsibilities undertaken by the cabinet. It would be a public calamity should the electors, allowing themselves to be influenced by altogether minor and secondary considerations, reject one of his proved energy, experience and capacity in favor of a man who can never hope to equal his usefulness. Even were Mr. Miller personally as acceptable a candidate as the Provincial Secretary, it would be a great mistake on the part of the electors to run the risk of defeating a government which has done so much to promote the best interests of the Province, by depriving the cabinet of his services.

The all-important question before the people is whether the good work of industrial expansion and the building up of Peterborough and New Ontario shall go on under the auspices of those who have been so far successful in promoting it, or whether for the mere sake of change they will commit it to new and untried hands and run the danger of failure and mismanagement. They should bear in mind the old adage that, "It is a bad time to swap horses when crossing streams."

THE TRAGEDY OF ST. PIERRE

The destruction of St. Pierre, Martinique, seems to have been due to the pressure of water in contact with the volcanic fires of Mont Pelee. The steam thus generated blew the mountain's head off, as Prof. Hovey, of the Natural History Museum, explains, just as a hot boiler explodes when cold water is carelessly introduced.

All the conditions invited calamity. The island is of volcanic origin, being little more than a ridge joining two threatening peaks. From Pelee to St. Pierre the descent is short and steep, and there was no way of escape when flame flashed down upon the town and set it almost instantly ablaze, followed by a rain of hot mud and ashes and choking sulphuric gas.

Pelee is one of the many volcanos that frown on populous scenes. Naples is beyond danger from Vesuvius, but a great eruption might wipe out many nearer towns and be as destructive as was the great one of A.D. 79, when Pompeii, a city of 30,000 people, with an amphitheatre larger than the Madison Square Garden, and Herculaneum, and other towns were destroyed; and fewer people might escape than then fled to safety. Under Etna live 400,000 people, including 140,000 in Catania, which was destroyed in 1169 and 1693, when from 60,000 to 100,000 people were killed. A Lisbon earthquake as severe as that of November 1, 1755, would slay more than the 30,000 to 40,000 people who are supposed to have then perished.

The volcano is versatile. It calls the earthquake to aid; some men it slays by covering them with hot lava which cools into solid rock, as at Herculaneum, some it buries in soft lava dust, as at Pompeii; some it boils in mud, as at Bandaisan, Japan, in 1895. Against seacoasts it hurls huge tidal waves, as when the Krakatoa eruption of 1883 "sent our stoutest steamships to roost with the startled crows" in tree-tops, and when nearly 30,000 persons perished.

The eruption of St. Pierre, though unexampled in its swift and terrible destructiveness, seems not to have been upon so vast a scale, and no mention is yet made of any remarkable tidal-wave as following it. It was the density of the population and the nearness of the source of danger which made that unhappy place, hitherto known to most readers mainly as the childhood home of the Empress Josephine, the victim in a calamity of seldom-equalled completeness of horror.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Times has only one policy—the advancement of Peterborough's interests. This is our politics, and explains why we are supporting Mr. Stratton.

* * * *

The Times is not surprised to hear that Hon. F. R. Latchford will probably be beaten in South Renfrew. His violation of the railway promises he made when seeking re-election three years ago, is telling against him now.

* * * *

Every patriotic citizen who desires to see Peterborough prosper, should get in line now.

* * *

Up to the hour of going to press the day for observing Victoria Day in Peterborough had not been changed again.

There will be another frost on the 29th, when Major Miller's supporters will be chilled to the core.

It is estimated that 200,000 immigrants will come into the Canadian Northwest from the States this summer. The crop last year was eighteen million bushels larger than transportation could be provided for. What will it be when the Northwest really begins to fill up? Better hurry up and get the Trent Valley canal built.

When the cannon of nature belch at humanity, we become one race, with a common dread and a common sympathy. The dead at the foot of Mont Pelee are kin to every continent.

It is to be hoped that peace will be concluded in time for Lord Kitchener to get back for the Coronation, and his full share of the cheering.

* * *

If the question of peace or continued brigandage is really to be submitted to a vote of the Boers it is to be feared Lord Kitchener will have to be charged with trying to keep people away from the polls. His "bag" last week was 49 killed, 6 wounded, 302 taken prisoner and nine surrendered. There also fell into his possession 400 rifles 157 wagons, 400 horses, and 4,300 head of cattle. These are the Boers being gradually restored to the comforts of civilization.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Dr. Carmichael, of Peterborough, passed through here last week.

At the Methodist church last Sabbath morning, Rev. Mr. Mounteer chose for the subject of his discourse these words, "What is that to thee," "Follow thou Me." Rev. Mr. Kannawin's text in the evening at the Presbyterian church was "Set thine house in order for thou shalt die and not live." Following each other the texts chosen were very appropriate and both sermons were very impressive.

Tragedies of the Arctic.

An extraordinary coincidence has been developed by a recent Arctic tragedy brought about by the expedition of the Duke of the Abruzzi.

When this navigator went on his journey to the North Pole he took with him among others Lieutenant Querini, a Venetian gentleman of an old and noble family. His work over, the Duke returned, but the lieutenant was not with him, for he had lost his life through an accident in the Arctic regions.

Now, at the very time when this accident occurred a professor in the technical school in Trieste, while rummaging in the archives of that city, discovered a manuscript bearing the date 1881, and containing an account of a journey made by one Pietro Querini, in 1431, to the Arctic regions. Querini is not a common name, and a little investigation showed that Pietro Querini was a direct ancestor of the other Pietro Querini who lost his life in the Arctic seas a few months ago.

"Querini," says the old manuscript, "sailed from Candia for Flanders on board a vessel loaded with merchandise and precious stones. When he arrived in Flanders he sold his cargo and started for the Arctic regions. A storm forced him to abandon his ship and to take refuge with his crew in two barks. The wind then carried them to the coast of Norway, but on January 3, 1432, Querini was again shipwrecked near the Lofoden Islands in seventy degrees north latitude, and almost all his companions were drowned."

For some time it was supposed that he, too, had been drowned, but in January, 1433, he appeared in Venice with ten companions, the only survivors of his original crew of seventy-eight men. It seems that he succeeded in gaining the shore after the others had been drowned, and then slowly made his way home through Denmark and Germany.

"Although these two Pietro Querinis," says a French writer, "are separated from each other by five centuries, we find the same destiny at work in the case of each." And he continues, with a dash of playfulness: "Is it not possible that the adventurer of the fifteenth century, desiring to enjoy once more the exciting days of his youth, actually became incarnated as a hero of the twentieth century?"

The Veal Age.

This is assuredly the Veal Age in literature. People no longer ask about an author, How old is he? but How young is he—or she, as is usually the case. Of the writers on the staff of Josh, Gosh & Co. 85 per cent. are under the age of twenty-one, and 25 per cent. are under sixteen years. Sixty-eight per cent. of these write historical romances and 25 per cent. write in the colonial style.—"Book Booster."

"And now," clucked the old hen, surveying with pride the fifteen eggs in her nest, "I am going to have a smart set of my own."

Three weeks later, true to her word, she had a coming-out party, and society eagerly flocked to see her debutantes, who were arrayed in the daintiest and fluffiest of garments and looked too sweet for anything.—Chicago Tribune.

Literature's Anticipations of Science.

A very interesting book might be written, as the "Spectator" observes, by collecting together all the cases in which poets and dramatists and novelists have anticipated the triumphs of later science. A correspondent has just called attention to such a case, in which he claims that the Spanish dramatist Calderon uttered "a very clear prevision of Marconi's wireless telegraphy." Freely translated, the passage in question reads as follows: "They say that when two instruments are properly attuned together they communicate to each other their wind-borne echoes; touch the one instrument and the winds excite its fellow, though none be near it." Calderon's reference is, of course, to the well-known principle of resonance, and can scarcely be used as a prophecy of wireless telegraphy, but in the writings of a contemporary of Calderon there is a much closer approximation to Marconi's discovery. Strada, the learned Jesuit historian, tells us how two friends carried on a correspondence "by the help of a certain Loadstone, which had such virtue in it that, if it touched two several needles, when one of the needles so touched began to move, the other, though at never so great a distance, moved at the same time and in the same manner." Strada goes on to describe how these two friends made a kind of "alphabetic telegraph"—a dial-face with the letters of the alphabet placed around its edge, and a needle in the center which could be made to point at any of the letters at will. "When they were some hundreds of miles asunder, each of them shut himself up in his closet at the time appointed, and immediately cast his eye upon his dial-plate. If he had a mind to write anything to his friend, he directed his needle to every letter that formed the words which he had occasion for, making a little pause at the end of every word or sentence to avoid confusion. The friend, in the meanwhile, saw his sympathetic needle moving of itself to every letter which that of his correspondent pointed at. By this means they talked across a whole continent, and conveyed their thoughts to one another in an instant, over cities or mountains, seas or deserts." Not only had these correspondents no necessity for wires; they did not even need the simple apparatus upon which Marconi depends, although there are scientific prophets of our day who believe that we shall yet reach even a higher standard of simplicity in the future.

UNCHARITY.

SERMON BY
GEORGE H. HEPWORTH.

And to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity.—II. Peter, i., 7.

There is one form of vice which is to me especially offensive and repellant, namely, habitual uncharity in the judgment of others. It is twice cursed, for it curseth him who gratifies his morbid appetite and him who is unconsciously the victim of it.

It is always safe to be generous in criticism, and seldom safe to be severe. If the Christ's rule, the "measure you mete, it shall be measured to you again," should be literally enforced, many a man and woman would be wrecked by the consequences. If it is always possible to say something kind it is well to be in the frame of mind to do it. The middle course is to be silent unless there is a good word to say, and the heroic course is to rebuke the harsh and unnecessary criticism.

Many a life has been seriously wounded, many a heart well-nigh broken by thoughtless talk which perhaps had no foundation in fact, or was based on facts misunderstood. It is so much better to be sweet than sour. The juicy plum filled with sunshine hangs on the branches in abundance, and so does the lemon, and it is a more gracious taste which chooses the plum and leaves the lemon for others to pluck. Life contains so many disagreeable things that if we can avoid coming into contact with any one of them we do ourselves a distinct benefit. A smile helps the world more than a frown, and the good nature which ignores the unpleasant and dwells only on the agreeable is a Christian virtue, which is as charming as it is rare.

The clear injunction of religion is to find the good in our neighbors and not to magnify their failings. We may laugh at their follies or look with scorn on their weaknesses, but who knows what we ourselves would do under like circumstances? We are not so strong that we can thank God, as the poor Pharisee did, that we are not like other men. If we are really strong the best way to show our strength is to help those who have fallen by the way rather than spread the news of their failure, as though we stood on a higher and safer level. True religion, the only kind worth having, not only prays that "from all uncharitableness, good Lord, deliver us," but co-operates with the Lord in the accomplishment of the task.

A legend is told of Jesus which illustrates my point. He was standing in a group who were looking at a dead dog. Each spectator had something hard and cruel on his lips, but at last a gentle voice was heard, saying, "He had very white teeth!" It was perhaps the only thing that could be said of a favorable nature, and it was the only thing He cared to say. It was a rebuke not to be easily forgotten, and the men in the group silently stole away, wondering at themselves and at Him.

You deceive yourself if you think you are religious and still indulge in uncharity. I would rather be poor Abou Ben Adhem, who cared nothing for Christ, but wanted to be classed as one "who loves his fellow-men," than so wretched a Christian that he could cherish a secret delight in the faults of others. Religion is either the most practical and useful thing in the world, or it counts for nothing—the theory of a day, to be abandoned on the morrow. And it proves its mettle when it demands a generous and charitable judgment, and will accept no excuse if you have it not. There never yet was human soul so debased that the angels could not kindle a divine and purging flame in it. In the basest creature that lives there are possibilities of excellence which cannot be calculated, and your word of censure, your scorn and disdain, your repetition of an evil rumor may quench that flame in its feeble beginnings.

There is but one wholesome rule to follow. It is the dictate of honor and of the consciousness that even you need to be judged kindly. It is never to spread an injurious story, for your own sake, for his sake, for the sake of all concerned. No bitterness of spirit and no bitterness of criticism. Look for the good and speak of it freely, but be blind to the faults of others as you would have them blind to yours. The Christ loved justice, but He was always merciful. So you may love the truth, but if you cannot help, see to it that you do not hurt. A silent tongue sometimes shows a consecrated heart.

Northern Pines.

I passed where the pines for Christmas
Stood thick in the crowded street,
Where the groves of dream and silence
Were walked by feverish feet.

And far through the rain and street cries
My home-sick heart went forth
To its pine-clad hills of childhood,
To its dark and tender North.

And I saw the gleaming pine lands,
And I thrilled to the norland cold,
Where the sunset fell in silence
On the hills of gloom and gold.

And the dusk, still woods lay round me,
And I knew that the patient eyes
Of my North as a child's were tender,
As a sorrowing mother's, wise.

Shopman—What style of hat do you wish, sir?

A child three years of age died of drunkenness the other day in New York City. The parents said they had given the child whisky to strengthen him. In their absence he found a bottle of whisky and drank from it, until he fell over in a drunken stupor, from which the physician could not arouse him. That is only one case in several cases of baby drunkards recently noted. The important fact is that alcoholic stimulants quickly develop the alcoholic habit in children. This fact is just as true when the alcohol is disguised as a medicine, a "sarsaparilla" or other "compound." So many medicines contain alcohol, to the same extent that it is contained in beer or whisky, that parents should be cautious what medicines they give their children.

There is absolutely no alcohol, whisky or intoxicant in any form in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, neither does it contain opium or any other narcotic. It is a blood-making and body-building medicine. It does not make flabby flesh but good, firm flesh and muscle. It is pleasant to the taste.

"My four year old daughter had suffered from indigestion and bowel trouble from birth," writes Mrs. Lizzie Aten, of Baldmount, Lackawanna Co., Pa. "The treatment given her by home doctors afforded but temporary relief. Last February she was taken with severe pain in the bowels, followed by violent vomiting. She experienced difficulty in passing urine, which, when cool, deposited a milky sediment. I became alarmed from her symptoms and wrote to the World's Dispensary Medical Association of Buffalo, N. Y., receiving in reply a letter, advising the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, together with a special medicine which they sent. This line of treatment I followed for about two months, at the end of which time my child was enjoying good health, and she has had no severe attack of indigestion since."

Free. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to defray expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

For Farmers.

The fact that last year some crop did not bring good prices is often an indication that this year prices may be high, for the reason that such a crop is liable to be discarded this season for something else. A successful fruit grower once stated that whenever he found his neighbors discarding a crop he invariably selected it for himself, as he expected a scarcity of the crop in market by reason of less land being devoted to it.

Proof Positive.

A convict at a French penal settlement, who was undergoing a life sentence, desired to marry a female convict, such marriages being of common occurrence. The governor of the colony offered no objection, but the priest proceeded to cross-examine the prisoner.

"Did you not marry in France?" he asked.

"Yes."

"And your wife is dead?"

"She is."

"Have you any document to show that she is dead?"

"No."

"Then I must decline to marry you. You must produce some proof that your wife is dead."

There was a pause, and the bride prospective looked at the would-be groom.

Finally he said: "I can prove that my former wife is dead."

"How will you do so?"

"I was sent here for killing her."

The bride accepted him notwithstanding.—"Scotsman" [illegible]

Anecdotal.

When the English barrister, Richard Eve, desired to "take silk"—or, in other words, to become a Queen's Counsel—he sent the usual note to the senior members on the circuit to see whether anyone objected, according to custom. Mr. Adam Walker, one of the senior members, replied as follows:—"My dear Eve,—You may take silk or a fig leaf. I don't care.—Adam."

Shortly after Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, R.A., was knighted, he and Lady Alma-Tadema gave an At Home at St. John's Wood. Everybody present was congratulating them, and one lady was very profuse. "Oh, dear Sir Lawrence," she said, "I am awfully glad to hear of the honor you have received. I suppose now that you are knighted you will give up painting and live like a gentleman."

In an Ohio town last fall, the African Methodist-Episcopal Church of that district held a conference, and for a week the town was filled with colored pulpit orators. A few days after the conference closed its sessions, one of the leading colored women of the town drove out to Pea Ridge to purchase chickens of an old mammy who had supplied the family for years. Aunt Hanna, coming to the gate, said: "I'm sorry, Miss Allie. I ain't got a chicken left. Dey all done enter de ministry.

A story is going the rounds about a prominent Nova Scotia lawyer who is noted for his carelessness in dress, which fact annoys the members of the Bar exceedingly. Entering the courtroom one day minus a cravat, the judge reproved him, saying the law required him to wear one. "Oh, yes, your honor. I know it," he answered; "but it does not say where he shall wear it," and as he spoke he pulled it out of his trousers pocket. The matter then dropped.

General William T. Sherman was fond of relating the following story: "When I was with the army in Georgia, a slave-owner about Christmas time missed a fine fat turkey. He suspected a good-looking mulatto, and ordered the man brought before him. 'You have stolen my turkey and eaten it,' said the irate planter. 'I'se not gwine to say I didn't, when you says I did, massa.' 'I ought to have you flogged. What have you to say why I should not punish you?' 'Well, massa, you hain't lost anything particular. You see, you has a little less turkey and a good deal more nigger.' And the master was compelled to acknowledge the philosophy of the slave, and let him go unwhipped."

As a young man Paul Kruger was regarded as an authority on psalm singing, and the farmers used to come to him to learn the keynote for starting the psalms at the next Sunday's service. Kruger, even in those days, was no believer in the policy of giving anything away—not even a note of music—so he had a uniform charge of a double handful of dried peaches for his instruction. Even the fact that the work was in the service of religion did not deter him from resorting to strategy, for he made a point of giving each applicant a different note. The result when the pious Doppers attempted to raise their voices in sacred harmony next Sunday may be imagined. The result was that each man concluded he had lost the key, and had to return for a further lesson. "I nearly bankrupted them of their dried peaches," said the president.

Ford Madox Brown, the artist, once had to be smuggled into his own exhibition. The occasion was a private view in Bond street of the Manchester fresco, "John Kay." The artist being unwell at the time was accompanied in his carriage to the gallery by his doctor and old friend, William Gill. The time passed pleasantly enough en route in conversation, when suddenly Madox Brown's talk came to an abrupt full stop; he started as though struck by some very disquieting thought, and wildly plunged round in his various pockets, blank dismay depicted on his countenance the while. "Good heavens, Gill!" he exclaimed, "I have forgotten my card of admission! What am I to do?" "Your card of admission!" replied his amazed friend, "surely you can get in without that?" "No, no," answered Madox Brown in despair, "they will never let me in—they don't know me!" Fortunately, however, Mr. Gill was provided with the necessary passport, and he thus played the distinctly original role of getting an artist admission into his own show.

Intellect vs. Morals.

It is the tendency of a sophisticated age like the present to overestimate intellectual as compared with moral and emotional gifts. The material civilization upon which we pride ourselves is almost entirely the achievement of the intellect. Fame and wealth, luxury, cultivation and leisure—all the big prizes of the world, in fact—are obtained by the successful exercise of the intellect. The moral qualities, of themselves, can procure a man nothing but a clear conscience, and the approval, perhaps mixed with contempt, of his neighbors. And yet, when the intellectual qualities are brought to the test of reality; when one's view of them is not clouded by pride, avarice, or passion, how amazingly does their value shrink and shrivel!—Henry Childe Merwin in "Atlantic Monthly."

A Matter of Spelling.

Those who love to study human nature often derive as much pleasure from watching the people who visit picture-galleries as they receive from the pictures themselves. It is not every day, however, which produces so amusing an incident as one which an English paper reports:

Two ladies were looking at a picture by Mr. Faed, in the Royal Academy, entitled, "His Only Pair." The artist has depicted a poor boy sitting up in bed while his hard-working mother mends his only pair of trousers. The boy, although obliged to stay in bed while the repairs are under way, is contentedly eating an orange.

One of the visitors looked at the picture with searching gaze, and then remarked to her companion: "'His Only Pair!' I don't call that a pear at all! It's an orange that he is eating."

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty, Willful Gaynell, Little Leahy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter what a world of woe she had passed through.

She was so deeply engrossed in watching them that she never saw a man who was sauntering slowly past, glancing carelessly around until his eyes fell on her face — and then:

Great heaven, how keenly he watched her —his dark, sullen, gloomy eyes fairly scintillating —watched every look, every play of the beautiful features.

"I cannot be mistaken," he muttered, coming closer to get a better view of the half-averted face.

A shadow fell between her and the golden sunlight —some one had stopped beside her —a hand was laid upon her shoulder —a man was bending over her.

"You are Daisy, my wife!" a voice hissed in her ear, and glancing up in terror too great for words, she saw the dark, cruel face of Harold St. John.

She knew him at once.

She sprung to her feet and as a frightened bird stands still and cannot move, so she suddenly stood still dazed and paralyzed before him.

For a moment all was chaos and confusion. The shock was so awful, so terrible that she almost lost her reason. A terrible sound filled her ears, a flash as of red light came before her eyes. The sun seemed suddenly to cease shining, and the world to be plunged in the awful darkness of Hades.

"You are my wife, Daisy," he repeated.

One thought alone rose clearly before her; she must deny it, for Aleck's sake.

For one moment profound silence reigned. She was conscious that his dark, terrible eyes were burning rather than looking down into her own.

His face was awful to see in its awful anger. Hers was pitiful in its pale, pathetic loveliness and unutterable fear.

The terrible force of the shock gave her strength; had the torture, the fear been less, she would have died of it.

She rose to the occasion, her courage rose —for Aleck's sake— Aleck, the love, the light of her life.

She raised her eyes to that dreaded face; she read there no love for her —only sullen revenge; her clear eyes looked straight into his, and seemed to greet the evil spirit there.

"There is evidently a mistake," she said in well-bred, ladylike surprise. "Allow me to pass."

A smile of derision passed over his lips; there was a touch of mockery in it that maddened her.

"Let you pass—you," he cried; "for whom I have been searching the whole world over. I have found you, and you shall never leave me again. I claim you as my wife—the girl who married me in the old stone church on the night of the garden party at Briarvale."

"You are mistaken," she said quietly, in a voice that betrayed neither agitation nor emotion. "Either mad—or—or intoxicated, I imagine."

"Do you dare stand there and deny it?" he asked furiously, staggered at her audacity —he had expected anything but this. "You are my wife. Neither heaven nor earth can prevent me from declaring it and claiming you. You cannot brave it out as you are trying to do."

"Indeed you are mistaken," she replied gently. "I suppose this is a strange case of close resemblance. I have heard of such cases."

He grew livid with rage, and grasped her white arm.

"Come," he cried, "no more of this, it is useless for you to make any further resistance."

"I must go," cried Daisy; "release your hold on my arm—you shall answer to my husband for this insult to me."

He laughed a terrible laugh that froze the blood in her veins.

"Your husband," he repeated; "what then, and who, am I?"

"My curse and my torment!" she muttered to herself, but she made no audible reply.

"I will answer that question if you will not," he went on harshly. "I, and no other man, can claim you as his wife. All the lies, the effrontery, the boldness, the maneuvers of the world cannot alter that fact."

She turned from him with an air of weariness.

"I am quite tired of your raving," she said. "I am convinced that you are a madman."

"You hypocrite!" he cried, fairly foaming at the mouth. "If you will not own me by fair means, you shall by force!"

She tried to shake off the clasp of his hand; this exasperated him.

"You are a strong man; I am weak. I—I would not care if you killed me!" she said. "I could endure it better than this torture."

"You shall not die," he returned grimly. "No doubt you would prefer that to coming with me."

Her heart stood almost still with fear; she was at a loss what to say, yet the instinct of self-preservation was strong within her.

Never, let what might happen, would she admit this man's claim — never, not even if she lay dying!

"I seem to be compelled to listen because I cannot free myself from your strong clasp," she said, "but rest assured, when I see a policeman, pass, you shall be arrested; you shall suffer for this!"

"There is no law which can punish a man for claiming his own wife," he retorted. "I will give out my story to the whole world, and the law shall settle whether you are Alexander Hamilton's wife or mine."

Ah, how she trembled as that beloved name fell from his lips! She could see all the horror of the terrible scandal before her; she could picture Aleck's dismay at the awful charge!

But could Harold St. John prove his claim? She would deny it with her last breath.

There had been no witnesses — no one save the old spinister who married them was present at that fatal ceremony; and then, too, he had claimed Lillian Ruthven as the bride he had wooed and won. How then could he turn about and claim her and expect to be believed?

She told him this with a mocking smile.

"I know a way of proving this — my marriage with you— beyond the shadow of a doubt," he replied grimly. "It is useless to catch at that straw to defy me; you will find it so."

"I persist that you have made a terrible mistake," she declared gaspingly. "I am not your wife!"

To be Continued

Late Sidney Cooper, R.A.

An interesting figure in the art world passed away a few days ago in England, when Sidney Cooper, R. A., died at the age of 99. He worked at his profession until almost the last, and had a picture in the Royal Academy last year, as he had had each year since 1845, when he became A. R. A. His record in this respect is without a precedent, nor is it likely to be equalled for many a generation. Mr. Cooper was born September 28, 1803. A few years ago he was so repeatedly asked the question to what he attributed his long life and splendid vigor that he jotted down the following salient points of his life and habits:

"I was born at Canterbury in 1803 during the great Imperial war, which lasted till I was twelve years of age. All provisions were very dear and my early life was spent on very plain food. So soon as I was able I got to hard work for little pay.

"I took every opportunity to draw and sketch from Nature; but as I could not get instruction this caused me to walk much daily. I have been a great walker. At twenty years of age I was able to learn drawing at county schools, which gave me a great number of miles to walk.

"I was never ill, except with infant maladies. At thirty I commenced to try to paint. After I came to settle in London my living was of a very careful kind. I soon became known and received many commissions for my work, which became very popular.

"Then came a period of bad health from the overstrain of London life, and I feared I should become a poor invalid. So I went back to the country, bought some land and built this house (Vernon Holme, near Canterbury) in 1848. I soon felt the change for the better.

"I bought a farm, which required much looking after, and I commenced to walk again. This I continued to do; and now, in my ninety-sixth year, I can paint four or five hours a day and walk slowly a mile daily in fine weather or take a carriage drive if not fine.

"I rise at 7 o'clock, go into my study, set my palette, take my breakfast at 8, then my Bible, then I paint till 12.30. Then lunch and Bible and paint till 3 o'clock. This is my day's work and then I take my walk, write letters and dine at 6 o'clock.

"I take no wine, but a very little whiskey and cold water. Of course I have the infirmities of old age, but now enjoy the cheerful effects of a temperate life.

"I think moderate smoking conducive to sleep, if in the evening; but to smoke all day, as I know some do, is not wise.

"I must tell you that I attribute my long life to the merciful care of God's Providence, for He was the Father of the fatherless boy and has preserved him through all his trials and difficulties, prosperities, sunshine and shadow."

Mr. Cooper was no doubt the oldest member of his profession in the world at the time of his death, but he was even then junior to a Devonshire preacher, who is in his hundredth year. This is Mr. Robert C. Chapman of Barnstaple, and from the excellent health he enjoys at present there is every prospect of his going well into the second century.

Primarily a barrister, he gave up his profession when still in the twenties, in order to devote himself to religious work. For over seventy years he has worked in Barnstaple, and the older he gets the more popular he becomes with the members of the Plymouth Brethren community, to which he belongs. A man of scholarly attainments, he is master of half a dozen languages and author of many Biblical works. Mr. Chapman is known among the Nonconformist churches the world over. He still preaches, though only occasionally, as he finds it takes rather too much out of him, but whenever he does occupy the pulpit there is always a large congregation.

Advertising Canada.

Certainly, if Canada is not well advertised now in Great Britain, it is no longer the fault of the British press. It is difficult to pick up an English newspaper to-day without finding it containing somewhere or other a reference to Canada's resources or to some phase or other of life in the Dominion. Moreover, there need no longer be any feeling that the attention of the British is directed by their newspapers to Australia or New Zealand rather than to Canada; all that has changed during the last few years. South Africa necessarily occupies a sad prominence, but from a point of view altogether different from that from which Canada is seen. The London press has been paying much attention to the Deputy Minister of the Interior, Mr. Smart, during his visit to Great Britain, and numerous interviews and articles that must prove of great value to this country have appeared in the columns of the big metropolitan dailies. In the provincial press Canada is almost equally to the front. In the shape of letters from correspondents, who are sometimes residents of Canada, sometimes Englishmen who have visited Canada, or by means of articles based on the excellent literature emanating from the Immigration Department, Canada is being continually kept in the minds of the people of Great Britain.

Temperance Work in London.

In connection with the efforts to increase the growth of temperance in the Province of Ontario it is interesting to notice the expensive temperance work that the London County Council is at present carrying out, but it is not designated as such, nor is the general public aware of the fact. Yet within the last three years the London County Council has devoted more than $1,250,000 to the practical work of temperance. It is one of the consequences of the extensive improvements being made in London at present. When acquiring property for the necessary widening of different streets, many public houses, with licenses and good will, come into the possession of the Council. These properties are very valuable, but the Council, instead of renewing them for premises in the neighborhood, is deliberately giving them up, seeing, at the same time, that no new licenses for these localities are issued. In this way the number of public houses in London has been diminished by 163, which were valued at $4,872,700.

"At Plevna, Kan.," says The Kansas City Journal, "A 'joint' keeper cornered the Rev. W. H. Houston in the postoffice and informed the reverend gentleman that he must take a licking on account of a temperance sermon which he had preached the day before. 'All right,' responded the parson, cheerfully, and two minutes later the friends of the 'joint' keeper were taking him down to the butcher shop for the application of beefsteak to a pair of beautiful black eyes. Showing again the low down, deceptive wickedness of our theological seminaries in maintaining physical culture departments."

The hospitality of Scotland is quite as well established as the hospitality of Ireland, but the canniness of the Scot, which has passed into a proverb, is likely to assert itself at any stage. As The Scotsman tells this story, it cannot be suspected of proving false to its own countrymen:—

An Irish friend insisted that a Scotchman should stay at his house instead of a hotel, and kept him there for a month, playing the host in detail, even to treating him to all places of amusement, paying all the cab fares and the rest. When the visitor was returning to Dunedin, the Irishman saw him down to the steamer, and they went together to have a last cigar.

"Now, look here," said the man from Dunedin, "I'll hae nae mair o' this. Here ye've been keepin' me at your hoose for a month, an' payin' for a' the amusements and cabs and so on—I tell you I'll stan' nae mair o' it! We'll just hae a toss for this one!"

The eccentric millionaire decided to build a Venetian palace in the little lake that adorned his country home.

"It will be easy enough to build the palace," said the architect whom he was consulting, "but there may be some trouble about the foundation."

"Well, you start for Venice on the first steamer that sails for Europe. Find out how they lay the foundations for their palaces over there, and add your expenses to the bill."

The architect packed his valise and started.

In about two weeks the millionaire received the following cablegram:

"Venice, May 5.—Have made thorough investigation and find there has not been a foundation laid here for 500 years. Chubb."—Chicago Tribune.

—Official experts promise a spell of very fine weather.

—Nominations next Thursday and polling one week later.

—For honest up-to-date Photos go to Whitten, and you will get the best.

—Rev. A. B. Langfeldt conducted the last cottage prayer meeting of the season last night at Auburn.

—New map of the County of Peterborough, mounted on rollers, only $2.50. Times Bookstore.

—Another dog tag case was settled in the Police Court yesterday in the usual way—by a fine for not taking a tag.

—Twice a fool is he who doesn't advertise and then wonders why success eludes him.

—Large quantities of nursery stock is being delivered in this locality, mostly to farmers.

—The time table of the Peterborough Navigation Company's steamers will appear in a few days.

—The Times keeps a circulation manager constantly employed. It is the people's paper, and everybody reads it.

—The entertainment at Lakefield a few evenings ago, under the auspices of the Girl's Guild of St. Luke's Church, netted $34.

—There were 196 votes added to the list under the Manhood Registration Act, in Peterborough. About 100 being registered in Mr. Stratton's interests.

—Sneak thieves are operating in town just now. Last night a resident of Water Street north reported to The Times the loss of a quantity of clothing which had been hung out to get dried.

—The steamer Sunbeam, so long and favorable known to the patrons of Stoney Lake waters, is no more. The new owners have changed the name of the vessel to "Alexandra."

—On Thursday evening an item appeared of an amusing incident which was said to have taken place in St. Luke's church. This was a mistake; it should have been All Saint's Church. A miss is as good as several "Myles."

—There being no military demonstration in Peterborough on Saturday, May 24th, it is the intention of the Rifle Committee of the 57th to have some interesting matches on that date. Special attention will be given to the younger members of the regiment.

—The Alpine Yodlers who appear in the Opera House next Tuesday evening give an excellent and unique entertainment. Some in town have heard them at the World's Fair and the "Pan" and are loud in their praises. The reserved seat plan opens this (Friday) morning at Ormond & Walsh's.

—The steamer City of Peterborough took a private party of 50 or 60 down the river yesterday to Jubilee Point and return. A jolly crowd it was, too, and the trip proved a most enjoyable outing. At the Point Mr. Dan Foley was on hand to welcome them. A sumptuous dinner was served, and the party returned about eight o'clock.

—What the emperor of China needs more than anything else at this time is a good suit of clothes. A cablegram informs the world that at the last reception his majesty was shabbily dressed and looked bored. He should at once communicate with Messrs. Gough Bros. the great clothiers of Canada, and get stylishly and economically togged out.

—Lindsay Watchman-Warder,—In this issue are published the death notices of three people whose combined ages total 277 years or an average age for each of 92 years. These three people all lived in or adjacent to this county and amid the beneficial influences of the salubrious Kawartha climate. They were Mrs. Clifford of Galway, who died at the age of 107 years; Joseph Southam of Verulam aged 88, and Harriet Laplante, Bobcaygeon, aged 82.

Deroche vs. Cox — D. O'Connell, Peterborough, for plaintiffs; moved to set aside verdict and judgment for defendant, in an action for negligence tried before Lount, J., and a jury at Peterborough, and for a new trial. The action was brought by the parents of John Deroche, a boy of eight, to recover damages for his death, which was caused by his being crushed by a large log which was carried on a sleigh belonging to defendant, upon which the boy was allowed by defendant to sit. Jury found that there was no negligence on the part of the defendant and no damage accruing to plaintiffs. Counsel for plaintiffs contended that the verdict was contrary to the evidence, and the judge's charge was perverse. D. W. Dumble, Peterborough, for defendant, contra. Motion dismissed, the case having gone to the jury upon a charge favorable to the plaintiffs, and there being evidence to warrant the verdict. No costs.

Chorea OR St. Vitus' Dance

Has Its Origin In Weak and Debilitated Nerves

Children of Nervous Temperament Are Usually the Sufferers

Paine's Celery Compound

AN INFALLIBLE CURE FOR THE TERRIBLE DISEASE

While Chorea is common with children of nervous temperament, it also affects older people. It has its origin in debilitated nerves.

Parents can easily note the leading symptoms; unusual movements and jerkings of the limbs and twitchings of the muscles of the face. Frequently the limbs are so seriously affected that the gait becomes awkward and unsteady. The hands and arms fail to obey the will, and the victim is unable to raise a glass of water to the mouth. The tongue at times is involved, and speech is stammering.

Dear parents, when any of the symptoms just mentioned are manifest, it is your imperative duty to exercise all necessary care, and have your dear ones use Paine's Celery Compound the great nerve feeder and nerve bracer.

Paine's Celery Compound has already achieved a marvellous record in the cure of St. Vitus' Dance. It has made strong boys and girls out of puny and almost helpless children, and the hearts of thousands of fathers and mothers have been gladdened.

Bear in mind, dear parents, that it is folly on your part to delay the use of Paine's Celery Compound when you note the symptoms of nervous troubles in your children. The great medicine will free them from disease and enable them to grow up strong, happy and contented. Do not make it possible for your children to look back upon their childhood years and find in them a lack of care on your part which allowed bodily disablement and disease to make them weak and wretched.

NOT THE WORST

It is an awful disaster, but not, as has been stated, the most destructive one of the kind on record. There have been far more appalling catastrophes from earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. Two hundred years ago the city of Jeddo, Japan, was swallowed up and 200,000 persons perished. A little later Pekin was destroyed by an earthquake, and over 100,000 lives were lost and half of Cairo was destroyed, with 40,000 human lives. The loss of life in the Lisbon earthquake in 1755, which lasted only eight minutes, was about 50,000. In 1794 occurred the great earthquake in Ecuador, when more than 40,000 people were buried in a second. Several other similar disasters, involving as much loss of life as the destruction of St. Pierre, are recorded.

LIVING WITHOUT MEAT

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—Some days ago I noticed a request in The Times for information about a vegetable diet. Potatoes gives moisture and starch, beans and nuts produce more muscle than meat, onions and celery contain nerve nutriment in great quantities, lettuce contains opium and induces rest, cucumbers possess considerable arsenic, and act as a good tonic, turnips and radishes are appetizers, sugar is also a great strength producer and sustainer, tomatoes, dandelions and spinach act upon the liver and the blood, so also do beets. Cabbage and apples contain phosphorous, or brain food, corn and cereals generally contain the elements of heat, lime for bone, silica for teeth, nails, etc.; bananas are very nutritious in many ways; also chocolate, rice, coconut and sweet potatoes. All fruits are good to either assist or retard digestion. Molasses and honey are laxative, strengthening and fattening; peanuts give strength and should be eaten with the skins, which is a tonic.

It will be seen that animal flesh is in nowise necessary to sustain human life. Flesh eating is only a lesser degree of cannibalism. We are very largely what we eat. Flesh eating tends to materialism; a vegetable diet, more to psychic or soul development, and leads towards spirituality. I think eggs, butter and milk, while of the animal, may be permitted, as the animal does not die but gives its life element in its production instead of having its soul withdrawn as in the case of a slaughtered animal or fowl. The less cooking, the more raw the food, the more life-giving. Such a course of eating saves health, wealth and happiness.

SWINGING IN THE LANE

How oft we talk of childhood joys, of tricks we used to play,
Upon each other while at school, to pass the time away;
And, oh, how often have I longed for those bright days again,
When little Rosa Neil and I went swingin' in the lane.

Chorus:—
And yet I'd give the world to be with Rosa Neil again—
I never, never will forget our swingin' in the lane.

The boys and girls would oftimes go a-fishin' in the brooks,
With spools of thread for fishing lines, and bended pins for hooks;
They often wished me with them, but they always wished in vain,
I'd rather be with Rosa Neil, a swingin' in the lane.

At last a change of sorrow came, a strange young man from town
Was introduced to Rosa Neil by Aunt Jemima Brown;
She stayed away from school next day, the truth to me was plain,
She'd gone off with that city chap a-swingin' in the lane.

And now young men with tender hearts, pray take advice from me,
Don't be so quick to fall in love with every girl you see;
For if you do you're sure to find you've only loved in vain,
She'll go out with some other chap a-swingin' in the lane.

ABOUT FRECKLES

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—I see The Times through its Letter Box Department, answers all questions. Believing that Peterborough's great family journal is able to help me, I venture to ask: "I am somewhat freckled, and have looked in vain for a remedy. Please for to put in a peace about them, the freckles being removed. I have Tried Iron Rust and Cucumber Juice, and Cocanu tOil, and Mashed Onions, and Cold Mush on my face and find it hasn't did me any good, and my Ma says I am more freckility than ever. Please for to say how you take 'em off, and oblige,

SARAH.

Ans.—Now, Sarah, it is just like this: If you have tried all the things you say you have tried, and are more "freckility than ever," it may be that you have what we term Hereditary Freckles. I would like to know something of your symptoms, your general habits, etc., before I would venture a cure for your case. If I get a chance to come out into Indiana this Spring, I will try to drop round and see you and talk the matter over with you. The Times Junior Reporter.

MOTHER SHIPTON'S PROPHECY

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—Please publish "Mother Shipton's prophecy," and the year in which it was made.

M. S. M.

Ans.—Ursula Shipton, so the story goes, was a prophetess in London during the reign of Henry VIII; her prophecies were printed first in 1641, about fifty years after her death. Another edition appeared in 1686. In 1862 Charles Hindley of Brighton, England, got out an edition with more prophecies than had ever been known before. In 1873 he confessed that he had written the new ones himself. Some of the more famous prophecies are these.

"From the cold north
Every evil should come forth,"
"When fate to England shall restore
A king to reign as heretofore
Great death in London shall be though,
And many houses be laid low,"

"A time shall happen a ship shall come sayling up the Thames till it come against London and the master of the ship shall weepe, and the mariners of the shippe shall aske him why he weepe being he hath made so good a voyage? And he shall say, "Ah, what a goodly city this was, none in the world comparable to it, and now there is left scarce any House that can let us have drinke for our money.'"

"When the dragon of Bow Church and the grasshopper of the Royal Exchange shall lie down together, London streets shall run with blood."

These were in the editions of 1641 and 1686. Hindley's edition contained the lines which he himself had invented:

"Carriages without wheels shall go
And accidents fill the world with woe;
Around the world thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye.
The world to an end shall come
In eighteen hundred and eighty-one."

William Lilly, the astrologer, thought that the prophecies had been fulfilled before 1665. The dragon and the grasshopper were on the weather vanes of Bow Church and the Royal Exchange; in 1820 they were taken down to the same carpenter shop to be repaired, and London streets did not run with blood. Further, the world did not end in 1881.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $10 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $10 for any case that these pills do not help.

THE BOER WAR IS SAID TO BE ENDED AND PEACE WILL BE PROCLAIMED

A Despatch States that the Boers have Accepted Peace Terms

Lord Kitchener's Great Block House Supply Invulnerable

Impossible for Boer Forces to Co-operate With Each other

Special to The Times.

London, May 7. — A despatch received from Pretoria states that the meeting of the Boer delegates at Vereeniging has resulted in a triumph of the peace party, and a proclamation will follow announcing the end of the war. There are some minor conditions attached, which the Boers want, but nothing that will cause any serious hitch. The following is a history of the peace movement:

March 23—Boer "Government" arrive at Pretoria on peace mission, subsequently proceeding to Kroonstadt, their object being to confer with De Wet and Steyn.

April 9—Steyn and De Wet having been found, all the Boer leaders confer at Klerksdorp.

April 11—They leave Klerksdorp for Pretoria, where they enter on another discussion.

April 18—Boer leaders leave Pretoria to consult with the leaders in the field, after having had interviews with Lord Milner and Lord Kitchener on the subject of the British conditions.

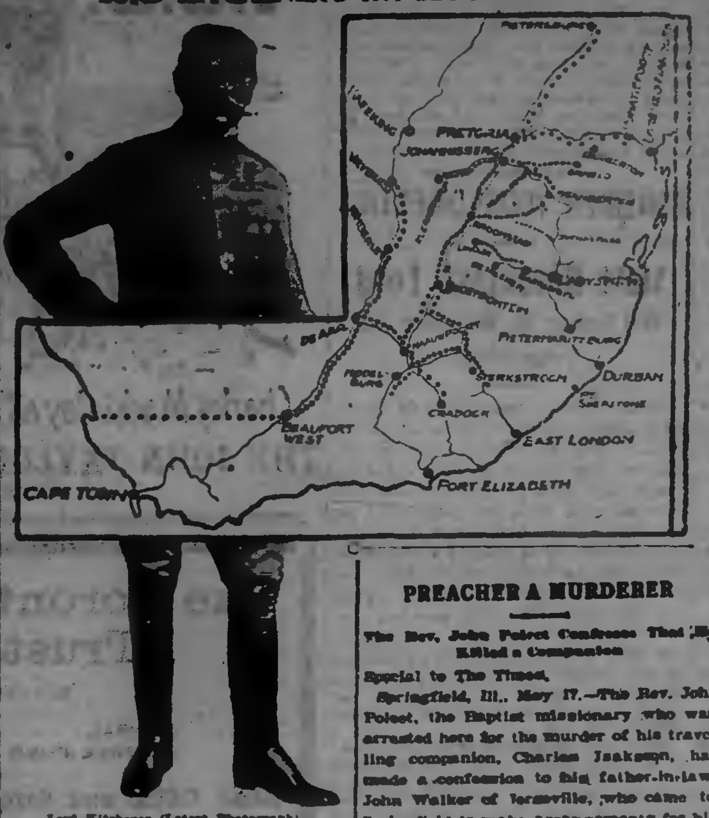
May 1—Announcement that Boer leaders, who are holding meetings among the commandos, are to meet in final conference at Vereeniging on May 15.

May 2—Another announcement to the effect that when a final decision has been come to, the Boer leaders will go the British headquarters at Pretoria, and there settle matters with Lord Kitchener, and presumably, Lord Milner.

May 15—Boer leaders assemble at Vereeniging to reach a final decision.

London, May 17.—Whatever the decision of the Boers may be in regard to continuing the war, there is but one opinion amongst the burghers, and that is that it is impossible for the Boer forces to co-operate with each other on account of the blockhouse obstruction.

LORD KITCHENER'S 4000 BLOCKHOUSES.



Lord Kitchener (Latest Photograph).

This map shows Lord Kitchener's extraordinary blockhouse system in the Cape Colony, the Orange River Colony and the Transvaal. Of the gigantic nature of this enterprise, an idea may be formed by the merest glance at the map, when it is remembered that the distance from Cape Town to Pietersburg is 1217 miles, and from Mafeking across to the Portuguese frontier 400 miles.

It will be seen that the blockhouses, shown on the map by black dots, follow, as a general rule, the lines of the railways, thus guarding the main lines of communication. Sir Howard Vincent, speaking recently at the United Service Institution, says the London Graphic, gave an interesting account of the blockhouse system. There are between 60 and 70 columns of from 1000 to 2000 of all ranks moving over the country, and they employ from 70,000 to 90,000 men. In addition to the men required for the columns, there are the garrisons of the 4000 blockhouses. An officer and six men are the quota at each blockhouse, but the average is 10 men.

The blockhouse walls consist as a rule of sheets of curved corrugated iron, supporting 24 inches of rammed stone ballast, with a cistern and reserve rations for a week inside. Each blockhouse costs from £50 to £200 if of masonry, the average cost being about £70.

The garrisons are supplemented by dogs.

The Rev. John Poleet Confesses That He Killed a Companion

Special to The Times.

Springfield, Ill., May 17.—The Rev. John Poleet, the Baptist missionary who was arrested here for the murder of his travelling companion, Charles Isakson, has made a confession to his father-in-law, John Walker of Jerseyville, who came to Springfield to make arrangements for his defence.

Poleet says he killed Isakson in a moment of frenzy. The impulse to murder and rob his companion came upon him suddenly, he says, and without warning he picked up a car coupler and beat out the man's brains. He says he is ready to die for the crime.

Poleet had charge of a Baptist mission at McCluskey, Ill.

MORGAN CONTINUES SHIPPING OPERATIONS

Now After Lines Between Antwerp, and Central America

DEBATE IN BRITISH HOUSE

Now Stated That Cananian Government Will Take Steps to Oppose Trust

Britain and Canada must Fight the Giant Morgan, Who Threatens to Wipe out British Commerce

Special to The Times.

London, May 17.—A Brussels telegram states that Morgan's delegates are negotiating for the incorporation of all the shipping lines between Antwerp and Central America, and South America in the ocean trust. The statement is reasserted that some arrangement has been arrived at between Mr. Morgan and the Manchester Shipping Canal and yesterday the stock of the Great Central Railway which has its headquarters in Manchester, rose sharply on rumours connecting it with the shipping combine. Mr. Morgan's London Railway schemes are not progressing satisfactorily. One of them had yesterday to be withdrawn, and the others are still awaiting Parliamentary sanction.

GOVERNMENT INTERROGATED.

London, May 17.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Balfour Jones, Liberal member for the north west division of Durham, asked whether, in view of the fact that British ships were, by the law of England, for certain purposes held to be British in whatever waters they might be, the Government would consider the expediency of proposing legislative extension of that doctrine so as to prevent the cession to a foreign flag of a British ship that otherwise might be available for naval and military purposes.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, the Government leader replied, "If the member suggests, as I think he did, that we should by legislative action prevent private owners of British ships from disposing of these vessels when we have no lien on them that would be a new departure in legislation, so important that we could not be expected to deal with it in answer to a question."

REPLY FROM ADMIRALTY.

Replying to a question, Mr. Arnold Foster, Parliamentary secretary of the Admiralty, said all vessels sailing under the British flag were legally British actual ownership when chartering transport department to enquire into the actual ownership when chartering transports, but preference ought to be given to British owned ships. Whenever possible the Admiralty would give greater attention to this in future.

CANADA'S ANSWER TO COMBINE.

Toronto, May 17.—A Globe special from Ottawa says: "The establishment of a fast Atlantic steamship and freight line controlled by trustees of the Canadian Government, and working in union with the Dominion line, is now up. This may be Canada's answer to the formation of the great Morgan octopus, which there is reason to fear, might make the Dominion dependent upon the American channels of transportation. The effect of the Morgan combine, remaining unopposed would be to make Canadians hewers of stone for the United States. The control of communication by sea and land would render the Americans masters of the situation. Our grain would be taken to the seaboard by American barges and railways and transferred from New York to American steamships. The control of immigration in Canada would pass out of our hands and the steamship—the Morgan combine—could restrict the number coming to this country to exactly what proportion they pleased. This dangerous and threatening situation is the question which is bothering the Government. Representatives of the different steamship and railway companies have been sounded as to their views of the situation, and the Government is said to have been convinced that the best way to fight the Morgan combine is through a company able to provide a trans-Atlantic fleet and transcontinental railway.

FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE.

It is now reported that negotiations have been opened with the Canadian Pacific Railway looking to the establishment of a fast Atlantic steamship and freight service. The idea is that there should be a weekly passenger service between Canada and Great Britain equal to the best that sails from New York. In order to maintain a good freight service a dozen freight steamers would be required, and the total stock of the undertaking would be $30,000,000.

"The Canadian Pacific Railway is reported to be willing, if the project goes through, to allow the fast steamship line to be controlled by trustees nominated by the Government. National control would be a guarantee that fair rates would be extended to all Canadian companies and that there would be no discrimination for or against any particular railway.

"According to report, the matter is now engaging the consideration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues, and further developments are expected when they proceed to London in June. The impression is that the Imperial Government would be disposed to grant a handsome subsidy to a purely British undertaking."

MEMBERS FORM A POOL.

London, May 17.—The Daily Mail in its issue of this morning, says that ten members of the House of Commons have promised to form a pool of £1,000,000 as the nucleus of a fund to start a line of ocean greyhounds in opposition to the Morgan combine. The promoters of this enterprise hope to secure mail and cruiser subsidies from the Government.

VOLCANIC ERUPTIONS AND THEIR CAUSES

Steam Generated by Contact of Water With Molten Portions of the Earth

Prof. Adams of McGill University, Montreal, Makes a Statement of the Cause of the Recent Calamity, at St. Pierre

Montreal, May 17.—The awful disaster which occurred on the island of Martinique and which has shocked civilization with its dire consequences, affords ample opportunity for food for thought from a scientific standpoint. Dr. Frank D. Adams, the professor of geology at McGill University, in discussing the event with a reporter said:

"These volcanic eruptions are caused primarily by the consequent action of water when it comes in contact with extreme heat. This in short is the scientific explanation of the matter. It is an accepted theory that the depths of the earth or at least certain portions are in a molten state, seething and boiling, as it were, like a caldron, and when water comes in contact with this mass steam is generated which has an almost unconceivable power and force. This confined energy must, perforce, have an outlet, and will find vent through the weakest spots in the earth's crust. Hence the volcano.

The islands of the sea which border the continents constitute the most prevalent scenes of these writhings of nature's forces, and when viewed from a scientific point of view, this is not surprising. It has been demonstrated beyond a doubt that the main bodies of land are constantly, though very slowly, rising, and that the depths of the oceans are sinking deeper and deeper, decade by decade. This means, as ascertained by deep sea soundings as well as by geological research, that sheer submarine declivities are forming along the borders of the mainlands. This occurs, as a rule, within or along what is commonly known as a belt or strip, and demarks the weakest seams or lines of the earth's crust. Earthquakes and volcanic eruptions are caused by the same natural conditions. When the surface of the ground breaks away and sinks from the surrounding contour, the jar of the stupendous mass causes a shudder in its fall which makes the surrounding land to tremble, not only in the immediate vicinity, but for hundreds and hundreds of miles. The result is termed an earthquake. The fissures or cracks thus formed give passage for either the influx of the sea or for the flow of those subterranean lakes which exist between the substrata of the earth's surface and running downwards they eventually meet the intensely hot and liquid rock, and various mineral substances which constitute the core of our globe. The immense volumes of steam which are consequently given off and whose power mere words are miserably weak and pitifully commonplace to express, must escape, and, rising, they compel an outlet through the nearest portion of the surface, and that which offers the least resistence.

"Sometimes volcanic disturbances occur in short succession in a group or line of islands, showing that the first outbreak was insufficient to adequately relieve the internal pressure, while in other instances after one tremendous spouting no similar disaster has occurred in that vicinity for hundreds of years. It is absolutely beyond the ken of human intelligence to predict the length of time during which the earth's crust will continue to shrink and death and destruction continue to follow in the wake, but centuries will probably pass before it shall cease.

Mt. Royal, Montarville, Beloeil, Rougemont, Mamaska, Shefford, in curved line marking the line near the city of Montreal, are the mute witnesses of a prehistoric belt of volcanic craters, long since extinct, with Mt. Johnson and Mt. Brome to the southward. They show that even here, once upon a time, was one of these weak spots in the surface of the earth which gave vent to unutterable calamity, the evidence of which, through action of time which effaces nature's scars, has been gradually but effectually eliminated.

Berlin, May 17.—Herr Ballin, director of the Hamburg-American line of steamers, denies the allegation that he has purchased shares of the Cunard line, either personally or in conjunction with J. Pierpont Morgan.

IN FAVOR OF A FAST LINE.

Toronto, Ont., May 17.—Secretary Jarvis, of the Board of Trade, has received several additional acceptances from outside boards to the invitation to attend the conference to be held here on June 4 and 5. Kingston, Windsor and Peterborough boards will each send two delegates. Delegates will also be present from the Board of North Sydney, C.B., who will submit resolutions in favor of the establishment of a fast Canadian line of steamers.

CHILD ON RAFT THROUGH RAIN OF FIRE

Wonderful Escape of Little Girl From St. Pierre Steamer

SHE MAY YET DIE IN HOSPITAL

Little Margaret Scott, of New York, Escaped from the Roraima After Mother and Brother were Burned

Special to the Times.

Fort de France, Martinique, May 17.—Margaret Stokes, the nine-year-old daughter of the late Clement Stokes, of New York, who, with her mother, a brother aged four, and a sister aged three, was on the ill-fated British steamer Roraima, is in the hospital here and is not expected to live.

Her nurse, Clara King, says she was in her stateroom when the steward of the Roraima called to her, "Look at Mount Pelee!"

She went on deck and saw a vast black cloud coming down from the volcano. The steward ordered her to return to the saloon, saying, "It is coming."

Miss King then ran to the saloon. She says she experienced a feeling of suffocation, which was followed by intense heat.

The after part of the Roraima broke out in flames. "Ben" Benson, the carpenter of the Roraima, who is now in hospital here severely burned, assisted Miss King and Margaret Stokes to escape.

With the help of Mr. Scott, the first mate of the Roraima, he constructed a raft with the life-preservers. Upon this Miss King and little Margaret were placed.

While the raft was being constructed Margaret's little brother died. Scott took water to the child at great personal danger, but it was unavailing. Shortly after the death of the little boy Mrs. Stokes succumbed.

Margaret and Miss King eventually got away on the raft and were picked up by the steamer Korona. Mate Scott also escaped.

Miss King did not sustain serious injuries. She covered the face of Margaret with her dress, but still the child was probably fatally burned.

PEACE IS ASSURED NO DETAILS AVAILABLE

DECLARES THAT WAR IS OVER

Leyds in Closer Touch with Kruger—British Have Many Successes During the Past Week.

Special to The Times.

London, May 17.—No details are to hand regarding the Boer deliberations at Vereeniging. The Daily Mail understands that sufficient indications have transpired to justify the assertion that peace is absolutely assured. The source from which the Mail obtains this information is the same as that which enabled the paper to announce on April 18, that peace was assured. That was before anything had been said about meetings between Kitchener and the Boer leaders.

The correspondent of the Times at Pretoria says the fact that the Boers are meeting at Vereeniging does not necessarily imply peace. In view of the British successes of the past week, it is within the grounds of possibility that energetic continuation of hostilities will be more productive of results than academic discussions among the burghers.

The Brussels correspondent of the Times says Leyds has definitely left Brussels and has settled in Utrecht, in order to be in closer touch with Mr. Kruger.

Permanent Cure for Neuralgia

Experienced sufferers state that no remedy relieves neuralgia so quickly as a hot application of Polson's Nerviline, the strongest liniment made. Nerviline is certainly very penetrating and has a powerful influence over neuralgic pains which it destroys almost at once. Nerviline is highly recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, and Toothache. Better try a 25c. bottle, it's all right.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 17, 1902.

THE HART'S RIVER FIGHT

That letter written by Private Frank A. Smith, of Toronto, one of Lieut. Carruthers's men, wounded at Hart's River, is admirable in its tone. Its modesty is unaffected. "The place I was in," he says, "happened to be where the heaviest firing was . . . I was about thirty feet away from Lieut. Carruthers, our officer, during the whole affair, and everyone right around us, with the exception of one man besides Carruthers, was wounded, and we did get it for fair right where we were."

General Walter Kitchener saw Smith, asked him a lot of questions, and "gave us a bit of jolly about what a fine fight we made and so on." It is in this light way he tells of a performance of himself and his comrades that Canadians will long be proud of.

But Private Smith's letter throws some light on the dark question as to how the Hart's River affair happened. Piecing together the unsatisfying reports of the battle that came to us, this paper reached the conclusion that the main body of the British had been hurried forward after a small body of Boers, leaving the Canadians in the rear to guard the convoy, whereupon the enemy developed their real attack on our men, so that the main British force had to reverse and form a half-circle with the Canadians, who had been in the rear, now in the advanced centre. If this is what occurred, it means that the British were outplayed in strategy and the situation was only saved by the refusal of the Canadians to be quickly mopped up.

The few lines descriptive of the engagement written by Pte. Smith are corroborative of this theory of the engagement. "We were rear-guard," he says, "and got cut off from the main body, were under fire from three sides, also shell and pom-pom fire, and were away outnumbered, so it was no wonder we got it so heavy."

THE BOY KING OF SPAIN

Alfonso XIII of Spain will be crowned to-day. He is 16 years old. Louis XVI of France came to the throne at 19. Louis IX was five years younger. Louis XIII was proclaimed at the age of 9. England has had ten Kings and Queens ranging in age from two years (Edward IV) to 9 (Henry VI). James I began to rule at 13. The crown fell to Victoria at 18. Alfonso's own grandmother, Isabella II, began to reign at 13.

Alfonso has hitherto been represented by his mother, Maria Christina, as Regent. That he comes to his coronation with fair health, with a clear mind excellently trained for his years and with the usefulness of discipline, even for a King, well impressed upon him, is due to the faithful and constant effort of this Queen mother. The boy and his heritage have been the daily and unselfish thought of Maria Christina in all the years of his growth. The maternal devotion has not been unappreciated in Spain. It may be praised even in democratic America.

The young King will take up his sceptre in an unhappy country. Spain's military prestige is gone, at least for the time. Her dependencies and tributaries have been shorn away in America and the East. Her political and industrial skies are clouded. If she is to have a future there must be awakening, regeneration, the shock of many abrupt changes. Men must see, think and act. The hope of those who arrange to-day's ceremonials is, of course, that men will do those things for the Boy who wears the crown.

So far as charity is concerned, her right hand should know that the left hand is writing all about it to the newspapers. Canada gives $30,000 to the Martinique sufferers and gets a million dollars' worth of advertising.

After the political candidates have taken the pledges required by the Prohibitionists, Licensed Victuallers, Lord's Day Alliance, W.C.T.U., S.P.C.T.A. and a few other organizations, they will have to refer to a dictionary to find out where they are at.

In Maine a man convicted of murdering his father has applied to the sentiment strong in the Maine heart, for a relief from the penalty. He claims that the strychnine he put in the old man's whisky was not intended to kill but only to cure. He wanted to destroy the old gentleman's love of whisky, and he succeeded. The fact that he destroyed the old man was only an incident. It is only by experiment that one can tell just how much strychnine will cause one to break off the drink habit, without breaking off all other habits. The parricide was only a reformer who was willing to make great sacrifices on the altar of temperance.

If Mr. Charlton intends to bring in a divorce court bill next session, he should get the draft of it ready early and let the country have a chance to discuss it. This is not a matter which can be arranged in a hurry.

The statement, oft repeated, that Hon J. R. Stratton referred to his opponent as "only a shoemaker," is absolutely untrue. Mr. Stratton has more sense; besides, he was a working man himself, and is not ashamed of it either.

THE KIND OF WORK DONE BY

Mrs. S. W. Sullivan, of Orillia, Ont., Had Rheumatism So Bad She Could Not Raise Her Hand to Her Head, and Could Not Walk Owing to Pains and Stiffness of Joints

After the Use of Two Bottles of Paine's Celery Compound Her Aches and Pains are Banished and She Finds Herself as Strong as Ever Before

True merit, prompt and effective results and astonishing cures have given Paine's Celery Compound a position on the highest round of the ladder of fame.

Paine's Celery Compound is to-day the only spring medicine asked for and bought by thoughtful and discerning people. For the treatment of serious diseases, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous disorders, and blood troubles, Paine's Celery Compound has no equal.

The credit of Paine's Celery Compound has advanced to such a high eminence that amongst the millions who use it, we find the names of millionaires, bankers, professional men, wealthy merchants and women of note. All have made it their chosen remedy for the cure of chronic diseases and for the banishment of the little ailments that often make life miserable.

Paine's Celery Compound in the opinion of the leading druggists and physicians, has displaced nearly all the common advertised medicines of the day. This great work has been accomplished only by merit and genuine cures. Rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous disorders take flight in springtime when Paine's Celery Compound is used for a time. Why delay the work of health building when such a life-giver is within your reach? Test its efficacy this very day. Mrs. Sullivan writes as follows:

"I was so badly afflicted with rheumatism that I could not raise my hands to my head, and often could not walk owing to pains and stiffness of joints. At night I rarely slept owing to nervousness and feelings of exhaustion. I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound, and soon found myself greatly relieved, and after the use of the first bottle my pains and nervous feelings were banished. In order to make the cure complete, I used the second bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and now I am as strong as ever before. I sleep well, appetite is always good, and my digestive vigor all that I could wish for."

THE CAMPAIGN

The Battle Getting Warmer as the Polling Day Approaches

The campaign is now getting quite warm, the candidates and their friends lending their energies to the work of campaigning. In West Peterborough one hears of a few changes, here and there. A few, who formerly voted for Mr. Stratton, are out for his opponent on the ground that the latter is a prohibitionist and others, who formerly voted Tory, are supporting Mr. Stratton, because they know by doing so they are serving the best interests of the town and county. The latter, we believe far outnumber the former.

In East Peterborough a warm fight is being waged. Mr. Anderson, the Liberal candidate is working day and night, as is also his opponent. It is conceded by both political parties that no one can safely forestall the result. The successful candidate, will, it is said, not have much of a majority at his back. Mr. Anderson is very hopeful, and his supporters declare that he will be elected by a good majority.

Mr. J. H. Brandon, of Fenelon Falls, ex-President of the East Victoria Conservative Association, told The Times the other day that Mr. J. H. Carnegie would again carry that riding.

In West Victoria the chances are about even.

In West Durham the late member, Mr. W. H. Reid, Conservative, is having a hard fight, and it is said, may be defeated. If so this will be a gain for the Government.

In East Durham, Preston, Conservative, will be elected, as this riding is strongly Conservative.

In East Northumberland the result is exceedingly doubtful. Dr. Willoughby, the opposition candidate, is popular, but his opponent, Mr. O. A. Simmons, is wealthy, and will put up a big fight for the seat.

Items of Interest

Wheeling, W. Va., May 14.—Wheeling is bedecked to-day with Masonic emblems and other decorations in honor of the visitors to the annual conclave of the Knights Templar, Grand Commandery of West Virginia. To-day was given over to the reception of the visitors who come from all parts of West Virginia, and from several points in Ohio and Pennsylvania. A big parade will be given to-morrow.

St. Petersburg, May 17. — Large numbers of starving peasants from Central Russia are flocking into Moscow. They are in frightful misery. There is a dearth of work everywhere. Seven additional freight trains each bring into the city an average of 1,500 persons daily.

The proclamation of a state of siege in several districts in the Province of Potlava has not had the expected result, and a new and violent movement may be expected.

The expelled students are fomenting a rising.

Vienna, May 13.—The Morgen Zeitung reports that a number of Russian political prisoners have been tortured at Vilna. Thirty-six of them were stripped and flogged in the presence of the Governor. Several afterward died in a hospital.

Brantford, May 16.—Corp. Alf. Sherritt's last letter home tells of a lively incident on the night march at Klerksdorp. The letter says in part:

"Starting through the gathering darkness at a fast trot, we rode until two in the morning, covering forty-five miles. The ride was very hard and extremely dangerous on account of the gopher holes and ant hills. Many of the men were hurt through their horses falling on them. It was exciting enough for everyone. A horse would fall in front of you one minute and as soon as you were well clear of that one, another would go down. The men would sometimes hang on to the reins when they fell, and have their horses when they managed to scramble to their feet, but many got away. Of course, we were riding through country that swarmed with De la Rey's men, and they managed to capture quite a number of our stragglers.

"We were riding at a gallop when one of my troop, Ross Cockburn, went down. I yelled, 'Hurt Cockburn?' He replied 'No.' So I rode on. He got up, but, as he tells me, had not gone far when his horse stepped into a hole, throwing him again, and laming itself badly. He then began to follow the column on foot, but it was soon out of sight and hearing in the darkness. Seeing a kraal, he started for it, but only to see a line of rifles shoved up and hear the command, "Hands up!" He surrendered, as did a couple of others who were caught in the same way.

"He sprang to one side and darted to the cover of some rocks a few yards away. They all began firing at him he returned it merrily. Finally they hit him through the thumb, but he shot their leader through both knees. That was the finish.

The Boers thought that the firing would bring our troops down on them, so they cleared out. Ingram went the opposite way, and the boys who had been taken were left, minus their hats, haversacks, and some parts of their clothing. This all occurred in the night while our—the main body—was riding on."

CONSIDER YOUR DIGESTION

Malt Breakfast Food

Will Correct All Weakness and Irregularities

Activity, health, happiness and life depend largely on the condition of our digestion. Too many people—young and old—are complaining of their digestion.

How is it with you, dear reader? Is your stomach weak and capricious? Do you suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia? If you do be assured your present daily diet is largely responsible for your ailments and sufferings. From our experience in such matters, we strongly assert that your breakfast is not what it should be for the promotion of your health and happiness. You are using food that is too strong, or too heavy or that contains too much insoluble starch.

Have you tried Malt Breakfast Food? If not, begin with it at once, and make it your regular breakfast dish. Its soothing and comforting qualities will soon correct all stomach irregularities and establish a perfect digestive vigor. You will relish it for it is delicious and appetizing. It is a perfect nourisher and fortifier; it quickly builds up flesh, bone and muscle; it gives clearness and activity to the brain, and furnishes full energy for each day's work. When you use Malt Breakfast Food, indigestion and its evils will never annoy your life.

THE BOER WAR IS SAID TO BE ENDED AND PEACE WILL BE PROCLAIMED

A Despatch States that the Boers have Accepted Peace Terms

Lord Kitchener's Great Block House Supply Invulnerable

Impossible for Boer Forces to Co-operate With Each other

Special to The Times.

London, May, 7. — A despatch received from Pretoria states that the meeting of the Boer delegates at Vereeniging has resulted in a triumph of the peace party, and a proclamation will follow announcing the end of the war. There are some minor conditions attached, which the Boers want, but nothing that will cause any serious hitch. The following is a history of the peace movement:

March 23—Boer "Government" arrive at Pretoria on peace mission, subsequently proceeding to Kroonstadt, their object being to confer with De Wet and Steyn.

April 9—Steyn and De Wet having been found, all the Boer leaders confer at Klerksdorp.

April 11—They leave Klerksdorp for Pretoria, where they enter on another discussion.

April 18—Boer leaders leave Pretoria to consult with the leaders in the field, after having had interviews with Lord Milner and Lord Kitchener on the subject of the British conditions.

May 1—Announcement that Boer leaders, who are holding meetings among the commandos, are to meet in final conference at Vereeniging on May 15.

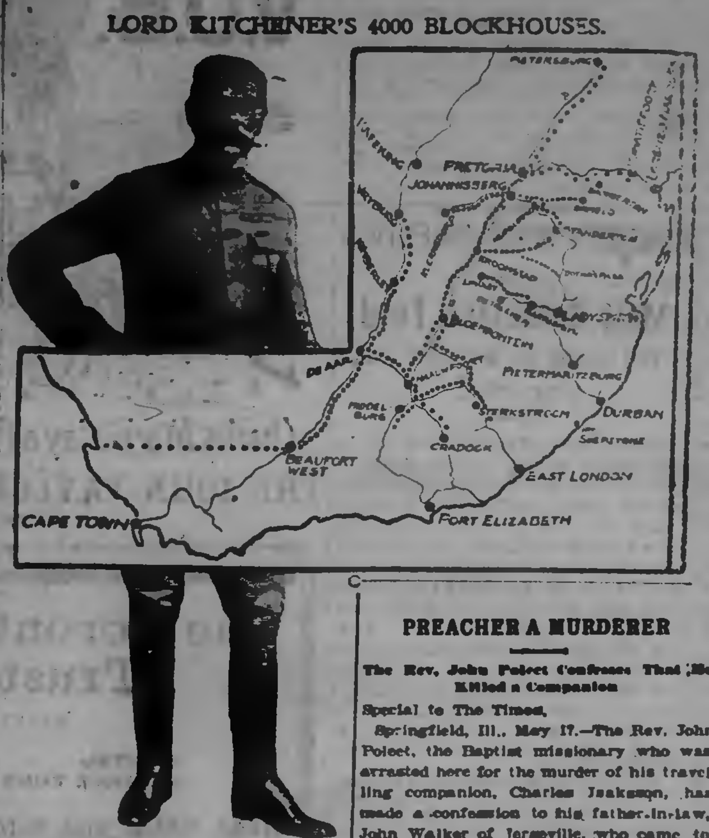
May 2—Another announcement to the effect that when a final decision has been come to, the Boer leaders will go the British headquarters at Pretoria, and there settle matters with Lord Kitchener, and presumably, Lord Milner.

May 15—Boer leaders assemble at Vereeniging to reach a final decision.

London, May 17.—Whatever the decision of the Boers may be in regard to continuing the war, there is but one opinion amongst the burghers, and that is that it is impossible for the Boer forces to co-operate with each other on account of the blockhouse obstruction.

This map shows Lord Kitchener's extraordinary blockhouse system in the Cape Colony, the Orange River Colony and the Transvaal. Of the gigantic nature of this enterprise, an idea may be formed by the merest glance at the map, when it is remembered that the distance from Cape Town to Pietersburg is 1217 miles, and from Mafeking across to the Portuguese frontier 400 miles.

LORD KITCHENER'S 4000 BLOCKHOUSES.



Lord Kitchener (Latest Photograph).

It will be seen that the blockhouses, shown on the map by black dots, follow, as a general rule, the lines of the railways, thus guarding the main lines of communication. Sir Howard Vincent, speaking recently at the United Service Institution, says the London Graphic, gave an interesting account of the blockhouse system. There are between 60 and 70 columns of from 1000 to 2000 of all ranks moving over the country, and they employ from 70,000 to 90,000 men. In addition to the men required for the columns, there are the garrisons of the 4000 blockhouses. An officer and six men are the quota at each blockhouse, but the average is 10 men.

The blockhouse walls consist as a rule of sheets of curved corrugated iron, supporting 24 inches of rammed stone ballast, with a cistern and reserve rations for a week inside. Each blockhouse costs from £50 to £200 if of masonry, the average cost being about £70.

The garrisons are supplemented by dogs.

PREACHER A MURDERER

The Rev. John Poleet Confesses That He Killed a Companion

Special to The Times.

Springfield, Ill., May 17.—The Rev. John Poleet, the Baptist missionary who was arrested here for the murder of his travelling companion, Charles Isakson, has made a confession to his father-in-law, John Walker of Jerseyville, who came to Springfield to make arrangements for his defence.

Poleet says he killed Isakson in a moment of frenzy. The impulse to murder and rob his companion came upon him suddenly, he says, and without warning he picked up a car coupler and beat out the man's brains. He says he is ready to die for the crime.

Poleet had charge of a Baptist mission at McCluskey, Ill.

Revolution in Newfoundland

Since the introduction into Newfoundland of the new inhaler Remedy "Catarrhozone" the treatment of Catarrhal diseases has been entirely revolutionized. The old-time snuff and internal medicine has been cast aside and everyone is inhaling Catarrhozone; it clears the head and throat in two minutes, and is very agreeable and pleasant to use. Catarrhozone is a wonderful cure for Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Lung Troubles and Deafness. It relieves quickly and cures permanently. We advise our readers to try Catarrhozone. Price $1; trial size 25c. Druggists or from Polson & Co, Kingston, Ont.

MORGAN CONTINUES SHIPPING OPERATIONS

Now After Lines Between Antwerp, and Central America

DEBATE IN BRITISH HOUSE

Now Stated That Cananian Government Will Take Steps to Oppose Trust

Britain and Canada must Fight the Giant Morgan, Who Threatens to Wipe out British Commerce

Special to The Times.

London, May 17.—A Brussels telegram states that Morgan's delegates are negotiating for the incorporation of all the shipping lines between Antwerp and Central America, and South America in the ocean trust. The statement is reasserted that some arrangement has been arrived at between Mr. Morgan and the Manchester Shipping Canal and yesterday the stock of the Great Central Railway which has its headquarters in Manchester, rose sharply on rumours connecting it with the shipping combine. Mr. Morgan's London Railway schemes are not progressing satisfactorily. One of them had yesterday to be withdrawn, and the others are still awaiting Parliamentary sanction.

GOVERNMENT INTERROGATED.

London, May 17.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Balfour Jones, Liberal member for the north west division of Durham, asked whether, in view of the fact that British ships were, by the law of England, for certain purposes held to be British in whatever waters they might be, the Government would consider the expediency of proposing legislative extension of that doctrine so as to prevent the cession to a foreign flag of a British ship that otherwise might be available for naval and military purposes.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, the Government leader replied, "If the member suggests, as I think he did, that we should by legislative action prevent private owners of British ships from disposing of these vessels when we have no lien on them that would be a new departure in legislation, so important that we could not be expected to deal with it in answer to a question."

REPLY FROM ADMIRALTY.

Replying to a question, Mr. Arnold Foster, Parliamentary secretary of the Admiralty, said all vessels sailing under the British flag were legally British actual ownership when chartering transport department to enquire into the actual ownership when chartering transports, but preference ought to be given to British owned ships. Whenever possible the Admiralty would give greater attention to this in future.

CANADA'S ANSWER TO COMBINE.

Toronto, May 17.—A Globe special from Ottawa says: "The establishment of a fast Atlantic steamship and freight line controlled by trustees of the Canadian Government, and working in union with the Dominion line, is now up. This may be Canada's answer to the formation of the great Morgan octopus which there is reason to fear, might make the Dominion dependent upon the American channels of transportation. The effect of the Morgan combine, remaining unopposed would be to make Canadians hewers of stone for the United States. The control of communication by sea and land would render the Americans masters of the situation. Our grain would be taken to the seaboard by American barges and railways and transferred from New York to American steamships. The control of immigration in Canada would pass out of our hands and the steamship—the Morgan combine—could restrict the number coming to this country to exactly what proportion they pleased. This dangerous and threatening situation is the question which is bothering the Government. Representatives of the different steamship and railway companies have been sounded as to their views of the situation, and the Government is said to have been convinced that the best way to fight the Morgan combine is through a company able to provide a trans-Atlantic fleet and transcontinental railway.

FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE.

It is now reported that negotiations have been opened with the Canadian Pacific Railway looking to the establishment of a fast Atlantic steamship and freight service. The idea is that there should be a weekly passenger service between Canada and Great Britain equal to the best that sails from New York. In order to maintain a good freight service a dozen freight steamers would be required, and the total stock of the undertaking would be $20,000,000.

"The Canadian Pacific Railway is reported to be willing, if the project goes through, to allow the fast steamship line to be controlled by trustees nominated by the Government. National control would be a guarantee that fair rates would be extended to all Canadian companies and that there would be no discrimination for or against any particular railway.

"According to report, the matter is now engaging the consideration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues, and further developments are expected when they proceed to London in June. The impression is that the Imperial Government would be disposed to grant a handsome subsidy to a purely British undertaking."

MEMBERS FORM A POOL.

London, May 17.—The Daily Mail in its issue of this morning, says that ten members of the House of Commons have promised to form a pool of £1,000,000 as the neucleus of a fund to start a line of ocean greyhounds in opposition to the Morgan combine. The promoters of this enterprise hope to secure mail and cruiser subsidies from the Government.

VOLCANIC ERUPTIONS AND THEIR CAUSES

Steam Generated by Contact of Water With Molten Portions of the Earth

Prof. Adams of McGill University, Montreal, Makes a Statement of the Cause of the Recent Calamity, at St. Pierre

Montreal, May 17.—The awful disaster which occurred on the island of Martinique and which has shocked civilization with its dire consequences, affords ample opportunity for food for thought from a scientific standpoint. Dr. Frank D. Adams, the professor of geology at McGill University, in discussing the event with a reporter said:

"These volcanic eruptions are caused primarily by the consequent action of water when it comes in contact with extreme heat. This in short is the scientific explanation of the matter. It is an accepted theory that the depths of the earth or at least certain portions are in a molten state, seething and boiling, as it were, like a caldron, and when water comes in contact with this mass steam is generated which has an almost unconceivable power and force. This confined energy must, perforce, have an outlet, and will find vent through the weakest spots in the earth's crust. Hence the volcano.

The islands of the sea which border the continents constitute the most prevalent scenes of these writhings of nature's forces, and when viewed from a scientific point of view, this is not surprising. It has been demonstrated beyond a doubt that the main bodies of land are constantly, though very slowly, rising, and that the depths of the oceans are sinking deeper and deeper, decade by decade. This means, as ascertained by deep sea soundings as well as by geological research, that sheer submarine declivities are forming along the borders of the mainlands. This occurs, as a rule, within or along what is commonly known as a belt or strip, and demarks the weakest seams or lines of the earth's crust. Earthquakes and volcanic eruptions are caused by the same natural conditions. When the surface of the ground breaks away and sinks from the surrounding contour, the jar of the stupendous mass causes a shudder in its fall which makes the surrounding land to tremble, not only in the immediate vicinity, but for hundreds and hundreds of miles. The result is termed an earthquake. The fissures or cracks thus formed give passage for either the influx of the sea or for the flow of those subterranean lakes which exist between the substratas of the earth's surface and running downwards they eventually meet the intensely hot and liquid rock, and various mineral substances which constitute the core of our globe. The immense volumes of steam which are consequently given off and whose power mere words are miserably weak and pitifully commonplace to express, must escape, and, rising, they compel an outlet through the nearest portion of the surface, and that which offers the least resistence.

"Sometimes volcanic disturbances occur in short succession in a group or line of islands, showing that the first outbreak was insufficient to adequately relieve the internal pressure, while in other instances after one tremendous spouting no similar disaster has occurred in that vicinity for hundreds of years. It is absolutely beyond the ken of human intelligence to predict the length of time during which the earth's crust will continue to shrink and death and destruction continue to follow in the wake, but centuries will probably pass before it shall cease.

Mt. Royal, Montarville, Beloeil, Rougemont, Mainaska, Shefford, in curved line marking the line near the city of Montreal, are the mute witnesses of a prehistoric belt of volcanic craters, long since extinct, with Mt. Johnston and Mt. Brome to the southward. They show that even here, once upon a time, was one of those weak spots in the surface of the earth which gave vent to unutterable calamity, the evidence of which, through action of time which effaces nature's scars, has been gradually but effectually eliminated.

Berlin, May 17.—Herr Ballin, director of the Hamburg-American line of steamers, denies the allegation that he has purchased shares of the Cunard line, either personally or in conjunction with J. Pierpont Morgan.

IN FAVOR OF A FAST LINE.

Toronto, Ont., May 17.—Secretary Jarvis, of the Board of Trade, has received several additional acceptances from outside boards to the invitation to attend the conference to be held here on June 4 and 5. Kingston, Windsor and Peterborough boards will each send two delegates. Delegates will also be present from the Board of North Sydney, C.B., who will submit resolutions in favor of the establishment of a fast Canadian line of steamers.

CHILD ON RAFT THROUGH RAIN OF FIRE

Wonderful Escape of Little Girl From St. Pierre Steamer

SHE MAY YET DIE IN HOSPITAL

Little Margaret Scott, of New York, Escaped from the Roraima After Mother and Brother were Burned

Special to the Times.

Fort de France, Martinique, May 17.—Margaret Stokes, the nine-year-old daughter of the late Clement Stokes, of New York, who, with her mother, a brother aged four, and a sister aged three, was on the ill-fated British steamer Roraima, is in the hospital here and is not expected to live.

Her nurse, Clara King, says she was in her stateroom when the steward of the Roraima called to her, "Look at Mount Pelee!"

She went on deck and saw a vast black cloud coming down from the volcano. The steward ordered her to return to the saloon, saying, "It is coming."

Miss King then ran to the saloon. She says she experienced a feeling of suffocation, which was followed by intense heat.

The after part of the Roraima broke out in flames. "Ben" Benson, the carpenter of the Roraima, who is now in hospital here severely burned, assisted Miss King and Margaret Stokes to escape.

With the help of Mr. Scott, the first mate of the Roraima, he constructed a raft with the life-preservers. Upon this Miss King and little Margaret were placed.

While the raft was being constructed Margaret's little brother died. Scott took water to the child at great personal danger, but it was unavailing. Shortly after the death of the little boy Mrs. Stokes succumbed.

Margaret and Miss King eventually got away on the raft and were picked up by the steamer Korona. Mate Scott also escaped.

Miss King did not sustain serious injuries. She covered the face of Margaret with her dress, but still the child was probably fatally burned.

PEACE IS ASSURED NO DETAILS AVAILABLE

DECLARES THAT WAR IS OVER

Leyds in Closer Touch with Kruger—British Have Many Successes During the Past Week.

Special to The Times.

London, May 17.—No details are to hand regarding the Boer deliberations at Vereeniging. The Daily Mail understands that sufficient indications have transpired to justify the assertion that peace is absolutely assured. The source from which the Mail obtains this information is the same as that which enabled the paper to announce on April 16, that peace was assured. That was before anything had been said about meetings between Kitchener and the Boer leaders.

The correspondent of the Times at Pretoria says the fact that the Boers are meeting at Vereeniging does not necessarily imply peace. In view of the British successes of the past week, it is within the grounds of possibility that energetic continuation of hostilities will be more productive of results than academic discussions among the burghers.

The Brussels correspondent of the Times says Leyds has definitely left Brussels and has settled in Utrecht, in order to be in closer touch with Mr. Kruger.

Permanent Cure for Neuralgia

Experienced sufferers state that no remedy relieves neuralgia so quickly as a hot application of Polson's Nerviline, the strongest liniment made. Nerviline is certainly very penetrating and has a powerful influence over neuralgic pains which it destroys almost at once. Nerviline is highly recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, and Toothache. Better try a 25c. bottle, it's all right.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 17, 1902.

THE HART'S RIVER FIGHT

That letter written by Private Frank A. Smith, of Toronto, one of Lieut. Carruthers's men, wounded at Hart's River, is admirable in its tone. Its modesty is unaffected. "The place I was in," he says, "happened to be where the heaviest firing was . . . I was about thirty feet away from Lieut. Carruthers, our officer, during the whole affair, and everyone right around us, with the exception of one man besides Carruthers, was wounded, and we did get it for fair right where we were."

General Walter Kitchener saw Smith, asked him a lot of questions, and "gave us a bit of jolly about what a fine fight we made and so on." It is in this light way he talks of a performance of himself and his comrades that Canadians will long be proud of.

But Private Smith's letter throws some light on the dark question as to how the Hart's River affair happened. Piecing together the unsatisfying reports of the battle that came to us, this paper reached the conclusion that the main body of the British had been lured forward after a small body of Boers, leaving the Canadians in the rear to guard the convoy, whereupon the enemy developed their real attack on our men, so that the main British force had to reverse and form a half-circle with the Canadians, who had been in the rear, now in the advanced centre. If this is what occurred, it means that the British were outplayed in strategy and the situation was only saved by the refusal of the Canadians to be quickly swept up.

The few lines descriptive of the engagement written by Pte. Smith are corroborative of this theory of the engagement. "We were rear-guard," he says, "and got cut off from the main body, were under fire from three sides, also shell and pom-pom fire, and were away outnumbered, so it was no wonder we got it so heavy."

THE BOY KING OF SPAIN

Alfonso XIII of Spain will be crowned to-day. He is 16 years old. Louis XVI of France came to the throne at 19. Louis IX was five years younger. Louis XIII was proclaimed at the age of 9. England has had ten Kings and Queens ranging in age from two years (Edward IV) to 9 (Henry VI). James I began to rule at 32. The crown fell to Victoria at 18. Alfonso's own grandmother, Isabella II, began to reign at 13.

Alfonso has hitherto been represented by his mother, Maria Christina, as Regent. That he comes to his coronation with fair health, with a clear mind excellently trained for his years and with the usefulness of discipline, even for a King, well impressed upon him, is due to the faithful and constant effort of this Queen mother. The boy and his heritage have been the daily and unselfish thought of Maria Christina in all the years of his growth. The maternal devotion has not been unappreciated in Spain. It may be praised even in democratic America.

The young King will take up his sceptre in an unhappy country. Spain's military prestige is gone, at least for the time. Her dependencies and tributaries have been shorn away in America and the East. Her political and industrial skies are clouded. If she is to have a future there must be awakening, regeneration, the shock of many abrupt changes. Men must see, think and act. The hope of those who arrange to-day's ceremonials is, of course, that men will do those things for the Boy who wears the crown.

So far as charity is concerned, her right hand should know that the left hand is writing all about it to the newspapers. Canada gives $50,000 to the Martinique sufferers and gets a million dollars' worth of advertising.

After the political candidates have taken the pledges required by the Prohibitionists, Licensed Victuallers, Lord's Day Alliance, W.C.T.U., S.P.C.T.A. and a few other organizations, they will have to refer to a dictionary to find out where they are at.

In Maine a man convicted of murdering his father has applied to the sentiment strong in the Maine heart, for a relief from the penalty. He claims that the strychnine he put in the old man's whisky was not intended to kill but only to cure. He wanted to destroy the old gentleman's love of whisky, and he succeeded. The fact that he destroyed the old man was only an incident. It is only by experiment that one can tell just how much strychnine will cause one to break off the drink habit, without breaking off all other habits. The parricide was only a reformer who was willing to make great sacrifices on the altar of temperance.

THE KIND OF WORK DONE BY

Mrs. S. W. Sullivan, of Orillia, Ont., Had Rheumatism So Bad She Could Not Raise Her Hand to Her Head, and Could Not Walk Owing to Pains and Stiffness of Joints

After the Use of Two Bottles of Paine's Celery Compound Her Agonies and Pains are Banished and She Finds Herself as Strong as Ever Before

True merit, prompt and effective results and astonishing cures have given Paine's Celery Compound a position on the highest round of the ladder of fame.

Paine's Celery Compound is to-day the only spring medicine asked for and bought by thoughtful and discerning people. For the treatment of serious diseases, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous disorders, and blood troubles, Paine's Celery Compound has no equal.

The credit of Paine's Celery Compound has advanced to such a high eminence that amongst the millions who use it, we find the names of millionaires, bankers, professional men, wealthy merchants and women of note. All have made it their chosen remedy for the cure of chronic diseases and for the banishment of the little ailments that often make life miserable.

Paine's Celery Compound in the opinion of the leading druggists and physicians, has displaced nearly all the common advertised medicines of the day. This great work has been accomplished only by merit and genuine cures. Rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous disorders take flight in springtime when Paine's Celery Compound is used for a time. Why delay the work of health building when such a life-giver is within your reach? Test its efficacy this very day. Mrs. Sullivan writes as follows:

"I was so badly afflicted with rheumatism that I could not raise my hands to my head, and often could not walk owing to pains and stiffness of joints. At night I rarely slept owing to nervousness and feelings of exhaustion. I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound, and soon found myself greatly relieved, and after the use of the first bottle my pains and nervous feelings were banished. In order to make the cure complete, I used the second bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and now I am as strong as ever before. I sleep well, appetite is always good, and my digestive vigor all that I could wish for."

THE CAMPAIGN

The Battle Getting Warmer as the Polling Day Approaches

The campaign is now getting quite warm, the candidates and their friends lending their energies to the work of campaigning. In West Peterborough one hears of a few changes, here and there. A few, who formerly voted for Mr. Stratton are out for his opponent on the ground that the latter is a prohibitionist and others, who formerly voted Tory, are supporting Mr. Stratton, because they know by doing so they are serving the best interests of the town and county. The latter, we believe far outnumber the former.

In East Peterborough a warm fight is being waged. Mr. Anderson, the Liberal candidate is working day and night, as is also his opponent. It is conceded by both political parties that no one can safely foretell the result. The successful candidate, will, it is said, not have much of a majority at his back. Mr. Anderson is very hopeful, and his supporters declare that he will be elected by a good majority.

Mr. J. H. Brandon, of Fenelon Falls, ex-President of the East Victoria Conservative Association, told The Times the other day that Mr. J. H. Carnegie would again carry that riding.

In West Victoria the chances are about even.

In West Durham the late member, Mr. W. H. Reid, Conservative, is having a hard fight, and, it is said, may be defeated. If so this will be a gain for the Government.

In East Durham, Preston, Conservative, will be elected, as this riding is strongly Conservative.

In East Northumberland the result is exceedingly doubtful. Dr. Willoughby, the opposition candidate, is popular, but his opponent, Mr. O. A. Simmons, is wealthy, and will put up a big fight for the seat.

Items of Interest

Wheeling, W. Va., May 14.—Wheeling is bedecked to-day with Masonic emblems and other decorations in honor of the visitors to the annual conclave of the Knights Templar, Grand Commandery of West Virginia. To-day was given over to the reception of the visitors who come from all parts of West Virginia, and from several points in Ohio and Pennsylvania. A big parade will be given to-morrow.

St. Petersburg, May 17. — Large numbers of starving peasants from Central Russia are flocking into Moscow. They are in frightful misery. There is a dearth of work everywhere. Seven additional freight trains each bring into the city an average of 1,500 persons daily.

The proclamation of a state of siege in several districts in the Province of Poltava has not had the expected result, and a new and violent movement may be expected.

The expelled students are fomenting a rising.

Vienna, May 13.—The Morgen Zeitung reports that a number of Russian political prisoners have been tortured at Vilna. Thirty-six of them were stripped and flogged in the presence of the Governor. Several afterward died in a hospital.

Brantford, May 16.—Corp. Alf. Sherlock's last letter home tells of a lively incident on the night march at Klerksdorp. The letter says in part:

"Starting through the gathering darkness at a fast trot, we rode until two in the morning, covering forty-five miles. The ride was very hard and extremely dangerous on account of the gopher holes and ant hills. Many of the men were hurt through their horses falling on them. It was exciting enough for everyone. A horse would fall in front of you one minute and as soon as you were well clear of that one, another would go down. The men would sometimes hang on to the reins when they fell, and have their horses when they managed to scramble to their feet, but many got away. Of course, we were riding through country that swarmed with De la Rey's men, and they managed to capture quite a number of our stragglers.

"We were riding at a gallop when one of my troop, Ross Cockburn, went down. I yelled, 'Hurt Cockburn?' He replied 'No.' So I rode on. He got up, but, as he tells me, had not gone far when his horse stepped into a hole, throwing him again, and laming itself badly. He then began to follow the column on foot, but it was soon out of sight and hearing in the darkness. Seeing a kraal, he started for it, but only to see a line of rifles showed up and hear the command, "Hands up!" He surrendered, as did a couple of others who were caught in the same way.

"He sprang to one side and darted to the cover of some rocks a few yards away. They all began firing at him, he returned it merrily. Finally they hit him through the thumb, but he shot their leader through both knees. That was the finish.

The Boers thought that the firing would bring our troops down on them, so they cleared out. Ingram went the opposite way, and the boys who had been taken were left, minus their hats, haversacks, and some parts of their clothing. This all occurred in the night while ours—the main body—was riding on."

CONSIDER YOUR DIGESTION

Malt Breakfast Food

Will Correct All Weakness and Irregularities

Activity, health, happiness and life depend largely on the condition of our digestion. Too many people—young and old—are complaining of their digestion.

How is it with you, dear reader? Is your stomach weak and capricious? Do you suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia? If you do, be assured your present daily diet is largely responsible for your ailments and sufferings. For the Farmer.

Sheep are the only animals which [illegible] not really exhaust the land on which they feed. They distribute manure evenly on the field and tramp it into the soil, feeding upon plants that other animals will not consume.

It is claimed that if tobacco stems or refuse be placed around the base of a peach tree the borer will not attack the tree. The mode of applying is to put the stems around the tree, on the ground, and fasten them to the trees higher up. It is worthy of a trial.

Another remedy suggested for the curculio is to spray just before the trees blossom with a mixture of a pound of Paris green in sixty gallons of water. Two weeks later use kerosene emulsion, giving a third spraying about June 1st. This method, it is said, will destroy the [illegible], leaf lice and other enemies of the plum.

Heat, moisture and occasionally cooling are the factors at work in the production of chickens. Heat is of course supplied by the hen, who, also, if she be a good sitter, will see to the cooling, though as a rule it is better not to trust entirely to her for this. But moisture [illegible] of supplying is allotted to her. In some districts there is no trouble whatever on this score, as the atmosphere is charged with sufficient for the needs of the eggs. But in others very great care has to be taken as dryness of the atmosphere was [illegible] in successful hatching. Seasons also differ.

How to Spray.

The agricultural station of the University of Illinois has issued bulletin No. [illegible], prepared by Professor Arnold V. [illegible], on "Important Details of Spraying." In the chapter describing the proper method of spraying we read: "Having the mixture properly prepared and thoroughly agitated, commence [illegible]. Unless the spray [illegible] applied, all preliminary [illegible]. To apply properly is more difficult than is usually supposed, especially where materials in suspension are used. It will not do to go out with a determination "to do a thorough job and give them an everlasting soaking" until everything is dripping. If this is done there will be lost material on the trees [illegible]. Nevertheless, it is a fact [illegible] will be made to [illegible] how it takes place. In order [illegible] it will be necessary to [illegible] the globules of water as they [illegible] carrying with them [illegible] particles of Paris green or [illegible], or both, as the case may be. [illegible] which takes place. The only way this can be avoided [illegible] globules of water after they become fixed to the fruit and leaves. Hence the larger the globule, the more settling will take place, and consequently the more [illegible] will be deposited at one place. [illegible] spray [illegible] the globules very small [illegible] the nozzle [illegible] separate [illegible] after they become attached to the [illegible] leaf. Hence the importance of the injunction: 'Use only a fine nozzle [illegible] enough to keep the liquid [illegible] as a fine mist, and spray only until the foliage and fruit are completely bedewed.'"

It requires considerable skill to do [illegible] the surface [illegible]. If it cannot be done with one spraying it would pay better to go over the [illegible], allowing the first application to dry before giving the second, than to try to accomplish it all at one time, and then run the risk of [illegible] the fruit or leaves. [illegible] the fine globules will run together to form one or several large ones, which, instead of remaining [illegible] will run down to the lowest place and drip. Of course, the suspended material settles to the lowest point of the globule, which, in that case, spread upon a considerable surface of the fruit. [illegible] of the upper portions are thus left completely bare. At the lower edge the material will drip off with the water, or often accumulate in sufficient quantity to cause injury.

Anecdotal.

After one of his trips to the Emerald Isle Foote was praising the hospitality of the Irish, when a gentleman asked him whether he had been at Cork. "No, sir," answered Foote, "but I have seen many drawings of it."

Disraeli once said of Sir William Harcourt in his affectedly cynical way: "He has the three essential qualifications of success in politics—a fine person, a loud voice, and no principles." To this, when it was repeated to him, Harcourt rejoined: "Leaving out the first two qualifications, it might almost be applied to 'Dizzy' himself."

Tradition ascribes to the second Pitt the dying words: "O, my country—my country! How I leave my country!" What, in fact, Pitt said was: "I think I could eat one of Bellamy's pork-pies." Which he did—and straightway expired, to the intense grief of the nation. This version is attested by the head-waiter of "Bellamy's" (likewise deceased), who told it to Mr. Disraeli.

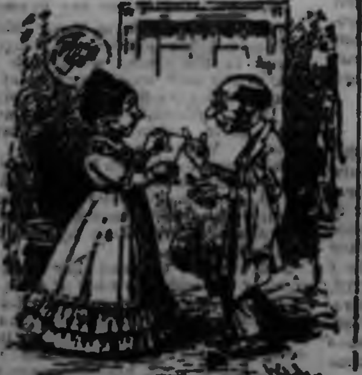
Louis XIV. was told that Lord Stair was one of the best-bred men in Europe. "I shall soon put him to the test," said the king; and asking Lord Stair to take an airing with him, as soon as the door of the coach was opened, he bade him pass and get in. The other bowed and obeyed. The king said: "The world is in the right in the character it gives—another person would have troubled me with ceremony."

When, a few years ago, the King of Portugal was a guest at Lord Salisbury's country seat, the Prince of Wales—now King Edward—asked King Carlos what had impressed him most during his stay in England. "English roast beef is very delightful," was the reply. "Oh," said the Prince, "surely something else has impressed you as well." "Ah, yes," returned Carlos; "of course, there is English boiled beef, which is also delightful."

A commercial traveler well known in the cycle trade adds this to the collection of jokes on newly made happy fathers: The hero is the manufacturer of the wheel which the narrator sells. Being compelled to go away on a business trip about the time an interesting domestic event was expected, he left orders for the nurse to wire him results according to the following formula: If a boy, "Gentleman's safety arrived." If a girl, "Lady's safety arrived." The father's state of mind may be imagined when, a few days later, he received a telegram containing the one word: "Tandem."

A certain Scotch caddie named Mathie Gorum was noted for his invariable remark after a poor shot by the person he was serving: "It micht hae been waur," which was meant to be consolatory and encouraging. His master, a clergyman, was wearied with this well-meaning flattery. Accordingly, to make sure that he would squash the remark for once, he told the caddie he had a terrible dream the night before. "Mathie, my man, I dreamt that I was in the place where the wicked are punished. I saw the wretched ones tortured; they were swimming in a lake of boiling pitch, and could not get landed for red-hot pitchforks thrust in their faces by demons." He halted a minute, with his tongue in his cheek, when, with perfect coolness, the caddie answered: "Aye, sir, that was a bad dream, just awfu'; but it micht hae been waur." "Waur, you fool? How could that be?" "It micht hae been true."

It is a current story in Teviotdale that in the house of an ancient family of distinction, much addicted to the Presbyterian cause, a Bible was always put in the sleeping apartment of the guests, along with a bottle of strong ale. On some occasion there was a meeting of clergymen in the vicinity of the castle, all of whom were invited to dinner by the worthy baronet, and abode all night. According to the fashion of the times, seven of the reverend guests were allotted to one large barrack-room, which was used on such occasions of extensive hospitality. The butler took care that the divines were presented each with a Bible and a bottle of ale. But, after a little consultation among themselves, they are said to have recalled the domestic as he was leaving the apartment. "My friend," said one of the venerable guests, "you must know when we meet together as brethren the youngest man reads aloud a portion of Scripture to the rest; only one Bible, therefore, is necessary. Take away the other six, and, in their place, bring six more bottles of ale."



"Now, James, please remember: Left hand—[illegible], parsley, three yards of silk to match my skirt, [illegible] for [illegible] dress, and a new rocker for George. Right hand—Mabel's ribbons, Harry's skates, telephone message to Henry, a box of starch, and my new bonnet. Say them over as you go to town."—Harper's Weekly.

Bus Brettp—How do you know the gallery gods threw eggs at you? Ham Lette—How do I know? Ye gods, didn't I catch them in the act?—Chicago News.

A visitor to a farm was especially struck by the great ruggedness and [illegible] of one of the stalwart harvest hands, and said to the farmer: "That fellow ought to be chockfull of work." "He is," replied the farmer, "or he ought to be, because I haven't never been able to get none out of him."—[illegible].

"I see that Mrs. Uptondaight is addressing the Mothers' [illegible] Club this afternoon on 'The Care of Children.'" "Speaking of children, who was that youngster that broke into Gregg's candy store last night and robbed the till?" "That—why, that was Mrs. Uptondaight's youngest."—[illegible] News.

Giant Hawaiian Eels.

There are three well known varieties of eel found in Hawaiian waters. The largest is the big gray fellow, which so closely resembles his cousin, the conger. He is voracious and fearless, and the natives tackle him with caution, for when cornered he fights viciously and can inflict a nasty wound with his powerful jaws, which bristle with needlelike teeth.

The other species are fat, flabby looking customers, with fantastic markings of black and brown and many shades of gray. On an eel of this sort the skin appears to hang loose from the body, and when disturbed the head swells like a puff adder's. These eels seldom attain a greater length than three feet and love to locate in the crevices of a stone breakwater, from which they dart out incessantly and make havoc among any school of small fry which may be innocently disporting themselves within striking distance. These hooded eels have been known to haunt a particular spot for over a year. They are good eating, despite their unprepossessing appearance.

Primitive Fire Fighters.

As late as the end of the sixteenth century in London the sole method of extinguishing fires was by means of contrivances known as "hand squirts." These were usually made of brass, with a carrying capacity ranging from two to four quarts of water. The two quart "squirts" were two and a half feet in length, one and a half inches in diameter at their largest part and but half an inch at the nozzle. On each side were handles, and three men were required to manipulate a "squirt."

One man on each side grasped the handle in one hand and the nozzle in the other, while the third man worked the piston or plunger, drawing it out while the nozzle was immersed in a supply of water which filled the cylinder. The bearers then elevated the nozzle when the other pushed in the plunger, the skill of the former being employed in directing the stream of water upon the fire. Such primitive contrivances are said to have been used during the great fire of 1666.

The Fishhawk.

"The fishhawk tells us when the shad begin to run up the river," said a Gloucester fisherman. "We have learned that it isn't much use to cast the nets, no matter how mild the weather may be, until Mr. Fishhawk swoops down on us. When he comes sailing up the bay, we know it's time to get to work. Lots of farmers down Jersey would never think to start planting until the fishhawks come. I don't believe they have ever been later than April 12, though. They work their way up the coast from Florida and the other southern waters early in March, when the fish begin to come north. They follow the big schools of herring, as a rule, because the herring swim close together, and the hawk has easy picking. The shad follow the herring, and when the fishhawk comes we know the shad are not far behind."

How Balzac Wrote.

Of all literary toilers Balzac was certainly the most eccentric in his methods. At first he would write his novel in a few pages, hardly more than the plot. These would be sent to the printer, who would return the few printed columns of matter pasted into the center of several large sheets. On this margin Balzac would work, sketching his characters, composing the dialogue and perhaps altering entirely the original plot of the book. For four or five times this process was repeated until at last the few columns had assumed the proportions of a volume. This extraordinary way of building a book naturally ran away with a considerable share of the profits on the work.

Balked by a Woman.

When William E. Chandler was secretary of the navy, he issued an order that officers should not permit their wives to reside at the foreign stations to which their husbands were attached. The order was promptly rescinded upon the receipt by the secretary of the following from Commodore Fyffe, in command of the Asiatic squadron: "It becomes my painful duty to report that my wife, Eliza Fyffe, has in disobedience to my orders and in the face of regulations of the department taken up her residence on the station and persistently refuses to leave."

Fleas as Draft Horses.

Latreille mentions a flea which dragged a silver cannon of twenty-four times its own weight and showed no fear when the tiny piece was charged with gunpowder and fired off. Rene also says that once he saw three fleas drag an omnibus and a pair dragging a chariot and a single one pulling a brass cannon mounted on wheels.

Applause.

Applause is the tonic of success. When a fellow makes a hit, let him know it in a good, round, royal way. If he has sense, it won't turn his head, and if he does get dizzy for a minute what matters it? Let him enjoy the intoxication while it lasts, for the serious business of life will soon drive him back to work again.

To Make an Impression.

Mr. Pilgone—My dear friend, I am in despair. That girl's heart is as hard as steel. I can make no impression on it!

Friend—You don't go at it in the right way. Try diamonds. They are harder than steel.

The Unnecessary.

The Beggar doesn't have to be weighed in the balance to be found wanting.

Among the few great joys of life is staying in bed fifteen minutes after you know you ought to get up.

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE,

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of vision than anything else.

In the new wall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.

WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the decoration scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end our wall papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

My lady, the chatelaine, wove in beautiful designs and embroideries the tapestries from which we have borrowed some beautiful ideas in our wall paper.

HARDENED TO COLD.

Natives of Siberia Don't Mind a Below Zero Temperature.

Frequently, when we could not expose our ears for two minutes without having them frozen, says a traveler in Siberia, the natives would go for an hour at a time with their hoods thrown back from their heads, and when it required constant watchfulness to keep our noses from freezing they did not appear to notice the temperature at all.

One morning in January I stood in perfect amazement at their disregard of the low temperature. They worked for at least half an hour with bare hands packing up the tent and utensils, handling the packages and lashing them together with icy seal thongs without experiencing the least apparent inconvenience, while I partly froze my fingers striking a light for my pipe with a flint and steel, the whole operation taking not more than three minutes.

The night before, happening to go out of the tent after our men had retired, I passed their camp, which was near by. Their fire had burned to a pile of embers, barely affording me light enough to distinguish the sleepers. They were lying coiled up on small deerskins, with their backs to the embers and their fur coats thrown loosely over their naked bodies.

The coat of one of them had slipped almost entirely off his body, leaving his back and shoulders exposed to a temperature of 18 degrees F. below zero, and, though his hair was frosted, he snored as soundly as if in comfortable quarters.

Mr. Gladstone's Catch.

"How many members of this house," asked Mr. Gladstone once in the course of a debate on electoral qualifications, "can divide £1,230 17s. 6d. by £2 13s. 8d.?"

"Six hundred and fifty-eight!" shouted one member.

"The thing cannot be done!" exclaimed another.

A roar of laughter greeted this last remark. But it was true, nevertheless. You cannot multiply or divide money by money. You may repeat a smaller sum of money as many times as it is contained in a larger sum of money, but that is a very different thing. If you repeat 5 shillings as often as there are hairs in a horse's tail, you do not multiply 5 shillings by a horse tail. Perhaps you did not know this before. Never mind; you need not be ashamed of your ignorance, for it was shared, as has been demonstrated, by the entire house of commons (bar one member), including the then chancellor of the exchequer.

How to Form the Reading Habit.

In order to organize odd minutes into fruitful hours one must have a consistent scheme and keep the means of carrying it out within reach. Too many people read the books which come in their way instead of putting themselves in the way of getting the right books. They buy and borrow without thought or plan because they do not understand that reading ought to be a resource as well as a recreation. Decide in advance what books you will read, and do not take up with those which drift in your direction. Do not burden yourself with a scheme so extensive that it discourages you; do not at the start plan courses of reading so vast that you are weighed down with their magnitude. Begin in a quiet and easy way by planning to read consecutively a few books in some field which interests you.—Hamilton W. Mabie in Ladies' Home Journal.

No Names Needed.

A western Kansas story shows how to be personal without mentioning names.

It was in a poker game at Colby. The sheriff of Logan county had been steadily losing to the treasurer of Ellis county. The treasurer of Ellis county had the misfortune to be possessed of but one eye, and he was a little clumsy in handling the cards. After a play in which the treasurer took a big pot from the sheriff the sheriff said, "Gentlemen, I ain't a-namin' no names, but if some of you don't quit raisin' cards from the floor he'll get his other eye knocked out!"

Assyrian Seals.

The ancient Assyrians nearly 6,000 years ago put in moist clay their seals, engraved in intaglio upon precious stones, on chests and doors, in order to prevent their being opened. There were no locks or keys in those days. If they wished to send a private letter, they would often seal it with a hippogriff, which fabulous winged horse was regarded as the emblem of secrecy. Centuries later the Greeks and Romans adopted similar devices for the same purpose.

How It Sounded.

"How is the board down at your place?" asked the ribbon clerk.

"Oh, we have nothing but health food every meal," responded the lace clerk.

"Then I don't think I'll come."

"Why not?"

"I'm not looking for the board of health."

A Matter of Ears.

"You should get your ears lopped, O'Brien," said a "smart" tourist to an Irish peasant whom he was quizzing. "They're too large for a man."

"An', bedad," replied the Hibernian, "I was just thinkin' yours would want to be made larger. Sure, they're too small for an ass."

Helping Him Along.

"Do you think your father would offer me personal violence if I were to ask him for you?"

"Hardly, but there's no telling what he will do if you don't say something pretty soon."

Farm Butter Making.

At the recent convention of the Illinois Dairy Association W. R. Hostetter, one of the leading dairymen of Illinois, discussed butter making on the farm, and pointed out that the comparatively low grade of farm butter was due to the lack of conveniences and to the small quantity made. He is convinced, however, that good butter can be made on the farm, and in order to do this the dairy house and the surroundings must have excellent drainage and must be so constructed as to get the maximum amount of sunshine. He advises getting the very best tinware for dairy purposes, as it is so much easier to keep good utensils clean. Never buy cheap cans, pails or strainers.

Get a good separator, and use some kind of power for running it, as it is exceedingly difficult to maintain a uniform speed when turning by hand. He has no set temperature for cooling cream and churning, as so much depends on weather, the dairy house, etc. As a general rule, he likes to ripen his cream at a high temperature and to churn at as low a temperature as possible. He usually churns at 55 degrees in winter and 40 to 45 degrees in summer. The churn must be stopped at just the right time, or when the butter granules are about the size of a grain of wheat. He adds a little salt just before washing. The amount of salt to be used depends upon the taste of the customers. He believes it is advisable to try to get customers to use fresh butter, so that it can be delivered once or twice a week. Formerly he had customers who wanted him to pack butter in the winter for next summer's use. Gradually they have all abandoned the practice. He advises putting up butter in neat packages, as this will do much toward making sales.—Dairy World.

Profit in Pigs.

One cannot hope to make swine a profitable farm product unless he goes permanently into the business. Too many who try to make money from swine find it unprofitable one year, and abandon it, or because after two years of fair success the third season proves unsatisfactory, they conclude that the best days for the business have passed, and they try their hand at something else. My experience has always been that swine breeding requires more persistent and continuous work than most other lines of farming. As a continuous business, carried on, not one or two or three years, but ten, fifteen and twenty years, it has no superior, and the man who pursues it thus will get his sure reward. Each succeeding year we learn more about the work, and find out where we made mistakes, and where we could have made improvements. We become so familiar with the whole subject that we are competent judges as to whether we should raise this or that breed. We also grow accustomed to anticipating the markets, which is a great thing in these days of fluctuations. Then, too, we learn how best to feed the animals—how to get the most from every ton of feed, grass or hay.

If one is going into swine breeding for a continuous industry, he can then well afford to start out with the best bred animals he can afford, and by an intelligent system of selections and breeding, he will in time grade up his flock to a standard of excellence which his neighbor cannot equal except at great cost. When a man starts in each year or two to purchase new breeds and high-bred swine, it is a costly experience, and he hardly reaps much reward from it. There is quite a difference, however, when he deliberately adds each year a little new blood to his stock, increasing the quality as well as the quantity. The outlay is thus small each season for pure-bred animals, and the returns correspondingly good.

Likewise in regard to food, it requires a policy of continuous farming along certain lines which will enable one to look years ahead. The grass, forage and grain crops that can be planned for an intelligent rotation system will all help toward the same general end. The cost of feeding will thus up to a certain point be steadily reduced. One finds good pasture fields established in the course of time, land made rich and fertile for corn and grain through a rotation of crops, and hay and forage crops prepared ahead of time for each winter. In the course of time the work becomes almost automatic, and the swine produce profits on the average from year to year that must prove satisfactory.—E. P. Smith, in American Cultivator.

Medium Horses for the Farm.

What would a pair of these 1,800 to 2,200 pound horses do on a plough or harrow in the spring, when their feet sank in the mud almost as deep as the plough? They might not feel the weight of the plough, but they would feel their own weight before night. With a pair of the little Vermont Morgans, the two of them not as heavy as one of those big fellows, we could draw a heavier load through a miry place or a snowdrift than we ever saw a pair of those big ones draw in a bad place.

And when on the road they could trot eight or ten miles an hour or walk four or five miles on a dirt road, not for one hour only, but for five or six hours a day for as many days as there are in the week, and that not in a rubbed-tired sulky, but a good, honestly made farm waggon with from two to four persons in it.

That is the kind of horses that used to be bred in Vermont, and some of them, not quite as compactly built, in Maine, and some of them, a little coarser built, came here from Canada, with legs about as large and hairy as the Clydes. None of them ever got spavins or crooked knees or tender feet, if they had decent usage, for they did not go down the street, as if they had taken a contract to pound down the paving stones.

The breed of these horses cannot be entirely exhausted. There must be some farmers who have good brood mares yet, and there may be a few stallions that have the Morgan blood in them. If such can be bred, we venture a prediction that in five years they will be in demand, and in ten years more popular on our New England farms and hilly roads than the heaviest western-bred horse that may be offered at the sale stables in the city. Do not make the mistake of trying to put too much weight into them by trying to breed from the heavy stallions, nor too long legs on them in the hope to get the two-minute horse; but try to get a good, honest, well-built horse of 1,000 to 1,100 pounds, with the disposition of a lamb, the willingness of the ox and the endurance of the mule.

The Cockade.

THE adoption of the cockade by President Roosevelt for his coachman and footmen has resuscitated the old question: What servants are entitled to wear a cockade? As a matter of fact, there is no right nor title to the cockade, but usage has in England, where the cockade is more common than in any other country, confined it to the servants of the royal household, of the diplomatic corps, of officers of the Army and Navy—including the militia and volunteers—and to servants of justices and deputy lieutenants of counties. According to this unwritten law of custom, neither peers nor other persons of title, except they be royal, can confer the cockade on their servants unless they themselves hold one of the commissions already named. And here comes a strange anomaly: if they occupy a Government position they can wear a cockade, although their servants cannot.

"Cockade," or, rather, the French equivalent of it, made its first appearance in the phrase "bonnet a la coquarde" of Rabelais. About sixty years after Rabelais's death, Randle Cotgrave, author of the first Anglo-French dictionary, defined "coquarde," now "cocarde," as "a Spanish cappe or fashion of bonnet, used by the most substantial men of yore—also any bonnet or cappe worn proudly or peartly on the side." But the most plausible origin given of the cockade of to-day is that it was derived from the tuft of cock's plumes worn by the Croatian soldiers, who in the seventeenth century served under France, and introduced the cravat to the world of fashion. At any rate, in [illegible], men ambitious to become soldiers of France received cockades of paper; hence the expression, "prendre la cocarde," meaning "to enlist." Cockades appear to have fallen into innocuous desuetude, so far as France was concerned, until the Revolution, when the "cocarde tricolor" must have become obligatory, for, just before the fall of Robespierre, arrests were made for not wearing it.

The black cockade, now worn in England, was originally the distinctive badge of the House of Hanover, as the white cockade was that of the House of Stuart. It is said white was adopted by the adherents of the Stuarts because it was the emblem of the kings of France, who supported the Stuarts against the Hanoverians. The cockade worn by servants of the British royal household is a large half-disk which projects above the hat. Servants of naval officers wear a disk not projecting above the hat; those of army officers and other persons considering themselves entitled to wear cockades are fan-shaped, with a button, and they reach above the hat. The cockades of the servants of diplomats are in the colors of the country their masters represent, and many noble houses on the continent of Europe make their servants wear cockades matching their livery in color. When, many years ago, the war as to whose servants were entitled to a cockade was raging in England, the facts discovered were that no orders regulating their use were known to exist, but it was recorded that servants of officers of the London City Light Horse, a volunteer regiment, did not wear them. The conclusion arrived at was that the cockade was originally purely a military distinction; that the reason it was worn by servants of field officers was that, in former days, these servants had served in the army, that it was later adopted by servants who had never been in the army, and afterward by servants of naval officers.

There being no set rule in any country from which we have been in the habit of adopting social customs, it remains for us to follow the law that usage and good form has laid down. They have prescribed that the servants of ambassadors and foreign ministers of the United States abroad shall wear cockades, like the servants of foreign diplomats accredited to this country, the cockades of the coachman and footman giving the equipage a certain right of way. Ambassadors and ministers are entitled to the cockade after they have retired from the diplomatic service. But consuls are not members of the diplomatic service; they are merely commercial agents. Neither our consuls abroad nor consular representatives in this country have the right to the cockade, as consuls. Its adoption by an American citizen who represented a foreign country as consular agent in this city was authorized neither by usage nor good taste. That his family should continue to use it after his death is ridiculous vulgarity. Servants of officers of the United States army and navy, both regular and volunteer, are also entitled to wear the cockade.—Town Topics.

Eggs for The British Museum.

A notice of the collections recently bequeathed by the late Mr. Philip Crowley to the natural history branch of the British Museum appeared a few days ago in the "Times." A very important portion of the bequest is the collection of eggs, from which 12,[illegible] specimens have been added to the [illegible] previously possessed by the museum. Among the gems in the Crowley cabinet are an egg of the great auk and one of the extinct pied Labrador duck. Both these specialties were acquired by Mr. Crowley from Canon Tristram. The great auk's egg is [illegible] of the last "batch" despatched from Iceland to Denmark. The specimens in the museum previous to this addition were both cracked or otherwise poor condition. An [illegible] item in the collection is the [illegible] of clutches of eggs of various [illegible] of birds with a cuckoo's egg [illegible] them. The Crowley collection had about 15 per cent. of the species of birds represented by their eggs [illegible] museum, the increase being [illegible] marked in Australian birds, [illegible] the national collection was [illegible] weak.

LACROSSE.

The Schedule for the town League composed of the Y.M.C.A., P.A.S and Athletics has been drawn up.

From Port Hope Guide.

An Oshawa man was recently asked who was playing for Oshawa this season. He replied: "Well, I was up to see them practice the other night, but they are all strangers to me." Oshawa has been out lassoing ever since that 26 to 2 game.

The members of the Y.M.C.A. Lacrosse Club had a good practice yesterday afternoon. Another practice will be held this evening.

The meeting of Section B, District No. 8, C.L.A., Intermediate Series, was held in Toronto, with P. M. Geddes, Oshawa, as convenor, W. C. Brent represented the Young Torontos, Dr. Henry, Oshawa, and Geo. B. Henwood, Port Hope. The following schedule was arranged:—

June 14— Young Torontos at Port Hope
June 28—Young Torontos at Oshawa.
July 1st or 12th—Oshawa at Port Hope.
July 19—Port Hope at Oshawa.
July 26—Oshawa vs Young Torontos.
Aug. 9—Port Hope vs. Young Torontos.

The winners play off with the winners of Section A for the district championship.

BASEBALL.

The second nine of the Separate School would like to play a game with St. John's choir boys.

A meeting of the Coal Heavers was held and it was decided to accept the schedule of the Midland League and make a trial for the cup. The old officers were re-elected. Negotiations are on foot for a match to be held here on the 24th with the Royal Canadians, of Toronto.

GOLF

The interest in golf is not so manifest this year as last, probably on account of the elections. Yesterday however, there was quite a number of enthusiastic golfers out making their rounds, but no matches of importance were played. There should be a large turnout this afternoon.

CRICKET.

Peterborough cricketers will enjoy a game at Port Hope to-day. The team is composed of the members of the old cricket club, which won glory on many a cricket field in years gone by. They consist of Messrs. J. H. Burnham, Sam Ray, W. D. Parker, Dela Pense (Lakefield), W. H. Weighton, A. B. Rogers and others. The "boys" are up against a pretty stiff proposition when they, without an hour's practice, cross bats with the Trinity College lads.

ORILLIA CANOE CLUB.

Orillia May 16—At the annual meeting of the Orillia Canoe Club the following officers were elected: Patrons and Patronesses, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thomson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Wade, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Jupp, Mr. and Mrs. John Scott; Hon. President, Jas. B. Tudhope; Commodore, H. Pellatt; Vice-Commodore Dr. J. C. Moore; Rear-Commodore, H. Holcroft; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Bow; Managing Committee, E. T. Curran, F. Diggle, J. H. Ross, P. Wade, A. Arons, B. B. Kean, B. Palmer, G. Sinclair.

GUN CLUB.

The Peterborough Gun Club had a splendid shoot on Riverside Park on Friday afternoon. There was some pretty fair shooting done, and the members of the club are developing into crack shots. The scores were as follows:

	Shot at.	Kills
W. Bunton	25	10
R. Tivey	25	10
J. Erskine	25	5
W. Gutterson	25	12
J. D. Collins	25	3

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leafy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

"We shall soon settle all that," he answered. "Will you come with me peaceably, or shall I be forced to take you by main force?"

"You would not dare!" she cried, recoiling from him. "Attempt to abduct me, and I will cry out for help. Some one will hear me, and come to my rescue."

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A Strange Fate.

A sneering smile curved the dark mustached lip.

"As you please about that, of course," he said, "it will be claiming my wife under difficulties; but I am equal to the occasion, as you shall see."

Ah, heaven, if she could but temporise with him, she thought wildly.

"I did wrong, perhaps, in persuading you to marry me, you were very young and inexperienced; but in deserting me you have done ten thousand times worse. Tell me, why did you go away without leaving me any trace of you— without leaving me your address, or one word which would tell me of your whereabouts? Why did you do this? Tell me the truth, false words will avail you nothing— I will know!"

She raised her despairing face to him; she might just as well tell the truth now— indeed no falsehood suggested itself to her.

She sank down on the nearest bench, covering her white face with her hands.

"I—I thought you would never find me," she moaned piteously. "I repented of that marriage the moment it was over. I would have given my life to undo it. Quite suddenly my eyes were opened when I found you had married me, believing me to be Lillian Ruthven, the heiress, and the glamor fell from them. I saw what I had done, and I was sorry for it."

"But you loved me, Daisy," he persisted, "in those old days?"

"No," she replied, with the calmness of despair, "not then, nor ever. I have never loved you; now that I know what true love is, I say that I have never loved you; you captivated my childish fancy, I was little more than a child— what did I know of love or lovers? I fled from you to undo what I had done, and to forget you if I could," she faltered, with a passionate burst of tears.

She looked so beautiful in her utter helplessness, that the old fierce love for her sprung up again in his heart.

"You have done wrong in deserting me, Daisy," he said: "but if you will come back to me peaceably, I am willing to forgive you. I will make all allowance for your youth and inexperience; and furthermore, the world need never know of the scandal it has missed so narrowly."

Go with this man who claimed her? leave Aleck, whom she loved with a love more potent than death? No, no, never!

"You forget Aleck," she moaned, "I —I could not be parted from him and live, Harold."

"You parted from me and lived," he answered grimly. "You can do the same thing again, running away from Aleck [illegible] your [illegible]."

"But I love him," she sobbed, "my whole heart and soul is wrapped up with him and oh, Harold, he loves me just as dearly as I love him. Let me kneel down at your feet and plead with you to spare him."

"Let me understand clearly what it is that you wish me to do," he answered sharply. "Speak out plainly, what is it you want?"

"I want you to go away, and to keep my terrible secret from the world's knowledge until I die. This is my prayer, Harold, and, oh, I beseech you to grant it."

A harsh laugh broke from his lips that made her grow faint with despair.

"You want me to go away in silence and leave you to Alexander Hamilton, is that it?"

She bowed her beautiful head in assent.

"The law would step in and interfere if the facts in this case were known, even if I did not. Besides, how long would Alexander Hamilton, that example of moral goodness, live with you if he knew he had no claim on you?"

A terrible, heart- rending cry broke from her white lips; she realized what he said was but too true.

"I should deny it all before Aleck," she moaned in a dying voice. "It could make matters no worse."

His face darkened horribly, the clasp on her white arm tightened.

"Take care how you anger me," he said. "You are going too far, I will put an end to this at once."

They were near the entrance gate, and he raised his hand to hail a cab that was passing, but in that instant a wild cry for help broke from her lips, then she swayed to and fro like a leaf in the wind, and fell senseless at his feet.

That cry for help was heard, it seemed to Harold St. John, at the four corners of the park. In a trice a crowd was gathering.

"What is the matter?" asked one of the bystanders.

Another asked:

"Who is the lady?"

Harold St. John was about to answer, "My wife. She has simply fainted. Stand back and give her air, please," but at that moment he saw a person coming down the paved walk that caused the words to die away unuttered upon his lips.

"A lady who has fainted," he answered hurriedly, and before any one could stop to question him further, he had wheeled about, shot through the entrance gate like a flash, and had disappeared.

"I know where to find her," thought St. John, hurrying down the nearest by- street. "I must wait a little, I see."

At that moment the gentleman who had gone to see about the wheel of the phaeton returned to tell her it was in readiness.

Seeing the crowd about her he pressed forward eagerly, and at that moment Daisy began to show signs of reviving.

"Where am I?" she gasped.

Then with a wild, terrified cry, which those who heard it never forgot, she sprung to her feet and gazed in awful fear around her.

Where was her mortal foe? Had he vanished like a spirit, or had the green earth suddenly opened and swallowed him?

"Are you ill, lady?" asked a very sympathetic voice behind her. "What caused you to swoon?"

Turning her head Daisy beheld a young girl of apparently her own age standing beside her.

"It was only the heat of the sun,"

To Be Continued.

"Pain in the head and back" is a form of suffering with which so many women are familiar. Often this pain is associated with nervousness, sleeplessness and loss of appetite. The cause of such suffering is generally to be traced to derangement of the womanly function, or a diseased condition of the delicate womanly organs.

In such cases the action of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is marvelous in the prompt relief of pain and permanent cure of disease. It regulates the periodic function, dries disagreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It cures when all other means have been tried in vain.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

In a little over thirty years Dr. Pierce, assisted by his staff of nearly a score of physicians, has cured more than half a million women.

"I was a great sufferer for six years and doctored all the time with a number of different physicians, but did not receive any benefit," writes Mrs. George Bogden, of 641 Bonda Street, Saginaw (South), Mich. "One day as I was reading a paper I saw your advertisement, and, although I had given up all hope of ever getting better, thought I would write to you. When I received your letter, telling me what to do, I commenced to take your 'Favorite Prescription' and follow your advice. I have taken ten bottles in all, also five vials of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' Am now regular after having missed two years and suffered with pain in the head and back. I was so nervous, could not eat or sleep. Now I thank you for my recovery."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness.

No Breach of Discipline.

THE colonel was entertaining some of his friends with stories of army life, and the talk turned to the inflexibility of orders. That reminded the colonel of Tim Murphy's case.

Murphy had enlisted in the cavalry service, although he had never been on a horse in his life. He was taken out for drill with other raw recruits under command of a sergeant, and, as luck would have it, secured one of the worst buckers in the whole troop.

"Now, my men," said the sergeant in addressing them, "no one is allowed to dismount without orders from a superior officer. Remember that."

Tim was no sooner in the saddle than he was hurled head over heels through the air, and came down so hard that the breath was almost knocked out of him.

"Murphy," shouted the sergeant, when he discovered the man spread out on the ground, "you dismounted!"

"I did."

"Did you have orders?"

"I did."

"From headquarters, I suppose?" with a sneer.

"No, from hindquarters."

Winter Uplands.

The frost that stings like fire upon my cheek,
The loneliness of this forsaken ground,
The long white drift upon whose powdered peak
I sit in the great silence as one bound;
The rippled sheet of snow where the wind blew
Across the open fields for miles ahead;
The far-off city towered and roofed in blue,
A tender line upon the western red;
The stars that singly, then in flocks appear,
Like jets of silver from a violet dome,
So wonderful, so many, and so near,
And then the golden moon to light me home;
The crunching snowshoes and the stinging air,
And silence, frost, and beauty everywhere.

Onions and Epidemics.

A READER of "Marmaduke's" letters in London "Truth" has sent him the following:

"Whilst turning over some old books in my library last week I stumbled upon the following paragraph in the 'Rural World' of 1863. As there is an epidemic of smallpox in London it has occurred to me to send this to you, for some of your medical readers may be either able to prove or disprove the statements it contains:

"'Onions and Epidemics.—In the spring of 1849 I was in charge of one hundred men on shipboard, with the cholera among the men. We had onions, which a number of the men ate freely. Those who did so were soon attacked, and nearly all died. As soon as I made this discovery their use was forbidden. After mature deliberation I came to the conclusion that onions should never be eaten during the prevalence of epidemics, for the reason that they absorb the virus, and communicate the disease and that the proper use for them is sliced and placed in the [illegible]-room, and replaced with [illegible] hours. . . . After making [illegible] the foregoing opinion for eighteen years, I have found the following well attested: Onions placed in the room where there is smallpox will blister and decompose with great rapidity; not only so but will prevent the spread of the disease. I think that as a disinfectant they have no equal if properly used. If needed, the foregoing (which I have greatly abbreviated) can be attested on oath.'"

It is a curious echo of a bygone preventive, and it is given here without much hope that the suggestion can be valuable

A PERFECT WOMAN.

She was a phantom of delight
When first she gleamed upon my sight;
A lovely apparition, sent
To be a moment's ornament;
Her eyes as stars of Twilight fair;
Like Twilight's, too, her dusky hair;
But all things else about her drawn
From May-time and the cheerful Dawn;
A dancing shape, an image gay,
To haunt, to startle and waylay.

I saw her upon nearer view,
A Spirit, yet a Woman, too!
Her household motions light and free,
And steps of virgin-liberty;
A countenance in which did meet
Sweet records, promises as sweet;
A creature not to bright or good
For human nature's daily food;
For transient sorrows, simple wiles,
Praise, blame, love, kisses, tears and smiles.

And now I see with eyes serene
The very pulse of the machine;
A being breathing thoughtful breath,
A traveler between life and death:
The reason firm, the temperate will,
Endurance, foresight, strength and skill;
A perfect Woman, nobly planned,
To warn, to comfort, and command;
And yet a Spirit still, and bright
With something of angelic light.

—William Wordsworth.

NOT A SCHOOL PROBLEM.

Lally Bernard Just Suggests Some Things in the Globe.

I doubt if you would find in one of our high schools in a country town in Canada six of the boys who could give you an exact idea of the number of miles and the pace at which a young horse should be driven, says Lally Bernard in The Globe. The knack of harnessing and of adjusting weights is so little understood; indeed, half the suffering of the horses in the country comes from the absolute indifference of the men as to whether the harness fits or not. Our country roads are improving, but, as a rule, farmers are absolutely careless about the condition of the roads over which they drive their too often badly shod horses. Surely the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have an immense field before them in this country of great distances, unbroken country and bad roads. Not only this, but, in many cases, really valuable animals are lost by the indifference or ignorance of their owners as to the necessity of good winter quarters. All the questions affecting the welfare of domestic animals, who form such an important feature in the economics of the country, should be widely discussed and given their due place in the education of our people. We are very dependent upon the help accorded us in our struggle for existence by these domestic animals, and it is safe to say that the immense development in the poultry business during the last ten years has done more to teach men to care for the wants of the feathered branch of our domestic charges than all the work of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals during the past twenty years. But there still remains so much to be done, and such constant vigilance to be exerted—the constant attendance of delegates from the society at all meetings and conventions of live stock societies, and keeping closely in touch with all movements for the improvement of the veterinary profession, and even a knowledge of the history and growth of the farrier business. For while the human species suffers acutely from the ignorance of the men who model and make our foot gear, imagine to what a degree the poor horses are dependent upon the skill of the man who models and fits their shoes! One knows that the human species find standing much more fatiguing than walking, and I often wonder if the horses at a cab stand do not suffer more from the hours they stand in the scorching sun or pelting rain than from racing over the hard pavements.

The Midlands Exhibition.

The Exhibition, opened for a press view, at Wolverhampton, England, on Saturday, 26th April, is the most ambitious one in the history of the Midlands. Scottish architects have designed the picturesque group of light, graceful buildings in the spacious grounds of West Park. The Industrial Hall, painted in strong shades of red and green, is a structure of marked originality, with high towers, capped by open lanterns, and main entrance decorated with a free stencil treatment in color. It contains, in addition to the Midland and Scottish exhibits, a varied Japanese collection of curios and lacquer, Indian carving and embroidery, and Danish porcelain. Machinery Hall is a simple but artistic structure with a bowstring roof, treated with special reference to electric illumination.

The Canadian pavilion is an artistic building, with a fine dome, and is filled with complete and well-arranged exhibits of the natural products of the Dominion. Commissioner Scott and Secretary Brodie have displayed Canadian energy in setting the pavilion in order. There is only one American exhibit.

Canada's Mineral Production.

The mineral production of Canada during the year 1901, according to the preliminary statement of the geological survey, was valued at $69,407,0_1, of which $42,834,000 was metallic and $26,292,000 non-metallic. The growth is equivalent to about eight per cent. over that of 1900, rather moderate increase compared with what recent years have shown. Gold, as a result of Yukon discoveries, occupies the first place, with $24,462,222, or more than a third of the whole; coal, with a value of $14,721,122 comes next.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to its columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published.—Ed. TIMES.]

—Victoria museum is now opened for the summer, every day from 2 to 6 p.m.

—Belleville's public library has been closed for lack of funds.

—For lots of up-to-date Photos go to Whitson, and you will get the best.

—J. J. Turner & Sons received an order yesterday from Buffalo, New York for [illegible] bunting flags.

—New map of the County of Peterborough, mounted on rollers, only $2.00. Times Bookstore.

—A child's push cart was left in front of the Y.M.C.A. a few nights ago and is awaiting an owner.

—Campbellford, Skating, Curling and Boating Rink Co., talk of going into liquidation as the liabilities are too heavy for the company to continue.

—The wise business man has no time for lamenting past failures — he throws all his energy into making a success of the present and future—White's Sayings.

—The frost was very severe in the vicinity of Stony Lake on Friday night. Gilchrist's Bay in Stony Lake was completely frozen over.

—Yesterday a burning fence on the lot on which Messrs. J. J. Taylor and Sons are erecting a factory gave the fire brigade a run. There was no damage done.

—The members and friends of St. Luke's church are requested to send out flowers to the church on Saturday to be used for the decoration of the chancel and the altar on Whit Sunday.

—Sealed tenders for the contract of building up New Ontario, and keeping the old premises in good repair for the next four years, will be received up to Thursday, May 29th, at five p.m. Best of testimonials required.

—A young man from the south end purchased a marriage license last week and on the road home he lost it and now he doesn't know where he is at, as the widow in the deal threatens to enter suit for breach of promise.

—The old favorite steamer North King made her first trip of the season last Monday afternoon arriving in Port at 3 p.m. She has undergone a complete overhauling and looks exceedingly clean. The same crew of efficient officers are in charge of her as were last season.

—A large case containing Klondike canoes for the west coast of Africa passed through Peterborough from Lakefield. The canoes were consigned to agents in Boston enroute to Africa by the Strickland Canoe Co, Lakefield, and afford one more instance of the widespread demand for the boats manufactured by this popular firm.

—Lakefield News—Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald kindly entertained the visitors from Ashburnham, and the performers in the entertainment at the town hall on Tuesday evening last at the conclusion of the performance to an informal supper at their residence on Queen Street. About forty guests partook of the hospitality of the genial host and hostess.

—A charge of grossly insulting language occupied the attention of the Police Magistrate yesterday morning. There was a question, in view of the fact that the offence was committed on private property, whether the town by-law was applicable, and judgment was reserved until this morning.

—The employees of the Rathbun Co's Lindsay mill have gone on a strike, and the mill has been shut down. The men we understand, are not dissatisfied with their wages, but object to having a portion of their pay held back till the end of the season. The Company propose to close the mill permanently, and do their cutting at Fenelon Falls, where they have a fine mill. This will prove a serious loss to the town.

—In addition to the $2500 for Peterborough public buildings, the following items in the Dominion Supplementary estimates appear:—Improvements and repairs Port Hope public building $1200, improvements and repairs Cobourg public building $2400, Public building Bowmanville $5000, Newcastle to complete repairs to pier $5000, Bowmanville to complete repairs to breakwater $4000, Cobourg repairs to piers and dredging $10,000, Harwood wharf on Rice Lake $1000.

—The members of All Saints' church are talking of placing an extension on their present place of worship, or erecting a new church altogether, the present edifice being inadequate to accommodate the large congregations that throng the building. The Advisory Board met last night and decided to submit to the congregation plans and estimate of probable cost of suitable building that subscription might be raised to cover the cost.

—The man who wrestles with the cow and learns the calves to suck, who casts the corn before the swine, is now in greatest luck, for butter's on the upper grade, veal's higher than a kite, pork is climbing up the scale, and beef is out of sight. The eggs he gathers every day from his Poland chicken coop, are always worth their weight in gold and we are in the soup. His corn brings a fancy price; it's rising every day, and he rakes all kinds of money for half a ton of hay. The farmer is in the saddle and when he comes to town, the rest of us by right, should go away back and then sit down.

—The Salvation Army is on the eve of its Self-Denial week and considerable activity is seen among the members. It seems that they are confident of obtaining their share towards the sum of $23,000 which is to be raised throughout this territory. We should think that considering the acknowledged good work this organization has done in our midst, they have enlisted sufficient sympathy in our town to guarantee that sum to be donated during S. D. week. Whatever our personal opinion may be as to the Army methods and paraphernalia we are agreed that the Army is in earnest and intensely practical, as well as economical, in spending the funds entrusted to it and we wish it every success.

The Rummage Sale

The Times has been requested by the Girl's Guild of All Saint's Church to thank those who contributed to the very successful "rummage" sale which was held under their auspices last week. They also thank those who patronized the sale. It is the intention of the Guild to hold another sale next fall, and from the experience gained in conducting the last one, they hope to meet with even greater success. The proceeds of these sales is for the reduction of the debt on the church.

Broke His Arm

The many friends of Mr. Wm. Rutherford, of South Monaghan, will regret to learn that he met with a painful accident on Monday last. He was building a barn, and had ascended to the mow to inspect the work, when he slipped and fell to the floor, a distance of ten or twelve feet, breaking his arm between the elbow and shoulder. Dr. Gray, of town, was at once summoned and set the injured bones. Mr. Rutherford is now doing nicely.

Reilhofer's Tyrolean Yodlers

These excellent entertainers, of whom every one is an artist, come from near Ober-Amergau, Bavaria, and appear in national costumes; They render Tyrolean and American songs, Yodling and Echo-Songs, etc. accompanied by the Zither and other Alpine instruments. MEAT QUESTION SETTLED.

Right Food to take Its Place

"The shortness of the meat supply and the high price of steak is not an unmitigated evil. On the other hand it is a probable blessing," says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"If meat could be raised to a price that would make it prohibitory, it might still be of good result, because it would teach those who depend almost entirely upon it to widen their dietary and learn to enjoy many good things of which they are not ignorant. To many, especially in the cities, there are but three foods; meat, potatoes and bread. The weary monotony of this program, the unsatisfied but indefinite longings for a widening of it, affect appetite and surely affect spirits and temper.

"The laborer goes to his work filled with meat, potatoes and bread. At noon he finds cold meat and bread in his dinner pail and at night he is confronted by meat and potatoes, sometimes separate, sometimes combined into a greasy stew, sometimes chopped into hash.

"This kind of thing fills him, but in a finer sense it can hardly be said to feed him. Physicians have discovered that a limited and unchanging diet lowers vitality and health."

Such a time as this gives everyone an opportunity to test the value of Grape-Nuts as a food and prove to themselves that it more than takes the place of meat are really furnishes more nourishment for the body, and greater strength and vitality for the brain and nervous system; it is also an economical food that reduces the cost of living to the minimum.

Grape-Nuts are probably entitled to the claim to be the most perfectly adapted food for human needs now extant. The meat eater and the vegetarian are alike charmed with its crisp taste and the delicate flavor of grape sugar and the careful housewife is attracted by the fact that there are fourteen portions in a 15c. package.

MEETING IN ASHBURNHAM

Meeting are Billed for Monday and Tuesday Evening

Ashburnham will have its share of political inspiration next week. On Monday night Dr. Ford, the Conservative candidate will address the electors, and will be assisted by Mr. J. W. Garvin. The doctor is a pleasing and fluent speaker and no doubt many from this side will go to hear him.

Tuesday evening Mr. Anderson, the Liberal candidate will speak and will be assisted by Mr R C Clute, KC., Toronto, one of the fluent speakers in Ontario. Mr. Anderson himself has developed into quite a good speaker, so that a treat is in store for seekers after political knowledge.

Reports of the meetings will appear in The Times in due course.

A DEPLORABL DEATH

Miss Annie Hamilton Dies After a Few Hours Illness

The news of the death of Miss Annie Hamilton, youngest daughter of the late Wm. Hamilton, Esq., which occurred yesterday morning, spread with lightning rapidity through the town, and came as a great shock to many. Death at any time is sad, but in this case is inexpressibly so. On Thursday she was in her usual good health, and being down town in the afternoon, chatting with her friends, and seemed in excellent spirits. Shortly after returning home, however, she complained of chills, when the family physician was summoned. He remained at her bedside throughout the night, other medical assistance being called in. About four o'clock she began to sink, and it was seen she would not rally. Her heart was failing and these alarming symptoms continued until about 9.30, when she passed away, surrounded by the members of the family who were at home. Mrs. Hamilton was in Chicago, and will not arrive until today. Deceased was about to leave on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Ludgate, in Pensylvania.

Miss Hamilton was a loveable young lady, and her death will be deeply regretted. The Times joins the whole community in extending to the afflicted relatives heartfelt sympathy.

By Practical Experience the Ladies Know That

DIAMOND DYES

Are the Best For Home Work

It is the easiest matter in the world to dye with the Diamond Dyes as thousands of women know from practical experience. By this work, any intelligent woman can make old clothing look like new, and save a good many dollars in the course of the year. One ten cent package of Diamond Dyes often saves the cost of a new gown, for it makes the old one look like new.

Mrs. Alex. McGillis, Winnipeg, Man., says: Your Diamond Dyes are home treasures. I have used them with great success for many years. The colors are fast and beautiful and washing cannot change them. I would send miles for Diamond Dyes, rather than bother with worthless imitations if sent to me free of cost.

Diamond Dye Mat and Rug Patterns richly colored on the best Scotch Hessian, can be ordered by mail. Send for free sheet of designs to select from. The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, 200 Mountain St., Montreal, P.Q.

SALVATION ARMY NOTES

The junior corps held their anniversary service last, Thursday, evening. There was a very nice attendance. Sergt. Major R. C. B and reported progress in every department of the work. Amongst other things a fine collection of new books has been added to the library. Then Adjt. Moore read an address to the Sergt.-Major, on behalf of the teachers and scholars of the school, who presented him with a very handsome writing desk, which took him quite by surprise. He endeavored, however, to speak his thanks in a few appropriate sentences, after which prizes were awarded all the members of the junior corps for regularity, good lessons, etc.

We were very sorry to hear of the illness of Adjt. Moore, during the past two weeks. Glad to see you around again, Adjt.

And self-denial is the [illegible] topic of the hour in [illegible]. The local corps is aiming to raise $300.00 through this effort, and as much besides as possible for the maintenance of the local work. It is well understood that while Salvationists will deny themselves and give liberally, at the same time, they will be appealing to their friends and all philanthropic citizens. Seeing the Army is general and undenominational in its character, it is probable they will meet with practical sympathy from all.

MOST LADIES NEED A TONIC EVERY SPRING.

MRS. BARBARA MC.DONALD JULIA V. TELLER
MRS. MARY HARDY
MRS. CATHERINE R. BERTOS

MRS. BARBARA McDONALD, President of the St. Louis Blue Ribbon Club, writes the following letter concerning Peruna from 2947 Dayton street, St. Louis, Mo.:

"It is with feelings of gratitude for benefits derived from the use of Peruna that I desire to proclaim to human-kind my experience, hoping that it will benefit some unfortunate sufferer like myself.

"Suffering for years with what appeared to be an incurable malady, and after a great expense incurred consulting physicians without any benefit, I was recommended to try Peruna. As a last expedient I purchased a bottle, and before one-half of the contents were used I felt the beneficial results. I am continuing to use same, and might say I am entirely well. My disease seemed to be catarrh of the stomach, and the nauseating sensation, and the heavy, languid, tired-out feelings with which I suffered, especially after eating, have entirely left me, and my digestive organs are in splendid condition, all of which I owe to the use of Peruna."—MRS. BARBARA McDONALD.

Miss Julia V. Teller, of 2518 Prairie street, Milwaukee, Wis., is President of the German Young Woman's Union. Her opinion of Peruna is given in the following words:

"Our German Young Woman's Union has nothing but praise for Peruna. Three of our members have been most wonderfully helped. One of them had almost constant backache for the last year. The other two suffered from catarrh of the head and throat.

"I have used it after a most unpleasant experience with an attack of la grippe, and found that three bottles completely restored me to health."—Julia V. Teller.

Mrs. Mary Hardy, of 568 W. Polk street, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I find it necessary each spring to take some kind of a tonic and have tried a great many but have found none of such value as Peruna.

"After taking a few doses I feel the good effects and seldom need to take more than one bottle as a spring medicine."—Mrs. Mary Hardy.

Mrs. Catherine R. Bertos, 803 N. Elm street, Centralia, Ill., writes:

"I have found Peruna the most satisfying medicine I ever tried in my life. I suffered for years with catarrh of the stomach, which became aggravated every time I caught a slight cold. My food did not digest properly, and life lost its best charm until I tried Peruna. It made a new woman of me. It took eight bottles to effect a complete cure, but I would not be back in the former condition for a thousand dollars. I am most grateful for being cured completely and feel better than I have done for years."—Catherine R. Bertos.

The lassitude incident to spring weather is especially trying to women. Ailments peculiar to the sex of many varieties are especially prone to aggravation. All this class of affections are fitly described by the term "pelvic catarrh."

Any woman wishing to be placed on the list of Dr. Hartman's patients for free home treatment and advice should immediately send name and symptoms, duration of disease and treatment already tried. Directions for the first month's treatment will be promptly mailed free of charge. No free medicine will be supplied by the doctor, but all necessary directions will be furnished.

Read what the above ladies have to say of Peruna as a cure for these cases.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Lord Pauncefote Ill

Special to the Times.

Washington, D.C., May 17.—It was learned at the British Embassy this morning that the condition of Lord Pauncefote is such as to cause considerable anxiety. Dr. Osler, of Baltimore, and Dr. Franz Jung, physicians, are in almost constant attendance on the Ambassador. No official bulletins have been issued by the physicians, but it was said at eleven o'clock that while Lord Pauncefote's condition seemed somewhat more favorable, the turn for the better was not pronounced enough to furnish much cause for encouragement.

Change of Dates

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. have changed their regular day of meeting to the last Thursday of the month. The next meeting will be held on the 29th of May.

OLD MADRID JUST NOW IN A BLAZE OF GLORY

Every Civilized Nation on Earth Represented—A Gorgeous Procession and Dazzling Scenes

Special to The Times.

Madrid, May 17.—His Majesty, Alfonso XIII, King of Spain, solemnly took the oath to the Constitution in the Hall of Assembly of the Chamber of Deputies, to-day, with the utmost ceremony and in accordance with all the religious forms and ancient rites.

Shortly after the break of day the ceremonies began with a salute of twenty-one cannon shots, marking the opening of the day, at the same hour the church bells throughout Madrid began ringing. At 10 o'clock the court dignitaries and distinguished persons who were to take part in the royal cortege began to assemble in the halls of the Royal palace. The ladies wore court dresses and the dignitaries were in full uniform. The Envoys Extraordinary, the Ambassadors, the Ministers Plenipotentiary, and the Charges d'Affaires, with their wives, assembled at the palace at 10 o'clock and were invited by the Master of Ceremonies to repair to the Chamber of Deputies, and take the places reserved for them.

Previous to this an immense body of troops had been gathered around the palace, and from one end of the route to the other, followed by the royal party in passing from the palace to the Chamber of Deputies and from there to the church of San Francisco El Grande, troops formed double lines on both sides, those immediately protecting his Majesty being the royal halberdiers and detachments from the various cavalry regiments.

The firing of cannon announced to the expectant populace that the time had arrived for the departure of the Royal procession for the scene of the day's ceremonies. Leaving behind the magnificent pile of granite and marble with superb view of the Valley of Manzanares, the royal cortege moved slowly southward toward the capital. The entire route, which lay through the Calle de Alcala, the Puerto del Sol and other famous thoroughfares and public squares was ablaze with color. The innate love of the Spaniard for color and display had found vent in a wealth of decorations that was as bewildering as it was gorgeous and attractive. Entire house fronts were hidden beneath masses of red and yellow bunting and from every possible point floated flags and streamers bearing the royal coat of arms. The streets were marked by double rows of Venetian masts from which floated banners of gorgeous hue.

Two facts were worthy of note in regard to the progress of the royal cortege through the crowded streets. In the pageant itself, with the gilded carriages of state and all the gala uniforms, there was nothing to suggest the poverty of the Spanish monarchy, while in the enthusiastic demonstrations of the populace, there was no outward indication of that spirit of discontent and revolution which is supposed to exist among the Spanish people. For the time being everyone seemed absorbed in the enjoyment of the gorgeous spectacle. For the first time in nearly a score of years Spain was to have a king and the contemplation of that fact alone was sufficient cause for satisfaction. So the people gave their hearty cheers to the young monarch, not forgetting the queen mother, now about to relinquish the reins of government in favor of him to whom she has given all her care and affection since his birth under such pathetic circumstances sixteen years ago today.

The grand procession was headed by a detachment of cavalry forming the garrison of Madrid. Following were the court dignitaries, the mayors of the leading cities, members of the various local and provincial governments and representatives of the universities and other institutions of Spain. These were followed by delegations from the Senate and Chamber, the nobility, the church, etc.

The royal insignia, borne by high court dignitaries, included the Collar of the Order of the Golden Fleece, the sword, the standard and the seal of Castile, and the royal mantle of his Majesty. The Spanish crown, a circlet of gold, richly decorated with eight leaves and closed with four with jewels and precious stones, adorned arches, surmounted the carriage in which rode the king and queen mother. The carriage itself was a dream of gorgeous color. The vehicle was a huge and cumbersome affair, according to latter-day notions, and was made for King Philip V. Its interior was richly upholstered in purple and gold, while the outside was decorated with paintings by Rubens and richly inlaid with silver and pearl. It was drawn by eight magnificent horses with footmen and outriders clad in the livery of the period of Charles V. In the front were squads of brilliantly uniformed soldiers, while at the side cantered a galaxy of Spanish generals. Two dozen carriages, scarcely less rich in their fittings and decorations, conveyed the Infantas and the great dignitaries of the royal palace. As the procession swept by, the troops, in parade order, presented arms and rendered all military honors to the royal party.

The king, upon entering the hall, bowed to the knee before the Senators and Deputies and also to the tribune occupied by the foreign representatives. His Majesty having removed the robe which he wore in the carriage now appeared in the brilliant uniform of a Captain-General of the Spanish army. The mother wore a white [illegible] dress, with a long train, which was borne by four court chamberlains. As their Majesties passed up the aisle the members of the nobility and others ranged themselves in two lines leading from the entrance to the throne. The dignitaries carrying the royal mantles stationed themselves on the first step to the throne. A dignitary holding the sword of the monarchy stood on the second step of the throne, while the bearer of the standard occupied the third step. Other auxiliaries to the pageant were grouped about in suitable order. Upon the altar beneath the crucifix were placed the open books of the Evangelists and of the Spanish Constitution.

The ceremony of taking the oath and the anointment occupied scarcely a quarter of an hour and was as follows -

The Cardinal Archbishop of Toledo mounted the steps of the throne, placed himself in front of the king and invited his Majesty to make, before his faithful subjects and in a loud voice, his profession of faith, and presented him with the open book. The anointment and the administration of the oath followed, both ceremonies being conducted with great solemnity and impressiveness.

His Majesty received the benediction from the special envoy of the Pope, who recited the prayer prescribed by the ritual. The young king arose and ordered that the royal mantle with the Collard of the Order of the Golden Fleece be presented to him. They were presented on cushions richly ornamented with gold. One of the assistants of his Majesty adjusted the royal mantle. In a similar manner his Majesty caused to be presented to him the sceptre and sword, and having taken the sceptre in one hand and the sword in the other seated himself on the throne. In a few moments he arose and placed the sword and sceptre on cushions beside him where reposed also the crown of Spain. This terminated the actual ceremonies of the occasion.

Throughout the entire proceedings the queen mother remained by the side of the young king. Conspicuous also among those near at hand, in addition to the numerous church dignitaries, were the Infanta de las Mercedes and the Infanta Marie Theresa sisters of the king, and his aunts, including the Infanta Eulalie, the Duke De Sotomayor, his major-domo, General Weyler, Senor Sagasta, the Duke de Veragua, and General Pacheco Rodrigo, commandant of the royal halberdiers.

The composed demeanor of the young monarch throughout the trying ceremonies was such as to make a favorable impression on the minds of the spectators. Never once throughout the ordeal did he falter, hesitate, or appear confused, but at every step appeared calm, dignified and entirely at his ease.

The foreign representatives, the clergy, the grandees and all the persons present presented their felicitations upon the conclusion of the ceremonies of annointment and the administration of the oath. The procession then moved to the church of San Francisco El Grande in the same order and with the same ceremony that it had left the palace. All along the way there were enthusiastic shouts from the crowd that filled the streets and public squares. Alfonso XIII., now a king in fact as well as in name, graciously acknowledging the salutations.

The ceremonies at the church were simple but impressive. Here the clergy were the chief participants, the chief actors o listeners. Upon entering the sacred edifice his Majesty proceeded down the long aisle lined by the grandees and their ladies and the foreign representatives and ambassadors. Arriving at the altar the young monarch handed the insignia of office to his attendants and knelt in prayer while the Archbishop read the litanies, the day being little more than passive. The service concluded with the Te Deum. Once outside the church and on the return journey to the Royal Palace the king was greeted with fanfares of trumpets, the booming of cannon, the ringing of bells and cheers from tens of thousands of throats.

At the great reception which followed at the palace the utmost state was observed. The highest grandees of Spain, the august foreign princes and the leading members of their suites were in attendance with the officials of state, high officers of the army, eminent clergy and others. Only persons of the highest importance were present, the guests being entertained according to their rank.

This evening, for the first time, the ancient capital is illuminated in conformity with plans drawn up by celebrated artists, whose esthetic ideas were not stunted, nor their elaborate work hampered by prosaic consideration of expense. With result truly unique Madrid has become a beautiful poem in color, an exquisite symphony in fire. The famous Prado the evening resort of the people, the Plaza Mayor, surrounded by its colonnades, the Plaza Oriente in front of the Royal Palace, the Plaza de las Cortes, and other public places are dazzling in their brightness, while the various public buildings are outlined against the sky in lines of fire. These magnificent effects have been produced by electric and gas lamps of all colors, forms and sizes. The city of Madrid, which first took the matter in hand, voted a large sum for the purpose of illumination, but the money proved insufficient for the realization of the elaborate plan, whereupon an additional sum was granted from the royal treasury. This, of course, is exclusive of large sums which have been expended by private individuals, with the result that the city resembles a great fairyland in which the people have given themselves up to the full enjoyment of the festivities in accordance with the true southern spirit.

As a spectacle the events of the day defy description, and as a subject for national rejoicing the shouts of the people still continue, and the ringing of the bells testify of the success of the occasion.

CRAZED BY HER HUSBAND'S SUICIDE

Shot Her 15-Year-Old Son and Then Killed Herself

A MOTHER'S DEADLY FRENZY

Burlington Woman Never Recovered from the Blow and Decided to End It all at Once

Burlington, N. J., May 17.—In a frenzy of despair, brought on by worry over a tragedy that took her husband from her a few months ago, Mrs. Helen Sharp shot her 15-year-old son to death and ended her own life by cutting her throat with a razor at her home, No. 88 High street, this city. The double tragedy occurred some time last night, but was not discovered until this morning when neighbors forced a way into the house to learn what had become of its occupants. The bloody corpses were found in Mrs. Sharp's room, and life had been extinct for many hours.

Until a year or so ago Harry B. Sharp was a successful jeweler in this city, but he began to neglect his business for the companionship of men who were "out for a good time." The business ran down and reverses came. Then he embarked in the livery business. One night last winter the agents of the Law and Order Society, with officers of the law, made a descent upon a number of resorts in this city where it was alleged gambling and other illegal practices were carried on. Among the habitues who were caught in one of these raids was Sharp. It went against him hard, and he felt the disgrace keenly. Before he could be called as a witness in the case he was dead. He was found a corpse in his bed, having shot himself with a gun muffled by the bed clothing.

FAREWELL OVER THE WIRE.

It was soon noticed that Mrs. Sharp suffered untold anguish from the horror of it all. To her friends at times she appeared in a deep gloom and melancholy, but at other times she was in apparently cheerful mood. She called on friends last evening, but returned to her home early. Calling over the telephone to the livery stable, at the rear of her residence, about 10 o'clock last night, she asked for Perry Toner, the manager.

"Is that you, Perry?"

"Yes," replied Toner.

"Good-bye," came the answer over the wire, and Toner was greatly puzzled. He had no idea, however, what that simple message meant, for it now appears that Mrs. Sharp must have enacted the double tragedy immediately afterward.

NEIGHBORS' TERRIBLE DISCOVERY.

As there was no sign of anyone stirring about the house at 9.30 this morning the neighbors felt that something was wrong, and they decided to investigate. There came no answer to repeated rings at the door bell, and it was found impossible to force the doors. Frank Browin made his way to the roof and down through the trap door. He admitted Councilman School to the front door, and the two made a tour of the house.

To some of her friends Mrs. Sharp had said that her husband had disgraced her and blighted the life of their boy, and it was driving her wild.

Coroner Wells took charge of the bodies and the house, about which a great throng of curious people quickly gathered. He will hold an inquest.

BOERS' HYPOTHETICAL PROPOSITIONS SURE TO PREVENT IMMEDIATE PEACE.

But the Inevitable Result will Olny be Delay in This Way

Private Telegrams Received in London Point to a Speedy Solution

Special to the Times.

London, May 18.—While every capital in Europe is eagerly awaiting the result of the Boer Peace Conference at Vereeniging, Transvaal, London watches it with apparent indifference. This feeling not only extends to the public, who to-day are pouring out of the Metropolis, bent on celebrating the Whitsuntide bank holiday, but also to the cabinet ministers. None of these remained in London. Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief, is off to an aristocratic country seat; William St. John Brodrick, the Secretary of State for War, and other officials are spending the week's end out of town, and a holiday atmosphere reigns over all the government offices.

Those who are closest in touch with both sides in South Africa tell the Associated Press the meeting at Vereeniging will result in peace. Officially, there is nothing to show which way the wind blows, but almost all the private telegrams received here point to a speedy solution of the long, outdrawn struggle.

It is pointed out, however, that the Boer delegates at Vereeniging are quite likely to submit hypothetical propositions, which, while not affecting the eventual result, may delay the decision for a week or more. Hence all rumors of an immediate determination one way or the other must be taken with a fairly large grain of salt, especially anything emanating from the Stock Exchange or the European Boer Junta.

Young Student on Trial

Special to The Times.

Buffalo, N.Y., May 19.—The case of Gabriel Bishop, a young student, charged with manslaughter, will be called for trial to-day in the Erie County Supreme Court. The trial promises to be one of the most interesting that has been before the local courts in a long time. The case itself is a peculiar one. Young Bishop is charged with causing the death of a young man named Austin on the night of July 8th, at a camp on Lake [illegible]. It is alleged that Bishop caused a stick of dynamite to be exploded near the camp, with the result that Austin was killed. While the evidence against Bishop was purely circumstantial, the first trial resulted in finding him guilty of manslaughter. The decision was reversed on appeal, and a new trial ordered. Bishop is the son of one of the most prominent and wealthy families in Western New York. He is at present attending the University of Michigan, where he went after being denied admission to Cornell University while the present charges are hanging over him.

Celebrates Work of Fifty Years

Special to The Times.

Columbus, O., May 19.—It is estimated that more than 1,500 delegates and other visitors have arrived for the meeting of the Ohio Christian society, which will be in session here during the next three days. To-day was devoted to preliminary meetings and the reception of visitors. The meeting this year possesses more than usual significance, as it marks the golden jubilee or fiftieth anniversary of the society. For the three days' sessions a fine programme has been arranged, and many noted speakers will be heard.

Pilgrims to Historic Spots

Special to The Times.

New York, May 17.—One hundred New York men and women interested in the study of Colonial and Revolutionary history leave to-day on a pilgrimage to the historic plantations and towns of the James river. The pilgrims are scheduled to arrive in Washington to-morrow, and in Hot Springs the day following, from where they will go to Charlottesville, Monticello, Richmond, Williamsburg, Yorktown and Point Comfort, and will go from there down the James river. The pilgrimage will conclude with a visit to Jamestown Island.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 19, 1902.

THE UNIQUE FEATURES OF THE MARTINIQUE CATASTROPHE

Although many of the phenomena attending it are identical with those previously observed, the eruption of Mont Pelee in Martinique is a memorable event in the history of volcanoes, not only owing to its destructive effect upon human life, but also by reason of two uncommon, if not unparalleled characteristics, says the New York Sun. We first refer to the fact that the outpour of lava which took place on May 5th did not mark the crisis of the eruption, and, secondly, to the appalling quickness with which the population of St. Pierre was wiped out by the fiery whirlwind which, just before 8 o'clock on the morning of May 8th, enveloped the town and the adjoining harbor.

As regards the number of lives destroyed, the eruption of Mont Pelee, though conspicuous, is not preeminent among the volcanic outbreaks which have occurred in historical times. From this point of view, indeed, it dwarfs the explosion of Mount Vesuvius, which overwhelmed the towns of Herculaneum and Pompeii. It is itself eclipsed, however, considered as a death-dealing agency, by the terrible outburst of Krakatoa, in the Straits of Sunda, in 8813, which wrought unexampled havoc on the neighboring coasts of Java and Sumatra.

Neither is there anything exceptional in the fact that incandescent slags and cinders were shot up to a great height, whence they were driven by air currents to distant islands, and thereon deposited in the form of ashes or dust. The fine ashes of Krakatoa are said to have been carried by the uprush of gas and vapors to the altitude of seventeen miles. In 1835 ashes from Mount Consequina fell in Jamaica, 700 miles of, and in 8145 the dust from Mount Hecla in Iceland was borne to the Orkney and Shetland Isles.

Nor is there anything anomalous in the reported circumstances that, since the eruption, the height of Mont Pelee has been diminished by some hundreds of feet. The cones of Etna and and Vesuvius have often been in this way curtailed. In 1772 the whole peak of Papanbayang in Java was blown off. In 1822 the summit of Vesuvius was reduced by 800 feet. In 1888, Mount Kobandai in Japan was shortened to an extraordinary extent, it being estimated that 1,587,000,000 cubic yards of rock were torn from the top of the mountain and scattered over an area of nearly thirty square miles.

What was abnormal about the Mont Peleo eruption was, we repeat, the fact that the great outpour of lava which took place on May 5th did not mark the crisis of the cataclysm. If they were to judge from precedents, the members of the commission appointed that day in St. Pierre were justified in assuring their fellow townsmen that the worst was over. As a rule, indeed, the volcanoes which emit lava in the greatest volume are comparatively quiet in their action. The molten rock or lava simply rises to the rim of the crater, or of a lateral fissure, and overflows it; when the crater or fissure is depleted of its liquid contents, the eruption ceases. This is the case with the volcanoes of Hawaii. Where, on the other hand, eruptions are periodical and paroxysmal, as in the case of Etna and Vesuvius, the violent ejection of incandescent drops and fragments precedes the outburst of lava from the lip of the crater, or of a rent in the side of the cone. It will probably be found when scientists are able to examine the desolated district district, that [illegible] occurred; one on May 5th, which found vent through a lateral fissure or so-called soufriere (sulphur pit), and the other on the morning of May 8th, when the crater and the whole top of the cone were blown off. In other words, there were two outbursts of lava, distinctly local, and in the order of time.

For the awful suddenness with which in from thirty seconds to three minutes the population of St. Pierre was exterminated by a hurricane of fire there is no recorded parallel. From the relatively few remains of human bodies brought to light in Herculaneum and Pompeii, it is manifest that the great majority of the inhabitants of those places had time for escape from destruction. The direction of streaming lava can be calculated, and from the downfall of ashes a shelter of some sort can commonly be found. The fountain of incandescent cinders which normally precedes an outburst of lava is usually confined to the immediate vicinity of the crater whence it springs. That the inhabitants of St. Pierre, which stands at a considerable distance from the eruptive centre, should have been caught in a cyclone of flame, constitutes a new and unique catastrophe.

JOURNALISTS IN POLITICS

Newspaper men are coming to the front as political candidates in the forthcoming election in the Province of Ontario. There were seven of them in the last Legislature, as follows:

Hon. J. R. Stratton, Peterborough Examiner.

Andrew Pattullo, Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

T. H. Preston, Brantford Expositor.

H. J. Pettypiece, Forest Free Press.

G. P. Graham, Brockville Recorder.

S. Russell, Deseronto.

J. A. Auld, Amherstburg Echo.

These seven are again in the field, with good prospects of re-election, and six others have been nominated:

M. Y. McLean, Seaforth Expositor.

Chas. N. Smith, Sault Ste. Marie Express.

Major Hugh Clark, Kincardine Review.

Joseph Downey, Guelph Herald.

Samuel Charters, Brampton Conservator.

J. Mitchell, Goderich Star.

Others may yet be added. The profession is certainly improving its social and political standing.

CORPORAL P. PRICE TELLS OF THE BATTLE

And Refers to the Gallant Conduct of our Boys Under Fire

THE DEATH OF CAPTAIN MILLIGAN

Hon. Sergt. Murphy was Wounded—A Letter Which Will be Read with Great Interest by Everybody

In a letter to his mother, Mrs. S. R. Price, Corporal P. R. Price tells of the Harts River battle, and the part played therein by Canadians. He states:

I suppose by this time you have heard all about the fight of the 31st March. It was the hottest fight I ever saw and our regiment certainly did themselves credit. We left camp at 3 a. m. on Easter Monday morning and marched straight through till about 12, when we ran into the enemy. They put up a small fight but soon retired. We followed them up about three miles and then went into camp in a hollow close to a creek with a gradual slope of a mile on every side, and were just tying our horses when a shell came whizzing over us. I knew what was up and was, I admit, pretty scared. Then the shells came fast, as they had two pom-poms and two fifteen pounders. Soon the bullets began to come and we all started to get into the best position of defence possible, digging trenches and piling up oat-sacks and everything that would make a barricade. By this time we were completely surrounded and the men and horses were falling fast. The poor horses certainly got it; we lost 250. Our casualties were 63. We buried eight Canadians in one grave, and I believe two more have died since coming into camp; there are 13 wounded and seven missing. Five of the dead are out of our squadron, it got the worst of any, as two troops that were acting rear guard were completely cut off, and were very much cut up. We only lost one out of our troop, Captain Milligan. He was a particularly fine man. Knisley is amongst the seven missing. I hope he is with some other column, but I feel very anxious about him. Sergt. a close shave. The Boer force was Murphy was hit on the head — it was about 3,500 to our 2,500, and as we were completely surrounded, you can imagine how we had to fight. The closest they got to our lines was 500 yards. We killed and wounded 250 of them. We are under General Kitchener, and he was very much pleased with the way we conducted ourselves. It was a pretty hot baptism for our men, as it was the first time we have been under fire.

It was the most terrible sight I ever saw about our camp hospital. All the wounded or dead were carried there as soon as possible after they were hit, some with their limbs off, some dead, some dying. One man was hit in the right eye, and had his arm off above the elbow, and had three bullets in his body. He is alive and seems to be doing well. We are having a great deal harder time than we had before, as nearly all our marches are made at night, and we go so fast it is impossible for our transports to keep up with us, so very often we do not have our blankets. After the fight nearly all our blankets were taken for the dead and wounded, and we have not got others yet. The night after the fight every one expected a night attack, and all hands were in the trenches and keenly alert, when, about 12 o'clock, some one thought they saw the enemy and fired, then everyone fired, then the colonel came out of his tent, and you could hear his voice above everything, "Steady, boys, steady." This thing occurred off and on all night, and you may be sure we were glad when the morning came.

Cover Crops and Fertilizers.

Prof. I. P. Roberts of Cornell University says:—Cover crops may in a measure take the place of fertilizers and manures. They are not, however, a universal panacea for all soil deficiencies, neither are they a full substitute in all cases for fertilizers. There is always a wide field for the profitable use of one or all of the concentrated forms of fertilizers named, and in many cases there is also a special place for the use of fertilizers, therefore the more need of honest goods. Commercial fertilizers furnish available plant food, but no humus. The cover crop furnishes both, but it is only fair to say that the plant foods in the former are more available than in the latter. Cover crops improve the physical condition of the soil, lessening the cost of tillage. Physically, fertilizers benefit the soil little or none. The humus furnished by the cover crops increases the availability of the plant food already in the soil; fertilizers do not. Cover crops shade the land and conserve moisture.

It is impossible to accurately compare the cost of fertilizers with the cost of seeds for the cover crops and the preparation of the soil for them. The cost of increasing productively by extra tillage, by the use of fertilizers, by cover crops or by all three means, can only be determined in each case by the farmer interested. I give below a single illustration of what a cover crop contains, knowing that another cover crop under other conditions might either be more or less valuable. Second growth of clover, furnished in roots and tops per acre the following:—Nitrogen, 138.96 lbs.; phosphoric acid, 67.25 lbs.; potash, 109.96 lbs. There is removed by 25 bushels of wheat and accompanying straw, nitrogen, 43 lbs.; phosphoric acid, 20 lbs., and potash, 27 lbs. It is believed that most of the nitrogen taken up by legumes is secured from the uncombined nitrogen in the atmosphere. The clover did not add to either the store of phosphoric acid or potash. The plant took them from the soil and made them available.

The eccentric millionaire decided to build a Venetian palace in the little lake that adorned his country home.

"It will be easy enough to build the palace," said the architect whom he was consulting, "but there may be some trouble about the foundation."

"Well, you start for Venice on the first steamer that sails for Europe. Find out how they lay the foundations for their palaces over there, and add your expenses to the bill."

The architect packed his valise and started.

In about two weeks the millionaire received the following cablegram:

"Venice, May 5.—Have made thorough investigation and find there has not been a foundation laid here for 500 years. Chubb."—Chicago Tribune.

Intellect vs. Morals.

It is the tendency of a sophisticated age like the present to overestimate intellectual as compared with moral and emotional gifts. The material civilization upon which we pride ourselves is almost entirely the achievement of the intellect. Fame and wealth, luxury, cultivation and leisure—all the big prizes of the world, in fact—are obtained by the successful exercise of the intellect. The moral qualities, of themselves, can procure a man nothing but a clear conscience, and the approval, perhaps mixed with contempt, of his neighbors. And yet, when the intellectual qualities are brought to the test of reality; when one's view of them is not clouded by pride, avarice, or passion, how amazingly does their value shrink and shrivel!—Henry Childs Merwin in "Atlantic Monthly."

Judge Roger S. Greene, for many years Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Washington Territory, was eminent not only for his legal attainments, but also for the accuracy of his scholarship and scrupulously correct use of language. A mispronunciation was an offense that he could not permit to pass unnoticed.

In arguing a case before him one day an attorney cited Browne on Carriers, pronouncing the name of the author Brown-ey. The Judge interrupted the argument to give him the correct pronunciation, which he accepted for the moment, but soon relapsed into his error, whereupon the Judge again interrupted with:—

"Mr. ——, that author's name is not pronounced Browney, but Brown. As in the case of many similar words, the final 'e' is silent. There is an 'e' at the end of my name, but you would not call me 'Greeney,' would you?"

"That depends," instantly replied the lawyer, "on how your Honor decides this case!"—New York Times.

Honor for a Canadian.

Canadians generally will be interested in learning that Dr. J. Beattie Crozier, author of the famous work, "History of Intellectual Development," has been selected as one of the 300 representatives of the empire in the splendid ten-guinea volume of portraits and biographies which the Grosvenor Press are bringing out. The work consists of representative men of every class outside of the military and civil services, who will have a volume to themselves. Dr. Crozier will be one of the representatives of the department of philosophy. Also, of course, he will stand as one of the representatives of Canada, a distinction he has well earned, and on which I am sure his countrymen will warmly congratulate him.

An Outspoken Journal.

It is refreshing, and even entertaining, to turn occasionally to that ultra-Radical English journal, Reynolds' Newspaper, and see the use which is still made of that right of free speech which is sometimes supposed to have been menaced by the developments of late years. Reynolds' does not take much stock in the colonies of the empire, nor, for that matter, in the mother country either, and in an article dealing with the war the other day made the following amiable reference to the progressive colony of New Zealand, the advanced radicalism of which might have been expected to meet with sympathy in its columns:—"Amid all this scene of woe and desperation, one sinister figure emerges—the ogre of Capitalism. Seddon, the frenzied 'patriot,' with the hostile tariff against British goods, and his bankrupt colony living on borrowed money, rages about the contracts for supplying the army. The foreign Jewish 'patriots'—who used to sing 'God Shave the Queen'—domiciled here, have secured most of these contracts, as they secured the astounding contracts for the supply of horses. And behind this section of old Jewry is that other section of Judaism with which Rhodes the Raider is connected. Fine patriots, indeed, making their millions out of the war, while the Government refuses to pay poor Tommy Atkins his back wages, leaving him to starve in the street, or to die in the workhouse."

Here, too, is Reynolds' pleasantly frank way of dealing with the Anglo-Japanese alliance:—"We are going the way of all nations given up, on the one hand, to the most sensual luxury, on the other to the most immoral and criminal seizure of their neighbors' territory. The latest sign of our feebleness, under a Government composed of rich men and land monopolists, whom the international Jewish capitalists have by the throat, is the treaty with Japan. Only a couple of months ago that vulgar self-advertiser Chamberlain was hurling insults at Germany—a country that had previously rejected his cringing appeal for an alliance—and boasting of our 'splendid isolation.' To-day our Government, composed of fools and knaves, recognizing the gravity of the position of affairs in South Africa, is obliged to beg little Japan, a semi-savage nation, with a veneer of western culture among its more prosperous classes, to enter into an alliance with decaying England. The humiliation of it! The danger of it!"

Presbyterian Lenten Service.

A regular Lenten service in a Presbyterian church is not heard of often, but Dr. Hunter of the King's Weigh House Church, London, has begun this innovation during the present season of Lent. In the course of a conversation with a representative of a London newspaper, Dr. Hunter expressed himself as strongly in favor of the observance of all the seasons of the "Christian year." "It belongs," he said, "to the whole of Christendom and not to any one section only. Nonconformists have lost much through their non-observance of these special seasons. For instance, Lent arose originally out of a deep necessity of the inner life, and, more even than men long ago, we require such a pause amid the rush of business and pleasure. It is well for us to have such a season, it is better still if we seek to profit by it. It is wise and good that so many in our day, and in so many of our churches, are returning to the old paths of meditation and prayer and are seeking to fill the best of the old forms and observances with a truer and better meaning and spirit."

Dr. Hunter has always been an advocate of the observance by Free Churchmen of the feasts and fasts of the church. When he began his ministry in York twenty-eight years ago he introduced the custom of a service on Good Friday, and in his church at Glasgow he had for two years daily prayer. At King's Weigh House Church on the Sunday evenings in Lent, Dr. Hunter is delivering a course of sermons on "Self-discipline," and he has announced a "class for young persons wishing to be prepared for the Communion of the Lord's Supper," which is presumably on the lines of a confirmation class in the Church of England. The service book in use at King's Weigh House is one compiled by Dr. Hunter, and used by him at Glasgow, and, while based mainly on liturgical lines, it provides for the exercise of extempore prayer.

To Make Colts Shy.

Nearly every colt, when first driven away from home, will shy and scare more or less at objects along the roadside. After he has been driven a few times the common practice is to strike him with the whip every time he does this. It is provoking to feed a horse hay three times a day and then see him scare at a little pile of hay in the road. The first thing that comes into the mind is to give him a cut with the whip.

Nothing worse than this could be done. The next time he will not only be afraid of the object, but of the whip also, and by a little training in this way he will soon be confirmed in the habit of shying and scaring at nearly everything he sees. First the tendency, then the habit, is the law of nature, and when the pile of hay or rock, or whatever startles, is connected with the whip, as it soon will be, the habit is fixed for life. You cannot lick horses into good habits; you can establish vices very easily by blows.—Maine Farmer.

The Flaws in the Rose.

When a garden first becomes a joyful possibility, most people turn at once to the thought of roses. Now, roses have no place in landscape gardening. As a rule they do not belong in the front yard. This may sound shocking and heretical, but it is true at least so far as the common double flowered roses are concerned. The place for roses is in the flower garden, and the place for the flower garden is in the rear or off at one side by itself. Roses have too many insect enemies. Their foliage is always being destroyed. For the ordinary person it is not worth while to spray them.

Probably half the plants of all kinds sold in America by nurserymen are roses. Everybody loves roses, but in practice no one takes good care of them except the rose specialist. Personally I prefer peonies to roses for my garden. They have larger flowers which last longer than roses. They make a more compact and shapely bush, have an abundance of rich, dark green foliage, come into bearing earlier, are hardier and longer lived than most roses, and they are remarkably free from insects and disease. All they lack is poetry, perfume, thorns and bugs.

But I shall not quarrel with any one who prefers roses. If you really want roses, you would better have them even if you fail.

Killing a Bull Without a Weapon.

Cayetano, a famous Spanish toreador, once was strolling across a meadow with a couple of friends when his attention was attracted by an old and infuriated bull which was galloping toward them with lowered head and erect tail. Cayetano had no weapon, not even a cane, but he seized a dust-coat which one of his friends was carrying over his arm. As soon as the bull got close to them Cayetano bade his companions make their escape while he engaged the animal's attention. Using the coat as a cape, he drove the bull crazy with fury, stepping aside with the deftest agility at each of the animal's charges. In this manner he caused the bull to turn sharply in the midst of its onward rushes until finally an ominous crack was heard, and the bull fell in a heap, with its backbone broken by the sudden wrench given by the animal's abrupt swerve.

His Own Medicine Chest.

The surgeon of an English ship of war was noted for the monotony of his prescriptions. He apparently considered salt water taken externally or internally as a cure for all the ills that flesh is heir to, for he ordered his patients to take it, no matter what might be the malady presented to his notice.

One day he went sailing with a party of friends, and in the course of a squall the boat was upset, and the surgeon came near being drowned.

"Well," said the captain of the ship when he was told of the narrow escape, "I'm glad you were saved, but it hardly seems possible in any event that you could have really drowned in your own medicine chest, now does it, doctor?"

Juvenile Erudition.

Here are a few extracts from compositions written by boys in a high school of Vienna:

"Many a man lies down in good health and gets up dead."

"In Rome the bones of the martyrs were collected and torn by wild beasts."

"Human beings ceased to walk on all four and walked on the hindmost."

"He sacrificed a rich woman and other priests."

"Hannibal stood with one foot in Spain, while with the other he beckoned to the troops."

"God's punishment followed immediately after ten years."

The Chimney Swift.

Occasionally a bird is strong minded enough to break away from old traditions. Before this country was settled the swift nested in hollow trees, but after trees began to be cut down and chimneys arose above the roofs of houses everywhere the birds were quick to perceive that fires are generally out by the time their nesting season arrives. Therefore why not take advantage of the innovation? So completely did they forsake their old nesting sites to build in chimneys that the name chimney swift is now universally applied to them.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Troublesome Trio.

"The most troublesome member of my flock," said the parson, "is a young woman who wants a husband."

"My most troublesome client," said the lawyer "is a middle aged woman who wants a divorce."

"The most troublesome patient I have," said the physician, "is a spinster of uncertain age who doesn't know what she wants."

The Part He Played.

Mr. Stalate—So your sister keeps you well supplied with pocket money, does she?

Tommy—Yes.

Stalate—I presume you have to render some little equivalent?

Tommy (yawning)—Oh, yes; I have to come in and yawn when visitors are staying too late.

Useless Expense.

Drug Clerk—We don't happen to have the drugs named in this prescription, but we have others just as good.

Customer—I suppose that's all right; but what a fool I was to pay the doctor $3 for that prescription! That's what bothers me.

The Reason Why.

"The baby at your house is awfully small for its age."

"Yes, but my mistress insists on bringing it up on condensed milk."—Meggendorfers Blatter.

They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the decoration scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end our wall papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

IN DAYS OF OLD
WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD

A Spider's Genius

"I HAVE considerable respect for the female spider, notwithstanding the fact that she does not treat the male very considerately," says a correspondent. "I had an opportunity last summer to watch a large one that had a web in the top of a decaying peach tree with so few leaves that it was in plain sight. I caught sight of her first when watching some birds with my glass. She seemed to be climbing from the top of the tree on nothing to a telephone wire some fifteen feet away and somewhat higher than her web. When she reached the wire she went around it and then back. In studying the situation, I found the web was so located that it required a cable to hold it up, and the spider had in some way got one over the wire so far away. This cable was, of course, a slender silken thread which evidently she had thrown out, and on account of its lightness it had floated to the right place and become attached there by its glutinous properties. It seems remarkable that it should have adhered to the wire firmly enough to allow so large an insect to climb over it, which she did every day as long as I watched her, evidently to mend or strengthen it. The spider must have brains in which the ability to construct its web and adapt it to conditions is highly developed."

In an article in "Chambers' Journal" the following account of how the spider forms its silken threads is given:

"One of the most interesting features in the economy of spiders is their power of emitting slender threads of a silk-like substance called gossamer, with which most of them construct mesh-like nets, and a few long, dangling cables, by which they are buoyed through the air with nearly as much facility as though they had been furnished with wings. The apparatus provided by nature for elaborating and emitting this gossamer is a beautiful piece of mechanism. Within the animal there are several little bags or vesicles of a gummy matter; and these vesicles are connected with a circular orifice situated at the abdomen. Within this orifice are five little teats or spinnerets, through which the gossamer is drawn. It must not be concluded, however, that there is only one film of gossamer produced by each spinneret; the fact is, these teats are studded with thousands of minute tubes too small for the naked eye to perceive, and each of these emits a thread of inconceivable fineness. These minute tubes are known as spinnerules, and the films which proceed from them unite like so many strands of a rope to form the thread of gossamer by which a spider suspends itself. The finest thread which human mechanism can produce is like a ship's cable compared with the delicate films which flow from the spinnerules of the largest spider. The films are all distinctly separate on coming from the spinneret, but unite, not by any twisting process, but merely by their own glutinous or gummy nature. Thus the spinning apparatus of the disdained spider, when viewed by the eye of science, becomes one of the most wonderful pieces of animated mechanism known to man. The animal has great command over this apparatus, and can apply it at will as long as the receptacle within are replenished with the gummy fluid, but as soon as this gum is exhausted all its efforts to spin are fruitless, and it must wait till nature, by her inscrutable chemistry, has secreted it from the food which is devoured."—"Waverley Magazine."

Revolutionary Proposals.

IT must have struck many of the admirers of the melodramatic stage that the various outrages to which the hero is subjected during the course of the four acts, when he is "up against it" good and hard, are as like each other as a row of Japanese dolls. The locomotive, the fire-reel, the buzz-saw, the mine explosion, and the shipwreck, have been worked over and over again. What we need is novelty. And if I might make a suggestion, some new and startling climaxes could be worked up from the modest incidents of our daily life. For there are climaxes in the domestic circle just as distressing as any depicted on the stage. Even when the canvas buzz-saw is advancing on him with all the energy a perspiring stage carpenter can impart to it, the hero does not suffer the agony of apprehension that convulses the soul of the average man when he arrives home at three o'clock in the morning and hears the contemptuous sniff which apprises him that the wife of his bosom is awaiting him at the top of the stairs. Nor does the heroine, when starving to death in the latest black cashmere "Daily Hint from Paris," evince more trepidation than does the average matron, when the leader in her particular brand of "sassiety" drops in and finds her in a cotton wrapper with her store teeth in a tumbler of water and her magnificent chevelure lying on top of the bureau. There are calamities just as soul-harrowing in the domestic circle as in the drama. The trouble is that the playwrights have never taken hold of them in the true spirit of discovery.

We will take as an example one heroic incident that lately happened in this city when a prominent citizen induced a small girl to save her life by jumping from the windowsill of a burning house on to the tails of his ulster, which she accomplished without even breaking his flask. We can easily picture to ourselves how this could be worked up for the stage. The Angel cheeild is backed up on the windowsill with a pound of red fire burning on a tin shovel behind her. The hero comes tearing on from the side scenes. He sees her, and clasps his hand to his forehead. (Heroes always do that. It is a kind of a send-off.) He seizes a handful of clustering locks from his wig and tosses it into the air. It comes down "Tails!" The cheeild must be saved. With a wild wrench he whips off his liver-pad and holds it outstretched in his strong arms. The cheeild jumps and rebounds from it like a half a brick from a book-agent's cheek. Once more she springs; and again he is foiled. With a cry of anguish he hurls the liver-pad at the sneering villain and catches her on his breath. And as she is lowered in safety to the ground we see the quivering body of the villain nailed fast to the blazing ruins by the faithful liver-pad.

There is another point to which I would like to draw attention. And that is the way in which inanimate objects are neglected. We have dogs, geese, chickens and poultry in melodrama. But that is all. I was once acquainted with a gentleman who played a cake of ice in the river scene in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." And the barrel in "Panjandrum" was a most lovable personage off the stage. Many friends of mine have also formed part of the "hoarse gathering murmur" which always arises in the wings when the hero is getting into a remarkably tight place. But these were not strictly inanimate objects. They drew salaries, and wore red neckties on Sundays. What we need is a further extension of the drama from the farmyard to the grocery counter, and the hardware store. And we shall get it. We shall yet see a drama in which the leading comedy part is played by a tin of canned salmon and the heroine is saved from the villain's clutches by a barrel of patent glue. And why should we not? There are many comedians now on the stage who would compare unfavorably from an intellectual standpoint with a tin of canned salmon. And there are heroes beside whose personal charms a barrel of glue would shine as a paragon of pulchritude. A tin of canned salmon would prove far more useful to the heroine when she is lost on the sandy desert, or afloat on the lonely raft in mid-ocean, than a comic Irishman with a Coney Island brogue. If she did not care to tackle it herself she could feed it to the villain and tie him up in so many knots that it would take a traction engine to straighten him out. And the dramatic possibilities of a barrel of glue are simply illimitable. She could use it for sticking to everything from the angel cheeild to the papers proving her to be rightful heiress to the old baronial home. When the villain sprang upon her, hissing out "At last I have you in my pow-er-r-r!" she could paste him to the kitchen stove and go out for a walk. How would the band of Moorish brigands look if she stuck them all to the adjacent rocks by the slack of their loose trousers, while the manly hero went through their pockets? A dab of glue on her windowsill when the murderer was creeping, knife in hand, into her lonely bed-chamber, would compel him to stay there all night or complete his crime in a costume which the management would not stand for even for a moment. And then how useful it would be to help her to adhere to her salary. It is true that they might have to soak the hero in hot water to get him away from her. But then he often richly deserves to be soaked. In every other instance the faithful glue pot could give cards and spades and little casino to the most useful comedian who ever trailed the villain to his lair.

These are only two of the instances in which the use of inanimate objects in the cast would increase the novelty of the drama. But their number could be indefinitely increased. We have long had the wooden actor. Why should we stick at the inanimate tragedian? Herein we have a bright idea for the budding playwrights who have dramatized every book that has a circulation of over ten copies, until the principal value we place on the dictionary is the fact that even the most ambitious of them have never used it as the basis of a romantic play. And we charge nothing for this hint to dramatists. It is an absolutely free graft.—Montreal "Sunday Sun."

The Origin of the Loving Cup.

THE loving cup is very common nowadays, and we see it everywhere. But many years ago there were no such things as these queer three handled affairs, and the following story tells how they first happened to be made:

Once upon a time centuries before us, there lived a great and powerful king, who was extremely fond of hunting. He was one day in a forest pursuing a stag, but it was so fleet and clever that it eluded him and his band of followers, and led them entirely out of their way. After wandering about in a hopeless fashion they finally came upon a little hut, and the king himself dismounted and rapped smartly upon the door.

A young girl answered his knock, and soon showed the men the right path. The king was about to go, when he saw a well near the house, and at the sight of the clear water immediately felt thirsty, and, going back, asked the girl for a drink. Without hesitation she went into the house and came out with an earthen jug filled with the well water. But, instead of offering his royal majesty the handle, as most people would do, she held that herself, and handed him the cup the wrong way.

The king said nothing, thanked the girl, and he and his band soon found their way out of the wood.

But when he reached his palace he determined to reward the girl for giving him the water and at the same time to teach her a lesson in politeness.

Sending to his jeweler, he bade him make a silver cup, with two handles, and deliver it to the young girl, without a word as to whence it came.

Perhaps a month after this the king again hunted in that same forest, sought the hut and asked the girl for another drink of water.

This time she entered the house and came out with a beautiful silver cup, full of the sparkling water. "Now," thought the king, "she has certainly learned a lesson." But never was he more mistaken, for the poor, ignorant girl took a handle in each hand, and for the second time offered her liege lord nothing save the side of the cup.

The king rode away deeply perplexed. He resolved to teach the girl the polite way to hand a cup without directly rebuking her, and many were the hours he spent in cudgelling his brains for some way in which to do it. At last a bright idea struck him, and he sent for his jeweler a second time. "Make me," said he to the man, "a silver cup, heavily chased, and with my royal crest, and put three handles on it." The jeweler, much surprised—for remember, no such thing had ever been heard of up to this time—did as he was told, and soon the mug was finished. As before, the king had it privately sent to the girl who lived in the little hut.

One day not long after this for the third time he rode into that forest, and, taking the now well-known path, soon reached the cottage. Dismounting, he knocked at the door and asked humbly for a drink of clear water.

The girl immediately came out with the beautiful three-handled cup, and, taking two of the handles in her hands, she offered him the third.

So the king rode away well pleased with his strategy and, reaching home, ordered three-handled cups to be made in every sort of ware, and they became so popular that we now have them in all our shops and stores.

An Unfortunate Experiment.

SOME years ago there lived in Turin a physician noted far and wide as a specialist of brain diseases. Men and women came to him from the ends of the earth. With the development of fortune, for his fees were in proportion to his prominence, he cultivated a pleasing taste for those precious relics of antiquity in which millionaires alone are privileged to indulge. He had in his library a collection of costly objects of art. The fame of his treasures was loud in the world's ears with the note of his skill. One day a rich American banker came to consult him about his wife, a confirmed kleptomaniac. His life was a burden to him, following her from store to store, continually guarding her reputation against the encroachment of her fingers. Though it had cost him thousands, his wife knew nothing, suspected nothing of her own weakness. Nor should she ever know if he could prevent it.

"If I brought her here to consult you as a physician," said the afflicted husband, "I fear she would suspect something and it would kill her. If you will permit it I'll bring her to call on you as a collector of antiquities. Do not be disconcerted, however, if during the interview you find her pilfering, slipping your relics and coins into her umbrella or pockets. That is the ailment, and, of course, whatever she takes will be returned to you at once. My references are So and So, bankers." This with much dignity and the production of documents.

The physician made the appointment, and next day the couple came. The doctor brought out his treasures, wonderful coins, antique jewelry, on which he descanted with much graceful learning. Every now and then the lady slipped into her pocket or dropped into her parasol a coin, a jewel, a vase, and as she did so her husband winked at the doctor to draw attention to her theft. When the physician finally gave the signal that he had learned all he required, she had accumulated the rarest of his possessions.

"I'll be back within an hour," said the Chicago banker, "with the things my wife has taken. Poor, poor girl!" he burst out. "Doctor, my fortune, my life are yours if you can but cure her."

Two hours passed, then three, then the interval lengthened to five. The physician, rather alarmed, sent his servant to the American's hotel. No persons of the name were staying there. The police were called in, descriptions given, detectives went forth. They identified the culprits, who had time to make their escape. They were London pickpockets, two thieves whose characters and depredations were notorious all over England.

"Why do you call the fast bicycle rider a scorcher?" "Because he goes at a hot pace, makes pedestrians boiling mad, warms up the police, gets roasted in court, and then thinks the whole thing is a burning shame."—"Tit-Bits."

Guest (impatiently)—Say, waiter, how long have you been employed here? Waiter—'Bout a week, sah. Guest—Oh, is that all! Then I must have given my order to some other waiter.—Chicago "Daily News."

LACROSSE.

A full practice of the Athletics is called for this evening on the Nicholls oval.

The Y.M.C.A. and Athletics will play a practice game on Wednesday night. A good game is looked for as the two teams are about evenly matched.

The Y.M.C.A. play the T.A.S at Lakefield on the 24th for a cup.

The Tecumsehs defeated the Young Torontos at Rosedale by 10 goals to 1.

The players of the Capital Lacrosse Club evidently consider that it is a matter of little importance whether they get into condition for their opening match or not. In spite of the repeated calls from the Executive, the largest number of seniors out has been four, and in all only six senior men have had a practice.

The touring Torontos, who left Toronto for England on Good Friday, will sail for home on Tuesday, having played their last game with Belfast winning out by a score of 12 goals to 3. The score at half time being 3 to 1 for Belfast. The boys have met with great success having won every game played.

At a meeting of the National Amateur Lacrosse Association held in Montreal, the question of forming an intermediate league, under the direction of the Senior League, was taken up, and after some discussion it was decided to defer action until next season. It was decided to hold a match at the close of the championship series, between an Ontario and Quebec team, for the aid of the Beers memorial.

More Men for London.

Although the Dauntless Lacrosse team of Shelburne will not be found doing business at the old stand this year, most of last year's players will be "in the game." Mooney, last year's goal keeper; Pat Kelly and George Bietz of the defence field, and Will O'Brien of the home field, are billed to help London make an attempt for senior championship honors.

Belleville is getting into line again after being out of lacrosse for a good many years. The old Okas, of Belleville had a great name once all through Ontario, and it is to be hoped that the new team will emulate the many successes of their illustrious predecessors. The team is very anxious for an out of the town game on May 24th, and would like to come out to Peterborough, but as the holiday is to be celebrated here on the 24th, it is hardly probable that arrangements to that end could be made. Mr. H. S. Burrell is the manager of the Bellevilles this year and any communications addressed to him in regard to dates will receive prompt attention.

BASEBALL.

The Victorias defeated the Rosedales by a score of 14 to 9 in the triple league series yesterday morning.

To Form a League.

There will be a meeting of the junior baseball teams of the town at the Central Park on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a league among the boys. Each team should be well represented on that evening.

St. John's choir boys defeated the Y.M.C.A. team on the Central Park diamond on Saturday afternoon by a score of 12 to 9 and an innings to spare.

The teams were as follows:—St. John's Allan Campbell c f, Frank Sawers l f, Charlie Roy r f, Reg Deacon s s, Alf. Hodgson 3 b, George Armstrong 2 b, Earl Weller 1 b, H. Sawers and Vernon Moffet battery.

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY
—OR—
The World Lost for Love's Sake

she stammered. "I am better now."

Hearing this the curious crowd moved on. There was no sensation about the affair, then; the pretty young lady had fainted from the heat of the sun. Only the young woman remained who had the sympathetic voice.

"You look very pale; if I can be of any assistance to you I would gladly serve you," she said.

"You are very good," returned Daisy, "I—I should be glad if you would drive home with me, I am a little weak."

So the plainly dressed young lady took her place in the elegant little phaeton beside Daisy, and the pony's head was turned toward the villa.

"You appear to me like one who has had a severe shock," she said quietly, "your hands are still trembling and your face flushes and pales by turns; let me take the reins."

Daisy yielded them up gladly enough.

"Have you ever had a severe, terrible shock that almost took your breath away and made the heart almost break in your bosom?" she asked with almost a moan.

"Yes," returned her companion, "and that is the reason I can tell when another woman is afflicted in the same way. I was picked up for dead in the streets of London; no wound was found upon me, but my heart had been pierced worse than if a dagger had been thrust into it, a man's cruel words had done it, and when I fell fainting, face downward, on the pavement, he turned on his heel and left me lying there without even calling assistance; he wanted me to die, but I lived— lived to hunt him down, and, when I find him, to take a terrible vengeance upon him."

"You have been so kind to me I shall not soon forget you," said Daisy, gratefully, "you must give me your address before we part."

"I have no address, as yet," returned her companion; "I have but just reached the city. I was on my way searching for a boarding place as I crossed the park."

"Will you accept the hospitality of my home until you find a boarding place?" asked Daisy, eagerly, for she had taken a strange fancy to this beautiful young stranger with the sad face and large, dark, dreamy eyes.

In vain the young woman persisted she could not think of trespassing on her hospitality, Daisy would have her remain, little dreaming there was a strange fate in it.

To her sisters, Olive and Hetty, Daisy gave the same explanation she had given the strangers in the park—the sun had caused her to faint, and this young lady had kindly offered to drive home with her.

Mrs. Carriscourt, as she gave her name, was very cordially received by the sisters, and old Farmer Gordon as well.

"Any one who had befriended Daisy had a claim on their hospitality," they declared.

When Daisy found herself alone in her own room, she pondered long and earnestly over the exciting events of the day.

The terrible sword had fallen upon her head, and yet she had not been slain; she had met Harold St. John face to face, and despite his horrible threats, instead of claiming her, when she had swooned, he had beat an ignominious retreat.

Her spirits rose as she thought it over. If he had ever meant to claim her he would have done so than and there.

CHAPTER XXXV.
The Fatal Draught.

The more Daisy thought of the matter, the more firmly she became convinced that Harold St. John was effectually silenced and would trouble her no more.

He had no proof by which he could claim her; no one would believe him in the face of the strange complication of affairs, if she persisted in denying it.

Aleck would stand between her and all scandal, and he would not believe it.

"Why have I lived in such deadly fear so long?" she wondered. "I will from this moment throw off care; I will be my old self again. Yes, the sword fell, and it did not slay me."

A gay, bright, joyous laugh broke from her lips— those lips that were so soon to be uttering pitiful moans.

Olive and Hetty were amazed at the great and sudden change. She was once again the same piquant Daisy as of old— the Daisy they had petted and scolded in the same breath at the old farm.

Squire Gordon was delighted.

"She was only a little despondent," he told Hetty, secretly. "I said everything would come out all right."

"Aleck will scarcely know her, papa, when he returns home," answered Hetty, laughing.

On the third day after that scene in the park, Daisy was out among the roses in the garden, when a letter was handed her.

One glance at the chirography, so bold and dashing, upon the envelope, and, despite all her bravery, her face turned as pale as a snow- drop — she had recognized Harold St. John's writing.

With trembling fingers she tore it open.

"Daisy"— it ran— "You must not think because I left you so unceremoniously three days ago in the park that I have abandoned my intention of claiming you. You might have known me better than that. I will simply explain—well, no, I will not explain until I see you. I will give you one last chance to save a grand expose and spare Alexander Hamilton's name. I will be at the park gate, just back of the villa, at nine Thursday evening. Be prepared to go quietly with me then. If you fail, I will come to the villa and demand from Squire Gordon — Daisy, my wife! I learn that Alexander Hamilton is in Easton. He will be sent for to settle the matter then and there. Au revoir until that time, Daisy, my charming wife!"

No sob, or cry fell from her lips —the breath of the roses seemed to stifle her.

Slowly she turned and entered the house, groping her way to her own room.

"Thursday night— and this is Wednesday," she murmured, hoarsely.

"Marie," she said to her maid, who opened the door for her, "you may leave me. I shall not need your services tonight —I want to be quite alone."

"Oh, my lady, do let me stay with you," the girl pleaded. "You look so white and so strange —even your eyes have a—a —dazed look in them; you are very ill; or are going to be. I am sure there must be something I can do for you."

"There is something you can do for me if you will, Marie," Daisy answered, and her feverishly bright eyes seemed to burn down into the girl's very soul. "You can get me some chloral; but be sure and let no one know."

"But it is so dangerous, my lady; a few drops over the prescribed amount produces death, they say."

"How many drops produce death?" asked Daisy, tremulously.

"I do not exactly know. I can inquire," returned Marie, gazing keenly into the white, desperate face, and noting the eagerness there.

"I will watch her closely," thought Marie. "I do not like the look on her face."

Once before she had been lady's maid in a family where a lovely young girl —a niece —was living, who had hidden herself from the world, refusing to be comforted, because her lover had proven false. She had made the same request of Marie —to fetch her some chloral, and let no one know.

The next morning they found her cold and dead with her little hands folded over her pulseless heart. The doctor said it was a case of heart-disease; but Marie alone knew better. She knew the girl had committed suicide, and that the chloral had been the hapless agent.

"I will watch her," thought Marie, hurrying down to the housekeeper's room where the medicine chest was kept.

She returned in a few moments with a small vial.

"Be careful of it, my lady," she warned.

Ah, how eagerly Daisy clutched it from her hand.

"It will bring me rest and peace," she murmured.

A strange thought came to her. She would not take it now; there was yet a tomorrow for her.

Harold St. John would not come to the villa until nine. Hours before that, when the stars came out and the birds were folding their wings, then —yes, then she would take it.

How beautiful the sun shone on the morrow.

Daisy had not laid her golden head upon her pillow, but sat by the window watching the night wane and the day dawn.

How eagerly she kissed her poor old father and her sisters good morning. How little they knew — they who would have given their life to have saved her —of the terrible doom awaiting her.

The longest day must have an ending.

The sun went down and the night came on all too soon.

At eight Daisy stole away from the little group in the drawing room and went quietly up to her boudoir.

With death- cold hands she fastened the door, then went and knelt down before the easel on which stood a magnificent oil painting of Aleck.

The dark eyes seemed to laugh down into her own, and the mustached lips to smile, and she in so much misery.

She laid her cold cheek against the pulseless canvas with a great tearless sob.

"Good-bye, my love," she moaned. "You will never know how I came and knelt before your [illegible] portrait in my last hour, and cried [illegible] to you. I am going to die, Aleck, before you have heard the story of my folly.

"I gave up the world for love of you, and now my sin is recoiling on my own head. Good-bye, my darling, whom I have loved with a love that was my doom! If the hour ever comes when you forgive me, come and kneel on my tomb, part the long grass, and whisper it to me there. And, oh, my love! I love you so fondly, I shall hear your voice it seems to me, even in my grave!"

She turned from the handsome, debonair, laughing face and bonny dark eyes while she had the strength.

"There is no use in praying," she

HEAD-ACHE

Is only one form of the suffering resulting from a diseased condition of the sensitive womanly organism. The only way to cure the headache is to cure the diseases which cause it.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been the means of curing thousands of women of headache, backache, female weakness and other forms of disease peculiar to women. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures bearing-down pains.

"I think if it were not for your 'Favorite Prescription' I would have been in my grave," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, of Egypt, Plymouth Co., Mass., Box 14. "I had pain all over me, and such a dragging feeling it seemed I could not do my house work. I had to sit down to wash the dishes, even. In the year 1897 I was so sick I did not care to live and prayed many times that God would take me. One day I thought I would write to Dr. Pierce. In a few days I received an answer. I decided to try his medicine, and to-day I am a well woman. I have no headache, no pain at all. I used always to have headaches previous to the monthly period, and such pain that I would roll on the floor in agony. This sometimes would occur every two weeks, and I would be very weak afterward. I was in pain all over. My feet would slip from under me when I would try to go across the room, and I could not walk any distance without being in pain. I took three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and three vials of Doctor Pierce's Pellets, and was completely cured."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets stimulate the liver.

MAN BEFORE BREAKFAST.

More Ill Natured Than Woman, Says an Observant Restaurateur.

"Of course," said an avenue restaurant keeper, "I think my business gives me the best opportunities in the world for judging human nature. My observations have led me to the conclusion that women, as nervous as they are supposed to be, are more good natured than men. The test for this trait comes at breakfast time. Now, I suppose that my customers are about as cheery a lot as frequent any restaurant in the city. A good many of them are newspaper men, who, as a usual thing, take life as it comes without much complaint. If you take them in the evening or late at night, you will find them the most companionable lot imaginable. But let me tell you there is a difference in the morning.

"As friendly as I am with most of the men who come in here, there is not one whom I would care to provoke before he gets his breakfast. Most of the 'kicks' are made concerning the first meal of the day. The waiter is too slow; the steak is too rare; the steak is too well done; the eggs are not fried properly or are boiled too little or too much. But by the time the average man has had a good meal and a cup of hot coffee 'Richard is himself again.'

"Now, with women it is different. I don't know whether it is because they wake up less hungry than men or whether an empty stomach affects their nerves to a less degree, but those who get their breakfast here seldom annoy us with complaints."

Don'ts For Literary Beginners.

Don't tell the editor what your family or friends or literary acquaintances say of your manuscript.

Don't urge the editor to buy your manuscript because you need the money to help you in contributing to the support of your family or in making your way through college.

Don't assume a jaunty, sarcastic or insistent tone with the editor. Don't coyly ask him to "permit this literary dove to nest in your olive tree or else return it to the ark at the above address."

Don't try to temper the severity of his judgment by sending him pressed flowers with your manuscript or to impress him with your literary power and experience by telling him that you "write on the spur of the moment and never correct."

Bear in mind, in short, that the best way to submit a manuscript is simply to submit it and let it speak for itself.—Franklin B. Wiley in Ladies' Home Journal.

Snow In Venice.

"I saw Venice once under unusual circumstances," said a traveler. "At the time of which I speak that sunny, smiling land was wrapped in snow. Our folks were a bit surprised, but the natives were amazed. To the real Venetians snow is a thing they do not know how to deal with. Many persons remain all day in bed indulging in hot drinks and pass their time in doing nothing. The children, to their extreme satisfaction, are not sent to school, as the streets and squares are covered with snow. Those courageous persons who venture abroad only walk at the slowest pace. To cross a bridge is considered hazardous, if not foolhardy. St. Mark's square is entirely deserted. Even the pigeons are invisible."

Mizpah.

How many people know that the monument that Laban and Jacob set up near the borders of Canaan and called "Mizpah," or a lookout, was erected in suspicion rather than love? The literal meaning was this: "The Lord watch between thee and me when we are absent one from the other, and see that you are not up to some new trick as soon as my back is turned."

So when it is inscribed in an engagement ring it might mean, "The Lord watch and see that you do not flirt when we are absent one from the other."

Those who use the text are sometimes wiser than they know.

Strong Even In Death.

A yew tree almost destitute of branches or bark grows abundantly in the Caucasus to a height of from fifty to sixty feet and a diameter of a little over two feet. It grows slowly, but its timber is almost indestructible except by fire. It is considered superior in durability, appearance and toughness to mahogany, which it otherwise somewhat resembles. In some large forests of this tree it is very difficult to distinguish the live trees from the dead ones, the latter being very numerous and said to stand for 100 years after death without exhibiting decay.

Division of Labor.

Helene—How long did you stay in Paris on your trip to France?

Emma—Oh, a week altogether.

Helene—But surely you could not take in everything in such a short time!

Emma—But we did, all the same. You see, there were three of us. Mamma took in the picture galleries, I studied the shops and things, and papa examined the local color in the cafes.

Plump Birdie.

She (after the service)—You dreadful fellow! Why did you smile during the offertory?

He—I couldn't help it. There was Miss Addie Pose singing "Had I the wings of a dove." The mental picture of a 200 pounder trying to fly with a pair of four inch wings was too much for me.

When the first baby howls at night with the colic, the father and mother look reproachfully at each other, as if to say, "You got me into this!"—Atchison Globe.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," Is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. There will doubtless be a large congregation present to hear what the reverend gentleman has to say, as it is believed that some startling matters will be disclosed.

To County Councillors

The Stratford Beacon is publishing extracts from its fyles of 40 years ago. We take the following extract from last week's issue, feeling sure that the members of our several councils will be properly impressed by the commendable enterprise in road building displayed by the residents of the counties mentioned almost half a century ago: The Council of the United Counties of Huron and Bruce have passed a by-law to expend [illegible] on gravel roads in the County of Bruce. Accordingly the rejoicing throughout that country on receipt of the news was on a great scale. Bon-fires were lit and the whole population was enthusiastic. It is believed that the action of our own County Council in regard to gravel roads was instrumental in bringing about this result amongst our neighbors.

In the Examinations of the School of Pharmacy, Messrs. Lou. Best, Walter Alexander and R. McHarry, were successful candidates.

GAS FACTORIES

In People Who Do Not Know How To Select Food and Drink Properly

On the coffee question a lady says: "I used to be so miserable after breakfast that I did not know how to get through the day. Life was a burden to me. When I tried to sleep I was miserable by having horrible dreams, followed by hours of wakefulness. Gas would rise on my stomach, and I would belch almost continually. Then very few weeks I would have a long siege of sick headaches. I tried a list of medicines and physicians without benefit.

Finally I concluded to give up my coffee and tea altogether, and use Postum Coffee. The first cup was a failure. It was wishy-washy, and I offered to give the remainder o fthe package to anyone who would take it.

I noticed later on in one of the advertisements that Postum should be boiled at least 15 minutes to make it good. I asked the cook how she made it, and she said, "Just the same as I did tea, being careful not to let it steep too long."

I read the directions and concluded Postum had not had a fair trial, so we made a new lot and boiled it 15 or 20 minutes. That time it came to the table a different beverage, and was so delicious that we have been using it ever since.

My sick headaches left entirely, as did my sleepless nights, and I am now a different woman." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

LAWN TENNIS.

Special to The Times.

Williamstown, Mass., May 19.—The crack tennis players of Wesleyan, Williams and Amherst are here to-day and will begin to play for the tri-collegiate championship. The tournament will be one of the most successful athletic events that has been pulled off among New England colleges for a long time. It is expected to conclude the tournament to-morrow.

CRICKET.

The combined Peterborough and Lakefield contingent of cricketers who journeyed to Port Hope on Saturday, to do battle with the Trinity College School boys, had a most enjoyable outing, and although they met defeat at the hands of the opposing eleven, returned thoroughly pleased at their exception.

The day was beautiful, the crease excellent, and the cordiality with which they were greeted by Dr. Symonds, and his staff, was entirely in keeping with the well-known hospitality of the T.C.S. authentics.

A Surprising Discovery

You will be surprised in trying Catarrhozone to find how quickly it cures cold in the head. The agreeable, penetrating vapor traverses every air cell and passage of the nose, throat and lung. In one breath it carries instant death to the millions of germs infesting the respiratory organs and breaks up a cold in ten minutes.

A trial will convince you that Catarrhozone is the most potent, satisfactory and pleasant cure for Colds, Catarrh Deafness, Bronchitis, Asthma and Lung Trouble. Complete outfit $1: small size 25c. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co Kingston, Ont.

DR. FORD TO-NIGHT

The Conservative Candidate will Speak in Ashburnham this Eve

Dr. S. P. Ford, the Conservative candidate in East Peterborough, will address the electors of Ashburnham this evening in the Town Hall. There doubtless will be a large attendance, as this is the Doctor's first meeting in this locality. He will be assisted by Mr. J. W. Garvin.

It is understood that Mr. R. F. McWilliams will represent Mr. Wm. Anderson, the Liberal candidate, and will be accorded the usual forty minutes. The chair will be taken at 8 o'clock.

The Sewer to Cereal Works

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—I see that it is proposed to build a sewer to the Cereal Company's works, and use the C.P.R. siding for that purpose. Now, Mr. Editor, let me just say here that if the town has a few thousand dollars to waste, this would be a good way to squander it. The Town Engineer may not know, but I will now tell him that a sewer under the C.P.R. track would not be a success. Almost any schoolboy knows this. You cannot build sewers in "made" ground, on account of the sinkage, which goes on for years, and then gets worse.

Therefore, there must be some other way found of working the oracle. My idea is that a small filtration plant is the only way to overcome the difficulty. This would cost comparatively little, and the expense should be borne partly by the town and partly by the Cereal Company.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, etc.,

RATEPAYER.

CHURCH NOTES

Last night at St. Peter's Cathedral, Pontifical Vespers was celebrated by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, at which Rev. Dr. Teefy, President of St. Michael's College, Toronto, spoke eloquently from the text, "It is expedient to you that I go, for if I go not the Paraclete will not come to you, but if I go, I will send him to you." The church was well crowded and on account of the feast of Pentecost there was special music by the choir.

—There was a celebration of the Holy Communion in All Saint's yesterday morning. The sermons were on "2nd Timothy St. Paul's last Epistle," in the morning, and in the evening on "Holding the Gift of Pentecost." Large congregations were present.

THE ISSUE IN WEST PETERBOROUGH

As the campaign progresses it becomes more probable that the Liberal government is likely to go back to office with a far larger majority behind them. The solid sense of the community appears to be opposed to trifling with practical business interests as is involved in a change of Government for the mere sake of novelty. Such alterations are always unsettling. They involve more or less confusion and disturbance. If there were any really valid and important reason why a change should be made,—if the party in office had shown themselves unworthy of the trust reposed in them—these considerations would not be entitled to much weight. But in a case like the present, where the province has prospered; where all interests are contented and satisfied; where no grievances of any importance remain to be redressed, the people are not likely to disturb conditions which are reasonably satisfactory and give the reins of power into the hands of untried men, who might do as well, and again might not.

Friends of the Government claim that as the day of election approaches the Liberal cause is gathering strength. They also claim that the full and free discussions of the campaign have shown that Conservative contentions, though possibly warranted by the facts in some cases, are not sufficiently weighty and important to warrant the country in depriving the Liberals of their confidence. Only a rabid and unreasoning partizan could accept the view that while one party possesses all the virtues and perfections, the other is the embodiment of all that is evil and corrupt. It is not necessary to regard matters from this view in order to deprecate an unnecessary change in the personnel of the government.

It is quite likely that should Mr. Whitney be able to command a majority he would make a fairly capable and creditable Premier. He has in his following men who could no doubt fill cabinet positions acceptably. But it would be an experiment that many regard as wholly unnecessary. It is claimed that the Liberal administration has been satisfactory; that the Province has prospered under it; that every industry and every interest has been encouraged; that legislation has been of a beneficial and progressive character. This is not saying that the administration is perfect or that there is not room for improvement in some of its methods. But taking things as we find them, it may be admitted the Province has, under Liberal rule, reached a condition of general advancement and prosperity, clearly traceable in many instances to wise legislation, which renders it one of the most favored communities in America. The fact that some flaws can be found, will not, perhaps, influence the electors to risk a change of men and measures, the result of which might be doubtful.

The practical certainty of the success renders the duty of the electors of West Peterborough all the more plain. If we are to retain our influence, if the interests of this important constituency are to be secured and advanced in the future, the people must retain the services of Hon. J. R. Stratton as a leading member of the government, and a powerful influence in the Liberal party. He is in a position to do much more for the advancement of the county than could be done by any private member. It would be a great mistake to send an Opposition to the Legislature. Even if a much abler man than Mr. Miller, if arrayed upon every question against the government of the day would find himself badly handicapped in attempting to push the legitimate claims of his town or county.

Peterborough as a manufacturing and railway centre is deeply interested in a great many matters coming before the House or the Departments. We need the best representative we can get in point of capacity, experience and influence. We cannot expect to have the same weight, to receive the same consideration at the hands of those in power as we have hitherto done if we reject the services of a Cabinet Minister to put in an opponent of the government.

These are no times to gratify a mere whim or caprice, or to lend ourselves to the furtherance of a private ambition or party zeal at the expense of our practical business interests.

GREAT UNREST IN THE CZAR'S DOMAIN

The Czar's Birthday Celebrated Throughout the Russian Empire Yesterday

OMNIOUS CLOUDS ARE DARKENING THE HORIZON

Nothing Talked About But Revolution and Disorder—The Emperor's Burdens Bearing Heavily on His Shoulders

St. Petersburg, May 19.—The Czar's 34th birthday was celebrated throughout the empire yesterday. Te Deums were sung in all the churches; a brilliant court reception was held at the Zarskoie-Selo palace near St. Petersburg, and every city, town and hamlet was ablaze with white, blue and red by day and with illuminations by night.

Despite these outward manifestations of loyalty, however, there is no disguising the state of unrest among the Czar's subjects, and especially among the working people of Central Russia. The alarming progress of the revolutionary agitation forms the main subject of conversation of all classes, especially manufacturers and commercial men. Every day brings fresh reports to the capital of strikes and disorders. First it is an outbreak of students at Kieff, and the fresh disorders in the Poltava and Karjoff provinces, where, according to official reports, not less than 20,000 peasants are participating in riots, and in the pillage and destruction of estates. It is well known that the Czar abandoned his customary Easter visit to Moscow because of the popular unrest in that city.

With such a condition of affairs there is little cause for wonder in the reported unhappiness of the imperial couple. Naturally of a morose and melancholy disposition Nicholas II has had little to lighten the heavy burden of his position since ascending the throne. That he meant well can not be denied. On his 31st birthday, three years ago, he gave evidence of his liberalism by abolishing the system of deportation of convicts to Siberia. A year later he took the initiative in the movement which led to the universal peace conference at The Hague. Those in a position to know inside facts assert that Nicholas II had endeavored constantly to bring about reforms that would better the condition of the masses and remove the chief causes of the popular unrest. In this direction he has ever had the moral support and encouragement of the Czarina, than whom no woman among all the royalties of Europe is more esteemed or beloved.

But at every step he has had to encounter the fierce opposition and all-powerful influence of the reactionary element which has succeeded in putting insurmountable difficulties in the path of every measure of reform. This phase of the situation was strikingly illustrated a few weeks ago by the resignation of General Vannovsky, the Minister of Education, who was appointed to that post after the murder of M. Bogoliepoff. During his term of office Gen. Vannovsky consistently endeavored to redress the legitimate academic grievances of the students and to wean them from revolutionary agitation. But the opposition of the dominant element in governmental affairs thwarted all his reform plans and there was nothing for him to do but to resign his post.

Meanwhile the condition of affairs throughout Russia is going from bad to worse, and there is no predicting what the end will be. The attitude of the workmen toward their employers is openly threatening, in striking contrast to the subservience of a few years ago. A curious feature of the agitation is its anti-foreign character, especially as the movement is partly of foreign origin. The chief part in the arousing of the workmen to a sense of their miserable condition has been played by hundreds of well-educated men who have given up careers in order to live among the people, to teach them to read and write, and to assimilate the doctrines of revolutionary socialism. A more potent influence, however, is the fact that most of the factory hands come into contact with foreign workmen, and hear about the rights and liberties enjoyed by the workmen abroad.

THE ERUPTION OF PELEE AS SEEN FROM NORTH

Graphic Description of the Catastrophe Given by an Eye Witness

Special to The Times.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, May 20.—Monsieur Albert, proprietor of the Lagarrane estate, which is situated 1700 yards northeast of the crater of Pelee, arrived here to-day on the steamship Canada. In an interview he gave a graphic description of the eruption that overwhelmed St. Pierre and destroyed its inhabitants.

About eight o'clock on the morning on May 8 he was in a field on his estate, when he heard a most extraordinary noise, more extraordinary than those heard for several weeks past. It seemed like a hurricane coming toward him. Just previously the air had been very calm, although the sun was obscured by ashes and smoke. At the same moment that he heard the sound he felt a tremendous vortex of air, which he likened to an express train whirling past a station. Immediately he saw trees in a space of 100 yards long and 15 wide hurled to the ground by the unseen force. Then he saw a huge black cloud high in the air travelling rapidly toward St. Pierre. Lagarrane is twelve miles from the city. As the cloud travelled he heard numerous explosions, as if whole fleets of warships were firing a tremendous bombardment. A spur of the hill prevented him seeing what happened at St. Pierre.

He ran to the house for his family; thence he rushed to the seashore, where he boarded a small steamer, and was landed safely at Fort de France.

A detachment of troops, he reports, on Saturday went to St. Pierre and opened the bank vaults. They found bank notes and books uninjured. The soldiers said about 500 corpses were exposed to view, but they estimated between 30,000 and 40,000 were buried in the ruins. M. Albert believed the cloud to have been a species of fire-damp, fully a half mile wide. The large number of male whites that have been killed is accounted for by the fact that when the volcano showed signs of activity numbers of the residents of St. Pierre sent their wives and families to Fort de France, remaining themselves to attend to their business occupations.

Special to the Times.

London, May 20.—The following extract from a letter from Pretoria, is deserving of notice both from the position of the writer and for the light it throws on Lord Methuen's reverse:

"It (the reverse) was indeed an unfortunate affair and unnecessary, for Lord Methuen, with ample warning that he would meet Boers, split his dreadfully scratch pack into two and gather courted disaster. Then, of course, almost all his mounted men consisted of the worst type of irregulars, belonging to no decent self-respecting colonial unit.

He is doing capitally and getting on wonderfully, considering it was a Martini-Henry bullet that broke his thigh. He has had to have pulleys with weights to keep his leg pulled out to prevent its shortening, and Kendal Franks thinks there should not be more than about one inch of shrinkage."

London, May 20.—The Cairo correspondent of the Daily Mail says Turkey has sent troops to occupy the Island of Thasos, in European Turkey, which belongs to the Khedive of Egypt.

It was reported, May 6, from Athens, that the inhabitants of Thasos had rebelled against the collection of vexatious taxes. The Governor was said to have ordered the gendarmes to fire on the demonstrators, with the result that a great number of men, women and children were killed.

Bread riots have broken out at Aleppo, in the northern part of Syria, in consequence of the increase in the price of this food due to the operations of speculators in grain.

German Baptists Meet

Special to The Times.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 20.—It is estimated that the attendance at the annual conference of the German Baptist Brethren in session here has now reached 20,000. The visitors come from all parts of the United States and Canada, and from missions in other lands. To-day the business of the conference will be got well under way. It is evident that the conference is to be of more than usual interest, as a number of important questions are up for definite action. Among these are life insurance and the position of the church in regard to divorce. Heretofore the church has prohibited its members from insuring their lives, but of late years a more liberal sentiment has spread among the younger element and there is now a strong demand for a removal or modification of the prohibition. Another question which is likely to provoke interesting discussion was first raised in the Texas and South Louisiana district. It is an overture urging that the name "Dunker" or "Dunkard" be excluded from publications issued by the Brethren Publishing House.

Vote to Issue U. S. Steel Bonds

Special to The Times.

New York, May 19.—Stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation met today at the offices of the company in Hoboken and ratified a plan of the directors for the issue of $250,000,000 bonds. According to the plans heretofore made public the principal of the new bonds will be payable in sixty years, and redeemable at the pleasure of the corporation at the expiration of ten years, and will bear 5 per cent. interest. The issue is to be offered to preferred stockholders at par, payable $200,000,000 in preferred stock and $50,000,000 in cash.

Big Rally of German Catholics

Oshkosh, Wis., May 19.—It is estimated that not less than 15,000 visitors are attending the biennial state convention of German Catholic Benevolent Societies, in session here. Solemn high mass was celebrated in St. Vincent's church this morning, and in the afternoon the big parade took place.

Gen. Rosecran's Obsequies

Special to The Times.

Washington, D.C., May 17.—The remains of General Rosecrans were reinterred in Arlington Cemetery today with imposing ceremonies. General Rosecrans died in California, and was buried there. Yielding to the request of officers who served with him, including those constituting the Army of the Cumberland, the family consented that the remains should be brought to Washington and interred at Arlington. The President and his Cabinet, a joint committee of Congress, the Loyal Legion and other bodies accompanied the remains to the cemetery. The guard of honor was composed of veterans of the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, better known as the Anderson Cavalry, which was on duty during the civil war for some time as headquarters guard of General Rosecrans. The re-interment was accompanied by impressive services, held at the Pavilion at Arlington.

STEYN NEARLY BLIND BOTHA IS POPULAR

Graphic Description of Some of the Boer Delegates

TRANSVALERS WANT PEACE

But the Orange Free Staters and Cape Colonists are for War

Interesting Letter from Pretoria Dealing with the Personnel of the Boer Leaders

Special to The Times.

London, May 20.—The following letter, dated Pretoria, April 13, gives from a very reliable source a graphic picture of the Boer delegates:

"The Boer peace delegates were all here yesterday, and had a meeting with Lord Kitchener, who handles them extraordinarily well. They all like him, and respect—and fear him to a good extent. What the result of their deliberations were you will soon know: they were abortive; anyway, and tomorrow, having got 'independence off their chests' they will start with Lord Rosebery's clean slate, we hope, and propose something better.

"Steyn is almost totally blind, and is a very shining light among his mean-looking, common satellites, such as De Wet, Hertzog and one or two others. De Wet is a very thick-set, bull-necked individual, with almost determined cast of countenance.

"'Of the Transvaalers our old friend Botha, with Delarey, is the best. Reitz is the leading spirit, while Schalkburger, is a stupid, brainless-looking old owl. Reitz was expected to be troublesome, but the astute Lord Kitchener promptly bagged him as interpreter, and kept him so busy at translating the arguments of both parties that he had no leisure to speak a word for his rather dangerous self."

"Delarey is an honest looking old ruffian, but not at all the fine looking chap usually described. Put him in North India and he would look an undeniable Pathan—if a small one in stature. The Transvaalers undoubtedly mean peace—Orange River Colony war. This afternoon Lord Kitchener entertains the two presidents at tea, and will no doubt feel their pulses pretty accurately. Every one hopes much, but expects little, out of all this."

Paine's Celery Compound

Is The Great Restorer of Health For the Ruler and His Humblest Subject

Sickness, disease and suffering respect neither ruler nor subject. The noted and high-born have their trials and physical sufferings like those in humbler stations. Social standing and wealth cannot bar the progress of disease when the common rules of health are violated.

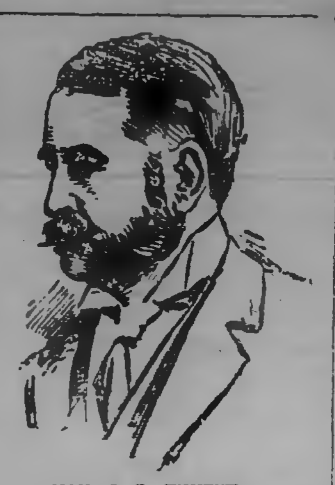
Impure blood and weak nerves are responsible for many of the common diseases of life. The experienced physician will tell you that men and women with pure, clean coursing blood and well braced nerves, can never become victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, liver troubles, debility, headaches or sleeplessness.

It follows, therefore, that sufferers from any of the ailments referred to should at once take proper measures to cleanse the blood and feed the weak nervous system with proper nourishment.

For the happy accomplishment of this important work, Paine's Celery Compound is the only safe agent; the one great specific; the only security against deadly disease and death. During these spring days, Paine's Celery Compound guarantees a perfect regularity of the bowels, healthy appetite, sound sleep, good digestion, pure blood, strong nerves and clear brain, all of which mean full and robust health.

Mr. B. Hutchins, one of the most prominent real estate men in Montreal, says: "About five years ago I wrote you a letter acknowledging the wonderful effect of your Paine's Celery Compound had upon me after I had given it a fair trial; that it cured me entirely of neuralgia in the head from which I had suffered most fearfully for over fifty years, and also so that it cured me of rheumatism in my limbs. In fact it removed every pain in my body and made me feel 25 years younger. I have not had a return of my old complaint, and therefore have to confirm all the statements I have ever made respecting your Compound."

DR. FORD'S MEETING IN ASHBURNHAM LAST NIGHT



HON. J. P. WHITNEY.
Conservative Leader.

The Ashburnham Electors Hear Conservative Candidate

The Town Hall is Crowded to the Doors

Eloquent Address by Dr. Ford and Mr. R. F. McWilliams

The meeting last night in Ashburnham was a decided success, so far as attendance was concerned, the large Town Hall being crowded to the doors. Dr. Ford, the Conservative Candidate, met with a rousing reception, and the meeting appeared to be largely in his favour. The doctor is a fluent speaker, and should he be elected, will make himself felt in the House

Reeve Smith made a very capable chairman and saw that the government's able young advocate, Mr. R. F. McWilliams was accorded fair play.

THE CANDIDATE.

Dr. Ford, an old-time favorite with Conservative electors, was enthusiastically received and in his preliminary remarks paid a passing tribute to chairman, Reeve Smith, whom he was proud to number amongst his many faithful supporters, at the last Provincial election his opponents had predicted that he would be so deeply buried that any further political resurrection on his part would be out of the question, but he was exceedingly happy to falsify that prophecy by his appearance once again before an intelligent electorate of Ashburnham in the cause of Whitney and honest government (applause). One important point urged against him in the rural riding was that he was not a farmer like his opponent, Mr. Anderson, but after all what is there in this argument? Men are not sent to Parliament to teach farming, but to frame laws suitable to each and every interest of the country. Therefore it is of vital importance that a member should have a general knowledge of the many measures likely to be introduced either at the Provincial or the Dominion Legislatures (applause). In this respect the speaker could not for one moment see what advantage Mr. Anderson (a farmer) could possibly have over him (a physician) in representing the riding of Peterborough. While admitting Mr. Anderson's experience in municipal government, the doctor claimed a little credit in this direction also. For thirty years he had been a member of the Norwood Board of Education, acting as chairman of the Board and on the Finance Committee, and no man can act in such capacities without acquiring considerable knowledge of municipal law. He therefore ventured to claim as good a grinding in this respect as his esteemed opponent. Continuing, the speaker could not see that the government had accomplished much for agriculture any way; session after session they had been urged to appoint a Standing committee on agriculture, and it was only the year before last that one was appointed. Then of so little importance was this committee held to be that during last session it met but twice.

Turning to the Prohibition cause Dr. Ford said Mr. Anderson is a temperance man, and so am I. During the 38 years I have been practicing medicine in Norwood I have never kept liquor in my office nor carried it in my satchel; I have prescribed it occasionally when necessary and do not deny its medicinal properties; but I do believe that thousands of drunkards owe their downfall to an indiscriminate prescribing of liquor. I have always been a loyal supporter of the Conservative party, but I owe allegiance to my conscience alone, and I have never once been asked by a Tory to bury my temperance conscience or stultify my principles in this respect. The man who gets into difficulty on this question is he who advocates a Prohibition Bill to satisfy the Temperance party and next introduces a Referendum in support of the Liquor Party (applause). Continuing the speaker challenged any one to show one sentence in which Mr. Whitney opposed Prohibition in its true sense, or one sentence from Mr. Ross showing that he, the Premier, is a true advocate of Prohibition. He characterized the Bill as not being a prohibitory one, inasmuch as it did not affect the manufacture of liquor, but simply its being retailed. It is not as good as the License Act by any means, and it is unfair, unjust and unconstitutional. The Referendum is subversive of the principle of government by majority; it stuffs the ballot box inasmuch as it already counts 212,500 votes against it, and it is opposed to the secrecy of the ballot.

As to enforcing Prohibition, it is not, argued the doctor, public opinion which can do that, but official opinion; and it can never be enforced, he contended, because official opinion is against it. For example, public opinion is not very hard on smuggling, but the law is rigidly enforced because judicial opinion favors the act. The same principle applies to the fishing laws which the public are not at all adverse to transgressing (laughter).

Dr. Ford next urged that there are many reasons for a change of government. Thirty one years is too long for any one government to be in power and he quoted Liberal opinion to show that frequent changes are necessary for a healthy condition of public affairs. Any party in power for 31 years get the idea that they are divinely appointed and in time develop into masters instead of servants of the public. Then the demands being made on the Dominion Government by the Provinces in the way of railway subsidies, etc., are growing to gigantic proportions. Quebec is asking for 30 mil-

NEW ELECTION LAWS

Stringent Laws to Prevent Corruption at Elections

The Times has been asked to publish the election laws, regarding the buying of votes and other corrupt acts. It will be seen that the government has passed legislation that makes offence against its provisions a very serious matter. Here are the principal features of the Act as amended at the last session:

1. The penalty for undue influence has been increased from six months' imprisonment to one years' imprisonment.

2. For personation the penalty has been increased from $200 to $400, and the term of imprisonment from six months to one year.

3. For voting more than once the term of imprisonment has been increased from three months to six months.

4. For falsifying or altering lists of voters or polling books by a returning officer the term of imprisonment has been increased from six to twelve months.

5. For tampering with the ballot boxes by (a) a returning officer, the term of imprisonment was increased from two years to three years, and (b) by any other person, from six months to one year.

6. For unlawfully destroying or injuring documents, or aiding or abetting therein, besides a penalty of $2,000, the term of imprisonment was increased from six months to one year.

OVER THE RIVER

Items of Interest Transpiring in and Around Ashburnham

—Ashburnham is sharing the general prosperity enjoyed by the town.

—Quite a number of new houses are going up in the village.

—Politics seem to be the only matters discussed. Dr. Ford's big meeting last night, and Mr. Anderson's equally large one to-night will stiffen the excitement and interest.

—Our worthy Mayor is a hot supporter of Dr. Ford's. Indeed if he has his way the village will give the doctor at least one hundred and fifty majority.

—Sometime during Sunday night the grocery store of Mr. John Kerr was entered and a quantity of canned goods and groceries stolen therefrom. An entrance was obtained to the premises by breaking the window in the door of the store. Nothing was taken from the till. There is as yet no clue.

—Much interest is being taken in the lift lock, crowds coming over to see it daily.

The rumor that Councillor Sheridan and Mr. Allan McCarty have signed a protocol, with a view to eternal peace, is denied.

—Calcutt's lager is having a tremendous run these days. The Company has a large and growing trade, on account of the pureness of the beverage.

—Mr. Billy Collins, one of our leading and most progressive merchants, reports a material increase in business this year over last year.

CANADA'S POSITION

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier fails to represent the majority in the Dominion in regard to imperial sentiment, he will, at all events, from the spectacular point of view, do credit to the fresh young nation over the sea. He has the classic look; he has that penetrating eloquence which thrills all who hear it; he has grace and wit and intellectual nimbleness; and the French qualities which mark him will be notable in one who represents a country which is British in feeling and thought and aspiration. Perhaps, too, a change will come over the spirit of his dream when he reaches London. He may discover that it is the will of this country that the question of imperialism should be thoroughly discussed, and he may feel drawn to consider the way in which Canada should contribute to the maintenance of the Empire. Certainly this will be the question which will be uppermost in the minds of the statesmen at the meeting which is to take place after the coronation, and Canada, the first of the great Commonwealths under the British flag, cannot afford to be indifferent to a problem with which her own national existence is bound up.

WEATHER NOTES

Probs. To-day Fair and warm, showers and thunderstorms during the night.

Very heavy thunderstorms have occurred in many portions of the Northwest, and there were showers and thunderstorms during the night in Southwestern Ontario.

TOBACCO, LIQUOR AND DRUGS

Dr. McTaggart's Tobacco remedy removes all desire for the weed in a few weeks. A vegetable medicine, and only requires touching the tongue with it occasionally. Price $2.

Simply marvellous are the results from taking his remedy for the liquor, morphine and other drug habits. Is a safe and inexpensive home treatment; no hypodermic injections; no publicity; no loss of time from business, and a certainty of cure.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Times supports Mr. Stratton because he is the best man for the office.

• • • •

Vote for Stratton and ensure the future progress and prosperity of Peterborough.

• • • •

Dr. Ford's meeting in Ashburnham last night was attended by very many from this side of the water.

• • • •

The amount of attention being paid the politicians every day by this great family journal, helps to increase their ardour.

• • • •

Those who heard Dr. Ford last night were not disappointed in him. He is a fluent speaker, and should he be elected will be a strong man in the House.

• • • •

The municipal telephone is growing. By a vote of 279 to 7 Fort William has adopted it, and Port Arthur has done the same by a vote of 177 to 14.

• • • •

Red-letter days will be plentiful toward the end of this month. Empire day, May 23; Victoria Day, May 24; and Ontario's election day, May 29.

• • • •

When Lord Kitchener rounded up eight hundred Boers he must have torn a few pages off the list of burghers entitled to vote on the question of peace or war.

• • • •

What an army costs may be suggested to Canadians by the item in the Dominion Supplementary Estimates of $815,000 for the Halifax garrison regiment. Some people will say, "See what militarism would cost." Others will say "Guess what we let Britain pay for us."

• • • •

Mr. Garvin evidently squatted himself down on a bent pin the other night, when he referred to so many Tory voters having been brought into the Grit camp at one dollar per head. According to Mr. Garvin, Tory voters are not an expensive luxury.

SIR WILFRID MUST CHANGE

Sir Wilfrid Laurier says he has not changed his mind in regard to the question of imperial defence, by which we are to understand that the Premier is a provincialist, who is unable to appreciate the meaning of a great British empire, compacted together of all the parts mutually confederated for the maintenance of the greatest nation on earth. In other words, Sir Wilfrid is not able to see beyond the boundary wall of the province of Quebec. He would have no objection to better trade relations with the Mother Country, but he would not have the Dominion bearing any of the cost of the maintenance of the British navy which protects our commerce and guarantees us independence. He would not enter into any arrangement or confederation. He would not subscribe to a pact between Great Britain and the colonies, a pact which would imply responsibility on the part of the Dominion. He will not have the imperialistic idea. Canada is a commercial country which has nothing to do with militarism. The Dominion must not be burdened as other countries are burdened by an army, which takes the bread out of the mouth of industrialism. And so we shall go on, using all the advantages we can secure from England, in a commercial way, accepting the protection which she offers us in her navy, but caring nothing for the imperial idea, refusing to share in it, and meanly accepting a service and a protection which we will not pay. But this is exactly what we cannot do much longer. British statesmen have already suggested that the colonies should make contribution for Imperial defence. And if that contribution be withheld we shall probably have to face a grave situation—a situation in which we would find ourselves perfectly helpless. We do not wish for annexation. Independence is a dream, which may possibly (in the long lapse of time) become a reality. It is clear that we must enter into closer Imperial relations if we are to be guaranteed that independence which has enabled us, without fear, to work out our destiny. The whole country must teach Sir Wilfrid Laurier to change his mind.

DR. FORD'S MEETING

tions, Nova Scotia for between 10 and 11 millions, and Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick are both seeking increasing subsidies. And as Ontario pays 60 per cent of the taxes of the Dominion, it is important that its government should not be in too close sympathy with that at Ottawa. After a brief reference to the election scandals at West Elgin and elsewhere the speaker next went into a strong defence of Mr. Whitney's policy, which he argued he was justified in not introducing the House. An Opposition's function in Parliament is to criticise and closely watch all measures introduced by the government. Mr. Whitney promises law reform whereby the poor man shall be assured of justice at the hands of wealthy corporations. He will introduce an act providing that there shall be only one appeal from the trial judge (applause). Then as to registration, he will either abolish the present unjust Registration Act which applies only to cities and town, or else extend it to the rural districts (renewed applause). Turning to the expenditure of colonization appropriations the doctor declared that 60 per cent of the same went into the pocket of bosses and overseers, and Mr. Whitney proposes that all monies for road purposes shall be expended by the Reeves and Councils of the municipalities. The leader of the Opposition does not object to railway subsidies, but takes exception to such bills being brought into the House in the dying hours of the session, and voted on without proper information being furnished as to the interested company's ability to construct the feasibility of the scheme, freight charges, etc. When I interviewed Mr. Whitney regarding the Norwood Apsley Railway, he would not discuss the matter until I furnished him with detailed information as to the scheme. But when satisfied that the scheme was a laudable one he replied that he was prepared to give it his loyal support. Mr. Whitney proposes that the government shall receive stock in any railway, subsidized equivalent to the subsidy granted, in order to have some control over the freight. He will also reduce the number of government officials and see that the work done by them is commensurate with the pay therefore (applause)

Dr. Ford here went into the ballot system, which he characterized as a lash over the people. Mr. Whitney, he said, promises an absolutely secret ballot, such as that of great Britain and the Dominion whereby a man can vote according to the dictates of his conscience without fear of the results. In the matter of grants toward agriculture, the speaker did not think $40,000 per annum sufficient. The Conservatives proposed to increase this amount so that instead of having but one Agricultural College at Guelph we will have five or six throughout the Province. Dr. Ford had a poor opinion of Ontario's Educational system, by which children had to fritter away many hours studying subjects totally unnecessary unless they enter the high schools and colleges; and he claimed that 95 per cent. never acquire any more than a public school education. As to the pulp concessions in New Ontario, Mr. Whitney claims that they should be put up at auction to the highest bidder, when we should have no more difficulty in disposing of them than experienced in Quebec. It is time enough to give them away when they can't be sold.

Continuing, the doctor supported Mr. Whitney in opposing a curtailing of the power of municipalities to tax corporations in favor of a like taxation on the part of the government, and condemned the latter action in appropriating to themselves so large a share of the license fund which would have otherwise gone toward keeping up the roads. In conclusion, the eloquent doctor said "you are the men to say to this man Ross, go, and he goeth, and to Whitney, come, and he cometh." I ask you on the 29th of May to

Ring out the old
And Ring in the new;
Ring out the false
And Ring in the True.

Dr. Ford resumed his seat amid prolonged applause.

MR. R. F. MC.WILLIAMS

Was the next speaker, and in a very able speech of three quarters of an hours' duration, defended the governments' policy. Taking up the Prohibition measure, he emphatically asserted that the Candidate, (Dr. Ford) and his leader (Mr. Whitney) flatly contradicted each other. The former is a pronounced advocate of prohibition while the latter in no uncertain tones expresses his unqualified opposition to the measure. The government was prepared to go to the fullest extent in the power of the Province in prohibiting the sale of liquor, but the effect of Prohibition cannot be assured unless there is behind the government a sufficient majority to enforce the Act. There must be enough people who will exercise their franchise to back the government up on any such measure. To turn them out if they do not do their part of the agreement.

Turning to the Plebescite in 1894 in which a majority was given for prohibition Sir. Wm. Meredith had in an expression of opinion endorsed the government's action in this respect. He had distinctly announced that in such a measure as this affecting the interests of the community, it was to the duty of the government before it become law to again submit the question to the people so that they should have an opportunity of saying by ballot yea or nay.

Turning to Dr. Ford's position the speaker argued that in political issues Dr. Ford claims to be a supporter of the leader of the opposition, but in moral measures, etc., he declared that he only owed allegiance to his conscience, but his duty to the electors on the public platform was that he should definitely state how that conscience would influence his actions on the floor of the house should he be elected. Should the Dr. be elected it would be a case of a Tory prohibitionist supporting a Tory anti-prohibitionist.

Continuing Mr. McWilliams ridiculed the cry that it was "time for a change." He asked how many Tories voted against Sir Jno. A. McDonald when he had been in power for 13 years. Not one. In 1896 Liberal Conservatives recognized that it was time for a change at Ottawa simply because the Conservative leaders were not worthy of support after Sir Jno. A. McDonald's death. This, he urged, was not the case of the Provincial Government. This cry could not justly be applied to the Provincial Government until the electorate had proved that fraud and corruption existed.

Turning to election frauds recently exposed this able advocate of the government, declared that not one member of the Liberal party had defended what was done in West Elgin. He emphasized the fact that Dr. Ford while condemning the Liberal party for corrupt election practices neglected to tell his audience of like practices indulged in by the Torries.

As to Dr. Ford's defence of his leader Mr. Whitney for not introducing his policy on the floor at the house, Mr. McWilliams claimed that the legislature was the place to advocate a policy and not in the public press pending an election.

A Voice:—"Mr. Ross would have stolen his policy." (laughter). Continuing Mr. McWilliams submitted That the Laurier Government had brought out their policy three years before the electors had a chance of expressing their opinion on it, and Sir. Jno. A. McDonald had produced his two years before the end of the session. As to registration the speaker explained that the present system was simply an experiment. Should it prove effective in cities and towns the same privileges would be allowed rural voters.

The speaker here denied the misappropriation of funds for colonization roads and asserted that foremen on such work received but $1,25 per day, the men under them getting $1,00 per day; in some cases foremen were paid as high as $1,50 per day.

In conclusion, Mr. McWilliams rediculed the charge that the cost of school books was abnormally high in support of which he quoted Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's statement in yesterday's Toronto Globe, that the cost of school books for the city of Toronto, including orignal expenses amounted to but 10 4-5 cents per child each year. As to the claim of the Torries that politics and education should be kept seperate he knew a certain conservative who not many years ago got into serious trouble through mixing up politics and education (laughter).

MR. J. W. GARVIN.

This gentleman spoke for one hour, and in the course of an excellent address in which he handled the issues before the public in a very able manner he condemned the Premier for changing the date of voting on the Referendum from November 14th to December 6th, a time when inclement weather will probably deter many voters from going to the polls. Then the hon. gentleman had been asked to have the poll on this Referendum taken the same day as the municipal elections, and by his refusal will put the Province to an additional expenditure of $90,000. He did not think a representative vote possible on such a question when taken on a separate day, as history showed that not more than 20 per cent. have ever voted on any moral question. As to New Ontario, he claimed that the position around Sault Ste Marie so recently developed was not at any time in dispute between the Dominion and the Ontario Government. The territory over which so much trouble arose, lies where the river runs into James Bay and Hudson Bay, and in the neighborhood of Port Arthur. He maintained that the Conservatives have always supported the government in a maintenance of Ontario's rights. He took exception to the concessions of pulp wood which should have been sold to the highest bidders and not placed in the hands of middlemen. He arraigned the government for its action in granting a million and a half acres of land to the Clergue concern and maintained that the industries at Sault Ste. Marie had begun to develop before that time.

Mr. Garvin argued that the present educational system is being used for political purposes. He was strongly opposed to the manufacture of school books being monopolized by two firms and could not understand why Ontario's readers should cost 30 cents each when a better reader was produced in Ireland for $ 1.2 cents.

In conclusion, the speaker declared that the monies for Colonization roads had been misappropriated, and he censured the government for not rigorously punishing political corruptionists.

The meeting closed with cheers for the candidate the speakers, and "God Save the King."

Hiring a Servant in Norway.

THE problem of domestic service, which is always a present and insistent one to the housekeeper in this country, in Norway has been settled to the apparent satisfaction both of mistress and of maid. One country, however, can seldom adopt with success the customs of another. How far the Norwegian servant system would suit our tastes may be judged to some extent by an examination of the plan pursued in Norway.

In places like Bergen, Christiania, and other large cities, the municipal government takes entire charge of the matter. There is a central employment bureau under municipal control, and twice each year—once in summer and once in winter—dissatisfied servants can look out for a new master and mistress, and dissatisfied employers can seek to improve their service. The bureau is opened for one week, and the mistress who wants a maid can go to it, fill in a form stating her requirements and the wages she is willing to pay, and then leave all the rest to the bureau.

Her card is placed on file, and the position she offers is posted in a conspicuous place on a blackboard. Men and women servants in want of work examine these cards, and when they decide upon applying for any position, submit their recommendations to the bureau for examination. If these are satisfactory, the applicant receives a card to the prospective employer, available for one day only.

Should the lady hire the servant, she fills up the card with a list of the duties, wages and terms of service agreed upon, and returns it to the bureau, where it is carefully filed for future reference if necessary.

If the applicant does not suit, the card is returned with "not satisfactory," which indicates that other applicants may be sent.

No matter how great the emergency, the new mistress cannot expect her maid for one week, for the girl must give her present employer that length of time to fill her place.

The law protects alike the employer and the employed. The rights of the maid include a comfortable room and bed, good and wholesome food, and prompt and regular payment of wages. In return, she must perform her duties faithfully, and be strictly honest, obedient and respectful during her term of service.

Should either party fail to comply with these requirements, complaint must be made to a magistrate, who investigates the charges and renders a decision. The offended servant or the offended mistress cannot settle the difficulty by parting company. No matter how tired of the bargain mistress or maid may become, they cannot terminate it until the time agreed upon, except by permission of the magistrate. If a servant leaves without the knowledge of her mistress, she is subject to arrest, fine and imprisonment. On the other hand, the servant's wages are a first lien upon the property of the master or mistress.

The municipalities see that the law is strictly enforced with regard to servants, and themselves abide by it in their character of employers of labor.

The Scotch Result.

WILLIAM INGLIS has a story which illustrates what he calls "the Scotch result." He told it to the Aldine Association the other night, together with several stories of his experiences in France, when he was an art student in Paris. Mr. Inglis was a visitor at a Scotch yacht club on the Clyde during a regatta week, and one night he was called on for a story. Knowing, he says, from books and experience, the density of Scotchmen to American jokes, he told the broadest, most pointed story he could think of. It was the old chestnut of the inebriated Irishman, who met a policeman and asked him the time.

"'Three o'clock,' said the policeman.

"'Oi didn't hear,' said the Irishman.

"'Three o'clock!' the bobby yelled.

"'Shure, Oi didn't hear that, either.'

"The policeman then hit him three whacks on the head with his club. 'Did you hear that?' he asked.

"'Shure,' said Pat, 'Oi heard that, and Oi do be fur thinkin' it's domn glad Oi am that Oi didn't mate ye at twilve.'"

There was not a ripple of appreciation on the rows of Scotch faces before him, said Mr. Inglis. They, one and all, were blank, and slowly each Scotchman drained his whiskey to hide the fact.

"Suddenly," said Mr. Inglis, "I saw an old Scotchman in the far corner break into a smile. Slowly he removed his pipe from his mouth and blew out a cloud of smoke. 'Hoot, mon,' he said, 'but ye canna blame the policemon, for a' that. It do be a wee bit hard to be asked the same question three times.'

"That is what I call the Scotch result," Mr. Inglis concluded.

The violets will be blue,
And flannelled fools will want to know,

Must be Deadly.

Attention has been called, says a recent issue of The Speaker, to the mysterious plan of warfare invented by Admiral Cochrane, tenth Earl of Dundonald (grandfather of the present Lord Dundonald, our new G.O.C.), early in the last century, which, it was claimed, would result in the absolute annihilation of an enemy. Dundonald himself believed that if his plan was once put into effect it would make war impossible for the future, and there seem to have been some grounds for this belief, although the secret has never yet been divulged. George IV., when Regent, appointed a secret committee to consider it. The committee reported that the method would be irresistible and infallible, but shrank from recommending its adoption. Forty years later a commission was again appointed to consider it. They reported against it on the grounds that if any experiments were made the secret would be at the command of every nation, and also that it would not accord with the feelings and principles of civilized warfare. Twice during the Crimean war Dundonald urged his plan upon the Government. The second time he offered to reduce Sebastopol by his invention, but the War Office laid down stipulations which he would not accept, and the secret remains a secret still. The present Earl of Dundonald, besides being a successful cavalry leader and the possessor of one of the reputations made in the present war, is also an inventor. It would be interesting to know whether he is in possession of his grandfather's secret or whether that secret died with its discoverer.

A good story is told in a musical paper of the Principal of a well-known colonial academy of music. He was much pestered with letters from young composers, asking his advice. On one occasion he received a letter from a country organist asking in which of two ways he should write a certain musical passage. The professor, being a blunt man, wrote back on a postcard, "It doesn't matter a ——." His offended correspondent sent the postcard to the Academy Board, who sat in solemn conclave on it, and wrote to the Principal for an explanation. He answered thus: "Dear Sirs,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter. I have considered the matter in all its bearings, and it really doesn't matter a ——. Yours, etc."—London Globe.

WEEDS AND FLOWERS.

SERMON BY
GEORGE H. HEPWORTH.

Stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong.—1 Corinthians, xvi., 13.

I have a neighbor in the country who has a garden which he treats in a very peculiar way. His theory is that all forces of nature are good-natured, and that all products of nature should be encouraged. Whatever is natural, he tells me, is admirable. A weed is just as natural as a rose and has just as clear a right to flourish. It is, therefore, unfair to discriminate against the weed by pulling it up and destroying its life.

Wishing to see how his theory worked in practice, I wandered about his enclosure and found a curious state of affairs. The weeds were in a more flourishing condition than the roses; in fact, they had taken possession of the ground and dominated it to such an extent that the flowers had well-nigh given up the struggle for existence, and were on the verge of despair. I vainly tried to convince my neighbor that if he wanted flowers he must pull up the weeds, for the two do not get on well together. They can't be made to harmonize, because weeds are greedy and refuse to give flowers a chance.

My neighbor has another peculiarity. He carries his theory into the education of his boy. All natural impulses are good impulses, he tells me, and it is not right to give a child a bias toward this or that standard. Let him show himself just as he is, giving perfectly free vent to his good and bad qualities of character, and by and bye he will achieve a well-rounded and well-balanced soul. It is the weed theory transferred to human nature, and so far as my observation of the boy goes it works very badly. I rather fear that later on that father's heart will be filled with regrets.

You cannot build a house without a plan. If you attempt to do so you will have a curious combination, whose inconvenience is only equalled by its ugliness. A house without a plan is not worth having. It is not true that all natural impulses are good, for some impulses, when gratified, produce unmixed evil. Not everything that is is right, for some things are wholly wrong and must be held in check at any cost. If you give the weeds as fair a chance as the flowers the time will come when the flowers will die and nothing but the weeds will be left. It is just as necessary to pull up certain natural qualities as to pull up weeds, and unless you do so you will find yourself without any character at all.

There is a stern and awful truth in the injunction to pluck your eye out if it offends you. It is a bold figure, and startling, but it has a profound meaning. If, for instance, you give free rein to your selfishness it will grow apace to rule and ruin. It will creep over your soul like a smouldering fire on the prairie, and burn the life out of everything as it goes. You must treat it as you would a weed, and without any compunction tear it up and hurl it as far from you as possible. And if you have a quick or an ill temper, it is necessary to subdue it if you would have peace or happiness. Your very nature must be conquered, no matter how hard the fight may be. It must be caught, harnessed, bitted, tamed and taught that you are its master and will be obeyed.

You are simply a bundle of possibilities in the beginning, and if you allow them full swing you will become a mass of contradictions. Your business as an immortal soul is to look at all your tendencies, good and bad, squarely in the face, and then set to work to annihilate some of them, to encourage others, and, with a definite purpose in view, to give yourself the shape of honest and virile manhood. This is not an easy, but it is a glorious, task, and it ends in the victory over self, the sublime mastery which brings self-respect and that dignity which comes with poise and conscience.

The object of religion is to teach you that this is the best and noblest thing to do, and that it is the only thing which it will pay you to do. That struggle is worth your while, for when you find yourself well in hand you will possess that quiet kind of power which blesses you and the whole world alike. This life gives you that sort of discipline, and when the lesson is learned you will be ready for any other life that may come to you. Earth will become a stepping-stone to heaven, for a whole man is fitted for any world in God's universe. Plant your garden with flowers and then see that weeds do not interfere with their growth.

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW WALL PAPER STORE,

We have decided to embark in the Wall Paper business, and ask our friends and the public to call and inspect our stock and prices

LIVING WITH IT

You must live with your pictures, books, wall paper and furniture. Therefore, have them to please you, particularly the wall paper, for it occupies more space in your range of walls than anything else.

In the newwall papers we have to show you there are to be found particularly pleasing patterns—such as will brighten your walls and delight all who see them.

WITH PRIDE.

You may point with pride to your selection of any of the new patterns in wall paper we show you. They are in color, design and texture the correct thing and cannot be equaled by any other house here. They represent the new schools of design and show a delightful background as well as decorative foregrounds distinctive new.

WELL NAMED.

Our new wall papers are the kind which require no pictures upon the walls. They are art papers, pictures in themselves, and very beautiful, but abounding, too, in those light and delicate tones associated with boudoirs, parlor and bed rooms.

THE CROWNING POINT

The floor may be carpeted, draperies may be abundant and beautiful, but without a beautiful background, the effect is very poor. The crowning point in the decoration scheme is reached in the wall coverings. The beginning and the end our wall papers are fit for royal homes.

A NOTABLE PROCESSION

A procession noteworthy and beautiful is that of our new wall papers. They are unrolled to hundreds of admirers, and we hope to count you among them. The wall papers are distinctive, interesting and beautiful. They are the correct thing!

Dr. Chaillu's Animals.

In a long review of Paul Du Chaillu's "The World of the Great Forest," The Spectator, London, declares the book's only fault is the failure to supply all the details the reader wants to know about its furred and feathered heroes and heroines.

"Do the hippopotami of the West Coast river really go across country for a swim in the Atlantic on moonlight nights?" asks The Spectator. "Where is the 'land of plenty' to which the monkeys migrate? What are the fish which regularly travel up the rivers from the sea in the dry season to spawn? Where is the place where the forest eagles cross that great continent to rear their young? These questions are among many suggested by the book.

"The description of the bathing of the 'hippo' 'trippers,' from their cautious entry into the sea to their return at 4 a.m., 'when each family went back to its shoal,' hardly bears quoting, but the idea is novel and amusing. The illustrations of the life of these creatures and of their seaside party by Mr. Gleeson are really admirable.

"The native names of most animals are short. An exception is that of the great forest eagle, the monkey-eater. It is one of the crested hawk-eagles, of which the native name is 'guanionien.' The difficulties of these birds' life when monkeys are scarce; their power of soaring to such vast heights as to be invisible to the monkeys, and of dropping down from the blue, whence their keen eyes see the monkeys on the tree-tops, of their hovering over the tops of certain trees on which fruit grows which the monkeys will probably come to gather—are all fresh and vivid."

A Canadian Herd Record.

The following letter is published by Hoard's Dairyman:—

Enclosed you will find a brief report of our dairy of twelve cows for the year 1901:—

No. lbs. milk for year..........	62,590
No. lbs. cream from same......	8,380
No. lbs. skim milk	54,026
Cream was shipped to Montreal and averaged me about 78 cents a gallon of 10 lbs., or.	$670.80
54,026 lbs. skim milk, 20 cents..	108.07
Total...	$778.87
Average milk per cow..........	5,216 lbs.
Average money per cow	$64.90
Average of milk per hundred lbs.	$1.24¼

You will see that I value the skim milk at 20 cents per hundred. I consider it worth this to me to feed at home. My cows are grade Durhams and Jerseys. We have a silo; have used it seven years, and consider it the cheapest feed we can raise here. Had about four acres last season, and had 65 double loads to put in silo. Thought we had nearly 60 tons. Am feeding it twice a day in winter, and find our cows do just as well. I have water in stable. Cows have only been out once this winter. Stable is well lighted, and has a ventilator in it. Cellar under stable, and in this way think we save the liquid manure.

Mainly About People.

Dr. Parr, on meeting Lord Chancellor Erskine, with whom he was friendly, once said: "Erskine, I mean to write your epitaph when you die." "Doctor," answered the great lawyer, "it is almost a temptation to commit suicide."

At a ball in the country a gentleman undertook to introduce a companion to a young but somewhat stout lady, who seemed to be pining for a dance. "No, thanks, old fellow; I don't care to waltz with a cart." A few evenings later the same young lady, who had overheard the conversation, beheld the young man seeking an introduction and asking if he might have the honor, etc. "No, thank you," she replied; "I may be a cart, but I am not a donkey cart."

A rich Irish-American, who frequently visits England and dearly loves a lord, loses no opportunity of talking of his great acquaintances. At a recent dinner party in New York, where there were several Roman Catholics, during a conversation on the subject of fasting, this gentleman said: "It is very strange how little Catholics in the higher ranks mind the fast days. I was dining at the Duke of Norfolk's on a fast day, three weeks ago, and there wasn't a bit of fish at dinner." "I suppose," said another Irishman, "they had eaten it all in the dining-room."

John D. Rockefeller recently told the following story: "I don't question the veracity of that story, but I am going to tell you one that I know to be true. It happened down in Washington. A negro was driving a wagon and in going through a street ran against a funeral. With the superstition of his race he thought it would be bad luck to cross behind the funeral, so he tried to cross ahead of it, but the driver of the hearse whipped up his horse, and the two went neck and neck for a time until finally the darkey sang out: 'Say, dah, pull up youah hoss! Mah hoss is in a hurry an' youah's isn't!'"

Judge Pennypacker of Philadelphia tells a story which shows the readiness of the Pennsylvania Dutchman to obey those in authority: In 1864 Sheridan, under orders, burned every barn from a valley above Staunton to a certain point below Winchester. A band of angry rebels followed this raid, watching for a chance to pick up any stragglers. Among others who fell into their hands was a little Pennsylvania Dutchman, who quietly turned to his captors and enquired: "Vat you fellows going to do mit me?" The reply came short and sharp: "Hang you." "Vell," he said, meekly, "vatever is de rule." His good-natured reply threw the Confederates into a roar of laughter and saved his life.

One day last autumn Bennet Burleigh, the noted English special war correspondent, was encountered a few miles outside Pretoria by that volcanic rhetorician, General Tucker. "What the —— —— are you doing out here with that —— thing?" asked the general, pointing to a kodak which was slung round his shoulders. "Well, sir," promptly replied Mr. Burleigh, "I was intending to take some photographs; but had I known that I was to have the pleasure of meeting you I should have brought out a phonograph." At this audacity, it is said that even General Tucker's stock of sulphurous adjectives ran low.

Gilbert Parker, to illustrate the gullibility of some Englishmen in the colonies, recently told the following story: "Once in Australia on my way through the bush, with my friend Cabbage Tree Bill, we were accompanied by a burly and intelligent young gentleman from Devonshire, and as we came along we saw along the road, if it might be called a road, a young kangaroo. Bill said: 'Now wait a minute; you will see him take the letters.' The kangaroo was sitting up as if waiting for something, and Bill said, 'He has his pouch and everything ready to carry them,' but as we came along Bill snapped his whip and said, 'Nothing to-day,' and the kangaroo trotted off, the young gentleman believing for a great part of the rest of the journey that the object of the kangaroo's presence was as Bill had said."

John Philip Sousa, the bandmaster, usually wears his uniform at all times and seasons, and prefers that his men do the same. The practice has led to some very amusing experiences. For example, one night Mr. Sousa was standing in a railway station, on the platform, waiting for a train. A belated traveler ran up to him and asked, excitedly, "Has the nine-three train pulled out?" "I really don't know," responded Mr. Sousa. "Well, why don't you know?" shouted the traveler. "What are you standing here for like a stick of wood? Aren't you a conductor?" "Yes," said Mr. Sousa, pleasantly, "I am a conductor." "A nice sort of conductor, indeed!" exclaimed the man. "Well, you see," smilingly responded the musician, "I am not the conductor of a train, but of a brass band."

Music in the Dark.

Musical Germany has recently been discussing in all seriousness the question whether it is true that a pernicious effect is produced upon music-lovers at public concerts by feminine beauty, with its delightful accessories, as seen in a blaze of artificial light reflected by crystal, gold and glittering diamonds? Germany answers yes, and declares that in future lights must be turned down; in fact, some of the bolder spirits have already put them out and left the audience in darkness.

The idea was first suggested to a concert reformer in Darmstadt, who took to reading Goethe, and came upon a chapter in Wilhelm Meister," in which an eccentric lover of music is described: "He could not live without music, more especially singing, and he was wont to listen to it without seeing the singers." This quaint individual used to say that music is really intended for the ear only, whereas in concert rooms it is made to minister mainly to the eye, to accompany movements, not sensations. The gentleman from Darmstadt thereupon concluded that the first step in the way of rational reform would be to lower the lights and shut his eyes to the consequences, and as many people jumped at the idea, it has already been realized, first in Darmstadt, and then in Frankfort-on-the-Main. Experiments are about to be continued elsewhere.

A man goes to a concert to hear music. But when he gets there he sees a great deal more than he hears, and his attention is distracted. The pillars, the statues, the lusters, all turn his thoughts away from the strains meant to soothe or inspirit. That is not as it should be, and yet it is not by any means the worst. He looks around at the ladies, many of whom come to be looked at. He sees the luxuriant tresses of one sylph-like figure before him, and as he cannot catch a glimpse of her charming face, he tries to guess at the features. His neighbor, a rich tradesman, is engaged in estimating the cost of the riviere of diamonds round her shapely neck. A third worshiper of Terpsichore finds himself behind the sweetest thing in hats, and must be content with hearing, since he can't see anything because of the beautiful obstruction. Now, all these things were brought to the concert for the purpose of being seen, whereas people come primarily to hear. Suddenly a burst of applause reminds them of this fact—and of the other, that they have not been listening to the sonata.

Kissing the Baby.

There are many mothers who give themselves infinite trouble about the big and obvious things connected with nursery management—who strive bravely to be up to date in the matter of plumbing, ventilation and infectious diseases—who yet fail woefully when it comes to certain details. One of the most important of these is the disgusting and dangerous habit of allowing every comer to kiss and maul the baby, says the "Youth's Companion."

A baby, no doubt, is a delightful object and almost irresistible, but that is no reason why advantage should be taken of his helpless condition to offer him constant hygienic outrages.

Here is a speech a well-meaning goose of a young mother made to the father of her child on his return from business: "Mrs. Smith called to-day, John. She has a fearful cold and sore throat. She thought the baby was just too sweet for anything, and wouldn't let him out of her arms. He took to her wonderfully, too." Naturally the baby developed a bad case of the snuffles in a day or two, and then it was: "The baby has a dreadful cold. We cannot think where he got it, we are always so careful."

This mother and the hundreds like her should be taught the lesson that promiscuous kissing is a bad and vulgar habit, productive of much danger to adults as well as to children. Adults can protect themselves if they like, but infants cannot, and so it is the duty of the mothers to protect them.

Even if they mercifully escape actual infection in babyhood, there still remains the fact that a silly and unclean habit is formed, resulting in schools full of kissing children, and by and by in ridiculous communities of kissing acquaintances. We may learn a useful lesson from the Japanese in this regard. They are not a kissing race, and the little children do not know what it means, except perhaps from their mothers. It is generally acknowledged that the Japanese babies are the healthiest and happiest of youngsters, and who shall say how much wholesome restraint from the kissing habit may have to do with this fortunate state of affairs?

To make too much of children is to spoil them, but in one respect they should be treated like royalty—if they must be kissed it should be only the back of the hand.

Prognostications.

New York "Life" ventures upon the following prognostications regarding Miss Stone.

She will arrive in America.

She will be met by a large delegation of gentlemen interested in collecting funds to send missionaries out of our own country, where they are needed, into other countries, where they are not needed, and where their principal function is to create complications for the United States Government to fight out.

She will be exploited for a few days by the yellow journals.

She will be gushed over by long-haired men, short-haired women and other gushers.

She will probably lecture, at a high compensation, under the management of Major J. B. Pond.

She will sell literature to the cheap magazines at large prices.

She will make money.

She will be lionized by the W.C.T.U.

She will be utilized by local missionary societies to gather funds to provide soft snaps in uncivilized Japan and other heathen places for Americans who can't make a living at home.

She will be an encouragement to others to go into foreign countries and get into trouble minding other people's business, when they might be quite safe at home tending to their own.

She will be convinced that the American nation is an easy thing.

THE RING.

Special to The Times.

Toronto, May 20 — Next Saturday night, at the Mutual street rink, under the auspices of the Crescent Athletic Club, Tom Couhig, of Dunkirk N.Y., and Martin Duffy, of Chicago, will meet in a twenty-round bout at 140 pounds. This should prove one of the best bouts ever pulled off in Toronto. Both men are young and clever, and at the top of the class. They met at Chicago recently in a six-round contest, when Couhig got the decision, which Duffy hopes to reverse at the weight and at the greater distance. Otto Seiloff beat Duffy once and next time Martin turned the tables on him.

Admirers of Couhig state that he can whip all the Frank Ernes that ever entered the ring, and sporting men look upon Duffy as the logical opponent of Joe Gans, the new lightweight champion. Duffy's record is appended:

The preliminary bouts are of great local interest. Eli Gibson, who gave Lou Scholes such a stiff argument in the city championships, will meet Johnny Jackson, the Canadian heavyweight champion, in the first preliminary. Jimmy Smith and Billy McCarthy are billed as the principals in the second contest, and it should be a great punching contest.

OPTIMISTIC NED HANLAN

New York, May 02 — Coach Ned Hanlan announced yesterday that the crews of the Columbia University 15th. Mr. Hanlan was never more sanguine in his life over the outcome of the big race on the Hudson. He thinks that, barring accident, Columbia will surely win the Varsity race and stands an excellent chance of taking the Freshmen contest. He said yesterday that the Varsity of this year was many seconds faster over a four-mile course than the Varsity of 1901.

Success Assured When the DIAMOND DYES
Are Used

Success in home dyeing depends altogether upon the quality of the dyes you select for the work of coloring. Diamond Dyes are acknowledged to be the best in the world, so far as brilliancy and strength of color are concerned.

They always do perfect work, and never disappoint the most exacting dyer. Diamond Dyes are sold at 10c. per package, the same price that many people pay for imitation and adulterated dyes. The most progressive druggists and dealers will sell no other dyes but the Diamond, because the inferior dyes cause so much grumbling and loss of materials.

Do not accept imitations or substitutes from any dealer no matter how strongly he may recommend them. The poor dyes are sold simply because they pay large profits. See that the name "Diamond" is on each package you buy.

Send postal card with your address to The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, 200 Mountain street, Montreal, P.Q., for Diamond Dye Mat and Rug Designs.

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leahy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter prayer; for it is God's hand that is punishing me now."

And she thought of the lines:

"Lips say, God be pitiful
That never yet said, God be praised."

There was a slight noise in the little parlor attached to her boudoir.

It was Marie approaching; she knew her step; and again she bade her leave her; for she wanted to be alone.

The little marble clock on the mantel struck the half hour.

Daisy uttered a little cry.

How time was fleeting! At that very moment her mortal foe was making his way to the villa gate.

Let him come to the house and claim her when he would; it would avail him little now, for he would find her cold in death.

She took the vial of chloral in her trembling hands, and with a gasping sob, raised it to her pallid lips.

"Poor papa, you will grieve for your little motherless Daisy," she sobbed; "you will think life might have gone different with me if mother had lived.

"And Olive and Hetty will weep for me; and you, Aleck, my heart's love, will you forgive me, or will you curse me, dear?"

Only the wind moaning among the trees outside answered her.

Kneeling again before the portrait, she pressed one hand over her fluttering heart, and with the other raised the vial to her lips, draining with a single draught half its contents.

Then, with a desperate energy, she flung the vial far through the open window, out among the thicket of roses in the garden below.

Then the clock struck nine.

And at that moment Harold St. John reached the park that skirted the villa.

The moon was shining; the earth lay green and still; the birds were in their nests; the flowers were all asleep; the great boughs were still and motionless.

Nearly an hour Harold St. John stood at the villa gate.

There was no sound of footsteps, no shadow of a figure.

"She is not here," he said to himself. "The lateness of the hour shall by no means deter me. I shall go to the villa, make a grand expose, and claim my wife."

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Too Much to Endure.

It had been no easy matter for beautiful, hapless Daisy to face the darkness and bitterness of death, but she was driven at bay like some poor hunted creature; what could she do but end it all, she moaned as she raised the little vial which held death to her lips.

When Harold St. John told his story and Aleck listened to it with horror too great for words, she would not know it, she would be beyond all censure, all bitter reproaches; but Aleck might learn in time to forgive her, because he would know—ah, yes, he would know that she had sinned so grievously all for love of him.

Without a cry she had drained the vial to the dregs, then flung it from her through the open window, groping her way to Aleck's picture, and had knelt down before it to die.

The moonlight drifted in through the filmy curtains, falling upon the gilded easel and the portrait on it, on the bowed golden head, the death-white face, and little, cold, locked hands; surely it was the most pitiful sight on which it gazed that night.

"I shall die as I have lived, loving you, Aleck," she moaned. "Oh, my beloved, as long as you live my spirit will hover near you. When you stand alone in the moonlight on the western terrace where we have so often stood together, as you listen to the faint moaning of the wind among the trees you will think of me. You will know that my soul was not all false, because it held in it so true a love for you, and you will remember that, though I sinned greatly, my repentance was terrible— terrible, Aleck."

The golden head fell suddenly back as that beloved name fluttered over the death- white lips. But in that instant Marie, the maid, rushed into the apartment.

"Oh, my lady, my lady," she cried, "speak to me I pray you— oh, she is dead— she is dead!"

Her cries soon brought Hetty, who was passing the corridor, into the room.

"What is the matter?" she cried. "What is all this fuss about? Why don't you light the gas?"

Then a cry of horror broke from her lips as she saw in the moonlight the golden head which the maid was supporting on her knee.

"Oh, Miss Hetty," sobbed the girl in awful terror, "I am afraid she is dead and by her own hand."

Hetty's small hand clutched her arm.

"Tell me plainly, Marie, and quickly, before I summon help. What makes you think so?" she gasped. "Oh, my God! speak quickly."

And in a few brief words Marie told her of Daisy's request for chloral and how she had brought it to her.

"I—I was almost afraid to bring it to her," confessed the girl, "there was a strange look in her eyes which I did not like, so I— I put but a few drops of chloral in the bottle and filled the rest with water, coloring it with a few drops of wine, and before I could help her, though I watched her through the curtains, Miss Hetty, I saw her raise the vial to her lips and drain it all, crying out 'death was sweeter than life.'"

Hetty had been kneeling down by the prostrate figure and had placed her hands over Daisy's heart; it beat in measured, labored throbs.

"You have saved her life by giving but a few drops, Marie," she sobbed. "this is life, not death— she has fallen into a lethargic sleep under its influence.

"We must get her to bed at once—no one must know. Swear to me that you will keep this night's work a secret deep and silent as the grave, Marie, as you love your poor young mistress— swear it!"

"No one shall ever know it from my lips, Miss Hetty," she answered. "I swear it."

For long hours Hetty sat by her sister's bedside, wondering what terrible secret could be weighing down her heart so heavily that death would be welcome to her— she was to know all too soon.

In the meantime, she took the precaution to send a telegram secretly to Aleck.

To him, and to him alone, she would confess what Daisy had tried to do, and watch the effect upon him. In a moment of excitement he might divulge the nature of her terrible secret if he knew it.

She felt vaguely that it was in some way connected with the bitter quarrel they had had in the past.

And this was the telegram Aleck received, and which brought him home in hot haste.

But to return to Daisy's desperate foe; for more than an hour he had stood motionless in the silent wood, then he had gone direct to the house.

As he stood on the stone porch, the clock in an adjoining belfry tolled in solemn strokes the hour of ten.

He smiled grimly to himself. It was late, but it did not shake his purpose; she should see he was too desperate a man to be trifled with.

The footman looked in amazement at the handsome stranger who had presented himself at the door of the villa at that hour of the night.

Harold St. John called for Alexander Hamilton, and a deep imprecation fell from his lips when he was told he was not there.

"I do not believe that," he said curtly— then suddenly he changed his tactics— remembering the golden key needful.

"Get your master to come to the drawing- room, or— or here on the porch a few moments, and I will give you a five- dollar bill, my good fellow," he said.

"I would be only too pleased to earn the money, sir," replied the man, "but it is as I have told you in all truth— my master is not here— he is in Boston."

"Mr. Gordon is here then — call Squire Gordon down."

"I assure you I might ask, but it would be in vain— he would not see you at this hour — it would be as much as my place is worth to suggest it. If your business is so important, take my advice and come here the first thing in the morning."

Harold St. John was obliged to submit. But very early, while the sun was shining and the birds were shaking the dew from their wings, he presented himself again at the villa.

This time he was informed that Squire Gordon was in the garden. If he wished to see him he should take the paved walk that led around past the fountain toward the rose garden—he was usually to be found there.

Squire Gordon raised his eyes when he saw the stranger approaching, and greeted him with a very hearty good-morning.

Where had he seen just such a face, he wondered vaguely.

Before Harold St. John had time to make known his cruel errand, they both saw Aleck enter the entrance-gate— he had just alighted from the hack that had just brought him up from the depot.

"My business is with Alexander Hamilton as well as yourself," said St. John, calmly; "would you mind calling him here?"

"Certainly not," returned the squire; and in his hearty, cheery voice, he called to Aleck, who, giving his satchel and traveling rug to one of the servants, came over to the rose-arbor at once.

Aleck recognized Harold St. John instantly. What was this man doing here?

"This gentleman seems to have business with us, Aleck," began the squire. "Shall we go to the library, or is it your pleasure to discuss it here, Mr. ——" turning inquiringly, to the stranger.

"My name is St. John," he said, bowing slightly. "Mr. Hamilton knows me well; we have met before."

"Ah!" returned the squire, but he looked slightly bewildered, for there was a plainly perceptible look of anger on Aleck's face.

Know him! How dared such a man as this presume upon his acquaintance so far as to call upon him in the sanctuary of his home! The liberty he had taken amazed Aleck.

"This place will answer better than the library, perhaps," he responded, with a cold bow, adding, "the ladies of the family are there, no doubt."

To be Continued.

HEAD-ACHE

Is only one form of the suffering resulting from a diseased condition of the sensitive womanly organism. The only way to cure the headache is to cure the diseases which cause it.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been the means of curing thousands of women of headache, backache, female weakness and other forms of disease peculiar to women. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures bearing-down pains.

"I think if it were not for your 'Favorite Prescription' I would have been in my grave," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, of Egypt, Plymouth Co., Mass., Box 14. "I had pain all over me, and such a dragging feeling it seemed I could not do my house work. I had to sit down to wash the dishes, even. In the year 1897 I was so sick I did not care to live and prayed many times that God would take me. One day I thought I would write to Dr. Pierce. In a few days I received an answer. I decided to try his medicine, and to-day I am a well woman. I have no headache, no pain at all. I used always to have headaches previous to the monthly period, and such pain that I would roll on the floor in agony. This sometimes would occur every two weeks, and I would be very weak afterward. I was in pain all over. My feet would slip from under me when I would try to go across the room, and I could not walk any distance without being in pain. I took three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and three vials of Doctor Pierce's Pellets, and was completely cured."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets stimulate the liver.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE

"No Cure, No Pay," is the Newest Proposal of the Proprietors of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the Times: To any one who is a subject of rheumatism (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, as enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and do not find a perfect cure, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no substantial improvement is observed, we will in addition, pay $50 in cash on satisfactory evidence being supplied us to this effect.

We have yet to know of a single case where these wonderful pills have not been almost entirely successful in effecting a cure. CANADA CHEMICAL CO.

Ex-Ald. Bailey, St. John's, writes: I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. They worked a miracle in my case, and cured me after many years of suffering. I do not think their equal is to be obtained.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for la grippe, rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, catarrh, eczema, coughs, backache, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years, the most stubborn cases will yield. Price 50 cents per box. For sale by Ormond & Walsh. The Canada Chemical Company will forfeit $50 for any case that these pills do not help.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to its columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published.—Ed. Times.]

The straw hat is hovering in the vicinity.

—Take the little tots to Whiten's and have some lovely photos taken of them.

—The committee of the whole Council and the Board of Works Committee met last night.

—Every marketer should tell every farmer they deal with in the market tomorrow that next Saturday's market will be held on Friday.

—The woman who walks straight by the store windows these days is the woman who has already bought her spring outfit.

—The coming summer should be a busy one for our mechanics, laboring men and merchants, as work is reported to be plentiful.

—The Bell Telephone Company has strung a heavy cable from the central office up Water Street as far as London Street.

—The Stratford Water Supply Company have offered to sell out to the city for $300,000. Peterborough paid $220,000 for its water works.

—The Canadian Order of Foresters of the town will attend St. Paul's church on Sunday evening June 1, when Rev. Dr. Torrance will deliver the annual sermon.

—Rev. Mr. Adam, Methodist minister at Hastings, died very suddenly in that town yesterday afternoon. Deceased was a brother-in-law of Mr. George E. Elliott of town.

—Lieut. W. D. Leach, of the 46th Regiment, Millbrook, will represent that corps on the Coronation Contingent as a private. Lieut. Leach served in the ranks of the 2nd C.M.R.

The barbers of the town are undecided whether or not to close on Saturday. From Friday until Monday night, it is thought, leaves too heavy a growth of whiskers on some of their patrons.

A circular has been sent out by the Minister of Education, asking the co-operation of school inspectors in making Empire Day, May 23rd, a success. He suggests addresses by the teachers in the morning and in the afternoon public meetings.

—In the town of Berlin with a population of more than nine thousand people, the lovers of dogs have to pay a tax of $5.00 a year on each of their pets. A host of dogs is a reflection upon the intelligence of a community.

—The Harwood track from Cobourg is to be put in order this season. We would suggest to Peterborough Navigation Company the advisability of trying to induce the Grand Trunk to put on a regular passenger train service in connection with the steamers.

—Our local contemporary of the Grit persuasion states that the beef combine has bitten off more than it can chew. This may be true, but this g. f. j. would just here interject a remark that it has also prevented the public from doing much chewing.

The London Free Press says that the Nexon Manufacturing Company, of Ingersoll, are looking for a place to locate their works in. Peterborough should make a bid for this great industry.

—Mr. J. W. Smith, formerly in the Crown Land's office here, but now Bursar of the Cobourg Asylum for the Insane, is having a residence built adjoining the Asylum, in which he will live. The work is being done by the Ontario Government.

—Potatoes have taken a big slump in price as the result of the dropping off in the demand from the United States. A week or so ago there was a big demand for them at 80 and 90 cents abag, but since that time they have fallen so that the price is now in most places 65 cents a bag.

—In reply to a letter from a member of the Retail Merchant's Association, Hon. Mr. Scott, Secretary of State at Ottawa, writes that it is impossible to change the celebration of Victoria Day from Saturday to Monday without a change in the Act as Saturday is a Dominion statutory holiday.

—The following members and ex-members of the 40th Regiment have been recommended for the colonial force officers' decoration, viz., Lt. Col R. Z. Rogers, Lt. Col. Elliott, Major Bonnycastle, Lt. Col. Vance Gravely, Major Duncan, Major McCaughey, Major R. E. Birdsall, Surgeon Major Willoughby, Capt. Butler.

—The Lakefield News, in speaking of a concert which Mrs. Morrow intends giving in that village, says:—The concert to be given by Mrs. W. J. Morrow, assisted by Miss Florence Miller, soprano, and Mr. Joseph Legg, tenor, with Miss Meharry as accompanist, promises to be of exceptional interest to all lovers of high class music in the village and vicinity. Mrs. Morrow's name is a familiar name to most of our readers. For some time past she has been a resident of Peterborough, where she has rendered herself widely known by her faultless technical skill and the brilliancy of her treatment. Mrs. Morrow, however, is not only a finished pianist, but the possessor of a magnificent soprano voice, which according to the press notices we have been enabled to obtain she knows how to use to the fullest advantage. It is to be hoped that a large audience will greet her on her initial appearance in Lakefield.

—The Times extend its sincere sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. John Theobald, of Albert Street, in the death of their darling little daughter, which sad event took place at St. Joseph's Hospital last week. She was an unusually bright and promising child, and was dearly beloved by all who knew her.

Yesterday all sectionmen employed on the Grand Trunk Railway, who were receiving less than $1.30 per day, will in future be paid this amount, and section foremen will be given $45 a month, an increase over their present pay. Between 600 and 700 men will be benefited by the voluntary action of the company.

—The Grand Trunk will add this year forty-two locomotives to be rolling stock of the system and all the steel for their construction has been purchased in England. The company is also buying its yearly supply of rails in England, while other companies are purchasing in foreign countries.

—Parties who are spraying their fruit trees this spring will do well to be careful of the time at which the work is done. Not only is the practice of spraying while the blossom is full contrary to the law, but it is positively hurtful to the crop. When the bloom has fallen is the proper time to spray the trees, according to the report of the inspectors.

—The following from the Colborne Express fits Peterborough very nicely: The landlords of merchants in Trenton are publicly accused of doing there shopping in other towns. If the rest of the people followed their example, they would have no tenants to furnish money for the purchase of goods elsewhere. Looked at from any standpoint, the landlord should be the last man to give his tenant the go-by."

Scow Launched

The government scow, which was built at the locks, below the Little Lake, was launched yesterday afternoon by Mr. George Hickey, the builder. The vessel is about 17x67, and will be used in connection with the dredge, which is employed in the waters between Hastings and Peterborough.

A Correction

Miss Jennie Miller wishes it stated that she did not resign her position as nurse-in-training in Nicholls Hospital. The report in yesterday's Times to that effect is incorrect. Miss Miller is still anxious to complete her course, of which she has already put in two years and a half.

Mr. Stratton's Meetings

Mr. Stratton addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting in Lakefield last night. He was tendered an ovation, and the applause which greeted him from time to time as he proceeded with his speech showed that Lakefield was safe. He will speak at Buckhorn to-night and at Cobourg to-morrow night.

A Genuine Bargain

The undersigned has a fine lady's and gentleman's bicycle, for sale at a bargain. These wheels are bran new—never having been used. Call and see them. Apply to C. Wilhemy at City Hotel.

Another Industry

Cobourg Post.—Mr. Sager the gentleman who endeavored to establish a factory in Cobourg to manufacture a cement known as "Quick Sett," has decided to locate in Peterborough, enterprising citizens of that town having taken the matter up. On Friday of last week, while the promoter was endeavoring to induce the members of our town council to show some interest in the undertaking three telegrams were placed in his hands offering inducements to locate in Peterborough. He left for Toronto on the afternoon train and met the Peterborough gentleman, and we understand all arrangements were completed to operate a plant in that town at once. After several months, members of the Cobourg Council informed Mr. Sager that Cobourg could do nothing to help him start the factory here.

THE LAKEFIELD PICNIC

A Great Day's Sport Promised for Next Saturday

A splendid programme of sports has been arranged for the great Lakefield picnic on Saturday next, Victoria Day. Trains will leave the Grand Trunk Station for Lakefield at 8.20 a.m. and 1.30 p.m., returning at 4.10 and at 7.30.

Hundreds of our citizens who have known Rev. Father Phelan all their lives will take advantage of this picnic to visit him in his own parish.

RECEIVED HIS ORDERS

Mr. Campbell, of the Street Railway Gets Authority to Go Ahead

Mr. Campbell, engineer of the Detroit Construction Company, yesterday morning received instruction to proceed with the work on the Peterborough Street Railway without an hour's delay.

This will be good news to our readers, who are becoming impatient to have the electric cars in operation once more.

Mr. Campbell has ordered the material required, and as soon as it arrives will start a number of construction gangs.

—Mr. J. Alex. Culverwell returned from New York yesterday.

—Mr. Alex. Brodie spent a few days in town as a guest at the residence of Judge Edmison.

—The Times was favored with a fraternal call from Mr. W. K. C. Parlee Manager of the Herald, Fredericton, N.B.

—The Times congratulates Mr. Thos. J. Kelly, whose name appears at the head of the list of graduates this year from the Saginaw Valley Medical College.

—The Times had a call yesterday from Rev. Father Phelan, the popular priest at Young's Point and Lakefield, who was in town on business.

NO ROOM FOR COMPARISON

There is no better test of the fitness of a candidate for legislative honors, than the ability and energy he has displayed in the management of his personal affairs. The man who has proved a failure in this respect or whose efforts have only been attended with a moderate measure of success, is not as likely to manage satisfactorily the business of the people as he who has exhibited marked capacity and foresight in his private concerns. This is emphatically a business age, and the problems coming up for consideration in our legislature require a much greater knowledge of the business and financial methods for their satisfactory adjustment than was formerly the case. If a representative is to take a leading position, or to carry any weight with the country a thorough acquaintance with the ways of commerce and the conditions of modern business life in the largest sense of the word is strictly necessary. The experience gained by transactions on a large scale, and personal contact with the magnates of finance and captains of industry, is invaluable as a qualification for a legislator.

Tried by these tests Mr. Stratton has far superior claims on the suffrages of the electors of West Peterborough to those of his opponent. He is an eminently successful business man. He has displayed remarkable enterprise and ability in all that he has undertaken and by the success of the various concerns in which he has interested himself, has benefitted not only himself, but the community. He has done much to build up and develop the town and encourage the establishment of industries. The enterprises in which he has taken an active and a leading part have given much employment to labor and set money in circulation. In the administration of his department he has displayed the same qualities of tireless energy, capacity for organization, and systematic attention to detail which characterize his business management. Without ceasing to interest himself in the local enterprises with which he is so closely identified, he has devoted to the public service a large share of the executive ability and business tact which have marked his private career. The result has been witnessed in the increased efficiency and economy noticeable in the management of the public institutions under his control since his acceptance of office and the excellence of the system in which every branch of his important department is administered.

Putting party administration aside, what qualifications has Mr. Miller which can be for a moment compared with those of the Provincial Secretary? He is personally a worthy and respectable citizen of fair average ability. It is not necessary to say or to hint anything to his disparagement to show that in comparison with the record of Mr. Stratton, he has done nothing to entitle him to be preferred to a public man whose career and achievements speak for themselves. Mr. Miller has displayed no such marked business competency or knowledge of affairs as should lead the people to suppose that he will be a success in political life. He has not been concerned in large enterprises or invested in means and efforts in undertakings calculated to advance the interests of the community and contribute to the general welfare. His limited business experience does not afford sufficient ground for the inference that he is fitted for the larger responsibilities or competent to deal with the intricate problems of public life.

As between the personal qualifications of the two candidates there is no room for comparison. But then in addition to the severe disabilities under which Mr. Miller labors in this regard, the political affiliations of the candidate are borne in mind, when it is remembered that in Mr. Stratton we have a cabinet minister, who can bring all his influences to bear in furthering local interests, whereas Mr. Miller, if elected, would be a member of the Opposition without prominence or power to do anything for his constituents. The balance is overwhelmingly in favor of the Provincial Secretary.

The people will not be guilty of the short-sightedness and folly of rejecting a candidate who has the power, the ability and the desire to work for the benefit of the constituency, in favor of one who could do no good if he tried.

GOT BADLY MIXED

How the Head of the Family Lost His Head at Dinner

A citizen who is not in the habit of entertaining the clergy, was told by his better half a few days ago that the minister was to take dinner with the family, and he would require to be on his good behaviour.

"What have you for dinner," enquired the husband.

"Well I know he is fond of fish, so I bought quite a string of Otonabee river fish and several larger ones from the dam."

"I'm not much at doing honors when we have a minister at the table," said the husband, "but I guess we can get through with it all right."

Half an hour later they were seated at the table, and a blessing had been asked by the minister. A little nervously the head of the family began dishing out the vegetables, and turning to his guest said: "Will you have some of the little river fish, or would you prefer some of the dam big fish?"

The warning kick under the table from his wife was not necessary. He knew he had blundered and cold beads of perspiration started out on his forehead.

"I mean," trying to repair the error, "will you have some of the dam river fish or some of the big fish?"

Worse and more of it. His daughter shyly pulled his coat tail to bring him to his senses.

"That is, would you like some of the river fish or some of the other dam fish?"

The deep carnation spreading over the good lady's face didn't mend matters a bit, and, with a gasp, he plunged in once more.

"Ahem! Which of the dam fish do you prefer anyway?"

And, strange to say, he was not even acquainted with No. 5 Dam.

ANDERSON'S MEETING IN ASHBURNHAM LAST NIGHT

Eloquent Addresses Heard in the Ashburnham Hall

The Liberal Candidate Gets a Good Reception

Speeches by Messrs. Anderson, Clute, K.C., and F. D. Kerr

The meeting held in the Town Hall, Ashburnham last night, in the interests of Mr. Wm. Anderson, the Liberal candidate for East Peterborough, was largely attended.

Unfortunately Mr. Anderson was suffering from a very severe cold and consequently was not in a physical condition to do himself justice. He, however, met with a very enthusiastic reception at the hands of the villagers present, and his utterances in a brief, but appropriate speech, were frequently applauded.

His exceedingly able and eloquent supporters, Messrs. R. C. Clute, K.C., of Toronto, and F. D. Kerr, of West Peterborough, were both received with prolonged applause, and the tenor of their speeches, "vote for Ross and an economical, wise and progressive Policy" evidently fell upon willing ears. Mr. Wm. Scott, of Ashburnham, acted as chairman, but no one was present in support of Dr. Ford. The meeting was certainly Mr. Anderson's from start to finish.

MR. WM. ANDERSON.

MR. Wm. Anderson.

The Liberal Candidate was the first speaker and took the platform at 8.30. He regretted that a severe cold necessitated his being brief in his remarks, but he could not let this opportunity pass of addressing the electorate of the beautiful village of Ashburnham, whom he was exceedingly pleased to meet. It was a pleasure to him to see so many ladies among the large audience, for their presence demonstrated in no uncertain manner that they took a lively welfare not only of Ashburnham and the East riding, but also in that of the Province. On Mr Blizzard's retiring from public life he had at the Liberal convention held at Norwood a year ago, nominated him (the speaker) as the Liberal nominee, and being the unanimous choice of that convention, he had accepted the nomination and was in the field to win (cheers). Continuing, Mr. Anderson stated that he was an unqualified supporter of the Ross Government, which he believed to be working in the best interests of the Province and its people (applause). I am a temperance man, have always been one, and shall ever do whatever I can in the interest of that worthy cause (renewed applause). For 25 years I have represented the township of Otonabee at its municipal board, and under the new County Councils' Act have for the last six years sat in the County Council as a representative of Otonabee, jointly with Ashburnham. I have always endeavored to do that which is right and fair and just, and must have succeeded in my efforts in that direction, as none have found fault with me (applause). Continuing, the speaker claimed that his extensive experience in municipal government must necessarily qualify him for the Ontario Legislature as much of its business is on similar lines to those of the municipalities. Turning his attention to Dr. Ford, his opponent, he considered him a good man, but after all, he said it must be apparent to every intelligent elector that a riding such as East Peterborough, which is composed almost entirely of working men and farmers, should be represented at Toronto by one of themselves (applause) and I am both a farmer and a working man (renewed applause). In conclusion, he urged his audience to go to the polls on the 29th of May and vote for Anderson, Ross and a progressive economical and wise government.

MR. F. D. KERR.

Was the second speaker, and in his introductory remarks expressed his pleasure at the opportunity afforded him, a resident of the West riding, of coming over to the East to say a few words in behalf of his good friend Mr. Anderson, who comes before the electors as a working man and a farmer, asking the suffrage of a great many voters in Ashburnham who are practically city people. But he has a right to ask for your votes because a vast majority of Ontario's people are interested in the agricultural phases of legislation. If the interests of the farmer are looked after, the welfare of towns and cities will be attended to also, because the interests of both are identical. We must have at Toronto men who understand the needs of the people, and such a man we have in Mr. Anderson, who in his 25 year's experience, as a representative of the Township of Otonabee, has demonstrated so thorough a knowledge of the duties required of him that he has never yet suffered defeat, and neither will he do so in the contest in which he is at present engaged (cheers) Continuing, Mr. Kerr did not believe Ashburnham would allow the fact of Mr. Anderson being a farmer to tell against him at the polls because in the House at Toronto there does not exist any rivalry at all between farming and city interests, they both being exactly identical (applause)

Turning to the several campaign cries raised by the Opposition against the government in years gone by, the speaker wanted to know what had become of them. What has become of the Ross Bible Cry, the Separate School question and all the other agitations used for political purposes? They were only raised temporarily, without any foundation whatever, and I am happy to say they have now gone forever (cheers) There may have been some little faults in the Ross government's administration, as there will be in any government; but as to the Ross government's record, is there any Province in the Dominion, whose record you would exchange for that of Ontario's for economy, justice, education, agriculture, development and progress? of "No, No." Cheers.

Referring to the accusations of the government's opponents concerning alleged misappropriation of public monies, unwarrantable concessions," etc., the speaker opined that the Hon. J. R. Stratton was too well-known for the people to be led away with such mudthrowing as that (cheers). And as for Mr. Garvin, it had been pointed out at a recent meeting that it would not be wise to follow his advice, because it is not sound. As a Candidate for West Peterborough at the last election, he had been rejected by a 1000 majority vote, and West Peterborough had never regretted it (laughter).

Continuing, Mr. Kerr ridiculed Mr. Garvin's up-to-date plan for the education of this Province. Mr. Garvin is a man of great ability, but his pet hobby is to devise some fancy scheme for the education of Ontario's children, and that in his Educational Council. There can be better men, there can be better systems; but the trouble is the highest standard of perfection has not yet been reached. I will ask you a fair question, "are the people of Ontario not as well educated as those of any other Province?"

A Voice,—"And better"

Take the children of the United States. They are well educated in matters pertaining to their own country, but are taught little or nothing concerning the outside world. The boys and girls of Ontario, however, stand equal to all and surpassed by none in the matter of education (applause).

Turning again to Mr. Garvin's pet theory, the speaker said he always liked to know at whose head he is to strike when necessary, and we don't want an Educational Council drawn from irresponsible men from all over the Province, and at whom one can't get back at. But as somebody said the other night, "What do we want an Educational Council for, anyway when we can get Mr. Garvin's advice for nothing?" (laughter). Going into the cost of school books, Mr. Kerr contended that Mr. Garvin's comparison of the Irish with Ontario's readers was unfair and no argument. Wages paid for labor in Canada is higher than in Ireland, thank God; it costs more to produce our books, and I for one don't want to reduce the cost of their production. Then those Irish readers were prepared years ago and as everyone knows the first cost of production is greater than that of later years. Then, the commission appointed to enquire into the cost of our school books had endorsed the government's system. This commission was composed of Judge Morgan, of Toronto, as its head; R. Brown, leading bookbinder, of Toronto, and Jas. Bane, leading retailer of books in Toronto. These three honorable men on the sworn testimony laid before them reported that the prices of Canadian school books are far below those of an almost identical character in the States, and credited the Ross government with furnishing school books at a more reasonable price than could have been obtained under any other system, which is also fair to the publishers (applause).

Continuing, Mr. Kerr stated that since taking office as Minister of Education in 1883 the Hon G. W. Ross has reduced the number of text books for Public Schools from 53 to 18; and the number of text books in High Schools from 131 to 21. Is that not progressive and wise legislation? Then Mr. Ross legislated along patriotic lines for on entering the ministry in 1883 he found that only 49 school books were written by Canadian authors as against 125 by foreign authors. He took exception to this policy and to-day out of the total number of text books used in the Public and High Schools every one but two are written by Canadians (cheers). Following out this policy of Patriotism Mr. Ross legislated that Canadian workmen should produce the books written by Canadian authors for Canadian children to study from (applause). On taking office in 1883, he found that 87 of our school books were manufactured by foreigners, but to-day under his government every one of them is made by Canadians (renewed applause) and for quality, literature and finish our books are better than those of the United States, and cheaper too. A child can go through the whole course of its Public School studies at a cost of $6.77 for text books.

In testimony to the economical, wise and progressive policy of the government, Mr. Kerr named Mr. Marter, who he said on the eve of a political campaign, left his party mates and the traditions of a life time, when he found the government was legislating in the best interests of the Province, and voted with Ross and his colleagues on the opening of new Ontario (cheers). The son of John Carnegie of West Peterborough, Mr. Fox and a couple of other conservatives whose names have escaped me, stood up and voted with the government because they put principles above party and country before policy. Mr. Marter also broke away from his party on the Prohibition vote and had Dr. Ford at that time been in the House he would have had to do likewise.

Dr. Ford tells you he is going up to Toronto as an avowed Prohibitionist, which means to vote with Ross and against his leader, Whitney, who says he would not touch Prohibition with a 40 foot pole (laughter). Dr. Ford, like the Irishman, is "A courtin' Sally." If asked if he is a Prohibitionist, the doctor will reply, "No, Sir." Then are you an Anti-Prohibitionist? "No, Sir." Then what are you? "I am a courtin' the electors of East Peterborough and hope to get in." (laughter) We in West Peterborough are going to return Mr. Stratton with a good majority, and we want you in the East to send along Mr. Anderson as a running mate (cheers) Major Miller hasn't a ghost of a chance, and on the Prohibition question is in a political fire and a mighty hot one at that. He has arranged himself in Mr. Whitney's coat which fitted well and draws in one direction; he has donned Mr. Whitney's trousers, which draw in another direction, and should he (Miller) be landed on the floor of the House, he will find himself politically alive, but horribly twisted (laughter)

In conclusion, Mr. Kerr denied Mr. Garvins' statement that Mr. S. Clegg is drawing $300 as a subordinate to Mr. D. H. Moore, the Crown Timber agent, and read the following letter in reference to this matter:

Crown Timber Office."

"T. D. Kerr, Esq.
Peterborough.

"Dear Sir,—In answer to your enquiry, I beg to state that Mr. Clegg's services and pay as my assistant during the winter of 1900-01 both ceased the day he received his appointment to the position of Superintendent of Public Works in the Newcastle District."

Your obedient servant,
D. H. Moore.
Crown Timber Office."

The speaker also gave the Hon. J. R. Stratton's word that Mr. Clegg was only receiving a salary of $800 and not $1600 as reported. Mr. Kerr resumed his seat amid prolonged applause.

R. C. CLUTE, K. C.

In opening Mr. Clute remarked that the greatness of a country depended upon the greatness of the people, and for that reason every opportunity should be given for the development of the industries of the Province, which he said had always been done by the Ross Government.

In illustration of this he took the position of the Government on the question of Capital and Labor. He said that as the production of labor increased and capital and labor have become more and more separated as time passed the tendency has been for the increase in wages to be far less in proportion than the increase in production, and for the remedy of this condition trades unions have been formed and are recognised in the laws of the country under the Ross Government on an equal footing with the representatives of capital—the heads of corporations.

Referring to the Legislation of the Ontario Government in regard to wage distribution, Mr. Clute reviewed the gradual betterment in the condition of workingmen in the province and brought to the attention of the audience, the clauses in Government contracts at the present time, providing for the payment of the current rate of wages to all workmen engaged in the fulfillment of the contract. Other acts protecting the laboring man were the Mechanics' Lien Law and the Factory Act, the latter being a safeguard against the risk of injury to the employees in these establishments. In over three score of cases besides those mentioned, the Government had passed legislation for the protection of the laboring class.

He spoke of the recent arbitration in the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway, an arbitration which had brought to the men an increase of 20 per cent in their wages, and of the recent action of the Government allowing trades unions to become corporate bodies, which gives them greatly increased influence. The principal of agreements between employers and their men for the prevention of strikes was organized by the present administration and compulsory arbitration in labor disputes was enforced [illegible] department of the Government. The benefit of the laws opposing the sweating system has become evident to all.

As to the charges of squandering the assets of the province and falsifying the accounts, Mr. Clute referred to the committee appointed by the Government when Mr. Ross first assumed control of the provincial administration. Dr. Ford had admitted at a previous meeting, the competence of the gentlemen selected to investigate the finances of the province and the report of the committee mentioned and which was quoted by the speaker, showed that the finances of the province had been kept in good order and correct reports given for many years previous.

The present surplus of the province, he stated, was something over two and a half millions of dollars, not including property, or unpaid money in banks or in the hands of the Do- returned to the province in interest minion Government, the latter having the sum of $3,000,000. The Dominion Government had offered to pay over this money if desired, but it would not be a wise step to withdraw the money which is now drawing 5 per cent., when only 3 1-2 per cent. could be obtained by reloaning it. This, he thought, should settle the question of surplus.

In opening the question of the position taken by Mr. Ross and his colleagues in regard to the immense tract of land known as New Ontario, Mr. Clute stated that the Conservatives had from the first opposed the development of that district by this province, it being due to Sir Oliver Mowat that the land had been held at all.

Mr. Ross had made an appropriation of $40,000 for the purpose of investigating the resources of the undeveloped district of the province and it was found that its value in timber and pulpwood stretched far into the millions. Referring to the charges of steals in the matter of land grants and bonuses, he denied that there is a word of truth in any of them. The method of the Government is to give licenses to cut wood on certain areas, for which a certain sum per cord is paid, the land still remaining the property of the Government and the contracts permit the settlement of the land at any time, in which case the timber thereon becomes the property of the settler. Many sections are now taken up under this law. The seven pulp mills which, it is proposed to establish will require an expenditure of $4,000,000 and the employment of two or three thousand men. In increasing the railroad facilities in that district the settlers were enabled to make the land available.

The speaker mentioned several questions in which the Opposition leader differs from Mr. Ross, among which were the taxes on banks, insurance companies and corporations, which Mr. Whitney would abolish, and the succession duties in case of there being no direct descendants on the decease of persons owning considerable estates

The policy of the Ross Government concerning the export of logs to the United States was the next question under consideration.

The aim and desire of the lumber trade has always been to secure free admission for Canadian lumber into the United States market.

The Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 gave free admission to Canadian lumber, and under it there was nothing to prevent the export of Canadian logs. At a later date duties on lumber were imposed by the Americans and corresponding duties on logs by the province. At the present time the prospects are bright for the lumbermen of Ontario.

Speaking of the expenditure in the various departments of the Provincial Government Mr. Clute stated that the cost per head for the inmates of the public institutions of Ontario was less than that of any other province in the Dominion or of any state in the Union.

In concluding his address Mr. Clute hoped that the electors of East Peterborough would support Mr. Anderson and give him a good majority, knowing as they did of his fitness for the position on account of his long experience in the municipal affairs of the village and county, and the interest he had in their welfare.

As a final statement Mr. Clute said that the salary of Mr. Clegg as Superintendent of Public Works in the Newcastle district, was only $800, and not $1600 as stated by some opponents of the Government. He further added that he was not employed by the Provincial Government, but by that of the Dominion.

The chairman, Mr. Scott, then said a few words in favor of Mr. Anderson and the meeting closed with rousing cheers for the king, Mr. Anderson and the Government.

Paine's Celery Compound

A POSITIVE CURE FOR DISEASE

It Has a Fame and Reputation That No Other Medicine Can Boast Of

It is not what is said in the newspapers about Paine's Celery Compound, but what it does—it's life-saving work, that explains its world-wide fame and popularity.

It is well that all should know that Paine's Celery Compound is not an ordinary patent medicine ranking with the nervines, sarsaparillas, bitters and pills of the day. Paine's Celery Compound is as far beyond these common remedies as the effulgent light of the mid-day sun is superior to the tallow candle.

Paine's Celery Compound possesses extraordinary virtues and powers for health building and life lengthening.

Professor Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., its discoverer, gave this marvellous medicine to his profession as a positive cure for sleeplessness, nervousness, wasting strength, dyspepsia rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney and liver troubles. Since its introduction, tens of thousands have been raised from sickness and disease to perfect health and vigor. No other medicine in the world was ever so highly honored and recommended; no other has accomplished such a blessed mission amongst the sick. When the honest physician is called upon to subscribe for weak, rundown, overworked, debilitated and ailing men and women; he invariably recommends the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

At this time no household can afford to be without Paine's Celery Compound. It is within reach of all classes. It makes the sick well, and the cures are permanent. Strengthen, purify and regulate the system at once with this greatest and best of all remedies, and you will be in a condition to resist all invasion of disease.

Delaware Prohibitionists Active

Wilmington, Del., May 20 — Delegates from every county in the state were present this morning when the Prohibition State Convention was called to order. The convention will nominate a full state ticket and make plans for a vigorous campaign. Prominent among those in attendance is Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, chairman of the Prohibition National Committee.

THE CUBAN REPUBLICS FULLY ESTABLISED

The Little Island Takes Its Place Amongst the Nations

PRESIDENT AND CONGRESS.

A Public Holiday—The United States to withdraw from the Island—The Cuban Flag Raised

Newmarket, May 21—William Brock of the last South African contingent has written home, relating an incident which has been duplicated many times during the campaign—a fight between two detachments of British soldiers. This time it was the English regulars and the Canadian volunteers who had a bit of a skirmish, and Brock claims that the colonials, fighting in the open and from a block house, forced the regulars, who were in three block houses, to cease firing on them by sheer daring and the accuracy of their fire. The letter says:

"There is talk of the war soon drawing to a close, but I cannot see it myself, for there are as many Boers in the field now as when we came out here over eleven months ago, despite the fact that thousands have been captured in the meantime. There were two columns around us last week, and they were not gone two hours before several Boers were in the sky line in front of us. They just play a game of hide and go seek, so it seems.

"Another fellow and I, of troop 15, went out just lately where the Boers have a small laager to capture a stray horse, and while coming back No. 13 troop took us for Boers, and three posts opened fire on us. We were in a regular cross fire from 18 m[illegible]. They poured about 300 or 400 rounds into us. We had to let the horse go and with our own horses seek shelter down in the spruit. I just tell you, boys, it is exciting to hear the shriek of the bullets, but we got to camp all right, if we did have a close shave, and in the meantime our blockhouse opened fire on the English posts who were firing on us, and forced them to take shelter. So you see it was the English and Canadians that time. It was great sport while it lasted, but I guess they will be more particular who they fire on after this.

"We have 40 men in the hospital yet. Another died last week, by the name of James Stevenson. He was getting along fine, but one night he and another fellow got something to eat from someone, and it killed them both. A hard boiled egg was taken from Stevenson's stomach."

Celebrates Fiftieth Anniversary

Special to The Times.

Washington, D.C., May 20 — The army and navy of the United States and leading railroads and industrial concerns in all parts of this country and Canada are represented among the civil engineers who have gathered here for the annual meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers. The meeting, which will be in session four days, is of more than ordinary interest to the members, as it marks the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the society. The first session was held this morning at the Willard Hotel and included addresses of welcome and the annual address of the President, J. J. R. Cross.

Items of Interest

Special to The Times.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 20 — The Y.M.C.A. auditorium was filled to overflowing with prominent physicians and surgeons this morning when the forty-fifth annual convention of the Missouri Medical society was called to order. The opening session was given over to addresses of welcome, general business and appointment of committees. The discussion of various important topics along professional lines was commenced this afternoon. These discussions are to continue through Thursday and promise to be of unusual note. This evening a session will be held at Lake Contrary, the principal feature of which will be the annual address of the President, Dr. J. D. Griffith, of Kansas City. Much interest centres in the session to be held to-morrow afternoon, when there will be a symposium on cancer. Drs. Roswell Park of Buffalo and Nicholas Senn of Chicago, two of the foremost cancer specialists in America, will lead the discussions.

London, May 21.—The Times announces that the coronation choir will number 400, and will be picked from the best choirs in England. There will be an orchestra of eighty, selected from King Edward's own bandsmen and other notable bodies. All music will be directed by Sir Frederick Bridge, organist of Westminster Abbey, whose new coronation anthem will be sung during the homage.

Fanfares on silver trumpets will be a great feature of the Coronation music, and they will be played by twelve musicians from the Tower of London.

Ben Davis will be one of the solo singers.

Havana, Cuba, May 20. — The new Cuban Republic was ushered in with fitting ceremonies to-day. It was a fete day throughout the island, a day to which every patriotic man, woman and child has been looking forward since earliest recollection—the day of Cuban freedom. In the capital it was ushered in with booming of cannon, the playing of bands, the discharge of fireworks and other noisy manifestations of the people's delight. It was a holiday everywhere. Business was almost entirely suspended, while the people gave themselves up to the full enjoyment of the occasion. The Cuban flag was everywhere displayed, but scarcely less in evidence was the Stars and Stripes.

At an early hour people began to assemble about the palace where the ceremonies of the day—the transfer of the insular government from the United States to the newly elected officials of the republic—were held. True republican simplicity marked the launching of the latest-born among the family of nations, but the ceremonies nevertheless were extremely impressive. The hall in which the ceremonies were held was crowded with notables. The chief actors were General Wood, the retiring Governor of the island, and his staff, and Senor Tomas Estrador Palma, President of the new republic, and other officials of the new insular government.

General Wood made a brief speech, stating, in substance, that he had received notification of the election of the President and Congress; that this newly elected body had signified its readiness to undertake the grave responsibilities of government, and that the hour for the inception of its duties had arrived. In the name of the United States he charged it with the significance of the terms of the Paris Treaty, and called upon it to subscribe to a faithful compliance with the stipulations of the Platt amendment.

President Palma replied in the name of himself and his companions. He asked General Wood to inform President Roosevelt and the people of the United States of the Cuban's gratitude for the fulfilment of their desires and aspirations to be an independent people.

These brief ceremonies concluded, the Cuban Government was declared to be in force, its flag raised over the palace and the change of authority publicly proclaimed. The church bells through Havana were rung in joyous celebration of the event and a solemn high mass of thanksgiving was celebrated in the cathedral. In the afternoon General Wood, with his staff, went aboard the cruiser Brooklyn, which is to convey him to Washington.

THE TOWN COMNCIL

Council then adjourned.

Peace Negotiations

London, May 21.—It is thought at Brussels, says the Times' correspondent, that the announcement in Amsterdam of the breakdown of the South African peace negotiations is devoid of serious foundation. The Patriote publishes extracts from a Transvaal correspondent It says peace will be declared May 25, and that the final conditions include limited autonomy under British protectorate, and amnesty for prisoners except Cape rebels.

A plainspoken ship's officer has given us the most graphic account of the century's disaster on the island of Martinique, simply because he told the tale of the awful occurrence just as it was burned and seared into his mind at the time. But a host of journalists are hurrying to the scene and we will have all sorts of fantastic word pictures and weird imaginings for the next six months, few of which will throw very much additional light on the affair.

THE END OF THE WAR

There is a prospect that peace may realized after all, before the coronation. "Tis a consummation devoutly to be wished." Both parties are willing, apparently, to make concessions. Independence is not to be thought of, and England would be willing to fight for another three years, rather than concede it, and yet there probably will be the promise of autonomy, limited self-government after a certain time, and in other respects the utmost will be done to assuage the feelings of the Boers, who have proved so tough an enemy—an enemy which is still able to fight, who could prolong the war for at least another half year, and whom it is the policy of wisdom to conciliate, so long as such conciliation does not touch any of the objects for which the war was fought. It will be an immense relief to England when the announcement is made that the war is over. The strain has been enormous. The waste of life has been prodigious, nor can there be, by the nature of the case, the bare show of recompense. And after peace—what? Will the Boers accept the inevitable, and make the best of the new situation, so wofully different from that which they promised themselves when Kruger made war with a light heart, or will they nurse resentments which will one day burst out in flame? They are still fighting the hated Sassench in Ireland yet, and that old grudge is seven hundred years old. It is earnestly to be hoped that nothing will be left undone which can in any way lessen the feelings of hatred and distrust with which the remnant of the Boers will commence a new area of their existence.

THE TEMPERANCE TOWN

A little sidelight on the question as to whether prohibition prohibits is to be found in Prince Edward Island. This is a prohibition province, where, after due notice, the legal sale of alcoholic beverages was stopped. A few days ago an inquest was held in Charlottetown on a man who went to sleep and passed away, despite all efforts to waken him. The evidence showed that the deceased had had several drinks of what was described by one witness as "temperance beer"; that he and some companions had several drinks of what was admitted to be whiskey from a bottle which a seafaring man who had called at the house conveniently happened to have left behind him; that he and his companions had other drinks of whiskey in another house, where the strange presence of the liquor remains unexplained. The jury, after hearing all the evidence, came to the conclusion that the deceased "came to his death from the effects of the excessive use of alcoholic liquors, aggravated by exposure and want of nourishment." The moral of which is that it is safe to shun the "temperate beer" establishment of the Prohibition town as one would the free lunch counter "sample room" of the community where prohibition is not practised

A BOARD OF TRADE BUILDING

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I believe that the time is near at hand, if not here, when Peterborough should have a Board of Trade building. Such a move would result in building up a strong Board of Trade. Peterborough is destined to be one of the leading cities of the Dominion and its merchants and business men should have faith in its future, and show it in the way I have suggested.

F.M.

STOP THE PEDLARS

Editor Morning Times,

Sir,—I notice that pedling is quite in vogue here, and all sorts of articles are carried from door to door and offered for sale What is the Merchant's Retail Association doing about it? I understood that this kind of thing was to cease!

Some time ago a party came to town and did considerable business. It was under a head man and each day they took different parts of the town. They'd go to a house and when the housewife would come to the door the young man on the door-step would hand her a bottle of medicine, some new thing "they were introducing, which would cure anything from smallpox to enlargement of the heart." The bottles they were giving away were regular dollar bottles. The lady as a rule would take the bottle and say "thank you," but a moment after the pedlar would pull another smaller bottle out of his sack, with—

"Now that I've given you a dollar bottle of medicine for nothing, you'll surely not refuse to take one of these bottles of liniment for 25 cents."

The lady having taken the other bottle could scarcely refuse to buy the 25 cent liniment.

I think that these pedlars who are swarming about the town should be stopped in justice to the merchants, who pay taxes, and help to keep up the town. Why, they sell everything, even collars and ties, now, and I'll bet half of them haven't licenses. It is a great injustice to the merchants and as a rule those who buy pay double prices.

A MERCHANT.

THE CORONATION OATH

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—Will The Times be good enough to publish the full text of the coronation oath, which is shortly to be taken by King Edward. Is there anything offensive to Roman Catholics in the oath?

A READER

Reply.—There is nothing offensive to Roman Catholics in the oath; the offence lay in the Declaration which the sovereign takes on his accession. The oath is as follows, in the form of questions put by the Archbishop of Canterbury, answered by the King, who swears to carry out the promises made in the answers:

Archbishop—Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of this United Kingdom of Great Britain, and Ireland and the dominions thereto belonging according to the statutes in Parliament agreed to, and the respective laws and customs of the same?

King—I solemnly promise to do so.

Archbishop—Will you to your power cause law, and justice, in mercy, to be executed in all your judgments?

King—I will.

Archbishop—Will you to the utmost of your power maintain the laws of God, the true profession of the Gospel and the Protestant reformed religion established by law? And will you maintain and preserve inviolably the settlement of the Church of England and of Ireland, and the doctrine, worship, discipline and government thereof, as by law established within England and Ireland, and the territories thereunto belonging? And will you preserve unto the Bishops and clergy of England and Ireland, and to the churches there committed to their charge, all such rights and privileges, as by law door shall appertain to them or any of them?

King.—All this I promise to do. The things which I have heretofore promised I will perform and keep. So help me God.

The Declaration, however is as follows:

"I (——) do solemnly and sincerely in the presence of God profess and declare that I do believe that in the sacrament of the Lord's supper there is not any transubstantiation of the elements of bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ at or after the consecration thereof by any person whatsoever: and that the invocation or adoration of the Virgin Mary or any other saint and the sacrifice of the mass as they are now used in the church of Rome are superstitious And I do solemnly in the presence of God profess, testify and declare that I do make this declaration and every part thereof in the plain and ordinary sense of the words read unto me, as they are commonly understood by English Protestants without any evasion, equivocation or mental reservation whatsoever, and without any dispensation already granted me me for this purpose by the Pope or any authority or person whatsoever, or without any hope of any such dispensation from any person or authority whatsoever, or without thinking that I am or can be acquitted before God or man or absolved of this declaration or any part thereof, although the Pope or any other person or persons or power whatsoever should dispense with or annul the same or declare that it was null and void from the beginning."

What Makes the Home?

Not the house, however fine it may be; not its furniture, pictures and appointments. The wife and mother makes the home, and to speak of going home means to go back into the shelter of the mother's love and care.

And when womanly ills sap the mother's strength, the home-life suffers. The food is not cooked as she cooks it.

Everywhere the lack of wifely supervision and motherly thoughtfulness is apparent.

What a change, then, when this wife and mother comes back to take her old place in the family. Thousands of women who, because of womanly ills, had been shut out of home life and home happiness, have been enabled to once more take their place in the family after being cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"I commenced taking your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' about the 10th of last December one year ago," writes Mrs. Eliza Wright, of Mountainview, Howell Co., Missouri. "I have been very slow about writing to you, although I am thankful I am here to-day and have the privilege of saying I thank you a thousand times for your kind advice. I can truthfully say that it was through your kind advice and your medicine and the will of the Lord that I am living to-day; I am in better health than I have been for three years. I have taken one-half dozen bottles of each medicine. I am able to do my washing for four in family, and all my housework, cooking and milking. In fact, I feel like a new woman."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its almost countless consequences. They do not react on the system nor beget the pill habit.

To Greet French Visitors

Washington, D.C., May 20 — Several vessels of the North Atlantic squadron left to-day to meet the French warship Gaulois, which has on board the distinguished delegations appointed to represent the French Government at the Rochambeau monument dedication. The Gaulois will be escorted from the Capes to Hampton Roads, to be met by the remainder of the North Atlantic squadron, which will convey her to Annapolis. If the French vessel arrives on schedule time the visitors will be formally welcomed at Annapolis to-morrow by the President's commission, and the following day will come to this city.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, after this notice has been posted up for one month in six public places in the Municipality and published weekly for four successive weeks in a newspaper published in the Municipality, the Council of the Town of Peterborough propose to pass a by-law authorizing the Peterborough Radial Railway Company to lay out, construct and operate its railway on, upon and along any of the streets of the Town of Peterborough (except Crescent street).

The said Council will at its regular meeting to be held on the 2nd day of June, 1902, hear in person or by counsel anyone whose property may be prejudicially affected by such proposed railway, who desires to be heard, and any person so heard may appeal to the Railway Committee of the Executive Council of Ontario against such By-law.

The proposed agreement for such franchise is on file in the office of the Town Clerk and may be examined by anyone interested.

Dated this 6th day of May, 1902.

Curious Bits of News.

The number of retail liquor dealers in the United States at the close of last year was 206,000. The total vote of the Prohibition party in the election of the same year was 209,000.

In the bottom of a strawberry-box opened at Hutchinson, Kan., the other day, the following note was found written on the smooth wood: "I am Cora Marsh, aged sixteen, of Logan, Mo. Never been kissed."

A man in Ray County, Mo., became convinced recently that he had incipient consumption. Every time he drew a full breath he heard a crackling sound. A doctor discovered that the crackling sound was made by a small buckle on his suspender.

A curious old custom was recently revived at Great Oakley, England, where parish lands were let by "pin in candle." The local clergyman presided. A pin is inserted in a burning candle, and so long as it remains in its tallow resting-place bids are taken. The last bidder before the pin drops is declared the tenant for the year.

A Paris schoolmaster has petitioned the French Chamber against kings still reigning on French playing cards. He suggests kings should be replaced by pictures of Thiers, MacMahon, Grevy, and Carnot; and queens by equally prominent women Republicans. The Parliamentary Commission sitting on the petition has replied that the change is impossible, since it would ruin quite a number of playing-card factories.

What is probably the most extraordinary plant ever discovered has now been found by E. A. Saverkrop, of Philadelphia, who, during trips to South America, has for some years been contributing to the collection of his friend, Professor N. E. Brown, of the Herbarium, Kew Gardens, London. The amazing plant which Mr. Saverkrop has now found is an orchid that takes a drink whenever it feels thirsty by letting down a tube into the water, the tube, when not in use, being coiled up on top of the plant.

Baltimore, Md., had a bulldog until recently, that made a practice of milking cows in the fields. Just how the dog formed the habit is not known, but it is thought he acquired it by following the example of calves. He had often been seen with the many cows in pasture about Mount Washington across a cow's back while she was lying down. His appetite for milk grew so strong that he was not satisfied with part of the supply, but wanted it all, and attacked a dairymaid who went into her barnyard to milk. He was despatched by a policeman with a revolver.

He—You have a headache, you say?
She—Yes, I have.
"Do you suffer much from headache?"
"Yes; always when I have it."—Yonkers Statesman.

A pretty girl boarded a crowded street car in Washington, and a pompous old gentleman arose and gave her a seat.

After some time a number of passengers got out, and the old gentleman sank into the nearest corner with a weary sigh.

"I wouldn't get up again," he murmured, "for an angel," and then, as he caught the eyes of the girl fixed upon him reproachfully, he added quickly, "I mean, madam, for another angel!"—Harper's Magazine.

Have Women Intuition?

In a recent magazine article William S. Walsh discusses the question, "Have Women Intuition?" He does not throw bouquets to feminine vanity, for he writes:

Literature is the final expression of human thought. If women can lay claim to a special faculty of intuition, why do they not manifest it in their writings? Intuition, if it means anything, means the faculty that gets down to the germ of actions and characteristics and focuses external traits into a central verity recognizable to the general public. Now there are more female writers than male. No woman poet has ever written an inevitable line, a line that flashes spontaneously out of the unknown and casts an illuminating light upon the abyss. Woman has added practically nothing to our stock of familiar quotations. Take down your Bartlett or your anthology, and you may be surprised to find that from Mrs. Browning to Mrs. Meynell women have never coined a phrase which has passed into the common currency of speech. Mrs. Browning has indeed written fine lines, but nothing of hers can be said to have become a household word.

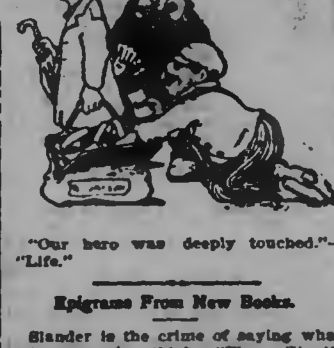
Nor has any woman novelist created any character that is generally recognized as typical. George Eliot has come closest with her Tito Melema and Mrs. Poyser. You would appeal only to the educated few if you described a person as a Tito or a Poyser. But call a man a Don Quixote, a Micawber, a Dogberry, a Falstaff, a Colonel Newcome, a Blifil, a Parson Adams, a Bob Acres; call a woman a Mrs. Malaprop, a Becky Sharp, a Beatrice, a Diana Vernon, a Meg Merrilies, and even the illiterate will mentally classify the individual as you wish him or her to be classified.

"Ah, but," you say, "in real life women are the true intuitions. They size up a man or a woman at a glance. They are never mistaken when they trust to their instincts."

I can only testify to my own experience. I have not found that women's snap judgments of character are imbued with any special verity. They form likes or dislikes quicker than man does, because they are quicker on the trigger of conjecture. They can only be one of two things—right or wrong. If time proves that they are right, as they must be in fifty per cent. of cases, the right guess is remembered and treasured up by the slower-minded man as an extraordinary instance of intuition. The wrong guess is forgotten.

Mary Anderson's Advice to Stage-Struck Girls.

Mrs. Antonio de Navarro, better known as Mary Anderson, has written a striking preface to Clara Morris's "Life on the Stage," which is on the eve of publication in England. In a glowing tribute to the American actress, Mrs. de Navarro declares: "She is the greatest emotional actress I ever saw," and adds the significant warning to stage-struck girls: "I hope she who writes this work will help to stem the tide of girls who so blindly rush into a profession of which they are ignorant, for which they are unfitted, and in which dangers unnumbered lurk on all sides. If, with Clara Morris's power and charm, so much had to be suffered, what is, what must be, the lot of so many mediocrities who pass the same fires with no reward in the end?"



"Our hero was deeply touched."—"Life."

Cecil Rhodes.

Great a figure as Cecil Rhodes was in the public eye, it may be doubted whether many people have a clear idea as to the steps by which his career was built up. That he went to South Africa for his health and returned to England to take his Oxford degree; that he made a great fortune—though smaller than that of some American multi-millionaires—out of diamonds, in part by means of an amalgamation of interests; that he "acquired" Rhodesia, became Premier of Cape Colony, came to his political downfall through the Jameson Raid, and was shut up in Kimberley; these are the main facts of his career which are well known. But main facts do not invariably supply the key to the motives and purposes of a man's life, and the ideas which filled Cecil Rhodes' mind and governed his actions have had a profound influence upon the development of a country in which we in Canada have within the past three years been forced to take a deep interest.

The question of motive may be glanced at first. The extended biography which The Times published notes the remarkably successful start which Mr. Rhodes made in South Africa, when, strating as a lad of eighteen he in a year or two became a rich man. The Times says:—

"His interest in the country in which he had enjoyed two years of such strangely fortunate experience was by this time keenly stirred, and before returning to Oxford he made a journey into the north, which is of interest as having first suggested to him the great capabilities for British development of the country lying to the north of the Orange and Vaal Rivers. His trip took him as far north as Mafeking; thence to Pretoria, Murchison, Middleburg and back through the Transvaal to Kimberley. It was made in an ox waggon, at a time when the country was little known, and there were no means of communication. It occupied eight months. The rate of progression of an ox waggon is not more than from fifteen to twenty miles a day. The trip represented a walking tour of eight months through the wide-spreading solitudes of rolling veldt which filled those regions of central Africa.

"In 1872 the Boers had only been established some twenty years in the Transvaal. They were a purely pastoral, hunting, and fighting people, with a strong religious strain, deserving of respect for the sturdy independence and devotion to their own ideals which characterized them, but rude in their customs and primitive almost to the point of barbarism in their habits of life and thought. They were very frugal, very poor, without the conception of a possible development for their country than that represented by the increase of flocks and herds upon the land. Living generally in isolation upon the vast extents of grazing ground best suited to the multiplication of this form of wealth, they were wholly lacking in the intellectual stimulus which results from the interchange of opinion in the urban centres of population. Their political organization was of the simplest, amounting to little more than a patriarchal form of despotism, tempered by the individual liberty almost necessarily enjoyed during the greater part of his existence by the hunter and the herdsman on the plains. Each father of a family made for himself the laws of daily life. The rifle and the stock-whip hung side by side above every hearth. The one serious danger by which the State was threatened came from unnumbered hordes of hostile natives, who hung upon the uncertain limits of white occupation, with perpetual menace of massacre and desolation. The only bonds which drew the scattered homesteads into community were bonds of common faith and self-defence. Political unity could hardly be said to exist among a people who were unwilling to submit to taxation for common purposes. There is no reason for surprise if to a young Englishman already conversant with the methods of a developed civilization the Transvaal of that day presented the aspect rather of a rough new settlement in flux than of any fixed political organization having claim to the dignity of a nation.

"Mr. Rhodes' acquaintance with the agricultural possibilities of the South African soil in Natal, and the practical demonstration that he had received of its mineral wealth at Kimberley, combined with his personal experience of the hygienic properties of the climate to render him more appreciative than the ordinary lad of nineteen of the value of the apparently limitless area suitable to white settlement, of which his solitary trip took him over a small portion. Two years spent far from home produced on him an effect not unknown to travellers of a riper age. The latent patriotism which we all believe ourselves to share with our fellow-taxpayers had grown into a conscious sentiment. England had become a thing to love. During that eight months' silent tramp across the veldt the foundation appears to have been laid of the policy to which Mr. Rhodes' career was afterwards devoted. He has described in intimate conversation the persistence with which the thought accompanied him day by day, that the fine country through which he moved should in the future be thronged with a British population, and that no power but Great Britain should be allowed to dominate in South Africa. He saw enough to convince him of the great value of the unclaimed northern territory, and made up his mind that it must be British. Asked once in later life whether he had at that time conceived any definite scheme for bringing the country under British influence, he answered honestly in the negative. 'No,' he said, 'I only just felt each day as I looked down at the earth and up at the sky that it ought to belong to England.'"

Once upon a time Mayor Low was travelling through Germany with a party of friends. Being an excellent German linguist, he was the spokesman for the company. Upon one occasion he and his friends visited a beer garden, and after seating themselves, preparatory to having some refreshments, the pleasant duty of ordering the same fell upon Mr. Low, as usual. For once, however, he hesitated, his memory seeming to desert him. Finally after vain attempts to recall the missing word, he turned to his waiting friends, appealingly, saying:

"You will have to help me out, for I cannot for the life of me remember the German word for beer."—New York Times.

Interesting Items.

Mount Sir Donald, in the Canadian Rockies, which rises to the height of 10,700 feet, has just been conquered for the first time by the foot of woman. Mrs. Berens, the successful climber, is a young Englishwoman hailing from Kent. While at Glacier, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, on her honeymoon trip round the world, she heard that very few men and no woman had ever set foot on the summit of Sir Donald. So she resolved to make the ascent, and was all the more anxious to do so as she heard that a Philadelphia lady had expressed her intention of being the first up. Mrs. Berens successfully accomplished the climb, though she had several very narrow escapes.

The other day, when the jury in a murder trial in the Louisville courts had retired to their room, the foreman said: "Gentlemen, this is a serious case we have to decide. A man's life may be forfeited by our decision. How many Christians are among us?" Nine men raised their hands. "Will one of you pray?" asked the foreman. One of the oldest jurors said he would do his best. All knelt, and a most earnest and impressive prayer was offered. Balloting was then begun. Several jurors were in favor of a life sentence, and others for terms as short as eight years. The jury finally agreed on eighteen years.

John Dillon's outbreak in the House of Commons the other day, when he called Joseph Chamberlain a "damned liar," reminds one of the speech of Mr. Martin, a member for Galway, in 1789, which absolutely defies reproduction. He denounced a fellow-member in language of unprintable disgust, and could not resist the temptation of applying his words also to the member's sister, who sat in the gallery of the House of Commons at the time. "These Ponsonby's," he burst out, "are the curse of my country. They are ——, personally and politically, from that toothless old hag who is now grinning in the gallery, to the white-livered scoundrel who is now shivering on the floor."

A most interesting light is thrown on the approaches toward civilization made by the people who dwelt in caverns in France during the stone age by the discovery of a great number of drawings of animals on the walls of an ancient cave at Combarelles, in South-western France. Many of the drawings, which represent, with surprising skill, reindeer, mammoths and other animals now extinct in Southern and Western Europe, have become covered in the course of time with thick layers of stalagmite. Among the most interesting pictures are some which represent horselike animals belonging to two different species, and some of these animals have halters and other attachments, plainly showing that they had been subjected to the service of man.

It was only a short time ago that the table telephone became an adjunct of Chicago restaurants where business and professional men spend a few necessary moments away from the busy affairs of the day. Now comes another development in the telephone service, which promises to become a universal and indispensable feature of railway trains. The Chicago and North-western Railway recently equipped a new train, known as the "Overland Limited," for service between that city and the Pacific Coast. Amongst its features is a telephone, installed in the observation car, from which connection can be made with any telephone system along the route. A special wire of the local telephone company is dropped over the roof of the car and run through an opening to the instrument in the car, and by means of a "monkey," or wall jacket, connection is made. The passenger desiring to telephone to any part of the city or communicate with a long-distance point is thus enabled to do so, without leaving the cars, while the train stops at a station.

She Got the Potatoes.

The man who forgets the obligations in the way of shopping imposed upon him by the women of his family when he leaves the house is not rare enough to excite curiosity, but the woman with sufficient tact and wit to checkmate this loss of memory is. One such lives in Pennsylvania. The Philadelphia "Record" says that she had labored for several days to impress upon her husband the necessity of sending home a bag of potatoes.

At last, when all her persuasions and injunctions had failed, she surprised him one morning by handing him a sealed letter, and asking him with great seriousness not to open it until he reached his place of business. All the way down town he thought of the strange request, and he no sooner entered his office than he tore open the letter. This is what he read:

"Dear John—For some time past I have thought long and earnestly on what I have to say to you, and I have decided that this is the best method to communicate it. I have hesitated several times about writing to you in this way, but I find that I cannot conceal my thoughts longer. I must and will tell you all."

Here John's hair began to rise, but he heroically turned over the page and read on: "The potatoes have been out for a week. Please send home a bag. I thought by this method you would not be likely to forget."

The potatoes went up to the house that morning.

His Thirteenth Question.

Little Clarence (with a rising inflection)—Pa?

Mr. Callipers (wearily)—Uh?

Little Clarence—Pa, how do angels get their night-gowns on over their wings?—"Judge."

His Non-Progressiveness.

Farmer Dunk—That 'ere hired man of yourn is pretty slow, ain't he, Ezry?

Farmer Hornbeak—Yuss. He's too gol-vummed slow to make a successful pall-bearer.—"Judge."

"Is your husband a good provider?" asked the sympathetic visitor. "Indeed he is, mum. He got me three new places to wash last week."—"Youth's Companion."

Fables For the Fair.

A LITTLE work called "Fables for the Fair," by Josephine Dodge Daskam, is attracting amused notice in London, where it is published. Here is an example of the fables:

"There was once a woman who had the opportunity of marrying either of two brothers she preferred. Since they had both of them good points she decided to consult their sister as to which in her opinion would make the best husband. 'I think,' she said, 'that I shall take John. He is so good.' "'But,' said the sister, 'he gobbles his soup and sugars his lettuce. To say nothing of buttering his bread in slabs. We have never been able to teach him better.' 'But he reads Browning so beautifully,' cried the woman. 'You will hear him eat soup oftener than you will hear him read Browning,' said the sister."

Then, as to the other brother, "I am sure he would give his life for me," cried the woman. "If you will pause and consider," replied the sister, "you will realise that the probabilities of his being called upon to do that are very few indeed. Whereas the fact that he is very careless about brushing his clothes will be daily apparent to you."

The book is full of good things, among them the fable of a singer who sang "Annie Laurie" in a muslin gown to a country audience. "Goodness alive!" said they, "is that all? Our Jenny knows that piece." But the rival wore silver brocade and sang in German and French, whereupon the country paper remarked that "it was a real pleasure to hear old favorites rendered with such spirit." This teaches us that when in Rome we should do as the Romans don't.

Then there is the fable of the woman who could not help herself:

"There was once a woman who had never learned how to swim, although she went in bathing every day in the summer. She had a friend who had acquired the art with some trouble, and was very proud of her proficiency in it. 'It is absurd,' said this friend, 'to live near the water and not swim. It makes you very attractive to good swimmers if you can go out with them and they do not feel that you are a drag on their pleasures. What would you do in case you fell off the pier? Now watch me!' With these words she dived off into the water and swam about by herself. 'It is a good thing to have a woman swim so well,' said one of the men near by. 'Now if any of the children fall into the water she can rescue them.' Just then the woman who could not help herself uttered a scream and fell into the sea. Instantly five men leaped in to rescue her, and spent the rest of the day resuscitating her and enquiring how she was, leaving the swimmer to dive by herself. This teaches that nothing succeeds like distress."

On the 'Gyptian Railway.

FIRST TOURIST—Isn't this lovely? Just think! Pharaoh lived here, and — and Cheops, and — and Moses! It makes your head swim, doesn't it?

Second Tourist—I expect it's the bad air. It hurts my head, too. Is that the Nile over there?

"Mercy! I suppose so. Isn't it dirty? It doesn't seem as if Cleopatra could have rode in her barge to meet Marc Antony down that horrid stream, does it!"

"No, it doesn't. But that was a long time ago, wasn't it?"

"I believe so. I've seen the play, but I don't remember just when it was."

"See that crocodile basking in the sun!"

"Is he basking? Oh, Maud, that reminds me. How are you going to have your new basque trimmed?"

"Mercy, there's the Sphinx!"

"What's the Sphinx?"

"Why, it's a thing that asked you riddles, you know. Dear me, I'm not sure whether that's the Sphinx or one of the Pyramids. Just look at all those children! They must be going in for swimming."

"No, dear, it's the effect of the mild climate."

"Look there! That must be the desert. But I can't see any caravans. Perhaps it isn't a desert. Perhaps it's a mirage."

"What's a mirage, dear?"

"Oh, it's something they see in deserts. Everything is upside down, you know."

"Isn't that awful? Oh, see that handsome native? What a picture! He must be a sheikh at least. What's he doing?"

"He's playing on the concertina and passing his hat."

"What a shame! Isn't it nice to travel on a railroad where they don't have any smoke or cinders?"

"Yes, and do you notice what a balmy odor comes in at the window?"

"Yes. Isn't it fragrant? So spicy. Can't you smell the cloves? Ah-a-a, I like to breathe it in."

"So do I. I'll ask the conductor what it is. There he is. Conductor, please!"

The conductor—Yes, ma'am?

"Conductor, where does that spicy smell come from?"

"From the locomotive, ma'am. We use nothing but mummies for fuel on this line, ma'am."

One of Tom Reed's Retorts.

"No matter what you may say," declared Representative Babcock of Wisconsin to Chairman Payne of the Ways and Means Committee when discussing the Babcock proposition to put all steel products on the free list, "I am right, and I know it, and when a man is right he is in the majority." "Just so," replied Payne, "but you remember that Tom Reed used to say, 'God and one make a majority, but many a martyr has been burned at the stake while the votes were being counted.'"

The Real Reason.

A visitor to Dublin refused the services of a driver because of his ragged clothing. "Ah, sur," replied the Jarvie's friend, "you must excuse him, sur; he can't help it."

"Why can't he help it? Why does his wife not mend his clothes for him?"

"Ah, your honor, he has no wife."

"Then why doesn't he get another coat?" "He can't, sur, I assure you he can't."

"Why can't he?" "Well, sur, it has been tried once or twice, but it can't be done. He is so very ticklesome that divil a tailor in Dublin daar lay a tape on him."

The Scientific Crook.

WE seem threatened with a new variety of crook—the scientific. According to very circumstantial reports from Washington, the experts of the Treasury Department have been experimenting with a new chemical compound said to rob steel of its temper, and hence making safe-cracking easy. This compound, called thermite, is reputed to possess marvelous virtues. When mixed with magnesium powder it will destroy the hardness of a metal, enabling a burglar to cut through the best steel as if it were lead. A five-eighths-of-an-inch tempered steel plate was so pierced. The newspaper accounts do not fail to say quaky things of how cracksmen have already put these discoveries to practical use. Owners of strong-boxes are advised not to sleep too well o' nights. All this is very interesting if it happens to be true. The profession, it may be observed, has never been slow to make improvements. It was a great day for the grafter fraternity when dynamite came to town. They took up with it at once. Popular fancy endows the knock-out fiend with a large knowledge of chemistry. There is hardly any branch of Deviousness that has not participated in the unparalleled advances of the times. And much may be looked for. Sir James Crichton Browne spoke not long ago, in England, on the improvements of the poisoners' art. He pointed out the immense possibilities that lie in cultures of deadly bacteria, to say nothing of some of the recent chemical preparations. The real art, he contended, is not simply in defying detection, but in not arousing suspicion. All the famous poisoners of the Middle Ages were, in his view, a clumsy lot. It was the same old story always—arsenic, arsenic, arsenic. The tales of the magical potions of those days were fables. The Borgias would gurgle with delight before the resources of the present day. The picture drawn by the eminent English physician was not so very reassuring to them as actively cultivate the luxury of enemies, but it is safe to say that whatever be the possibilities, they will never be realized to any great extent. The fact is that any man on vengeance bound who started in to perfect himself in this line would get so interested in his experiments that he would forget all about his plot. That is one of the beauties of modern science.

Some Roycroft Humor.

THERE is a story, writes Elbert Hubbard, that bears upon its features the mellow tinge of time, to the effect that Ralph Waldo Emerson once got up in the middle of the night and, in the course of his gropings, fell over a chair or two and knocked down the family what-not. Mrs. Emerson felt softly for her mate, and finding that he was not there guessed the source of the confusion, and called in alarm, "Waldo, Waldo! are you ill?" And the placid answer was, "No, my dear: only an idea."

So that is the story, but the new version runs this way: Mr. Emerson got up in the middle of the night, and, after falling over the family rocking-chair and knocking a plaster of paris cast off the mantel, was accosted by his good wife thus: "Are you ill, Waldo?" And there was no answer—save the scratching of matches on wall, floor, bureau and chairs. This was in the day when matches came in sticks, and you broke them off.

The lady heard the matches split off, and then she heard the scrape and scratch. "Are you ill, Waldo?" again she called in alarm. "Ill! Ill nothing—why don't you say sick?—there is no one listening. No, I am not ill. I have an idea, and wanted to write it down, but these confounded cheap matches you bought of that Connecticut peddler will not light—plague take everything that comes from Connecticut, say I!" Then there was a final scratch on the wall, and philosophy came to Mr. Compensation's rescue, as he said, "Well, well, it wasn't much of an idea, anyway; besides that, I've really forgotten what it was." And he crawled back into bed. In the morning Mrs. Emerson discovered that every tooth had been broken out of her high-back comb.

Cosmopolitan New York.

The new Cathedral of St. John in New York will, in addition to its main hall, have seven "Chapels of Tongues" where German, Spanish, French, Swedish, Italian, Armenian and Chinese services will be held each Sunday. Nevertheless, by the time the great cathedral is finished it is not unlikely that the crypt and transepts and anterooms will be required for other nationalities. A clergyman called upon Bishop Potter the other day to ask that some provision might be made for religious services for some Mesopotamian immigrants.

"Really," replied the bishop, "cannot a handful of Mesopotamians be provided for in connection with your Armenian congregation?"

The young clergyman of the tenements smiled. "I do not know what you call a handful, sir. There are some eight hundred families of Mesopotamians within ten minutes' walk of where we are sitting this moment; and as for their attendance upon Armenian services, the languages have about as little in common as Greek and Choctaw."

The "Parthians and Medes and Elamites" are, perhaps, yet to come; but the most of the other nationalities mentioned as present in Jerusalem on the first Pentecost after the crucifixion are already represented in New York, and the problem now is the same as it was then.

Couldn't Figure It Up.

"Were there any trillionaires in ancient Rome?" we asked of the astute antiquarian.

"I think not," he replied. "You see, with the Roman system of numerals it would have required a carload of chalk and a blackboard as long as from here to Halifax to enable a man to figure up the interest on a million denarii at eight per cent. for one year, six months and twenty days, and by the time he had summed it up and secured a telescope to see the beginning of his figures the borrower would have died of old age."—"Judge."

DAISY GORDON'S FOLLY

—OR—

The World Lost for Love's Sake

By Laura Jean Libbey

Author of The Crime of Hallow-E'en, The Flirtations of a Beauty Willful Gaynell, Little Leafy, Only a Mechanic's Daughter

"Which means I am a man too far beyond the pale of society to be admitted into the presence of the fair ladies of your family, I suppose," rejoined St. John, with a hard, cynical laugh.

Alexander Hamilton flushed with annoyance.

"If you call for facts, sir, I must state you have taken exactly the right view of the case. You say you have business with me; I should be glad if you would proceed as expeditiously as possible —my time is limited this morning."

Again that low, hard laugh broke from Harold St. John's lips. He turned slowly and faced Aleck, eyeing him keenly, saying:

"If I should insist upon saying what I have come here to say before the 'ladies of your family,' as you express it, what would you do?"

"I should decline to hear anything you may have to say in their presence; for to breathe the same air with yourself, I hold, would be a contamination to them," returned Aleck, hotly. "As I said before, my time is limited; say what you have to say quickly.

"This man," he went on, turning to the squire, who stood looking on and listening to this strange dialogue in utter bewilderment, "is the one who had caused Miss Ruthven so much trouble. His character is so notorious you must know him by repute."

The squire recoiled in horror from the bold, handsome stranger, and he mentally wondered what business this man could possibly have with Aleck and himself.

"Not favorably impressed with me, I see," sneered St. John. "I might safely aver I would not find much favor as a son-in-law in your eyes my good squire."

The remark fairly took the squire's breath away. Aleck sprung forward white with rage; this was really too much for a man to endure.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The Test.

"Hold! Before you strike, you will do well to listen to my errand here today," said Harold St. John, coolly.

"My wife is within those walls, and I have come here to claim her — to summon her to my side by the right I have over her."

Both Aleck and the squire had started back in amazement; a thunderbolt falling from a clear sky could not have astounded them more.

The thought flitted through the minds of both that it was some of the servant-maids connected with the house that this villain had wooed and won. But how, when, or where, neither of them could conceive.

His wife! She should not have been under his roof a day had he known that, Aleck thought.

Aloud he said coldly if his visitor would name his wife as she was known to his household, she should be sent to him at once.

"Would you like to hear how I first met her?" asked St. John, delighting to torture his victim slowly.

"It could not possibly interest me," returned Aleck, drawing haughtily back; "and I believe I have voiced the sentiments of Squire Gordon in the matter."

"But it will interest you both, and vitally," sneered St. John, continuing: "It was when the squire here was comparatively a poor man that I met her, and it was while crossing his farm —close to the brook— that I first saw her."

His words had been like an electric shock to both the squire and Alexander Hamilton. It was the squire's voice that broke the ominous silence. A nameless horror had crept over him that he dare not put into words. What was it that this villain was trying to insinuate?

Now, the squire well knew that none of the old servants that were at the farmhouse were here —none save Margery.

It could not be she.

"She was fair as the morning," continued Harold St. John, "and you cannot wonder —bad man that I was —that I lost my heart to her at first sight. There was all the freshness and innocence of youth about her. I did not trifle with her as I might have done and left her like a broken lily, to pine away and die. She loved me in those days, and —— Well, to make a long story short, I wooed, and wedded her in the old gray church that stands on the brow of the hill, just back of the old farmhouse.

"Every one knows of that marriage," he went on, "for it was destined to have more publicity than I had bargained for; but I must not digress. To shield this young girl's name for a little while, I had the marriage license taken out in another name —this name I also gave to the minister who married us; that name was Lillian Ruthven; but I swear to you it was not Lillian Ruthven, the heiress, whom I wedded; you understand; I simply borrowed that name."

"Well?" said the squire, huskily.

"You should have divined long ere this what I have to tell you, Squire Gordon," said Harold St. John, boldly; "and that is, that the girl I wedded that night was one of your daughters, my dear sir."

"It is a lie—a most infamous, slanderous lie," ejaculated the squire. "How dare you utter it, you dastardly scoundrel? I have a mind to brain you where you stand! If your object is to extort money from me — a scheme of blackmail —you have utterly failed. Not a dollar do you get; on the contrary, I will make a public example of you, punishing you to the fullest extent of the law. My lovely daughters! dare as much as to breathe their name, and I will make you suffer for it."

"I expected to brave a storm of this kind," retorted St. John, leaning coolly against one of the beech trees, "and I am prepared for it. I still insist that I have spoken but the simple truth, if ever I spoke it in my life. I wonder you do not ask me which wife whom I have come here to claim."

"Aleck, do you hear this villain stand there and coolly defy me?" raged the squire; "put him out of the grounds at once —or call some of the servants to do it —or I shall be obliged to do it myself."

"When I go, my wife goes with me," declared Harold St. John, doggedly. "I ask you to send for her, and convince yourself in regard to the matter, before you make the affair a public scandal."

"Which young lady is it that you claim?" asked Aleck Hamilton sternly. "I am the champion of both of my wife's lovely sisters."

Harold St. John laughed aloud, as though there was something vastly amusing for him in what Aleck had said.

"I would see either Olive or Hetty dead at my feet before I would ask either of them to appear before this man to answer to his charge. I should not subject either of them to such a monstrous insult!"

At that moment they both observed Olive Gordon coming down the path.

Despite the old squire's brave assurance he trembled; the very tone of this man's voice carried conviction with it.

Seeing them, Olive hurried toward them, joining them before they had time to wave her back.

She looked in wonder at the rage-distorted face of her father —at Aleck's pale face, then at the dark, sneering face of the handsome stranger with them.

"I am sorry if I have intruded, papa," she said.

Squire Gordon had been in deadly fear.

He told himself it was Olive whom the villain claimed, there would be some flash of recognition on her face when her eyes fell upon St. John.

There was none, and the squire heaved a sigh of unutterable relief.

"Seeing you are here, I will ask you a question, Olive," he said. "Look at this man and tell me if you have ever seen him before"— pointing to St. John.

Olive looked at him intently.

"I have a faint recollection of seeing just such a face somewhere before," she answered, "but I cannot tell where or when, papa."

The squire smiled grimly.

If this man had wooed and wedded her, it was not likely that she would have forgotten easily that handsome, bold, defiant face.

"You may return to the house, my dear," he said.

Olive turned away wonderingly, but uttering no word, although her woman's curiosity was aroused wonderfully.

"Hold!" cried the squire, as she was walking away. "You may send your sister Hetty to me here at once. Not that I credit this man's story in the least," he added, turning to Aleck, "but I want to prove to you beyond a shadow of a doubt what a base lie this is."

"Be careful with your accusations until all your tests have been applied," said St. John. "I would not have brooked this much from a younger man. I am standing all this preliminary business with astonishing patience— the grand finale— expose —is all to come later. Remember the old proverb: 'He laughs best who laughs last.'"

Olive had hurried on to the house and up to her sister's room on her strange errand; but, much to her intense surprise, Hetty was not there— the pretty, low, French bed had not been slept in. Where was Hetty?

Then she remembered she had not seen her after nine o'clock on the pervious evening.

A sudden terror filled her heart, making her so faint and dizzy that she sunk down helpless in the nearest chair.

Had this stranger's presence anything to do with Hetty?

She rung the bell hurriedly, and Marie, Daisy's maid, answered the summons.

"Have you seen anything of Hetty?" she inquired, anxiously. "See, Marie— I may trust you, you are so faithful to our interests — her — her bed has not been slept in— where is Hetty?"

"You need not look so white, Miss Olive," returned the girl. "Miss Hetty is in her sister's room — where she has been all night. Mrs. Hamilton was not feeling so well as she might, so Miss Hetty begged to stay with her. They are both on the little porch now that leads out into the garden."

"Go and tell Hetty that papa wants her, please," said Olive. "He is in his usual place among the flowers."

"I will see what he wanted of her when she comes back," thought Olive. "If I were given to vivid imagination, I might almost fancy that handsome young fellow a burglar, and from the looks of the stern, awful faces of papa and Aleck, that they were trying to prove his identity.

And she laughed heartily at the idea— and it was the last laugh that rippled over Olive Gordon's lips for many a long year after.

The maid had given Hetty the message, and the obedient girl had started off toward the garden at once to obey that parental command.

"No doubt it is to show me that some of his favorite blossoms have budded," he thought, smiling as she walked along.

"Such a beautiful morning," she thought. "Ah, why didn't I think to bring Daisy with me!—she looks so white, so unearthly since that affair of last night. The sunshine and the breath of the dewy roses would do her good. She must come down to the rose- garden where papa is, with me."

(To be Continued.)

Mrs. Smith—I reckon our Jane has got a first-rate husband.

Mrs. Brown—Well, you ought to be thankful.

Mrs. Smith—I hope I am, 'Gusty. Of course, he isn't much to look at, and he ain't over smart; but there's one thing, and that is he's saving. Why, the very first day after the marriage he told Jane she'd better let him take the engagement ring back and get the money returned. He said there was no longer any use for her to wear it now that she was married.—Boston Transcript.

"Look at that bicycle," said a lady as she identified a machine in a cloakroom, and saw that it had been badly knocked about and was quite useless for riding purposes.

"Yes, ma'am. I've been looking at it," said the official.

"Why, it is all smashed to pieces!"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Well, what do you propose to do about it?"

"I'll report to the foreman, ma'am, and he'll report to the station master, the station master to the general manager, and he to the board of directors, and in three or four years a solicitor will call upon you to ask you why you didn't travel with your bicycle in a properly made case. That is the way we do."—London Answers.

"Henry!" said Mrs. Enpeck in a tone of voice that was meant to command attention.

"Yes, my dear," meekly answered Henry.

"I'm actually ashamed of you," said the strenuous half of the aggregation. "Are you aware that you deliberately yawned while Mrs. Neighbors was here this evening?"

"Of course I am, my dear," replied the unhappy man. "You certainly didn't expect me to sit all evening without opening my mouth, did you?"—Chicago News.

The New York Sun the other day printed a list of "fifty best American poems," whereupon a Princeton professor immediately wrote to the editor complaining of the failure to include any of Dr. Henry Van Dyke's poems. Surely, he wrote, there should have been a place for that exquisite masterpiece of his to which The Sun referred last fall, containing those never-to-be-forgotten lines:

"In spring time, the birds upon the tree
Sing tweedledum, tweedledum, tweedledum dee."

A Temptation Resisted.

IT was on the frontier. A woman stood in the door of the house, looking at a distant tendril of smoke that trailed in the sky, the smoke of the eastbound passenger train. She listened to the harsh creaking of the corn, and her face grew set.

"Rick had no right to bring me to such a place," she thought, forgetting how willingly she had come.

A man drove into the yard, tied his horse to the wheel of the wagon and came toward the house.

"Don't you know me, Kate?" he called loudly, to be heard above the wind.

"Why, George Gilbert, is it you?" she exclaimed. She held out her hand. "How did you ever happen to get here? Come right into the house. Rick's gone to town for coal."

The man followed her into the main room of the house, which served the double purpose of parlor and kitchen. In one corner stood the stove; above it a long shelf covered with neatly scalloped papers, on which stood the lamps and tinware. A safe with perforated tin doors was in another corner. A bit of ingrain carpet, a rocking chair and a round table with a red cover made the parlor.

"You see, I'm traveling for a grocery house," the man said, sitting down, "and I make Houston now, and your folks said I must be sure to come out and see you. How are you doing?"

"Doing!" Kate cried, scornfully looking around the room. "Can't you see Making just enough to keep soul and body together—corn fourteen cents and we're nine miles from market."

"Why don't you come back home?" he asked, leaning forward in his chair and noticing how much Kate had aged since she came west.

"Rick never seems to think of it. Besides, I don't think we've got money enough to take one of us, let alone both. I just long to go. Sometimes it seems like I'd go wild staying here. A man can get along better'n a woman."

"Are you coming?" he asked.

She stood a moment straightening the cover on the table.

"Yes, I'll go," she said decisively. "There are a few things I must take, but I can be ready in half an hour."

"It's four-thirty," George called.

She laid her hat and cloak on the bed.

"I'm glad I baked the bread and dried apple pies this morning," she thought. "Men are so helpless about housework. I must leave some word of where I'm gone. I guess he has tried to be good to me, but he has no right to keep me here."

She found a sheet of the thin blue-lined paper on which she had so often written to her folks. She sat down on the bed with the ink bottle on a chair near by.

"Dear Rick," she wrote, then hastily crossed it out and began "Rick." Then she was motionless for a time, her eyes fixed on the ceiling. At last she wrote "George Gilbert is here and is going to lend me money to go home on. I cannot stand it here any longer. I hope you will forgive me, for I know you have tried to be good to me and ——"

She threw down her pen and ran into the kitchen. George stood in the doorway smoking and looking down the road.

"Ready?" he asked, without turning.

"Oh, I can't go!" she cried huskily. "I can't go! He has done his best. It would be wicked when he has worked so hard. Poor Rick!" She sat down and covered her face with her hands.

"All right," George answered. "I was willing to take you; but, if you think you'd better not, that's all right. I don't want to interfere, as I said before."

She watched him out of sight. Then she went into the house and laid her clothing back in the trunk. Her letter lay on the floor. She picked it up and threw it into the fire as if it had been something unclean. She watched it blaze and turn to a white ghost, which she crumbled with the poker. When the house had taken on its ordinary look, she put the teakettle on the stove and set the table for supper. As she cut one of her pies she smiled. She was to eat them, after all.

The wind had gone with the sun, and it was dusk when she heard the sound of wheels. She took the lantern from the high shelf, lit it and set out for the barn.

"Is that you, Rick?" she called.

Kate held the lantern while her husband unhitched and fed his horses. Then they walked together to the house. Through the open door a block of light fell on the ground, and within the red tablecloth and white dishes shone pleasant and cheerful.

"I've got some good news, sis," Rick said across the table as he helped himself to a third cut of pie. "Old man Shutz wants to buy this farm; says he don't like the way my land gouges out the corner of his section. He will take up the mortgage and give me six hundred dollars clear. It ain't much, but we can go back home and begin over again—begin over again in a country where a man gets a decent living for his sweat and labor."

Kate laid her head on the table and began to cry.

"Why, sis, ain't you tickled?" he asked. "I did it because I thought this was no place for you."

"I am awful pleased," she answered, "but I was so tired I thought mabbe you didn't care."

In the night the wind came up and set the cornstalks creaking and rustling with a thousand whispers, but they said to Kate, "Years fly, years fly—good-by, good-by." Now the whisper of the wind was sweet to her as she lay listening. "Years fly, years fly—good-by, good-by." — "Waverley Magazine."

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 21 1902

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Local Happenings Picked Up Here and There by the Times.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to contribute items of news to its columns. Anything that is phoned or sent in writing to the office, of a nature suitable for publication, will be received and published.—Ed. Times.]

—Take the little tots to Whiten's and have some lovely photos taken of them.

—Posters for the farmers' pic-nic a Jubilee Point on June 12th are now being printed.

—The Regiment had a march out last night with both bands. Regimental inspection will take place on Friday, Jun 27th.

—"How much for children's pictures?" said a lady to Mr. Whiten yesterday. "Two dollars a dozen," was the reply. "Why—er—yes; but I've only got nine."

—Mrs. (Capt). Lane has arrived in town, and has assumed her duties in connection with the City of Peterborough. Mrs. Lane made a very popular stewardess when formerly identified with the 'City.'

A local politician in one of his speeches recently dubbed Major Miller a "temperperance bootmaker." This great family journal would rise right here to remark that the need of temperance boots is apparent, for, though they're not generally drunk, it's a notorious fact that they're after being tight.

—At considerable length the superintendent of a Sunday School, not far from Peterborough, had set forth the culpability of the sluggard, who, he said, needed only the spur of a worthy motive to become a useful member of society "Now, then, boys," he asked, in a more animated manner, "what is the matter with the sluggard?" "He's all right!" yelled the boys, in chorus.

—The concert to be given in Lakefield, Thursday, May 22nd, should draw a large and cultured audience. Mrs. Morrow's appearing here always draws a crowded house of those musically inclined, as her name alone is all that is required. She will be assisted by a number of her advanced pupils, and as Lakefield residents always look forwards to the "best" they will do well to attend.

—At the regular Literary meeting of the George street Epworth League held on Monday night, the subject being "Women of Methodism," short papers dealing with the life and work of "Susanna Wesley," Barbara Heck," and "Dinah Morris" were read by Misses Ethel Miller, R. M. Finley, and Edith McClennan. The musical portion of the programme consisted of a quartette by the Misses Hill and Messrs Turner and Maguire, a vocal solo by Miss Clara Belleghem, and a male quartette by Messrs. Miller, Maguire, Turner and Doidge. The Executive Committee of the League met last night, when matters of importance were attended to.

Don't Like the Chinese

The Chinamen who reside in town have no bed of roses. They are frequently teased and annoyed by the "foreign devils" in the shape of school boys, who guy and frequently try to insult them. Yesterday afternoon a stone, weighing perhaps a pound, was thrown through the window of the Chinese laundry at the corner of Aylmer and Hunter Streets. The rock was thrown by a man who is old enough to know better. Chief Roszel was sent for and is now trying to locate the culprit.

Death of Mr. Richard Cavanagh

The news of the death of Mr. Richard Cavanagh will come with a great shock to his many friends this morning. The deceased had been ailing for some months, but was not thought to be in any immediate danger. He took suddenly worse on Sunday, and gradually sank until 8.30 o'clock last night when he passed away. "Dick," as he was familiarly known, was the eldest son of Mr. T. Cavanagh, of the Cavanagh Hotel, Simcoe Street, and was about 28 years of age. He was very popular with the patrons of the house, and will be greatly missed by his many friends. The Times extends its sincere sympathy to the widow and other relatives in their great affliction. Particulars of the funeral will be announced in to-morrow's issue.

Chemong Park Booming

Mr. George H. Brown, the popular proprietor of Chemong Park Hotel, was in town yesterday, and gave The Times a call. Mr. Brown says that the outlook for a good season's business was never more promising. He expects to have every room in his house taken by the time the season opens. The cottages in the park are all rented, and new cottages are to be erected. The Park is evidently on the eve of a great boom.

THE CAMPAIGN

The Contest in West Peterborough Progressing Satisfactorily

The election contest, so far as West Peterborough is concerned, is progressing satisfactorily. Hon. Mr. Stratton had a flattering reception at Lakefield on Monday night, and again at Bridgenorth last night. His old friends and supporters are rallying around him in great numbers, and mean to give him as large, if not larger, majority than he had four years ago. Amongst his supporters are many Conservatives, whose desire to see their County progress and stride forward is greater than mere party ties. They know that Mr. Stratton's first duty is to his constituents, whose welfare he always has at heart. From every direction come omens of victory on the 29th for the popular Provincial Secretary.

Mr. Stratton's opponents are whistling hard to keep their courage up. The most they hope to accomplish is to reduce the majority of the Provincial Secretary, in the belief that it will discredit him with his colleagues and with the electors of the Province. Is there anything patriotic in this? Would it not be of far, far greater advantage to the electors of West Peterborough, for whom he has labored so hard and so earnestly, to strengthen his hands to battle for them by increasing his majority? This is the view The Times takes of the matter, and it is the only conclusion any loyal and patriotic citizen of Peterborough, not irrevocably wedded to party, can arrive at.

TO BE INTERRED HERE

The Remains of the Late Rev. Mr. Adam, of Hastings

The remains of the late Rev. Mr. Adam, Methodist minister of Hastings, whose sudden and unexpected death was recorded in these columns yesterday, will be interred in the Little Lake Cemetery this evening. A funeral service will be conducted at the Methodist church, Hastings, at four o'clock in the afternoon, and the remains will be conveyed to Peterborough on the 8 p.m. train.

The deceased was 47 years of age, and was a most successful worker in the Methodist ministry. He has held a number of important charges, being stationed at Bobcaygeon, Millbrook, Hastings and other places. He was an ardent revivalist and an earnest worker. Besides being an eloquent preacher. The late Mr. Adams was very popular amongst his fellow-clergymen. He was also much sought after by the various circuits and his removal from each charge at the termination of his term was a matter always to be regretted.

He married a Miss Elliott, of Smith, a sister of Messrs. Geo. E. and E. M. Elliott, of Peterborough, who together with one son survives him. The late Mr. Adams had many warm friends in Peterborough, all of whom will regret to learn of his unexpected demise.

LACK COW SENSE

People Get Willful

A cow or a horse or even a dog will refuse to eat or drink what the animal knows to be harmful, but mankind will persist in pouring in coffee even after having been fully assured that it is steadily killing him. Once in a while they wake up and do the sensible thing.

A lady says, "Why will people wait as long as I did when it is so easy to save oneself the suffering caused by coffee drinking? After using coffee several years I discovered that I was breaking down nervously. I consulted several doctors, but in spite of everything, steadily grew worse.

One physician advised me to quit coffee and I tried quitting by the use of will power, but every time it was a miserable failure.

My stomach was in dreadful shape and I was unable to sleep at night, nervous prostration set in and I became barely able to drag about.

One day while visiting a minister's wife, a motherly old lady, she proposed to give me a cup of coffee, the kind she had been using three times a day for three years. So she brought out a cup of the most fragrant, delicious beverage. It was coffee and it was not coffee. I tried it and was eager to know how it was made.

She said, "Five years ago I was affected much as you are, but I quit drinking coffee and began using Postum Food Coffee, and that produced the result you see and restored me to health.'

She said a lot more and when I went home I got a box of Postum and began using it. Such a soothing effect took place and I began sleeping nights and felt a relief from my awful nervous tension. Gradually and surely I got well and now feel as strongly and healthy as a woman should at my age, with all my old-time energy restored.

I earnestly entreat all coffee drinkers to change to Postum. What is the use of suffering day and night because of some paltry coffee when one has but to leave it off and use Postum to be well. and I think anyone will agree with me that health is worth everything else; money, property or fame." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Events Under This Head Transpiring in and around Peterborough.

NOTE—The Times requests its readers to furnish the paper with items of a personal and social nature either by phone or in writing —Ed. Times.]

—Mr. W. Sherin, Lakefield, was in town yesterday.

—Mrs. Dr. Yelland, of Omemee, was in town yesterday.

Mrs. John Crane will not receive again until the third Friday in September.

—Mr. R. C. Clute, K. C. who addressed Mr. Anderson's meeting last night, was the guest of Mr. J. B. McWilliams.

—Billy Ponton, of Napanee bank robbery fame, has been appointed British consul at Bocas del Toro, Mexico. Billy's many Peterborough friends will be pleased to hear of his success.

—Mr. Richard Hall. Mayor Denne and Mr. E H. D. Hall leave to-day for Preston Springs, where they will remain a a couple of weeks. Mr. Richard Hall desires The Times to state that he regrets his absence from town will prevent his attendance at St. Andrew's Church next Sunday evening, to hear Mr. Potter's eloquent sermon on Nicholls Hospital affairs.

—Mr. Wilkinson Hartley, J. P., of Nelson, England, one of the seven Commissioners sent out by the English Cotton Manufacturers Association, to inquire into the American system of cotton making, is spending a few days in town with relatives, and is at present a guest at the residence of Mr. S. Clegg. The Commission has now completed its work, the importance of which may be estimated from the fact that a reporter from the Manchester Guardian accompanies the members on their tour. The party is now in Montreal, and will remain in Canada for the balance of the week.

The Lakefield Picnic

Don't forget the great Lakefield pic-nic on Victoria Day. Cheap fares on the Grand Trunk, and a special to bring you home at night. Everybody should attend this charming outing.

DOURO.

(From our own Correspondent.)

—The farmers are happy now that their spring seeding is done.

—Everybody in Douro appears to read The Times. Indeed it is the peoples' paper, so far as this township is concerned.

—Scarlet fever has broken out in the township. I am told that one case of a poor woman Her house was placarded on Saturday and the Board of Health didn't meet until Tuesday afternoon. They thus gave her lots of time to get better or worse, and neighbors say that people went in and out where the fever was, but that is not true. They also said that a conveyance was engaged to take them to St. Joseph's Hospital, but this was also untrue. We are very sorry that our Reeve is not prompt in a matter of this kind.

—The Council will no doubt do everything possible to facilitate the work of extending the Street Railway to Lakefield.

—It is rumored that Sir Richard McBride, President of the Lime Juice Club, has returned from South Africa, and will open a branch of the Club in September, at an early date.

The Concert Last Night

The concert at the Opera House last night given by the Yodling Company, under the auspices of All Saint's Church was a decided success in every sense of the word, and much credit is due the company for the pleasing manner in which each and every member of the company took his or her respective part. DEATH FOR LOOTERS OF STRICKEN ISLANDS

Robbers of the Dead at St. Pierre and St. Vincent Islands Shot

MANY OTHERS ARE SENTENCED TO PRISON

Women Were Among Them—Measures Taken to Check Crimes—The Work of Succor Progresses

Fort de France, Martinique, May 21 —Acting Governor L'Huerre is taking precautions to prevent wholesale looting at St. Pierre during the relief work. The french troops and the revenue officers have been ordered to watch out for this business. A small boat with officers was sent to St. Pierre. The officers arrested on three days eighty-one looters. Eleven of these were women.

The officers shot many of the looters whom they found robbing the dead. The shooting of these people has been hushed up, as the French law does not justify any such action.

Presiding Judge Desfontaines sentenced seventy men and four women to various terms of imprisonment. The men were sent to prison for five years and the women for three. Attorney General De Trevoux de Breffeillac does not think these sentences are severe enough, and will appeal the cases to the Paris assized. The Martinique laws have jurisdiction over penitentiary offences of which the maximum penalty is five years. Looting is a crime which belongs to the assize Court. Notwithstanding this, it is stated that the acting judge at Morne Rough, the summer resort outside of St. Pierre, sentenced one looter to twenty years imprisonment.

The people attacked and tried to lynch the looters while they were being taken to jail. The gendarmes drew their revolvers and the people fled, cursing the looters as they went. There were no casualties.

The people generally are highly excited over the looting and are anxious that the criminals shall be tried by the higher courts and more severe sentences imposed.

The French cruiser Suchet, with Acting Governor L'Huerre, Senator Knight, Deputy Clement, Col. Dains and Chief Surgeon Lydin Aboard, sailed from here yesterday morning for the cities she had not visited to the north of St. Pierre.

She stopped at St. Pierre and lowered boats, which were quickly recalled, as the volcano was roaring and emitting dense volumes of smoke. The boats returned immediately and the Suchet left. At Grande Riviere the Suchet found that the river had overflowed its banks. Provisions were delivered for the refugees, and twenty-five of them were taken on board the cruiser.

The Suchet steamed slowly along the coast, taking soundings. At some points no bottom could be found and at others reefs of rocks were discovered where none existed before.

At Basse Point many persons swam out to the Suchet and asked to be taken aboard, but the Captain had to refuse them as he had his vessel crowded already. Provisions were distributed at Riviere Blanche, where the former bed of the river was found to be covered with mud twenty feet deep.

The doctors went ashore and examined the situation closely. They ordered that the bodies should be burned and that the people should leave the place. About five persons were brought to Fort de France. A chemist who was aboard the Suchet analyzed the sand or ashes that Mont Pelee emitted and found them to be a composition of sulpher and saltpetre. The party returned to Fort de France last night.

SEARCH FOR PRENTIS'S BODY

St. Lucia, B.W.I., May 21 — Capt. McLean and Commander Gilmour of the Cruiser Cincinnati and Consul Ayme, with a guide, went on Friday to St. Pierre, Martinique, to search for the body of Mr. Prentis, the American Consul, and also for the bodies of the members of his family.

The guide located the American Consulate in a mass of stones. He penetrated the ruins and found much silverware marked "M."

A skeleton was found in the courtyard, but there was no evidence to identify it. Several tons of stones must be removed before any positive identification can be made. The mark "M" on the silverware probably represents the name of Consul Prentis's wife.

The investigation of the ruins and the search for the bodies will be continued.

PAUL MERWART A VICTIM

Paris, May 21 — A despatch from Fort de France to the Republique Française says that Paul Merwart, a painter, was a victim of the eruption.

On the morning of the catastrophe he was sketching the crater of Mont Pelee. He sent a written message to a friend in Paris to this effect: "This bad air is overcoming me." The messenger arrived at Havre to-day.

NO MORE AID NEEDED

Washington, May 21 — Consul Ayme, who is in Martinique, has informed the State Department that in his opinion the public subscriptions of money may as well be stopped, as the provisions already made by this Government for the relief of the islands are sufficient.

The President has requested the Secretaries of War and of the Navy to ask the officers of their respective Departments now on relief duty in the West Indies to report immediately their opinion as to the necessities of the inhabitants of the afflicted islands.

The Navy Department received this morning the following cable despatch from Commander McLean of the Cincinnati, dated May 20, at St. Lucia:

"Excitement Martinique calming down. Many refugees not destitute or starving, but frightened by appalling disaster at St. Pierre, and grave but less serious damages in more northern portion of island, were leaving estates and sections which had not suffered. Many cases of pillaging in those districts. Government taking action to stop it. In some northern districts many cattle may die because of volcanic dust over vegetation. A few good rains would cure much of this condition.

"To-day visited and explored ruins United States and British consulates at St. Pierre. Found some portions charred remains of bodies.

"Potomac returned to Fort de France. Reports disaster St. Vincent very serious. I believe volcanic worse, and in some respects condition of living as bad or worse than Martinique."

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY

It Will Not be Celebrated in Canada This Year

Ottawa, May 21.—There will be no observance of the King's birthday in Canada this year. May 24 is now a permanent Dominion holiday and will be observed as such throughout Canada next Saturday There can be no change from this date to Monday to suit the convenience of merchants and others. Thursday, June 26, will be observed as a public holiday. A Governor-General's proclamation making the holiday legal will be issued in due course.

Sometime prior to November 9, the anniversary of the King's birthday, a proclamation will be issued fixing May 24, as the date on which to observe the anniversary next year and thereafter during the King's lifetime.

Tests Safes With Explosives

Special to The Times.

Huron, S. Dak., May 21 — Not the least interesting feature of the annual convention of the South Dakota Bankers' Association which began here to-day is to be the test of so-called burglar-proof safes. Manufacturers in various parts of the country have sent samples of their best wares for the purpose of the demonstration and their capacity to withstand the attacks of the cracksmen will be tested by dynamite, nitroglycerin and other high explosives. The convention, however, does not depend on this spectacular demonstration for its interest, as an exceedingly attractive programme of papers and addresses will be carried out. Burglar insurance, indemnity bonds and general banking business are some of the subjects to be discussed by men prominent in banking and financial circles.

NINE DROWNED AT KILLARNEY

English Tourists' Boat Overturned During a Squall

Special to The Times.

Cork, May 21.—A party of nine tourist from Graham's Hotel on the shores of the lakes of Killarney, chartered a boat yesterday to row on the lower lake.

The boat has been found with the bodies of two women and a man, entangled in the wreckage. It is surmised that the boat capsized during a squall and that all on board were lost. The party consisted of English tourists connected with the Pickwick Bicycle club.

Pennsylvania Prohibitionists

Special to The Times.

New Castle, Pa., May 21.—The Prohibition state convention assembled in the Central Presbyterian church this afternoon and was called to order by Charles H. Jones, chairman of the state committee. Nominations will be made tomorrow for governor, lieutenant governor and secretary of internal affairs. There are four candidates for the head of the ticket. They are ex-Mayor James Mansel of Williamsport, Lee L. Grumbine of Lebanon, Dr. Silas Swallow of Harrisburg and John E. Gill of Franklin.

Irritating Pimples and Disfiguring Blotches

Mr Benjamin Dillon, of Leeds, Ont., was cured of muscular rheumatism by Polson's Nerviline, and says: "I feel my duty is to proclaim Polson's Nerviline as an infallible cure for rheumatism; it cured me after 30 years suffering, and nothing I know of can equal its penetrating power. Nerviline simply has no equal in quickly relieving and curing rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and lumbago. A trial will convince anyone. Price 25c.

200 DEAD IN MINE EXPLOSION

Fraterville, Tenn., Near Coal Creek, Scene of Accident

Knoxville, Tenn., May 21 — In an explosion through firedamp in the Fraterville coal mine near Coal Creek this morning at 5.30 o'clock perhaps 200 men were killed. Out of those in the mine only five were recovered. One of these is still alive but he will die.

Supt. Camp said this afternoon that in his office he had the check tags of 179 contract miners who entered Fraterville mine this morning. He said the day laborers and boys who worked in the mine would probably bring the number up to 200 and perhaps more.

Soon after the explosion the rescue party was organized in the hope of saving lives. The party was unable to go more than 500 yards in the mine on account of slate having fallen in the main path, and also on account of the stifling smoke and gas and the excessive heat. The latter indicates that the mine may be burning. It is three miles from the mouth of the mine to the place where the men were at work, and this distance will have to be traversed to get to them. Upheavels of earth, coal and slate will have to be removed to reach the place.

William Morgan, the only man taken out alive, remains unconscious, and no one has been found to explain exactly how the accident happened. Morgan is an Englishman with one leg, who has been in the mining business a half century, and is a pioneer in the Coal Creek district. Knoxville undertakers sent over 100 coffins to Coal Creek to-night and will ship more in a few days. Most of the miners were married and lived at Coal Creek and Briceville.

The mine had two entrances, a mile apart, at Fraterville and Thistle. They met at a point 6000 feet in and 300 men were generally employed, although the Thistle side had been practically abandoned. The property is owned by the Coal Creek Coal Company, of which Major E. C. Camp of of Knoxville is President. The mine was opened in 1872 and was considered safe. State Labor Commissioner R. A. Shiflett will make an investigation of the cause of the accident as soon as possible.

Rescuers reached the place of the explosion at 10 o'clock to-night and all the miners found were dead. There are fully 150 dead and the list may reach 200.

THE 17 YEAR LOCUST

Bureau of of Entomology Active in Fighting Insects

Special to The Times.

Washington, May 21 — The Bureau of Entomology is enjoying an extensive campaign of observation in various parts of the country on the return of the seventeen year locust. This is the year when groups of this insect in New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin come out of the state of incubation and proceed to enjoy themselves. The orchardists in the Virginias report that the locusts are doing a vast amount of damage to fruit trees. Young orchards have been badly injured by the bites of the insects, and in some places orchard owners are cutting off the stems of young trees and grafting them over. In some places orchards are being sprayed with whitewash, as a preventive, and many are wrapping their trees with newspapers. It has been found that dogs and turkeys prove effective in destroying the bugs. It is reported to the Bureau that where the orchards were sprayed with Bordeaux mixture the female locusts are not depositing their eggs in fruit trees. Here the locusts appear chiefly in the trees around the Smithsonian and Agricultural buildings. The ground is thick with small round holes, where the insects have lain since 1885. L. O. Howard, Chief of the Bureau of Etomology, says that they will do very little injury to shade trees. They prefer to bite young nursery trees and the shoots on small fruit trees. The locust burrows in the ground about two feet, and wherever there are macadam and asphalt roads and solid blocks of houses there is little chance for the insect to increase in numbers. The locust makes no appearance in plowed fields. As it appears at such long intervals, the birds do not seem to know that the locust is good eating, but the lively English sparrow, blackbirds and catbirds have been seen devouring locusts frequently. Two months ago the Bureau sent out 5,000 circular letters to observers in the regions where locusts were expected to reappear, asking for reports. Only a small proportion of answers has been received as the season has been cold and wet in most parts of the country, which would retard their appearance.

French Mission Welcomed

Special to The Times.

Washington, D.C., May 21.—A commission headed by Assistant Secretary of State Hill went to Annapolis today to formally welcome to the United States the distinguished delegation appointed to represent the French Government at the unveiling of the Rochambeau monument. Tomorrow the visitors will come to Washington and in the interval between their arrival here and the ceremonies of Saturday there will be a round of brilliant entertainments in their honor.

Operative Millers Meet

Indianapolis, Ind., May 21.—More than thirty states are represented at the seventh annual convention of the Fraternity of Operative Millers, which began its session here today. The annual reports of President D. M. Friend and Secretary J. F. Mueller show the organization to be in good condition, having accomplished considerable during the last year in the way of promoting the interest of the flour milling industry.

200,000 PEOPLE FOR THE WEST

World Predicts a Big Immigration This Summer

Toronto, Ont. May 22.—The World says Great changes are about to take place in the industrial life of Canada; Some few, see the coming changes; but the great mass of our manufacturers are not taking them into their calculation at all. The reason of the coming changes is that the development of the Canadian Northwest on a gigantic scale is about to set in—in fact, has already set in. It is, as Mr. B. E. Walker says, the Americans who see what is coming. They are going into the Northwest in tens of thousands. Their land agents are everywhere, buying land wholesale for individuals and companies. In St. Paul they are selling twenty thousand acres of Canadian land every day, retail, to investors and home-seekers. Mr. Kensaton, who came from St. Paul to take over the John Abell agricultural works, says that two hundred thousand Americans will go into the Canadian Northwest this year. Individuals are going in by the thousands every day, to take up land, and companies are buying the land up by the hundred thousand acres. One syndicate has just bought a block of over one million acres.

"The Americans are flocking in, not only to take up our land, but are getting control of our factories in the East. As a prominent banker says today, dozens of instances can be given where Americans have either established new industries here to control the trade, or have acquired old going industries, with the idea of greatly increasing the output. Eastern manufacturers will have to wake up. An enormous trade is coming, but there will be a big fight for it. Industries controlled by vast amounts of American capital will spring up, and, as the armies of immigrants going into the country are Americans, the incoming manufacturers will naturally best understand their needs, and will make a big fight against our own manufacturers to hold the business. Toronto Montreal, Hamilton and other Eastern centres are destined to become great manufacturing cities.

AN OLD FRIEND

An Interesting Letter From Old Peterborough Boy

Yesterday this great family journal received a letter from Dr. Delaney (son of the late Mr. John Delaney), an old Peterborough boy. The letter is not for publication, but a few extracts will prove interesting to many of our readers. Dr. Delaney says: "I am pleased to get my old friend The Times, which is a literal 'letter from home' every week. I remember The Times when the office was upstairs, near where Joe Mills' store was. I think Thompson kept a photographic gallery [illegible] Walsh was one of the staff in those days, whom all the old timers will remember. I must not drift into ancient history, however, as I see you will shortly have your fill, when the Historical society, which I see meets in Peterborough next month, gets in its work, and Ham Burnham enlarges on the feuds of the Iroquois and Hurons. Next Saturday, (May 24th) the New York Society of McGill graduates hold their annual dinner in that city. I am a member, and intend going. Several old McGill men from Montreal are coming over, and all anticipate a good time. You see we are patriotic and loyal to the old flag.

"We are having the most prosperous era throughout New England I have ever experienced. Money is plentiful, pay is high and, save for the high price of beef and the coal strike, all would be serene. I look forward to my trip to Peterborough every year with anticipations of great pleasure, although this season I may not go, having been there so recently. Remember me to all my old friends."

Dr. Delaney is residing in Naugatuck, where he has a large and lucrative practice. His many friends in Peterborough will be glad to know that the world is prospering with him.
